I had feared that modern inovations had obliterated impromptu visits, even in rural areas, and would like to know where Town Gal was lucky enough to find remnants of them! — Pioneer.

Dear Pioneer: Sounds as though you had some wonderful times on the farm.

To those brought up with rural etiquette, unexpected guests may seem great. To a town-bred hostess, they may spell disaster. Could it be that the secret is to know your hostess before you drop in?

* * *

Dear Doris: Sharing a semi-private room in a hospital can be compared to a shipboard acquaintance. You cannot help but become intimately aware of your companion, who a few days before was a complete stranger.

If there is immediate rapport, the hospital stay can become a little holiday; if there is not, then you can go home appreciating more fully your nearest and dearest. It also allows us to discipline our attitudes towards those we would incline to avoid, if we were not forced to share the same room.

My most memorable 'partner' was a young girl, 13, who when leaving said: "Gee, when I saw I was going to have a kid of my own age, I nearly died. I didn't know an older lady could be so much fun!"

As a matter of fact the nurses would come in to see what we two gals were giggling about. No generation gap — just the space between two hospital beds. — Sally.

Dear Sally: You made positive gains by the way you handled your stay in hospital. It would have been a shame to miss knowing that delightful 13-year-old!

* * *

Dear Doris: I am five-foot-four and weigh 158 pounds. My waistline is getting very large.

Would you kindly send me a reducing plan and any information on slimming down the waistline? — Spare Tire.

Dear Spare Tire: Any bends or stretches will help. I'm sending you my 10-cent Simple Reducing Diet and instructions for the tummy massage which will really get at that spare tire.

Thin soup or juice at the beginning of a meal is good technique for cutting down the appetite for solid food. And—that's the extent of the magic of grapefruit juice.

Ann Landers

Long Phone Calls In Poor Taste

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please answer a question that has been bothering me for a long time. I have never seen it discussed anywhere and I have looked through every etiquette book I can find.

ANN LANDERS had left me sitting there for a good long while.

When a person is visiting in the home of a friend, and the telephone rings, is it polite for the hostess to leave her guest sitting alone while she goes to another room and talks on the phone for fifteen or twenty minutes?

This happened to me yesterday, for the third time (same woman) and I felt as if she was treating me shabbily. When she returned, she made no reference to the fact that she

Am I wrong to feel this was rude on her part? Or am I overly sensitive? — GRACE.

DEAR GRACE: It is extremely poor manners to leave a guest for 15 or 20 minutes unless a dire emergency arises.

Most phone calls can be returned — unless of course the call is from overseas in which case the hostess should explain.

If I were a guest and the hostess disappeared for 20 minutes to talk on the phone, she would find me gone when she returned.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 15-year-old daughter is going steady with a rather nice young man of 17. He has a habit of coming early for dates — sometimes he shows up as much as 45 minutes before the appointed time. Lately he has fallen into the habit of going upstairs to Mary's bedroom to visit with her while she dresses, brushes her hair and puts on her makeup. Since he has started to do this he has been showing up earlier and earlier. The stereo is usually on and the door is often closed. My husband and I feel this is improper. When we told Mary this morning that we did not approve she became highly indignant — said we were intimating by our criticism that we did not trust her.

What are your views? — OLD FOGIES AGES 47 AND 45.

DEAR FOGIES: When a boy comes to a girl's home to pick her up for a date, he should not go upstairs to keep her company, or for any other reason.

Tell your daughter to inform the young man to wait downstairs — and if he wants to know why, she can tell him: "Because my folks don't think you belong in my bedroom." Kids can be plenty blunt. I suggest the same for parents.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read recently where a psychiatrist from Vanderbilt University reported his findings at the Mid-South Medical Convention. A questionnaire revealed that nine out of ten women enjoy being cuddled. I like these odds, but please tell me, what is "cuddling?" What I mean is, how far does "cuddling" go? I am not being precious. I am sincere in my quest for this information. Thank you. — 1911 MODEL FROM DOTHAN, ALA.

DEAR MOD: According to the World Book Encyclopedia Dictionary, cuddle means "to hold closely and lovingly in one's arms. To hug tenderly. To fondle or nestle."

As you can see the possibilities are endless. You can go as far as you please. If you happen to get that one out of ten who doesn't enjoy it, she'll let you know.

* * *

Confidential to HORSE'S MOUTH: Sorry — the horse is wrong. The more times a person marries the less chance he has of making a go of it. This is one instance where practice does not make perfect.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

BY MARY BRYSON

Many homes aren't really equipped for little people less than three feet tall. You can encourage your preschooler to be clean and orderly if you install a low mirror where he can see himself, a low hook in the bathroom for his towel, a low rod in the closet for his clothes, shelves he can reach and drawers he can open for storing clothing or toys. Add half a dozen brightly colored plastic drapes in which his toys can be sorted or simply dumped for storage on the shelves and you may be on the way to the neatest house in town.

ELMWOOD FRIENDSHIP CIRCLE

The June meeting of the Elmwood Friendship Circle was held in the home of Mrs. Gerald Norton with eight members present.

President, Mrs. Howard Norton, opened the meeting. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. Marilyn Kerr, in the absence of Secretary Mrs. Orval May, due to an injured back. The minutes of the present meeting were taken by Mrs. Jack Weisman. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Arthur Stone, indicating the bank balance, and that cards of thanks had been received from families in the community for remembrances. Plans for a food sale were discussed, and will take place on June 18, 1971 at 10 a.m. at the Lodge Hall, next to the Bank of Commerce in Picton. Several volunteered to assist in picking up the food for same. The president or treasurer are to be notified in the case of illness, serious injury or bereavement to someone in the community.

President, Mrs. H. Norton then read the 4th chapter of "Time Out, Ladies" by Dale Evans Rogers, the book written by the famous personality, concerning the many ways a Christian wife and mother can benefit her self, her family, and her community.

The next meeting is to be held in Picton on August 4, 1971 at the apartment of Mrs. Ella Gorsline.

The meeting was turned over to Mrs. Raymond Jinks, who took the devotional, using as her theme, "Time Alone With God" assisted by Mrs. Gorsline and Mrs. Weisman. The theme was further brought out by Mrs. Jinks, emphasizing the special need of prayer and Bible Study in daily lives.

A lively contest was conducted by Mrs. H. Norton, and won by Mrs. Weisman, bringing the meeting to a conclusion.

UCW MEETINGS

ELDORADO UCW

The regular monthly meeting of the Eldorado UCW was held at the home of Mrs. Lee Johnson recently.

Mrs. Cyril Shaw, president, conducted the meeting. A letter from Quin-Mo-Lac camp was the only correspondence to be dealt with.

Mrs. Cecil Blackburn was in charge of the worship service, which was entitled, "The Road to Emmaus". Scripture verses were read by Mrs Harley Blackburn. Mrs. Dan Robinson, Mrs. Lee Johnson and Mrs. Gerald Blackburn also took part in the service.

Program convener was Mrs. Cyril Shaw and her topic was "Trinidad," concerning life in the West Indies. Mrs. Saaw closed the program with a poem.

The hostess served a dainty lunch and a social half-hour was enjoyed by all.

Mr; Mrs. Arthur Hulin Wed for 65 Years

FRANKFORD — Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hulin, of Mill Street, Frankford, formerly of Stirling, celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary at home on Sunday, May 30.

Bertha Alcombrack, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Wesley Alcombrack, and Arthur Hulin, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Hulin were married in Madoc, May 30, 1906. Since their marriage they have resided in Stirling until moving to Frankford last fall to be near their daughter, Mrs. Charles (Irene) Bennett.

Many relatives and friends called on Sunday and Saturday. They received many cards, letters of congratulations and gifts. Congratulatory messages were received from the Queen, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Leader of the opposition Robert Stanfield.

Letters were received from George Hees MP, Lee Grills MP, R. T. Potter MPP, Clarke Rollins MPP, William Davis, Premier of Ontario and Russell Rowe, member for Northumberland. They also received a plaque from the Ontario government.

Lunch was served consisting with a three-tiered wedding cake, made by their granddaughter, Mrs. John Loaks of Frankford and beautifully decorated for the occasion by Mr. J. Adams.

Out-of-town callers were from New York State, Montreal, Ottawa, Batawa, Belleville, Brighton, Stirling and the surrounding community.

Strawberry Crepes Best Dessert Ever Eaten

By MARY MOORE

"The best dessert I ever ate" said Iris my friendly critic and test taster.

It was heady praise and I hope your good cooks and hostesses will heed it and make this gourmet dessert.

STRAWBERRY CREPES
(Serves 6)

Pancake Batter:
2-3 cup sifted all-purpose flour
¼ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. sugar
1¼ cups milk
4 large (or 5 medium) eggs
2 tbsps. melted butter

Filling:
One 8-oz. pkge. white cream cheese
2 tbsps. sugar
2 tbsps. cream
1 tsp. freshly grated lemon rind

Sauce:
¼ cup sugar
½ cup apple juice
1 tsp. lemon juice
2 cups quartered strawberries

Topping:
½ pint (1¼ cups) 32 percent (whipping) cream

Make the pancakes (Crepes) first by mixing dry ingredients making a well in centre and beating in remaining batter ingredients until perfectly smooth. Melt about ½ tsp. butter in a 5" frying pan and spoon in 3 tbsps. batter (a little less than ¼ cup) to cover bottom. Cook over med. heat until bottom is pale gold, turn over and cook other side about 1 min.

Cover a large plate or platter with paper towelling and put crepe on it and keep warm. Continue until all batter is cooked. You should have 12 - 14 crepes. Do not stack them but they may overlap a little.

To make Filling combine all filling ingredients in top of double boiler and heat over boiling water, stirring constantly until smooth. Spread some filling over each crepe, roll them up and keep warm. This cheese filling is the secret of their success.

To make Sauce combine sugar and apple juice and bring to boil. Add lemon juice and and remove from heat at once.

Serve 2 rolled crepes to each guest and spoon some sauce over each rather generously. Top each serving with generous mound of unsweetened whipped cream.

NOTE: Since these crepes should be served warm if you have a helper she (or he) would be a great comfort.

A Gourmet Dessert

The praise will be so loud and clear it will turn your head when you make Strawberry Crepes. Mary Moore's was when her friend said "The best dessert I ever ate." Reach for this new high.

INFECTION DANGER

TORONTO (CP) — Every time a woman uses baby powder for her child's diaper rash, she could be applying organisms that cause infection, a scientist told the Toronto section of the Chemical Institute of Canada. Dr. G. W. Riedel, an industrial microbiologist, said a study of 28 baby powders found potential trouble - making organisms in 11 of them.

A REMINDER

Wedding forms for write-ups are available at The Intelligencer and should be completed and returned BEFORE the ceremony so a report can be published immediately after the wedding.

Pictures may be submitted by your photographer up to three days after the wedding. We cannot publish wedding write-ups submitted later than six days after the date of the ceremony.

Accounts of showers and entertainments in honor of the bride do not belong with a wedding write-up and should be sent in immediately after they are held, for publication separately.

USE BREAK

When a recipe calls for a greased casserole, use a piece of bread to spread the butter, margarine, or salad oil.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

GAMMA MU CHAPTER

A regular meeting, plus a 18th birthday party for Gamma Mu Chapter, was held at the home of Mrs. Terry Hase recently.

The regular meeting began with Mrs. R. D. Aoust introducing Mrs. D. Fordham and Mrs. W. Lock who showed a film entitled "Illegal Abortion".

Guest speaker, Mrs. Cochrane, from the public health department, led members through a rather heated discussion about the film and the whole question of illegal abortion. The group was thanked for their presentation by the hostess, Mrs ter Haar.

The business meeting was highlighted by two presentations. The first was a wine decanter given to the chapter by outgoing members, Mrs. R. Owen and Mrs. R. Vaughan.

Members took part in completing the international yardstick and found Gamma Mu to be rated as a three star chapter. After the business meeting everyone drank a toast to the chapter's sixteenth birthday, secret sisters were revealed and gifts exchanged. Coffee, birthday cake and ice cream were served by the year's pledges and a social hour followed.

Questions And Answers

By The Ontario Motor League

QUESTION: This summer, we would like to drive to Moosonee on James Bay. Can you give us the best route?

ANSWER: It is not possible to drive all the way to Moosonee. The only way to go is to Cochrane, Ont., and take the train from there.

We suggest that your best route would be by Hwy. 401 to Whitby, 12 and 69 to Washago and 11 to Cochrane. From there, the Ontario Northland Transportation operates one-day excursions by train to Moosonee on Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays from June 13 to Sept. 19. The train leaves Cochrane at 8:15 a.m., returning at 11 p.m. Round trip fare is $12, children 6 through 11 half fare, under 6 free.

QUESTION: Can you give us any details on Point Pelee National Park and is camping permitted there?

ANSWER: Point Pelee Park itself is open all year round. The campground is open from May to Sept. 30 with stay limited to 14 days. The camp and picnic grounds in the Park are equipped with tables, shelters, bathhouses, sanitary and water systems. Permits may be obtained at the campground office. Swimming along sandy beaches, fishing, golf and boat-launching facilities are available in or near the Park.

Point Pelee, six miles south of Leamington, Ont., is the southernmost mainland in Canada. The most direct way there is by Hwy. 401 to Hwy. 77 (exit 7), down Hwy. 77, through Leamington to Sea Cliffe and by County Road to the Park.

The Park contains about 4,000 acres and is one of Canada's most popular summer resorts. On the west side is Pigeon Bay, famed for its beautiful sunsets. To the east lies Surgeon Bay, named for grounds there. The uplands of the Park consist of rolling, picturesque sand dunes surrounded by virgin forests of red maple and oak. The lowlands are composed of about 2,000 acres of marshland.

It is an excellent natural sanctuary for the thousands of migratory birds that visit it each year. Numerous ponds afford refuge for small water animals, such as mink and muskrat. Many of the channels between ponds are of sufficient size and depth to permit passage of small boats.

A boardwalk extends to a 20-foot-high observation tower, 3,100 feet out into the marsh. Two thousand acres of marsh may be seen from the tower. Other viewpoints are at Sanctuary Pond.

A woodland nature trail is in operation with park naturalists on duty throughout the year. Conducted tours may be arranged through the office of the Park Superintendent. The Nature Centre features maps, sketches, pictures and other displays interpreting the three major areas in the Park — forest, sand dunes and marsh. Exhibits arepresented to encourage the visitor to explore independently or to attend naturalist talks and conducted outings. The Centre houses an exhibit hall, rotunda, information area, library and laboratory, as well as headquarters of the Park Naturalist. It is open May and June 6 to 6 daily; July and August noon to 6 daily; September and October weekends only, noon to 5.

The Park is also of historical interest. Dollier an Calinee camped on East Beach during their exploration in April 1670. During the Pontiac War in 1763, Lt. Abraham Cuyler's detachment of Royal Americans and Queen's Rangers were attacked on the beach by Wyandots and 56 of the group were killed and 4 wounded. General Brock's expedition landed here on Aug. 12, 1812, four days before the capture of Detroit. During the MacKenzie Rebellion, the Battle of Pelee Island was fought on March 3, 1838.

MRS. J. LAPHEN, 6 Dorland Cres., Ottawa CAME MAXI DISCOUNTING AT LOBLAWS AND SHE CAME OUT AHEAD...

Says Mrs. Laphen, who shops for four, "I like the new prices at Loblaws very much . . . at one point I used to come here for some things and then if there was a difference in price I would shop at another store but now I find I can do all my shopping here. I compare food prices and where at one point Loblaws were a little more expensive than some of the others now I find they are a little better than most stores. I would think I save about four dollars a week and I'm pleased with the quality I get here too. Price is usually the main factor in most of our shopping but you also must have quality as well, I like Loblaws products . . . especially the meat"

Penguins Take Risk On Horton Playing

Norine Nelson is hoping to deliver a top notch performance at the Special Olympics in Toronto this week as she practices the hurdles event at the East Hill playgrounds. A total of 12 students from the William R. Kirk School for the Mentally Retarded will be able to compete in the event because of more than $1,000 raised by Belleville residents in their support.

Kirk Kids Already Winners

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

No matter how the 12 students of the William R. Kirk School for the Mentally Retarded fare in the Special Olympics this week, Belleville can be assured of one gold medal performance — the one turned in by the people who provided financial support to make the venture possible.

"They ranged from three-year-old Sunday school students to a 81 - year - old man who lives near the school," said financial organizer Mrs. Thomas Sorrell of the city residents who contributed well over the minimum $1,000 amount required to send the team.

"I think that the most encouraging part was the number of young people who contributed to the fund. And it wasn't just the money, they seemed to have a genuine concern for people less fortunate than they are," she added.

The donations, which came from three high schools, a number of public schools, several local factories and businessmen in addition to individual contributions, will be used to offset transportation and lodging costs for the competitors and supervisors. In addition, part of the money has been used to purchase uniforms and track equipment, which can be used in future years by the school.

Competitors will be held at the CNE Exhibition Stadium in the track and field events which include the high jump, baseball throw, standing long jump and 50 and 100 - yard dashes. Over 2,000 competitors will be entered in the track events alone.

The three swimming events which will have entries from as far away as British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland as well as the Ontario Schools, will take place in the University of Toronto pool.

A total of 1,700 participants and 2,000 volunteer workers are involved in the events, which will cost an estimated $400,000 to stage.

Floor hockey teams, from each of the National Hockey League cities under the direction of NHL players will compete for the Clarence C a mpbell Cup and the Little Stanley Cup, which wind up the Olympics Thursday night.

Fred Brant, one of the William R. Kirk students will be participating in the full eight events, while Julie Murray, Carol-Ann Claus and Tom Givlna will represent the school in the swimming events only.

Bruce Botting, Norine Nelson, Steven Morey, Darlene Trudeau, Shirley McIntyre, Arlene Trudeau, Rod Stovell and Ron Vesterveil are the other competitors who will carry the Belleville colors in one or more events.

The team has been practising for the acquatic events twice weekly at the YMCA pool, while holding three track and field sessions at the East Hill playground each week to prepare for the track competition.

"The whole response from the people in the city has been simply overwhelming," beamed phys-ed instructor Sue Clarke, who, along with Mrs. Shirley Elleston and Brian Reddick has handled the track coaching duties.

"I think that the city of Belleville deserves a pat on the back for the help that they've given," she added.

Juniors Just 'Waited'

The Ellis Juniors had to "Waite" a while for their second Commercial Softball League win, but they managed it last night with a 2-1 decision over Quinte Hotel.

The defending league champions, who have dropped four in a row after blanking Howard and Robert 14-0 in the league opener, rode the strong pitching arm of Ted Waite to the win as he out - duded Quinte's Bob Swan.

The Hotelmen touched Waite for their only run in the first inning when shortstop Dale Duvall connected for a solo homer.

TED WAITE

The Juniors staged their winning rally in the fifth inning on a walk to Peter Stailkovitch, a bunt single by Waite and Brian Gariepy's double which chased both runners home. A bunt single by Rick Graham accounted for the other safety off Swan.

Waite struck out 12 batters and didn't walk a man to earn his second win of the year, while Swan whiffed six and walked three in losing the three-hit effort.

Tiremen Peewees Rolling

The Western Tire peewees were rolling last night as they dumped Woodland Dry Cleaners 31-3 in a Minor Softball Association bout.

Tom Sharland and Robert Chase combined to throw a three-hitter at Woodland, while Derek MacDonald and Lou Scanlan connected for home runs.

In the other scheduled game, Wm. Belch and Son defaulted their peewee bout to Conley's Grocery.

He's Still Boss

B. Blakely placed second with a gross score of 87, while Orval May was third with 88.

Vet Decries Swamp Fever Panic

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

That was the impression created by Department of Agriculture district veterinarian J. F. McCorquodale today as he reacted to rumors of a local epidemic of what amounts to infectious anemia in horses.

"I find all this very upsetting. We've had swamp fever for many years, and now it's being over - played," the Belleville - based vet stressed.

"I checked with Dr. Harry Burns, and he's personally taken blood samples from 200 horses in three surrounding counties. We've checked about 350 altogether and only had six reactors.

"Three of the animals were destroyed since we started taking samples about mid-April. The others are in quarantine."

Dr. McCorquodale was particularly irate about rumors that swamp fever was making big inroads into local harness racing stables.

"Dr. Burns tested every permanent resident horse at the Fairgrounds stable and didn't get a reactor. He's also tested every major riding stable in the area, in addition to racers."

And two of the six horses who reacted positively to the swamp fever test almost certainly did not contract the disease locally, Dr. McCorquodale speculated.

J. J. Wann, of Campbell Wannamaker's Consecon stable, and Larry Zebedee's Rebel Ann Chief were both diagnosed for the disease outside Belleville.

"J. J. Wann has been in quarantine ever since he attended a stable at Rideau Carleton Raceway in Ottawa," Dr. McCorquodale informed. "They've really been having problems at bigger centres. They had 40 reactors at Rideau Carleton."

A spokesman for Belleville owner - driver Larry Zebedee said today that Rebel Ann Chief, also first tested after racing in Kingston and Ottawa this spring, would be destroyed later this week. The horse has been in quarantine since being tested after a sluggish Kingston performance.

Swamp fever, transmitted by biting flies, mosquitos, or dirty hypodermic needles, is characterized by symptoms including high fever, profound weakness, and edema. About half the horses who contract the disease develop an acute variety and die. Others may develop a chronic strain and regain health, although they never lose the ability to carry the virus.

"There are only two things to do with a horse who reacts positively to the test — quarantine the animal or destroy it," said Dr. McCorquodale. "And that's what's been done to the six horses diagnosed in this area.

"Actually, the risk is lighter this year than last. There are far more horses being tested now than there were a year ago, so people really have less chance of their animal contracting the disease at places like horse shows.

"If people are saying they don't want to bring their horses to race in Belleville because they're afraid they might get swamp fever, we should tell them we're afraid of their horses bringing it in. Our area has had as good a record as any I've heard of."

Asked if he thought the diagnosing Coggins Test should be made mandatory at all such smaller race tracks as Belleville's, the federal vet was not insistent.

"I don't think so. Many of our tests have been made at the requests of owners, who want to be sure for themselves. There is no charge for the test itself, only a small veterinarians' fee for extracting the blood sample.

"Anyways, what value is a certificate of a negative test taken in April if you're taking your horse to a show in August?"

Since May 1, compulsory tests have been required by the Jockey Club at its Ontario circuit tracks, as well as by major Quebec racing centres. But Dr. McCorquodale re-iterated that the risk of infection increases with stable size.

"We've already tested every resident Belleville horse, and I can't see much cause for concern of their owners. Few of them own more than one or two racers and out-of-town horses are usually here for only a few hours. There is night racing here, and the fly and insect population is fairly static at that time.

"If anything, we've been surprised by the low incidence of swamp fever here compared to other areas."

Rousseau To Rangers

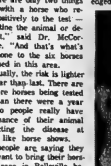
MONTREAL (CP) — Minnesota North Stars announced Tuesday that right winger Bobby Rousseau has been sent to New York Rangers to complete an earlier deal between the two National Hockey League clubs that sent Bob Nevin to Minnesota last month.

BOBBY ROUSSEAU



Rousseau, 30., appeared in 63 games with the North Stars last season, scoring four goals while picking up 20 assists.

He was acquired by the North Stars from Montreal Canadiens last season in exchange for Claude Larose.

Ratelle Gets Nod

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Ratelle of New York Rangers today was voted the Masterton Memorial Trophy winner for the 1970-71 National Hockey League season by the Professional Hockey Writers' Association.

Ratelle, a 30-year-old centre, edged Charlie Burns of Minnesota North Stars, Orland Kurtenbach of Vancouver Canucks was third in the voting.

JEAN RATELLE

Ratelle is the fourth recipient of the trophy. Previous winners were Claude Provost of Montreal Canadiens in 1968, Ted Hampson, then of California Seals, in 1969, and Pit Martin if Chicago Jack Hawks in 1970.

The Trophy is awarded annually to the NHL player who best exemplifies the qualities of perseverance, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey.

Ratelle was New York's second leading scorer last season with 25 goals and 46 assists for 72 points, which tied him for 15th place in the final scoring statistics.

Five years ago his career was in jeopardy when he underwent a spinal fusion. It took a year and a half before he fully recovere from the survery.

hoping to continue his outstanding showing on the Belleville Fairgrounds track when this year's Muscular Dystrophy Benefit races get under way Sunday at 1.30 p.m.

Orchard Team Blossoms Forth

Bayview Orchards were in bloom Monday as they collected a 10-2 win over Foley's in their Prince Edward North Shore Softball encounter.

Irv Martin stopped the losers on six hits to get the win, while Ray Allan and Everett Dorstator issued 14 safeties for Foleys.

Paul Kurelek was the big hitting gun for the winners as slamming a homer, triple and two doubles. Mike Reddick, George Daniels and Jim Sopiha each had two hits apiece. For Foleys, Bill Whitaker was the top batter with two hits.

In the other game played, Mountain View came up with three runs in the final inning to best Rossmore 10-7 as Carm Selman cracked a bases loaded triple to provide the margin of victory.

Selman and Jim Barber each had two hits for the winners, while Reid Mallory collected four safeties and Leo Chard two in a losing effort.

Autos Wrecked by Watkin's

Eric Watkins juveniles continued to roll up the score in the Belleville Pee Wee Crosse Association midget division by taking a 10-0 decision from Belleville Auto Dealers last night.

In the other midget bout, Kerry Reid counted three goals to lead Sun Luck Gardens to a 5-3 win over Marv's Esso. Wade Grier and Rick Bell counted the other goals for the winners, while Rick Belanger, Joe Muldoon and John Ashley replied for Marv's.

Dairy Queen novices got a four - goal night from Bob Isaac as they stopped Golden Mile Restaurant 6-4. Joe Belanger and Jimmy Bailey added the other goals, while Garth Scully scored three times and Steve Vincent once for Golden Mile.

Fraser Lives Up to Steel City Name

They call Hamilton the "Steel City", and the city's most famous product could be quite readily used to describe the racing nerves of nation sen Maurice "Moe" Fraser.

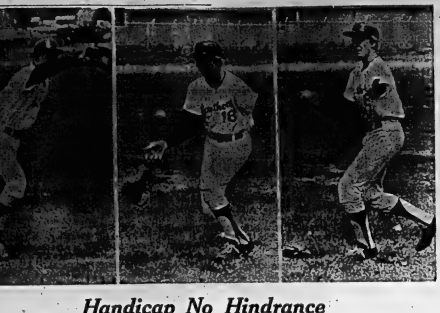
Fraser established his nerve to best advantage in the Ontario Dirt Track Motorcycle Championships in Belleville last July. Locked in a duel with outstanding Quebec rider Yves DuHamel, Fraser came up with a win when the pace caused DuHamel to crack up in the second lap of their 750 cc duel.

It was largely through efforts such as this one, on the Belleville track that Fraser was able to pile up enough points to earn the Number One Plate in the dirt track racing category.

Fraser, who expresses a decided preference for dirt track over road racing, captured both the 250 and 750 expert events at the Ontario last year-after besting DuHamel in the 750 class of the 1970 Munsinger Dystrophy Benefit races also held in Belleville.

The third year expert finished second in the 250 class of the Canadian Championships in this city last September, trailing Dave Sehl to the finish line. Fraser was pushing Sehl for the lead in the 750 class when engine trouble forced him out of the race.

Fraser, who had plate number 99 last season used his Triumph and 250 Bultaco to earn the number one plate over Sehl, who spent much of the racing season competing in the United States.



With the absence of Sehl and DuHamel because of factory commitments, elsewhere, Fraser must be considered the favorite in this year's benefit races.

The Hamilton racer will be

He's Number One

Maurice Fraser, shown making some tire improvements before the start of last year's Muscular Dystrophy Benefit races, replaced his gold number 99 plate with number one by accumulating the most points of any dirt track rider in Canada in 1970. The Hamilton rider took a giant step towards winning the title by taking three firsts and a second in his trio of appearances in Belleville last year. He'll be looking to repeat his success in the 1971 Muscular Dystrophy Benefits to be held at the Fairgrounds, Sunday.

Handicap No Hindrance

Sharp Made Team

But when baseball tryouts came around in April at Garden City East High the six-foot, 175-pounder was there—hoping to make the team.

"I'll admit I was a bit surprised when Ken tried out for the team in April," said Young. "I told him how tough it would be but he just asked for a fair chance and no special favors."

Young said he was astounded by Sharp's fluent swing and virtually flawless fielding.

Sharp stands in the right-hand batter's box with bat at waist level. He swings with a locked wrist. When fielding, he catches the ball, flips it into the air, drops his glove, catches the ball again and throws.

As a pitcher and outfielder, Sharp yielded only one earned run in eight innings on the mound and hit and fielded well enough to start in eight of the school's 13 games. He collected two hits in 15 at-bats and batting seventh in the order, collected eight walks and five sacrifices.

"He hit the ball hard enough for another six hits, but they were always at someone," Young said.

Sharp said his only problem playing one-armed baseball was that "it was a little tough when I first tried to field the ball with my right hand, since I was used to catching with my left."

"I've gotten accustomed to it now, however, so that I actually field better with my right hand. My biggest batting adjustment was to cut down my swing and not overpower the ball."

Braves Up to Hanky-panky

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

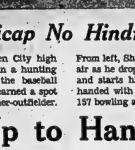
Aaron drilled his 13th home run and a single for his eighth straight hit during Tuesday's night's 8-7, 10-inning triumph over St. Louis Cardinals.



"I knew I had been hitting well, but I don't keep up with records . . . you don't have time to remember things like that on a club this exciting," said Aaron, whose eight safeties in three games were two shy of the National League mark.

Aaron now has the .300 level for the first time this season with a four-hit night Monday and padded his mark to .313 with Tuesday night's work.

Not bad, considering he's been playing on only one good leg. The right knee has fluid in it and is painful, says Aaron.

"I got weak and tired late in a game," Aaron said, "and those extra innings don't help."

HANK AARON

Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0 in 12 innings, Los Angeles Dodgers stopped Philadelphia Phillies 4-2, Montreal Expos whacked San Francisco Giants 10-3, New York Mets turned back San Diego Padres 6-4 and Houston Astros whipped Cincinnati Reds 2-0.

Aaron's hitting string included a single and home run Sunday and two doubles and two singles Monday prior to his two-run homer in the first inning and third-inning single Tuesday night.

Holtzman, in his first start since pitching a no-hitter last Thursday against Cincinnati, struck out 12 and spaced nine hits in going the distance.

Montreal raked San Francisco ace Juan Marichal for five runs in the first four innings and rode Bill Stoneman's 13-strikeout pitching to a triumph over the spinning Giants, who lost their sixth of seven games.

McDowell checked the White Sox on six hits and three walks and raised his record over .500 for the first time this season at 6-5. The 11 strikeouts marked the 72nd time he has been in double figures, increasing his American League record. Sandy Koufax of the Brooklyn-Los Angeles Dodgers did it 97 times, the major league mark.

Roy Foster's three-run homer in the second inning was the big blow for the Indians.

McDowell on Right Diet

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Lunching with Gomer Hodge has its advantages where Sam McDowell is concerned.

McDowell, Cleveland's fire-balling left-hander, had his ceremonial pre-game victory meal with team-mate Hodge Tuesday and then feasted on Chicago White Sox 5-3 with 11 strikeouts.

"Give the credit to Gomer," insisted McDowell, who had had either breakfast or lunch with Hodge before each of his five previous triumphs this year. "I normally don't consent to be interviewed or photographed before I pitch, but I did this time because it was the only way I could have lunch with Gomer.

"We couldn't have breakfast together because he lives on one side of town and I live on the other. But I found out Gomer was going to the Wahoo Club luncheon (an Indians booster group) and I decided the only way I could have lunch with him was to go there, too."

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston Red Sox snapped Oakland Athletics' five-game winning streak 5-1, Baltimore Orioles made it six in a row with an 8-2 rout of Minnesota Twins, Detroit Tigers trimmed Milwaukee Brewers 4-

Penguins Take Risk That Horton Will Play

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Red Kelly does not feel Pittsburgh Penguins were taking a chance Tuesday when they grabbed veteran defenceman Tim Horton in the National Hockey League's intra-league draft.

"He's a great man for your team," said Kelly, of his former team-mate with Toronto Maple Leafs. "Tim's a leader on the ice. He can pick our club up. He could give us the momentum and leadership that could carry us a long way.

"I don't think $40,000 is that big a gamble when you are going for the Stanley Cup."

Horton was one of 23 players the 16 NHL clubs drafted from each other at a total cost of $230,000 during 14 rounds of the annual internal draft.

The Penguins picked the 41-year-old veteran from New York Rangers in the second round of the proceedings.

Horton said in Toronto that he has many plans, but they are outside of hockey.

"I'm a tired old man. . . . I've had enough hockey," Horton said.

"I'm confident we can get together with Tim to play for us," said Kelly. "Pittsburgh is his wife's home town and they know the city."

Horton said he did not know what his wife's thoughts were about going to Pittsburgh.

"I haven't asked her," he said. "Right now I'm indifferent to it all. It would take a lot of inducing to make me play another year, but money is not the prime consideration."

Horton is no stranger to Pittsburgh, having played there from 1950-52 with Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League.

The Sabres were the most active club in the proceedings as general manager-coach Punch Imlach picked up six young players at a total cost of $240,000.

Imlach shrewdly waited until the late rounds and extended the affair by shifting veteran forward Reggie Fleming on and off his protected list nine times.

"Reggie was the most valuable player of the draft," said Imlach.

"We waited until the other clubs had packed their lists and got Fleming, moving like a bouncing ball. The great thing is that we got some good kids and they can go down without waivers."

Veteran left winger Wayne Carleton, who scored 22 goals as a member of Boston Bruins last season, was the No. 1 pick in the draft as the California Golden Seals picked him up for $40,000.

The Golden Seals also grabbed Frank Inglies from Toronto and forward Stan Gilbertson from Boston.

TIM HORTON

Detroit Red Wings surprised many observers by making only one claim—goaltender Al Smith from Pittsburgh. The Wings dropped Jim Rutherford, a former standout goaltender in the Ontario Hockey Association, when they grabbed Smith and the Penguins quickly snapped Rutherford up.

Vancouver Canucks made three picks in the draft session —Dennis Kearns from Chicago, Fred Speck from Detroit and Reynald Comeau from Montreal.

In a previously arranged deal, Minnesota drafted Brian Lavender from the Canadiens and dropped Bob Murdoch, who was immediately claimed by Montreal.

St. Louis made one claim— Mike Pariseau from New York Rangers. Philadelphia Flyers made two selections—defenceman Larry Brown from the Rangers and forward Frank Spring from Boston. The Flyers lost forward Gary Peters to the Bruins when they dropped him off their protected list after getting Spring.

Buffalo—Ray McKay, Chicago; Dan Lawson, Minnesota; Hugh Harris, Montreal; Rod Zaine, Pittsburgh; Tom Miller, Detroit, Ken Murray, Toronto. Rene Robert, Toronto (later sold to Pittsburgh).

Los Angeles—Goalie Gary Edwards, Buffalo.

Minnesota—Brian Lavender, Montreal.

Toronto—Don Marshall, Buffalo.

St. Louis—Mike Pariseau, New York.

Montreal, Chicago, New York and Boston—nil.

Governors Approve New Playoff Pairings

MONTREAL (CP) — A new format for the Stanley Cup playoffs and stiff legislation aimed at curbing bench-clearing incidents in the league were approved Tuesday by the National Hockey League's board of governors.

Under the new playoff system announced by NHL president Clarence Campbell, series A will pit the first-place team in the East Division against the fourth-place team while in series B the second-place team in the East will meet the third-place squad.

In series C, the first-place team in the West will meet the fourth-place team and in series D the second-place team will meet the third-place team.

The winner of series A will meet the victor in series D in one semi-final, while the winner in series B will play the winner of series C to determine the Stanley Cup finalists. This is a continuance of the cross-over system of playoffs instituted last season.

Under the former playoff format, the first- and third-place teams and the second- and fourth-place teams played each other in the quarter-finals.

An automatic major penalty will be assessed against a team when one of its players is the first identifiable player to leave the bench. In addition, the individual will be given an automatic game misconduct penalty.

The NHL rules committee had proposed that a minor penalty be imposed against the team and a game misconduct against the player, but the governors felt a stiffer penalty was in order.

The game misconduct means automatic expulsion from the game, plus an automatic $100 fine the first time a player violates the rule during the season.

If a player receives a game misconduct for leaving the bench a second time, he will receive an automatic one-game suspension in addition to the game misconduct and the automatic $100 fine it carries.

Campbell said there would be an escalation of the game suspension each succeeding time a player leaves his bench. For example, if he is charged with a violation a third time, he will receive a two-game suspension, while a fourth violation carries an automatic three-game suspension.

Other players who leave the bench and become "sufficiently involved" in any fight to receive a minor, major and misconduct penalty, will also receive an automatic game misconduct.

The new rule will be more stringent in the playoffs.

"There will be no second chance in the playoffs," Campbell said.

Pele Comes North

TORONTO (CP) — Pele, Bobby Moore and Giacomo Bulgarelli performing in Toronto this month?

The world-famous soccer stars will be at Varsity Stadium, John Fisher, a novice in soccer promotions, said Tuesday.

Bulgarelli's Bologna, Italy, team will be involved in the two games, against Moore's West Ham of England June 18 and with Pele's Santos of Brazil team June 23.

Pele, who led Brazil to the World Cup soccer title in Mexico last year, has said he'll retire after the club's North American tour.

Moore captained England to the World Cup championship in 1966 and was the mainstay in a recent home international series against Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland.

Bulgarelli has scored four of Bologna's nine goals in the annual Anglo-Italian tournament being played in England.

Quickies Turn Tide

TORONTO (CP) — Julius Espeleta scored two goals Tuesday night to pace Toronto Croatia to a 4-0 win over London German-Canadians in a National Soccer League game watched by 1,000 fans.

Espeleta's goals came two minutes apart in the second half. Bruno Pilat opened the scoring for Croatia five minutes from the start off a penalty kick awarded for tripping.

Dome Engineer Confirms Bribery

BUFFALO (AP) — An engineer whose firm helped design a proposed domed sports stadium testified Tuesday he paid two Erie County legislators $32,000 for their influence on the dome's fate.

J. Lloyd Walker said he paid the money over a period of months to Frank C. Lodera, 37, and Frederick P. Pordum, 34.

Walker said the pair had at first demanded $100,000, but this was later cut to $40,000.

Walker was the first government witness as testimony began in U.S. District Court in the bribery-conspiracy trial of Lodera and Pordum.

Walker was a partner in the Buffalo engineering firm of Turley, Silevaster, Walker, Mauri and Associates, which received $1,725,000 for designing the now-defunct project.

The Erie County legislature had taken steps to build a $50-million domed stadium in suburban Lancaster, but shelved the idea earlier this year. Cost estimates ran considerably higher than earlier calculations.

Mexicans Hand Us Second Soccer Loss

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Mexico defeated Canada 1-0 Tuesday night in the North American elimination soccer tournament for the 1972 Olympics. The goal was scored in the second half.

The Mexicans have now two victories. Two weeks ago, they beat Bermuda 2-0 in Hamilton. The Canadians have one win and one defeat. They also beat Bermuda 3-0.

Canadians in the second half resorted to rough play. Canada's Peter Duerden was expelled from the field two minutes before the match ended.

The Ontario Lacrosse Assocation has arrgnged the first of an annual series of all-star games to be held here June 26.

The Eastern Canada Senior A champions, Peterborough Lakers, will oppose an all star team drawn from the remaining four teams in Senior A competition.

Balloting is taking place to select the 1971 Ontario All-Stars.

OTTAWA (CP) — Jack Wieland, former Rough Rider football great who once was Sergeant of Arms in the House of Commons, died Sunday in Richmond, Va. Williams, regarded as one of the finest punters in Ottawa football history, was one of the renowned "kid backfield" when the Riders won the Interprovincial title in 1969.

Yankee Stadium Saved

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state legislature has given New York City the authorization it says it needs to keep the Yankees playing in Yankee Stadium.

As one of their last items of business for the year, legislators early today authorized the city to purchase the 43-year old stadium, refurbish it and lease it back to the ball club.

Stewart Man of Many Talents

TORONTO (CP) — Scotland's Jackie Stewart has other talents beside his ability to drive fast racing cars.

He is an accomplished salmon fisherman, very much at home in the fast water of his native country. He also has an agile tongue when it comes to being interviewed.

Stewart, in Toronto for the Can-Am races Sunday at nearby Mosport, talked about his new Lola T-260 which he says looks good. He admits that he has not yet driven the car.

The Lola, small by Can-Am standards, measuring only 139 inches in over-all length, features a blunt nose, distinctive from the usual wedge-shaped racers.

Stewart, asked about the position of car racing as a way of improving car design for highway use, replied:

"I think motor racing needs no excuse. It is an industry of its own now. It is not a hole-in-the-wall thing and does not need to justify itself."

He said, however, that some advancements, such as tire development, do come as a result of racing tests.

Few drivers have come to the top as quickly as Stewart. In 1964 he gave up a place on the British Olympic skeet shooting team to drive a Cooper Formula III and the following year he won the Italian Grand Prix in his first year of Formula 1 driving.

He led the 1966 Indianapolis 500 when his car's engine failed 10 laps from the flag. In 1969 he won the world championship in a Matra-Ford and currently leads the 1971 standings.

Stewart says he would like to capture the Can-Am crown, but he has formidable opposition, mainly from the McLaren team. Also, he'll be driving an untried car and this will put him at a disadvantage.

He hopes to get in some practice laps at Mosport before McLaren driver Denis Hulme arrives. Of the McLaren team, Stewart said:

"McLaren cars were the best at Indy this year. They obviously know where the apples are on the trees and how to pick them."

29 Speed Limit Out

Napanee Idea Won't Work

TORONTO (CP) — Napanee, Ont., hoped its 29-miles-an-hour speed limit would be a money-maker, but the department of transportation says it won't work.

The council of the town, which lies on Highway 2 between Kingston and Belleville, passed a bylaw Monday to change the speed limit on town streets to 29 miles an hour from 30. The idea was that if the town prosecuted speeders under the bylaw it would collect the speeding fines.

But a transportation department spokesman Tuesday said the money will still go to the provincial department of justice.

Ontario's Highway Traffic Act says towns can post speed limits of 30 miles an hour, or, in certain special cases, as low as 25 miles an hour. But since two or three years ago, when the province took over costs of the administration of justice, revenue from traffic fines has gone to the department of justice.

And anyway the transportation department has to approve any changes in speed-limit bylaws.

"We haven't received a copy of the Napanee bylaw," the spokesman said.

Ontario Won't Spend Billion On Airport

PICKERING, Ont. (CP) — Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough has indicated Ontario is not prepared to spend the $1,000 million needed to serve a proposed new international airport in the Toronto area, Reeve John Williams of Pickering Township said Tuesday.

Mr. Williams said the figure was presented by Mr. McKeough at a closed meeting between the province and Metropolitan Toronto officials May 31.

He quoted Mr. McKeough as saying the province could not provide the road, water, sewers and rapid transit needed at any of four proposed sites unless the federal government indicated what cost-sharing arrangements could be made.

Provincial requests for information on cost-sharing had not been answered by federal authorities, Mr. McKeough was quoted as saying.

Compassion for Young Is Urged by Churches

TORONTO (CP) — A combined church group, noting the lack of hospitality by some municipal leaders, is urging compassion for travellers expected to drift across Canada this summer.

A joint statement by the Canadian Catholic Conference and the Canadian Council of Churches asks its members to show a "spirit of openness" to travelling youth.

An estimated 400,000 students are expected to hit the open road this summer, many with little or no money, and with the prospects of getting a cold shoulder in some centres.

The group does not specify what form of hospitality its members should offer — each local situation should be viewed separately," says Ruth Tillman, an official of the Canadian council.

New Ad and Sales President Says Consumerism Can Be Ended

TORONTO (CP) — Pauline Hill believes the new wave consumers' rights movements —she calls it "consumerism" —in Canada can be turned back with words.

However, although she believes in the effectiveness of talk, she says Ron Basford, consumer and Corporate Affairs minister, cannot hear when the business community speaks.

Mrs. Hill, first woman president of the 3,000-member Canadian Advertising and Sales Association in 15 years, says discussion must be held among all groups in the marketing process to take the edge off demands by consumer advocate groups.

Advertisers, she says, respond instantly to any complaint passed along to them by the association.

But Mr. Basford pays little attention to the organization, she says.

Both federal and provincial governments passed "discriminatory" legislation, such as banning liquor and cigarette advertising in British Columbia.

"I believe that if a product is legally manufactured in Canada, its advertising should also be legal," said Mrs. Hill, executive vice-president and director of Welcome Wagon Ltd. of Toronto.

The association has met 28 national trade associations to attempt to unify protests against restrictive and disc riminatory government legislation, Mrs. Hill says the body is developing a closer link with the Canadian Advertising Advisory Board.

Mrs. Hill says the association's efforts to develop more lines of communication to the consumer have been partially impeded by the consumer and corporate affairs department. The department refused to appoint an association member to the Canadian Consumer Council, she says.

Retail personnel, says Mrs. Hill, have "a lot to do with people jumping on the consumerism bandwagon."

For this reason, the association is switching its emphasis this year to sales from advertising and devising a code of ethics for salesmen.

Mrs. Hill, who became the first woman to join the Toronto branch of the ad and sales club two years ago, says one of the main reasons more women have not succeeded in business is because they are not willing to devote most of their time and energy to a career.

"If you want equality with men, you don't go out and fight for it, you go out and prove it."

Born in Edmonton, Mrs. Hill has a degree in health and physical education from University of Toronto. She joined Welcome Wagon in Regina in 1953 and became area director for Western Canada.

In 1967 she moved to Toronto as vice-president and managing director for Canada

Parasite Threats Made Say Witnesses

MONTREAL (CP) — Former room-mates of Eric Kranz, 24, charged with intent to endanger four lives, testified Tuesday that he threatened to put parasites in their food the week before they were stricken with parasitic pneumonia.

David Fisk, 24, a post-graduate student in agricultural engineering at Macdonald College, told the Sessions Court that Kranz made the threats after room-mates told him to pay his expenses or get out of the house they were sharing in suburban Ste. Anne de Bellevue.

Fisk, Richard Davis, 25, of Napanee, William Butler, 22, and Keith Fern, 25, were admitted to hospital in February of last year, suffering from an undiagnosed illness.

Nurses Poorly Paid

OTTAWA (CP) — Some of the 2,200 nurses in the federal public service are so poorly paid they have to seek welfare to support their children, Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) told the Commons Tuesday.

Senator Sees 'Explosion' Over Arbitration Laws

TORONTO (CP)—Senator Edward M. Lawson said Tuesday it is only a matter of time before binding arbitration laws bring about an explosion among Canadian labor ranks "like we've never seen before."

Senator Lawson, a political independent who is the British Columbia president and the Canadian director of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, said constructive labor legislation cannot result from laws that force the parties to come together.

He spoke at a panel discussion of the annual conference of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association that also included H. J. Clawson, vice-president for personnel with the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd.

Mr. Clawson said arbitration was better than having essential services cut off.

Negotiations are "no longer a game between two adversaries," he said. "The public interest is going to make itself heard."

William Kelly, chief of conciliation for the federal department of labor who was in the audience of about 300, said there have been several examples of negotiated contracts being rejected when the union membership voted on them.

More employee participation is needed in decisions that affect labor, he said.

Earlier in the conference, A. G. W. Sinclair, retiring president of the CMA and president of Canadian Johns-Manville Ltd., Port Credit, Ont., said government is to blame for current economic problems.

He challenged a government commission to report on governmen. overspending.

"Uncertainty exists with respect to a whole range of government policies and their impact on business operations," he said. "Mistrust is characteristic of those decision-makers and opinion leaders who believe that a dollar spent by government is necessarily better for the public well-being than a dollar spent directly by individuals or business firms. . . ."

Free-spending policies of Ottawa and other levels of government have aggravated problems by contributing to inflation and taking money from the private sector, he said.

Control over government spending was needed but wage-and-price controls "would only freeze the history imbalances and pressures in the system and would lead to a veritable wage-and-price explosion when eventually they were removed."

Mr. Sinclair called economic nationalism "one of the fundamental problems that confront us with increasing urgency."

He said Canada needs capital and technology from abroad.

J. B. Crespin, chairman of the Ontario committee on government productivity and executive vice-president of John Labatt Ltd., told the conference leaders in various fields should change jobs on a two-or-three-year basis.

He said his committee will make such a recommendation in its report next year.

Air Canada Wants Fares Cut

VANCOUVER (CP) — Air Canada will push for lower international air fares at a meeting in Montreal later this month, of the International Air Transport Association, company President John R. Baldwin said Tuesday.

Mr. Baldwin told a Rotary Club luncheon that international airlines and governments have allowed "a completely ridiculous situation" to emerge in the field of charter flights.

"In a nutshell, without realizing what was happening," he said, "regulatory authorities in many countries let the rules become so broad that they become meaningless and could not be enforced."

He said Air Canada wants to add a special international excursion fare that must be booked several months in advance, which would be non-refundable if cancelled.

He said the fare would be competitive with fares on charter flights.

Lawyer Says Convict Punished Before Trial

KINGSTON (CP) — One of 18 prisoners charged in an April riot at Kingston penitentiary has been subjected to "a type of pre-trial punishment," his defence lawyer testified Tuesday.

George C. Conn told Judge P. E. D. Baker in Frontenac County court that David Birt, 24, of Charlottetown had been placed in "solitary confinement" at the penitentiary and the reason given by the assistant deputy warden was that Birt is charged with murder.

"If that's the case, then it's definitely connected with the charges against him here (and) is a type of pre-trial judgment," Mr. Conn said.

He spoke during the second appearance in court by the 18. All were remanded until Tuesday, June 15. No trial dates have been set.

Birt and 12 other prisoners are charged with two counts of non-capital murder as a result of the April 14-18 riot, which led to the death of two prisoners and left the main cell block of the 137-year-old prison a wreck. six prisoners—including one of the 13 charged with two counts of non-capital murder—are charged with kidnaping.

Mr. Conn said assistant deputy warden Edgar Babcock had said Birt was in "dissociation because he's charged with murder." Mr. Conn said Birt was "in the hole" without shower facilities, sleeping in the same grey prison clothes he wore in court.

Mr. Conn said he had been supplied with two indictments against his client but that he "must make a formal demand for particulars" from Crown Attorney John E. Sampson. He also requested a list of the names of all material witnesses.

He said this was very important since "so many of the witnesses will be inmates" it would be extremely difficult to carry out proper defence investigations.

Judge Baker, who last Friday permitted Clive A. Morris, 24, of Townsriver, N.J., charged with murder, to make a statement at the prisoners' first court appearance, declined to hear more Tuesday.

The charges against the prisoners were laid after Detective Inspector Willrid Kealey of the Kingston police department, aided by two provincial police officers, interviewed the majority of the 500 prisoners who held the main cellblock for 92 hours during the riot.

Two Guards Suspended

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Two guards who stood off prisoners with fire hoses when they stormed the prison hospital during the April rebellion at Kingston penitentiary have been suspended without pay since May 1.

Dale Dupre of Napanee said in an interview today he and Nelson Kilmer of Kingston were suspended because they were "supposed to have let some inmates steal some goods" after the mid-April uprising subsided.

Mr. Dupre said he is not sure what goods the convicts are supposed to have taken from the hospital, nor has he seen the accusations on paper.

Lang Says Opposition Seeks to Spread Hopelessness in West

OTTAWA (CP) — A heated debate on the plight of the Prairie farmer turned the Commons into at least a four-day battleground Tuesday as the government and the three opposition parties attacked each other's policies.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis, with Conservative support, charged the government with deliberately seeking to drive farmers off the land and into overcrowded cities.

Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, accused the NDP of holding up a $100 million government payment to western farmers so that they would have a better chance in the June 23 Saskatchewan election against the provincial Liberal government.

He also accused Conservatives of obstruction and both opposition parties of seeking to spread hopelessness among Prairie farmers.

Interspersed with the main broadsides was Social Credit criticism of all other parties, Conservative sniping at the NDP and pabbats by Independent Roch LaSalle (Joliette) at Conservatives and New Democrats.

The House was discussing an NDP non-confidence motion condemning government agricultural policy and calling for an immediate payment of $100 million to Prairie farmers.

The motion was defeated 108 to 62, with the three opposition parties arrayed against the government. Mr. LaSalle, a former Conservative MP, voted with the Liberals.

Today the Commons continues debate on a bill to establish the Canada Development Corp., which would be an agency for investment by both the government and individual Canadian. The bill is at third reading, following report-stage approval Tuesday.

Mr. Lewis, opening the debate, said Liberal policies "are deliberately designed to induce farmers to go off their land, to hasten the demise of the independent Canadian farmer, to make farming the preserve of powerful corporations—in short to tear the very heart from Western Canada and to chase farmers into overcrowded and polluted urban centres."

"Malicious nonsense," Mr. Lang interjected.

Mr. Lewis said western farmers are faced with truly distressing and shattering drops in income—in 1970 the average farm had net income of less than $1,000 from farming operations.

The New Democrat leader said Saskatchewan electors have the right to know where political parties in the House stand on agricultural policy and the need for an immediate injection of cash into the western economy.

Mr. Lewis noted that a government bill now before committee would pay $100 million to Prairie farmers. But, he said, the payment was blackmail since it would be paid only after the rest of the bill—setting up a farm income stabilization fund —was passed.

Mr. Lang said the NDP motion was designed to counter valid criticisms in Saskatchewan that New Democrats are blocking the government's planned payment to farmers.

He said a New Democrat MP had assured NDP workers in the Saskatchewan election campaign that the $100 million would be held up until after the election.

Mr. Lewis said, "I make no bones about it" when challenged that the motion was tied to the Saskatchewan election campaign.

Conservative Jack Horner, (Crowfoot), on the other hand, "needs no motive for obstruction," the minister said.

He scoured the opposition of seeking to inspire hopelessness and frustration among farmers by misrepresenting the government's policies.

"No one in this House has a better opinion of the importance of farming and of farm life and the minister of agriculture and I have," said Mr. Lang.

Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson accused Mr. Lewis of leaving the "unfair impression that agriculture of all sorts from coast to coast suffered last year, when in fact many commodities enjoyed a good year.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said his talks with Prairie farmers convinced him they are doing their best to cope with a difficult situation.

"This government in itself is a catastrophe from the point of view of the worker, the businessman, the hundreds of thousands of unemployed who are walking our streets and the farmer. . . . This government has dragged down agriculture just as it has dragged down the economy as a whole."

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette said it is not only the Prairie farmer who is suffering hardships.

Putting the dispute on a regional basis in an attempt to influence the Saskatchewan election promoted sectional disputes that would leave Maritimers feeling the West was given too much and Westerners feeling Quebec got too much.

Mr. LaSalle said Conservative and New Democrat MPs should end their delaying tactics and permit rapid passage of the government's agriculture legislation.

R. R. Southam (PC—Qu'Appelle-Moose Mountain) took a swipe at NDP Leader Lewis, calling him a high-priced labor lawyer whose party has traditionally been more concerned with labor unions than with the needs of farmers.

Former New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas (Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) got in the last word before the vote as he criticized Mr. Lang:

"The hopelessness which hangs like a pall over western agriculture is due to the policies and the fiddling and the bungling of the minister himself."

Mounties Disperse Housewives

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Materials to prepare a tent city for transient youth in suburban East Royalty were moved in by truck Tuesday after RCMP removed a barricade set up by housewives on the access road to the site.

The barbed-wire and plywood barrier was set up Monday when the provincial government said it had decided to go ahead with plans for the youth hostel.

The housewives picketing the barricade, who had said they would not leave until forced to by police, were dispersed by RCMP officers acting on orders from the provincial attorney-general's department.

RCMP said there were a few incidents during the protest. No arrests were made.

Small groups of young people gathered at the barrier in a counter-protest while others attempted to discuss the pros and cons of the hostel with the women.

The barricade was the latest in a series of protests against the hostel, which the government had planned to put into operation June 1.

Jonah Jones' Unique Style Unchanged

TORONTO (CP) — The Jonah Jones Quintet has come down through the last two decades unscathed.

And there's jazz piano—subtle but sure.

In short, jazz fans of the '30s can rest assured that the "old master of the muted trumpet" has still retained the sound that produced such million-selling LP's as Swinging on Broadway, Jumpin' With Jonah and Muted Jazz.

One small concession, perhaps—bassist John Brown now uses an electric bass "for travelling convenience only."

"But there's little difference in quality," he says.

The quintet always leads off its bouncy sets with the theme, On The Street Where You Live, an arrangement which met with wide popularity and a number which many jazz followers associate with the sometimes reserved musician.

"It's a tradition," says Jonah. "The greatest thing is to be recognized. That's when you are coming into your own."

It was there he developed his own style.

"I was hard up for work and to play the Embers you had to use a mute. I argued the mute would take away too much power and drive. But it was a mute or no job. So I used a mute and I learned to use it. It's funny, but that's the thing that made me."

His career has led him to seats with such groups as Tommy Dorsey, Fletcher Henderson and Cab Calloway. It was with the Calloway band that he played alongside Cozy Cole, who has been his drummer for the last 2½ years.

Cole, himself somewhat of a superstar of jazz before the word was invented, says you have to develop your own style, or you'll be a poor imitation of someone lse.

Cozy's unconventional manner of stick-holding—a clumsy-looking grip which would drive most old-line drum instructors wild—and his original brush work prove his point.

Still, many critics consistently rate him in that elite group of the world's best jazz drummers along with Rich, Krupa and Louis Belson.

He's a solid fundamentalist and has studied under Sid Goodman of the New York Philharmonic. Symphony symphonists often call on him for advice.

Says Cozy: "There are people running around with PhDs in music, but when they take a solo they sound like Ned, in the first reader."

"On the other hand, with a lot of modern groups it looks as though everybody is trying to skip grade school and go to high school. You have to learn those, ABCs before you go on. You can't beat training and experience.

Americans In Canada Show Topic

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS's 60 Minutes wound up its season of excellent programs with a look at the current immigration, at the rate of about 25,000 a year, from the United States to Canada.

The immigrants are middle-class families moving north to escape crowded cities and schools, noise, pollution, violence and high taxes. Those interviewed talked of Canada's "easier pace," "quality of life," lack of racial discrimination and business opportunities.

Morley Safer, doing the commentary, is a Canadian originally from Toronto who said he came to the United States in the days when it was believed that "the American dream" was to be realized south of the border.

The program Sunday night also took a brief and somewhat alarming look at the operation of private pension funds in the United States.

Mike Wallace quoted a recent U.S. Senate study which found that some 10 million persons may never receive money from pension funds into which they have put money. The principal reason, he said, is that pension "credits" are lost when an employee changes jobs. He must start making new credits with his new job.

Nifty on Foot

Mario's Olympics used some nifty Kitchen work to take a 4-1 Minor Soccer Association mosquito win from the Olympics last night.

Robert Kitchen was a standout for the speedy Mario's front line counting two goals, with the others going to Dennis Thiffault and David Jones. Laurin Wilson counted the only goal for Olympic.

The Falcons bantams started with a rush but then were forced to hold on in the second half to earn a 2-2 split with Trenton Klemencic Builders.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My doctor tells me my trouble is conjunctivitis. But he had an emergency call and no time to explain. All I need to do, he says, is give up my work in the chemical plant where I am employed. He says I'm allergic to the chemicals that irritate my eyes. Wouldnt you say this is drastic treatment? — Mr. E.

• • •

COMMENT: I can't make an estimate of whether or not his judgment is good or bad. However, in many instances I've found it necessary to advise a patient to change his job. This has been true for some heart patients, for those who suffered from chronic bronchitis or emphysema, or from extreme nervous tension in their work or for other reasons.

If I believed that chemicals were damaging your eyes it's likely that I'd also suggest that you look into where to pour livelihood. However, I'd want to be certain that the conjunctivitis wasn't due to something else.

For example, I've seen several persons develop intense conjunctivitis (inflammation of covering membrane of the eye) because they were allergic to tobacco smoke. Their eyelids and eyeballs became red and irritated whenever they smoked or sat in a long session of bridge or poker where the smoke was so thick "they could cut it with a knife."

Exposure of eyes to the sun without protection from dark glasses may cause conjunctivitis in some people. So can the allergic reaction to hay fever.

• • •

There are other reasons for eye inflammation. An extremely serious one called trachoma, caused by a germ and more commonly found in Africa, Asia and in Mid-East may cause serious loss of keenness.

"Pink eye" is a milder form of conjunctivitis, often found in children — and quite contagious, but not usually serious. Conjunctivitis as a complication of gonorrhea is, of course, a serious problem. To prevent infection in innocent babies when they are born, drops are put in their eyes to prevent blindness.

In some elderly persons with deficient diets and lack of Vitamin A conjunctivitis may be a complication.

It's evident, Mr. E., that conjunctivitis may be either a simple or serious problem. Diagnosis and early prevention is most important. In your case, if chemicals are the real culprit, perhaps your doctor is correct in suggesting you look for another job.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What is meant by Lou Gehrig's disease? — Mr. Q.

COMMENT: It is a muscle and spinal cord degeneration called amyotrophic lateral sclerosis. The entire country was shocked when this tremendously strong Yankee athlete was laid low by this condition years ago.

Isn't it ironical that sometimes people who have performed outstanding services in their lifetime are most remembered by their illnesses rather than by their good deeds? For example, Franklin Roosevelt will always be associated with his fight against poliomyelitis. And Dwight Eisenhower will always be connected with his brave encounters with coronary disease — as well as with his D-Day victory and his presidency.

• • •

For Mrs. B.: The "Achilles' heel" tapping reflex test is considered by some doctors to be sufficient in estimating the function of the thyroid gland. If your husband's doctor is in doubt, he will either take a basal metabolism test, a PBI or a radio-iodine uptake test to determine whether or not his thyroid is too active or too lazy.

Are Many Causes For Conjunctivitis

Specialized Hospitals Said More Efficient

OTTAWA (CP) — Bigger hospitals, specializing in various health services for whole regions, probably would be more efficient than a scattering of multi-purpose, local units, says a newly-published economic study.

It would be cheaper to subsidize a patient's travel costs to a regional specialty hospital than to attempt to maintain hospitals in each locality, says economist R. D. Fraser in a study for the Economic Council of Canada.

Prof. Fraser, an economist at Queen's University, Kingston, finds that health care in Canada takes more than $6 out of every $100 of wealth generated annually.

Sydney J. Harris Says

New Revolution Different

If you try to look around at each problem in isolation today, you can't really see what's going on; all seems to be confusion, chaos and contradiction. In Henry James' phrase, there is no "figure in the carpet."

But if you step back a few paces and try to obtain a little well as distance, then you begin to see the regular pattern running through the whole carpet of contemporary problems.

And this is what I would call the revolution of relationships. There is a revolution going on today, but it is a multiple revolution, not like the single revolutions of the past. The new revolution is not political, or social, or economic, or moral, but a generic, or moral, but a general questioning of relationships.

Every established relationship, in every significant area is being questioned today; nothing is taken for granted. The relationships between old and young, black and white, rich and poor, man and woman, warden and prisoner, church and communicant, doctor and patient, student and teacher — in each case, reforms are not merely demanded, but the whole essential nature of the relationship is undergoing a basic reappraisal.

And this multiple revolution is, for the first time in history, a world-wide one — students in France and Japan feel at one with their fellow-students in the U.S.; churchgoers in Holland and Italy are asking the same questions and grappling with the same issues as Methodists and Presbyterians in Vermont.

It is a revolution, moreover, that goes far beyond Marxism or any other ideology of our century. It is existential in its thrust, for it questions current relationships on a personal basis. People want to belong to themselves, and not to some abstract system outside themselves; it is the human life considered as an "organism," not as a mechanism.

This is what makes the movement now subtly and vastly different in the history of mankind, cutting across all previous lines of loyalty and authority and tradition. People are asking of loyalty and authority and tradition. People are asking of loyalty and authority and tradition. People are asking

Youth Fund Probe Denied

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau rejected today an opposition demand in the Commons for an investigation into alleged mishandling of funds by State Secretary Gerard Pelletier's department under the opportunities-for-youth program.

The prime minister said the opposition is "seeing a scandal in the payment of money not even paid out."

Hugh Faulkner, parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pelletier, said Charles L. Caccia, parliamentary secretary to Manpower Minister Otto Lang, will go to Toronto today to determine the specific charge made about an opportunities-for-youth project there.

Alderman David Crombie of Toronto is reported to have said he was told about a person who got $13,000 from Mr. Pelletier's department simply by mentioning an area where the poor lived.

David MacDonald (PC—Egmont) demanded a thorough

Stay Out of Madoc July 4, Judge Says

By Lenny Williamson
Staff Reporter

There will be no rock festival in Madoc township early in July.

Mr. Justice A. H. Lieff of the Supreme Court of Ontario made sure of that Wednesday afternoon when he granted an interim injunction to the township prohibiting the festival.

But the main problem is unsolved — will there be a large influx of young people into the township July 3-5, despite the injunction, and how will they be accommodated?

Leon Quinlan, 27, one of the principals in the family company promoting the festival on the Quinlan farm near Queensboro, intimated in court Tuesday that from 5,000 to 10,000 ticket holders might show up, unaware that the event was cancelled. Their disappointment he said, could be enough to incite a riot.

"We are giving cognizance to his remarks," said Superintendent D. E. Wellesley of the Ontario Provincial Police's district 9. But he added that the fact this was not "a last minute decision" would cut down on the chances of ticket holders being unaware of the cancellation.

"Anybody who comes into Madoc township now, well, people will say they're connected with the festival," commented Reeve Cecil Woods of Madoc township.

"If the media gives as much publicity to the cancellation as it gave to the festival, the cancellation will get noised around, he added.

The reeve said that he hadn't heard as much press comment on the cancellation as he had heard on the festival and said, "It makes you wonder which side TV, radio, and newspapers are on".

Mr. Justice Lieff, in his verbal decision on the hearing for an injunction, said he "wished you hadn't said that" in reference to the Quinlan brothers' comments on the consequences of the injunction.

"Young men who can envisage that sort of thing must have said this to me to have me take some position," he said.

The judge said it was the duty of good citizens to take steps to discourage rock fans from going to Madoc on the first weekend in July. Madoc township would be a good place to stay away from that weekend, he said.

Saying that he was not speaking facetiously, he added, "It would be a shame to have a riot in Canada on the fourth of July."

In granting the injunction, the judge found that the Quinlan brothers had taken no action to launch an application to quash the regulatory bylaw upon which the injunction action was based. Although the Quinlans had called the bylaw discriminatory, the judge said he was not sitting in judgment on that issue.

Insects Are Trained To Glow for Heroin

WASHINGTON (AP) — The justice department is spending nearly $30,000 to train insects to light up like a firefly when exposed to heroin.

Richard W. Velde, associate administrator of the department's law enforcement assistance administration, said initial tests have proven successful.

The experiments are part of a $29,017 contract between LEAA and Huntington Laboratories that is supposed to lead to a portable heroin detector.

"We expect it to work very well in places like Miami and on the Mexican border," he said. "On the Canadian border at certain times of the year we will have to use other detecting machines."

News Briefs

VANCOUVER (CP) — World-wide agricultural expansion and depressed and unstable prices face Canadian farmers with continued gloomy prospects at least through 1974, the fourth annual convention of the Canadian Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute was told Wednesday.

* * *

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Delegates to the Ontario Welfare Officers Association rejected a motion Wednesday calling for the provincial government to initiate a work program for welfare recipients. The association would rather that people had legitimate jobs instead of participating in a "work-for-welfare" program.

* * *

SASKATOON (CP) — The Safety Council of Canada annual meeting was told that in the "good old days" of horse and buggy transport 30 persons were killed for every 100,000 miles travelled. Today, there are five deaths for every 100 million miles of automobile travel.

Cigarette Regulation Planned

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to regulate the amount of tar, nicotine and other substances in cigarettes and prohibit most cigarette advertising was given first reading in the Commons today.

Cigarette packages would have to bear the label, in capital letters: "Warning: Danger to health increases with amount smoked, avoid inhaling."

The bill introduced by Health Minister John Munro would come into force Jan. 1, 1972, if passed by Parliament.

The bill would restrict advertising of cigarettes to exposure in retail outlets, basic information on vending machines and, for manufacturers, signs at their plant or offices and on their vehicles.

Agreement To Clean Lakes Aim

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada and the United States join in an effort today to lay down a broad program to remedy pollution in the lower Great Lakes.

Looming large over the heads of high-level delegations from the two countries is a solution to the question: Where is the money coming from to pay for it.

Boss in Brass

Stephen Pape, of 13 Queen Street, a student at BCI, yesterday was awarded the Walter Aselstine Memorial Trophy as the most promising musician in the 14-year-old age bracket. This is the first year the trophy has been presented for musical ability in the brass, woodwind or percussion class and it was awarded at BCI yesterday by Doug Aselstine, of the Belleville Musicians' Union.

Combines Control Seen Way to Curb Inflation

HALIFAX (CP)—Western societies urgently need to adopt effective business combines policies as one of the long-term solutions to inflationary pressures, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford said Wednesday.

He told the annual meeting of the Consumers Association of Canada that competition policy, more commonly known as combines or anti-trust policy, should mean consumers get necessary goods and services at the most competitive possible prices. The efficient allocation of resources also helped provide jobs and economic growth.

Although the influence of combines policy on inflation was indirect and less immediate than fiscal and monetary policies, it could help moderate inflation in several ways. One was to lower barriers preventing entry of potentially more efficient firms into industries where prices and profits were unreasonably high.

It was his responsibility "to recommend to Parliament a competition policy that provides machinery and laws that can deal as effectively as legislation allows with the abuses and provide a market structure that assures . . . the very real benefits of truly competitive conditions."

Mr. Basford's department has been revising the Combines Investigation Act, which might be considered a cornerstone of the government's competition policy.

The minister said his quarrel is not with the act's purpose but with its lack of scope and flexibility of application.

A more flexible and technical means of evaluating economic issues was needed, including devices to give businessmen advance indications of what practices were, or were not, acceptable.

"This suggests to me creation of a new tribunal, expertly staffed, and free in the full emphasis to questions of economics as well as to questions of law which must of necessity be the primary concern of the courts which now determine these problems," he said.

The tribunal, with its members experienced in economics, law, business conduct and public affairs, would be invaluable for ironing out merger problems and could be given the right to restrain monopolies from expanding.

It could eliminate the abuse of patents or trademarks and draw up "guidelines in a number of areas that would tell the public and the business executive what the rules were."

Comfort for the Stricken

An old East Pakistan refugee woman dying of cholera by the roadside in Krishnagar, 55 miles from Calcutta, is fanned by another refugee to provide some comfort before death. More than 3,000 have died of cholera here and in the neighboring states of the area known as Nadia District as of Tuesday.

Russian and American Planes Ready to Airlift Refugees

CALCUTTA (Reuter) — Soviet and American planes stood by today to airlift a percentage of East Pakistani refugees—many of them reluctant to go—from the cholera death zone to the interior of India.

Special trains also were operating to assist in the transfer of refugees, but many refused to get aboard and others were reported jumping along the way.

Harried officials disclosed this new snag as the airlift of medical supplies continued along with round-the-clock efforts to inoculate the living, save the dying and bury the dead.

Brig. Michael Blackman, the disaster's operations director for the British relief agency Oxfam, said today his team now has enough saline solution and vaccines on hand, although more might be needed later.

But occasional fresh outbreaks were still being reported from the disaster area.

Already the dead are being counted in thousands, about 2,200 dead is the official figure, but the health ministry in this teeming capital city of West Bengal state admits to having unofficial reports of at least 4,400 dead. As many again, however, may also have died, diplomatic sources say.

Four United States Air Force Hercules C-130 transport aircraft and two Soviet air force Anatov-12 planes are to help by flying refugees to the interior. Officials from both countries are having discussions with Indian authorities, and the U.S. advance team is flying to Assam state and the centrally-administered territory of Tripura in the northeast for technical feasibility study.

Abedin also told reporters that the West Bengal government plans to shelter some refugees aboard boats on six lakes in Dinajpur district of the northeast.

Complaints Few From OHC Tenants

Belleville tenants of family grant-to-income housing and senior citizen apartments owned by Ontario Housing Corporation are generally happy with the type of accommodation received.

This was indicated Wednesday night at the Ben Bleeker auditorium when approximately 90 per cent of the 254 tenants living in OHC homes turned out for a fact-finding meeting.

Tenants were invited by the two OHC officials present to air their complaints and also to offer any suggestions they may have on what might be done to improve on low rental and senior citizens' accommodation.

Alderman Arthur Keegan represented Mayor J. Russell Scott at the meeting and expressed the city's appreciation for what Ontario Housing had done for the city.

Two senior citizens' apartment complexes have been built by OHC in Turnbull Street and another 80 units on West Bridge Street.

Low rental geared-to-income family housing has been provided by single family residence in several parts of the city, while townhouse complexes have been built on Pine Street and North Park Street.

And plans are now under way for provision of additional senior citizen and family housing in the city.

Alderman Keegan said complaints voiced by tenants at last night's meeting were minimal, one of the more prominent being kitchen size.

The Belleville meeting was the first such session held in Ontario. Similar meetings will be held in other centres across the province.

Paving Marks the Finish

Asphalt paving of the north two lanes on the Dundas Street reconstruction area got under way today, marking the beginning of the end for long months of east-west traffic delays. There is still some curb work to do in the James Street area, but paving is expected to continue until the entire four lanes from Front Street to west of the Bay Bridge Road - CPR overpass is completed, hopefully by the end of the month. Picture shows paving machine at work on Coleman Street south of Bridge Street which is being repaid by Lightfoot Construction, the same general contractor as for the Dundas Street project.

Rock Festival Banned

The Quinlans had not complied with any of the terms of the bylaw, he found.

"This interim injunction has effectively disposed of the whole application because a trial could not be held until fall, long after the festival date," he said. "Because of this, there has to be an undertaking by the township to the Quinlans to pay such damages as a court may decide."

The Quinlan brothers said after the decision that they will sue the township for a sum equal to the profits they had expected to make from the festival. At the hearing on Tuesday, they told the judge they had already laid out $2,000 invested in the enterprise.

"Now can you compute in dollars and cents the hurt to a little community, the damage that would be done, if the festival were held?" asked the judge in giving his decision.

He mentioned "irreparable harm, breaches of the peace, accidents, health problems" that might result from a festival attracting 20,000 people to a community with a population of 1,500 of which about one-third are children.

The Judge reminded the Quinlans that he had repeatedly urged them during the hearing to obtain a lawyer to represent them in court.

The Quinlans said the judge "took like personable young men to me, with considerable intelligence."

James Quinlan said after the hearing that he had expected the judge to grant the injunction to Madoc township. The brothers had intended to hold a one-day festival if their three-day event was cancelled. But after hearing the judge's verbal decision, they said they would have to wait to see the wording of the injunction to determine if it also ruled out one-day festivals.

IN MEMORIAM

MCGUIRE — In loving memory of our dear son, Ronald Edward, who passed away June 10, 1950—

The love was great, the years are few
We thought his death so near,
But those who have lost can tell,
The sorrow of parting without farewell.
—Always remembered by son Bill and family.

SEXSMITH — In loving memory of our dear grandson, Ronnie Alpha Sexsmith, who passed away June 10th, 1970.

Sweet memories are all we have than anyone will ever know,
I miss you more than words may show,
You have gone but not from the time I loved a little girl,
You used to brush my hair and try to make it curl,
One day you got sick, and God took you as I knew,
To suffer no more pain that I could not do,
You prayed to God to have you stay,
He knew you for me and give you love,
—Sadly missed by granddaughter Rose Lavergne.

SEXSMITH — In loving memory of our dear mother-in-law Mrs. Alpha Smith who passed away June 10th, 1970.

There was the desire of many others,
Never wanting about yourself,
But always doing for each and loving others.
I hope today's day we'll meet again,
To have a heart to heart talk and visit test friend.
—Time goes by ever he forgotten, daughter Gloria Lavergne.

SEXSMITH — In loving memory of our dear mother-in-law Mrs. Alpha Smith who passed away June 10th, 1968.

I was so proud that I could be
The son-in-law of you dear Mom,
You were a friend to all
Through you have passed away.
Your loving memory to me will always remain.
—Always remembered by son-in-law Lawrence Lavergne.

'Who's in Charge?' Asks Commission

The Belleville Utilities Commission feels they have been given the short end of the stick by the Ontario Municipal Board regarding authority over the Bell Boulevard sewer, main construction contract.

At its monthly meeting Tuesday the PUC was informed by the OMB that the contract for the job within the city was totally signed by the city and the contractor, in this case the Tatham Company.

The OMB decision is apparently based on the fact that the main is a local improvement, while the utilities commission contends that because of their projected heavy expenditure on the job, they should sign the contract.

"They were usurping our authority as I see it," PUC chairman Gerry O'Connor stated.

Under section 41, subsection four of the Public Utilities Act, all the powers and rights of the authority controlling management by the commission rests with the PUC, and not council.

"I guess this is a matter of interpretation," Mr. O'Connor added.

Because the utilities and not city council are installing duct tile, cement lined iron pipe and their own expense, E. L. Burnham, manager of the PUC commented, "you can't control and manage work if someone else is spending the money."

Mr. O'Connor stressed that the PUC wants to supply services, and no attempt will be made to delay laying of the main, work on which is expected to commence by Monday of next week.

Awards Won

Bryan Callaghan, Marysville, has been awarded the Edgar Forrester Scholarship for highest class standing and the Victor Lyall Goodwill Memorial Scholarship in internal medicine, Queen's University. He is entering his final year in medicine.

Building Booming

AMELIASBURG (Special) — A sharp increase in home construction and farm buildings was reported by the township building inspector to the regular meeting of council this week.

Harry Bisdee reported May as the busiest period during his 15 years as inspector. The number of permits issued during the month represented $210,200 in new residential homes, summer cottages, two small barns, garages, carports and additions to existing dwellings.

New development is taking place at various points throughout the municipality as well as the Redmersville road, he noted.

JOHN HERMAN MORROW of Belleville, son of Mrs. Dora Morrow, RR1, Trenton and the late W. H. Morrow, received his bachelor of arts degree at convocation exercises held recently at Queen's University.

Mr. Morrow is a graduate of East Northumberland District Secondary School and is at present the principal of North Trenton Public School.

This Pile Not For Wash

Firemen wasted no time in removing smouldering clothing and charred doors from a burning closet at 637 Freemont Ave. late yesterday afternoon. The fire, of undetermined origin, is still under investigation by Fire Chief Leo Culhane and Inspector Reg Christopher. The loss is estimated at several thousand dollars, with fire and smoke damage extensive in the upstairs bedroom and smoke damage minimal to the rest of the home.

Stump 'Stumps' Reeve

TWEED — The Happy Gang Exercise Club held a meeting Tuesday evening in Thomasburg. Exercises were done by the group and Mrs. Grace Walker gave a demonstration on using cosmetics.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. John Kimmett of Marlbank, on his 89th birthday. Guests for dinner were Mrs. Morley Weeks, Mr. Earle Kimmett of Napanee; Mrs. John Schamerhorn of Robin; Mrs. Ada Kimmett, Linda, Renne and Lisa, Mrs. Harold Mastin of Ebenezer; Mr. Gordon Schamerhorn, of Robin; Mrs. Clarence Jarmin. Many friends called to extend best wishes.

A mother and daughter banquet was held recently by the Vennachar - Clayne WMS of the Free Methodist Church at the home of Mrs. Harold Chatterson, with 34 persons present. Mrs. Marion Rodberg of Belleville gave a talk.

Clifford Cotton, of Tweed business administrator of the Lennox and Addington County Board of Education, was elected a director of the Ontario Association of School Business Officials for a two year term at the Association's annual meeting held at Niagara Falls, Ontario for three days earlier this month. Approximately 400 persons attended the conference.

Lions Officers Are Installed

At the last meeting of the Belleville Lions Club held June 3, District Convenor Bob Reid officiated at the installation of the new executive for 1971-72.

The following Lions accepted the convenors challenge to live up to the Lions' motto "We serve":

District Governor Reid congratulated past president Al Parkhurst and his executive for their efforts during his term of office. He especially commended the president for increasing the membership by 70 per cent, a feat rarely accomplished by any of the 41 clubs in District A, Region 11 of Lions International.

Thurlow Gets $24,500

CANNIFTON (Staff) — At its regular monthly meeting Wednesday, Thurlow Township council was advised of receipt of $24,500 from the provincial government as 25 per cent of its subsidy payment for construction and maintenance of roads and bridges.

Under the bylaws, a total of $150,000 is allocated annually for this expense, with $76,500 paid by the province, the remainder made up from township tax collections.

Another $50,000 has yet to be approved by the government for a new township barn, Township clerk Clare Horton said a site for the new storage facility has not been selected at this time.

Civilization!

The dictionary definition of Civilization is, variously: 1. The process of civilizing or becoming civilized. 2. The condition of being civilized; social organization of a high order, marked by advances in the arts, sciences etc. 3. The total culture of a people, nation, period etc.; as the civilization of the Occident differs from that of the Orient. 4. The countries and peoples considered to have reached a high stage of social and cultural development.

The opposite side of the social and cultural coin of course is something else again. Civilization, as we all know, has its black sheep. Thus Ireland, and the six counties of Northern Ireland in particular, the country whose early saints carried the torch of learning throughout Europe and even to such remote parts as Iceland, today is experiencing unrest and violence that are the very opposite of "civilized."

We hold no brief for Bernadette Devlin, but she had a point when she termed Ireland as a country where the people hate each other in the name of Christianity.

Such a statement of course contains the inevitable element of exaggeration and embellishment, for aside from the resentment the Irish are a very civilized people, with standards of behavior, business acumen and a literary tradition that are second to none.

Consider also the Middle East where Christ walked. Here the Christian traditions were established, yet today Arabs and Israelis confront each other and only an uneasy peace has succeeded months of warfare, death and destruction. It is a region where "civilization" has fallen so far short of its real meaning that Israelis once bombed a school (albeit, it was said, accidentally) and Arabs later retaliated with a strafing and deliberate rocket and automatic weapon attack on a school bus, as we recall in a sector bordering Israel and Jordan.

Need we mention some of our more obvious departures from civilized behavior here at home, such as the FLQ terror of last October and the murder of Pierre Laporte. Our civilization in general is something of a specer. How high really are our standards of taste, culture and behavior? What about the drug scene, sexual permissiveness, eccentricity of dress and appearance, the long hair, the indolence and sloppiness? Again, this is only one side of the coin, yet it is part of our so-called "civilization."

What a world we might have if man could be delivered from his baser instincts, from the worst consequences of his aggressiveness. Or must he have these in part, so that the struggle between good and evil be resolved in time-worn fashion? So that on one hand good will triumph, in say the adoption of some orphaned infant overseas, or help for victims of natural disaster, and on the other the Devil incarnate as manifested in mass murder such as that of the transient workers in California.

Civilization — what strange contrasts the word conjures up. As for mankind perhaps U.S. Supreme Court Associate Justice Thurgood Marshall said it best: "I think we Negro Americans have just as many beautiful people in mind and body, as well as skin, as any other group — and that we have just as many stinkers as any other group."

Highway 17 Toll

The Ottawa Journal, pointing to still further deaths on the killer stretch of Highway 17 from Ottawa to the Quebec border, calls for an acceleration of work on the new Highway 417 from Point Fortune at the provincial border to Ottawa.

The newspaper mentioned three deaths early last week. The route has long baffled traffic experts for its fatal record of accidents. At the end of 1970 a Montreal magazine had an article on the route, calling it Canada's deadliest highway, and pointing out that from 1966 to 1969 forty-eight people died on the 60-mile stretch.

The Ontario government has moved in a meaningful way in recent days in cancelling the Spadina expressway project in Toronto, but it should not lose sight of problem routes like Highway 17 out of Ottawa. There can be no hope of reducing the toll there until the new highway is completed; unfortunately it is a long way from completion, one estimate being as much as a decade. Yet the life-saving properties of providing such a route may be gauged from the fact that the scenic route between Gananoque and Brockville also was a killer strip until Highway 401 was completed in that area.

While Senate Discusses Relations with U.S.

P.M. in Doghouse For Anti-American Sentiments

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — By accident or design Prime Minister Trudeau has appeared to please anti-U.S. sentiment in this country through his declaration that closer Canadian — Soviet tiesWill help Canada stand up to American domination.

Mr. Trudeau has been widely criticized for what proved to be a slight to the U.S. He was told in the Commons that if he did want to attack the Americans, he should do that in Canada or the U.S., not certainly not in the Soviet Union.

It is noteworthy that while the prime minister is preaching the interesting theory of Soviet influence saving Canada from Yankee imperialism, one of his appointees to the Senate has been taking a decidedly different line.

Senator Ernest Manning has launched a Senate debate on Canadian — American relations, obviously perturbed by some attitudes help expressed here. He said for example that too many Canadian politicans and news commentators seemed incapable of discussing Canadian sovereignty except in the context of anti-American sentiment.

During his Moscow talks Mr. Trudeau and the Russian leaders discussed Arctic problems and the prime minister subsequently related that the Soviet supported Canadian sovereignty in this vast area.

The prime minister observed that the Soviet position on their Arctic sovereignty was the same as that of Canada, and the Russians had the power to make it stick. And Mr. Trudeau agreed with a press correspondent that he would not want a situation developing where Canada and the Soviet were opposing the U.S. in a physical-way.

Mr. Manning's view was quite different. He said what Canada has in the Arctic was paper sovereignty. He posed for the sake of argument the possibility of the Soviet war fleet moving into the Canadian Arctic and what could Canada do about it.

He remarked that it would not help much to tell the Russian commander that the Arctic was ours because the Royal family had visited there or because the prime minister had spent a night in an Eskimo igloo.

To Mr. Manning, it was clear that if ay powerful aggressor ever seriously threatened Canadian territory it would not be the United States which, indeed, would be Canada's ally and defender.

The former Alberta premier said there were two facts that were obvious about Canada — U.S. relations. One was that the U.S. defensively must be prepared to repel any attack against any region of North America. The other was that Canada lacked the military resources to defend its thousands of miles of coastline against any major aggressor.

At the same time Mr. Manning declared that Canada has a responsibility to make its contribution to the NATO and NORAD defence pacts. He strongly disagreed with the government policy of reducing commitments to these alliances.

The senator acknowledged the serious problems involved for Canada in living next door to the tremendously powerful American industrial and military giant. But he suggested the "emotional brand of negative nationalism" would not solve these difficulties.

Mr. Manning said that when Canadians worried about the U.S., they should consider the alternative, if they shared the continent with a totalitarian world power, "dedicated to burying the capitalist system and given to overruling its weaker neighbors by brute military force."

Senator Manning proposed that Canadians stop fighting windmills and he urged Prime Minister Trudeau to undertake a meaningful reassessment of Canada's position in its relations with the U.S.

Loyalist College Graduation

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Do you not think it would be better for the reporting of the events at Loyalist College to be more accurate?

In Friday's issue, and again in Monday's issue of your fine newspaper, it is reported that 650 students graduated from Loyalist College this week.

From the Program of the Fourth Convocation of Loyalist, there are only 411 names, as follows:

76 Applied Arts and Business Division
41 Technical Division
177 Certificates and Diplomas from the Day Division
21 Extension Division Diplomas and Certificates
177 Program 402 (Grade 12) Retraining Division
88 Program 403 (Grade 12) Retraining Division
31 The Business of Farming
37 Commercial and Typing Refresher
411 Total Day, Extension and Retraining Divisions Certificates and Diplomas

Is there anyone else wonderling why it is necessary for the Loyalist Board of Guvgrnors to go ahead with a new building in excess of $3,000.000 at this time?

1809—Napoleon was excommunicated.

U.K.'s Late Chief Justice Made the Law Sick

Ottawa Journal

Lord Goddard, dead in London at 94, was a former Chief Justice of England who embodied in himself the majesty and severity of the law in a way that the new permissive age can hardly imagine.

The words seem to be from another world. He once said: "We have to take the law as we find it, always remembering that in Other and Higher hands mercy may be extended." Commenting on this statement, the Observer of London noted with some perception.

"When Lord Goddard refers to the Almighty, there seems to be the suggestion of another court, not unlike his own, but far away, and possibly slightly eccentric."

Today mildly judges seem to want to be the pals of lawyers; Lord Goddard was the terror of barristers. To one who pleaded that his client had been convicted under the wrong section of a municipal law, he roared in reply:

"What section should he have been convicted under? I'm sure he should have been convicted of something. Application dismissed."

Lord Goddard believed that only stern punishment could combat crime. He favored corporal punishment, saying that "when a man is given the birch he comes out of prison a subject of ridicule." Yet when there was a debate on whether flogging should be restored, Lord Goddard spoke against changing the law again. He felt that constant changes tended to undermine the law's authority, a view which is the opposite of today's prevailing orthodoxy.

The Lord Goddards, by and large, are gone. Perhaps we should be grateful for the softer aspect of the law. But what has not yet proved that our society is any the better for it or that men are deferred from crime because our courts more and more take on responsibilities which Lord Goddard would have left to "Other and Higher hands."

Another U.K. Bridge For Sale?

BBC London Letter

London's bridges seem to have a useful habit of making money, even after they have ended their working lives and it is rare that they disappear without trace. But such was the fate of the former Waterloo Bridge built in 1817 and demolished in 1934. It crossed the Thames at a point only a few minutes walk from the studios of the BBC's External Service, who report that a contractor who recently bought 69,000 tons of granite lying on land on the outskirts of London now believes it is from that bridge.

A workman on the site assured him that it was, and the contractor, Mr. Michael Pierce, has checked up with the original design drawings. Though he bought the granite to use as chippings for under-surfacing a motorway he is now having second thoughts. He has asked auctioneers, to verify that the granite is from the original Waterloo Bridge and if so to arrange for its sale as a historic piece.

It could be quite expensive. When the Victoria London Bridge, built in 1884, was put up for sale four years ago it fetched £1,000,000. Now it is being rebuilt at Lake Havasu City Arizona, where engineers hope to divert the waters of the Colorado River under it.

Contrasts on Railroad Service

Ottawa Journal

The paradox of Canadian National's handling of its rail passenger service was shown in Ottawa this week. Monday CN announced the introduction of airline-type meals and new modern cars on its Ottawa-Montreal train, heralding it as a great improvement in service. Wednesday the company applied to discontinue its Ottawa-Toronto passenger service. Thursday it announced that the ticket office on the Sparks Street Mall will be closed.

The closing of the Mall ticket office will mean rail tickets can only be purchased at the outlying station in Alta Vista. CN feels the move is justified by the fact that 90 per cent of all tickets are sold there now, and that the move will inconvenience a relatively few passengers. Still, it seems strange that a company whose produce depends on public acceptance and convenience would so casually move its operations away from public visibility and availability at a time the airline companies trying such a move?

On the application to abandon the Ottawa-Toronto trains, CN has no hope of being allowed to stop the service. It is simply going through the motions in order to qualify for a subsidy from the Canadian Transport Commission.

The National Transportation Act makes it necessary for rail companies to apply to discontinue service. If the CTC decides the line should be kept in the public interest, — as it surely should in the case of the Ottawa-Toronto run - 89 per cent of the loss incurred from running the service is then paid by the Commission.

Unfortunately, the need to ask for discontinuance of the service rather than being able to apply for a subsidy causes unnecessary public concern and leads to endless delays for railways are dying. There must be a better way.

Death of A Philosopher

Ottawa Journal

As a theologian, Niebuhr refused to accept the comforting assumption of the social gospel that Christianity could be fully expressed in social action. Incidentally influenced by Karl Barth, he affirmed his belief in a transcendent God, above and separate from man, who nevertheless demonstrated his presence through love and compassion.

Actively involved in the struggle for social justice and civil liberties, Niebuhr never satisfied the ideological crusader. There were no easy answers, no utopian goals. Man lived his life within a tragic framework from which he could never completely break out. But those who knew him well recall his enthusiasm in the face of injustice and his ability to inspire others to play the part of moral man in immoral society.

Kraft Mill Out — Our Rates Higher?

Belleville area residents may be faced with an increase in water rates when construction of a pipeline from Lake Ontario begins providing water for the district.

With construction of the Kraft Paper Mill in Prince Edward County a thing of the past, these major users of water will no longer be a source of revenue for the utilities commission.

"They would of course be large users and would cut costs to us," said Gerry O'Connor, Public Utilities Commissioner, in an interview following the month's last meeting Tuesday.

"It could be damned expensive," he asserted.

In a letter from the OWRC, commissioners learned that the Gore and Storrie report on the pipeline won't be available until late July or together with information on rates.

"We would like information in advance, not on the day it happens," said Mr. O'Connor, when asked to comment on a future advisory board meeting between Belleville and Trenton.

The proposed meeting to be called by the OWRC would give the joint board a chance to screen the proposed rates before tabling of the official report.

Mr. O'Connor feels it would be an advantage to the utilities commission to have a look at these rates, to be better armed with information.

Utilities Head Feels 'Left Out'

Referring specifically to the absence of the Procter and Redfern report on urban renewal, PUC chairman Gerry O'Connor said council members have been consulted for several months regarding the study.

"We feel we get left out in the cold and it's beginning to annoy me," said the PUC chairman.

The detailed report has been studied in progressive stages by city council members and three public meetings have been called.

However, Mr. O'Connor feels the PUC should have a chance to study and make recommendations on the urban renewal preliminary reports.

"We hope to play an integral part in the community. I definitely think there should be a closer liason with council," he stated.

Mr. O'Connor wanted to make it clear that he was not "criticizing for the sake of criticizing".

"I want to see something positive done . . . two groups operating for the benefit of all."

Farming in Scotland Described at Meeting

Farm subsidies are a way of life in the British Isles — particularly in Scotland where farmers are paid for each heifer they raise.

This was learned by members of the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture when, at their May meeting held at Stirling, they were addressed by Robert Semple, visitor to Ontario from the Scottish Association of Young Farmers on the 1971 International Exchange program.

Mr. Semple said the dairy farm area of southwest Scotland compared with what he had seen in Ontario, with farms being about the same size as the larger farms here.

However, more cattle were kept, with herds ranging from 75 to over 200.

Farms were highly subsidized by the government — $22 is paid for each heifer raised to nine months of age with more paid when it reaches lactation.

Sheep raising was also popular in the Scottish hills with the animals raised being larger than in Ontario. The sheep remain outside all year.

Main crops are hay, grain and potatoes but the climate is not warm enough in summer to grow corn.

In contrast to the general practice in Ontario, Scotch farm youths return to the farm after their college education rather than taking jobs elsewhere.

Farm buildings are different, a dairy barn being but one storey. It is not permissible to store hay and straw over the stables and livestock feed is stored in separate barns or sheds as close as possible to the dairy barn.

Two resolutions were forwarded to the OFA from the meeting — one concerning interest on the loans and the other dealing with milk subsidy quota.

The next regular meeting of the county federation will be held at Stirling on June 23 when the topic of discussion will be farm inputs.

Survey Confirms Confusion Exists

A preliminary look at the survey being conducted by provincial member Dr. Richard T. Potter has indicated "that people still confuse the areas of responsibilities of provincial and federal governments," the Quinte politician said today.

"We have had about a 15 per cent return, and a quick look indicates many people are not clear about jurisdictions and authority."

Dr. Potter said some of the problem areas cropping up consistently were the federal jurisdictions of income tax, old age pensions and veterans affairs. Some of the provincial areas which are mixed are those of health, welfare and municipal affairs.

Dr. Potter sent out his survey 10 days ago to residents in his riding asking for their answers to a list of questions which ranged from positions on separate school grants to voting age.

"A 12 per cent return is generally accepted as good in such surveys," said Dr. Potter, "so our response so far is much better than other ridings where similar surveys have been taken. However, I would like to see a much higher return yet so that I can consider it a true expression of opinion by the residents of the Quinte riding."

Dr. Potter said final tabulation will not take place for another week "so those persons wishing to reply still have an opportunity to get their answers included in the survey results."

Sidney Permits At New High

A record month for building permits has been set for Sidney Township with tabling of their May report.

George Caves, building and plumbing inspector reported a total of 44 building permits with a capital value of $471,600, netting the township $335 in permit fees.

To date, the township has issued 77 permits this year, with a capital value of $1,085,800.

May permits were issued for such construction as single dwellings, garages, a batch plant for cement control at Permanent Concrete, a swimming pool, and demolition of several old buildings.

JAMES C. BLY, son of Mrs. James A. Bly, Belleville and the late Mr. J. A. Bly received his bachelor of arts degree with honors at recent convocation exercises of Queen's University, Mr. Bly is a graduate of Quinte Secondary School, Belleville.

Planters Donated

PICTON (Staff) — Lake Ontario Cement Company Ltd. has donated planters for the beautification of downtown Picton, Mayor Margaret Ackerman said at a council meeting Monday that planting will be effectuated by Mrs. Pierce Jones and Philip Dodds.

Red maple trees will be available for fall planting in the wider shopping areas along Picton's Main Street.

Mayor Ackerman observed, "It is my hope the young people of this town will work with us and help to keep the town attractive by protecting the young trees and new plants.

Councillor Harold McLoughlin said later during the meeting vandalism is "terrible in our town". He spoke of recent incidents at Rotary Park and referred to street signs which have been pushed down. "We should try and catch those responsible and make examples of them," he remarked. Mr. McLoughlin noted it is "a very few" who are destroying public property.

Canada Development Corp. Gets Final OK

OTTAWA (CP) — The long-awaited, much-belabored legislation to create the Canada Development Corp. moved through the final rites of passage in the Commons Wednesday.

After a brief but abusive debate on third reading, the bill was approved by a vote of 86 to 56 and now will go on for what is likely to be critical scrutiny by the Senate.

In all likelihood, the rough initiation will have been only a foretaste of life to come for the CDC.

Conceived as a Liberal party election pledge in 1963, the idea spent most of its prolonged gestation as an annual line in speeches from the throne.

Since the introduction of the CDC legislation earlier this year, it has been a subject of strident attacks both from spokesmen for the business community and those seeking greater public participation in the Canadian economy.

Meanwhile, Finance Minister Edgar Benson has yet to turn up qualified people willing to manage the corporation.

A principal concern in the general debate on the issue has been that the CDC will be caught between the need to return a profit to investors and the goal of serving the public interest.

In the final debate in the Commons, George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) maintained that mere mention of the CDC in investment circles brings laughter from those who do not cry.

The corporation would be "the greatest flop since the Edsel," he said. People simply would not transfer money from savings accounts, bonds and insurance policies to the CDC, short of a government guarantee on returns.

He suggested the original proposal has become merely a safe alternative to a government policy that would require foreign-owned branch plants to put their shares on the market for Canadians to buy.

Faint praise came from Steve Otto (L—York East), who suggested the government review its concept of the CDC and make it an organization to guarantee private investment rather than have the CDC make large investments.

The final speaker, Ran Harding (NDP—Kootenay West) angrily protested the provision that will give the CDC four Crown corporations for its portfolio. He claimed the corporation will do nothing for a situation in which "Canadians are squatters in their own land."

In the vote, the Liberals were joined by Independent Roch LaSalle (Joliette) against the three opposition parties.

Passage of the CDC legislation should at least dispose of the controversy surrounding government ownership of successful business enterprises as Polymer Corp. Ltd., set up during the Second World War.

Polymer, the government share of Panarctic Oils Ltd., Eldorado Nucleär Ltd. and Northern Transportation Ltd. will be the first holdings of the CDC.

The government plan is to start the corporation with $25 million of public money and then reduce its participation to about 10 per cent while allowing citizens to purchase stock at about $5 a share.

The CDC is envisaged by the government as having authorized capital of $2 billion, half in preferred shares and half in common shares.

New Bank Seeks Charter

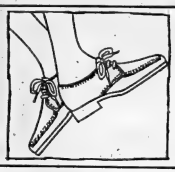
OTTAWA (CP) — A petition applying for incorporation of a new bank called the United Bank of Canada was introduced in the Senate Wednesday by Senator Hedard Robichaud (L—New Brunswick).

The petition caused a slight stir on Senate benches, heavy with directors of established chartered banks, but there was no formal comment.

Once the petition is read, possibly today, a private bill for incorporation will be introduced by Senator Robichaud.

Provisional directors named in the petition are Benjamin V. Levinter, partner in the Toronto law firm of Levinter, Dydess, Bliss Maxwell and Hart; his father Isadore Levinter, the firm's senior partner; Zenon Gutkowski, a Toronto chartered accountant; vice-president Gerald LaSalle, University of Sherbrooke; and Sudbury builder Adulio J. Pianosi.



A news release from R. T. Smylie and Co. Ltd., a Toronto public relations firm, arrived on Parliament Hill as the petition was introduced.

The release recalled that Benjamin Levinter said April 1 he would seek a charter to operate a bank with representation on its board from as many ethnic groups as possible.

The head office would be in Toronto and the capitalization would be $20 million.

Mall Seen as Success

TORONTO (CP) — Two merchandising giants have opposing views, but most merchants are unanimous that the Yonge St. mall was a success worth repeating.

A four-block stretch of Toronto's main shopping street closed to traffic for all of last week.

So Bruce Elder, acting store manager at Eaton's, one of the Yonge St. giants, says the mall meant a 10-per cent increase in business, with the largest part of that increase in women's ready-to-wear items.

Ottawa and Ontario Reach Accord on Lakes

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has reached agreement in principle with Ontario to clean up the Canadian side of the lower Great Lakes and is looking for the same kind of agreement with the U.S. in Washington today.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said Wednesday that he and Ontario Resources Minister George Kerr have agreed to back fully last fall's International Joint Commission report calling for cleaning up lakes Erie and Ontario at an estimated cost of $211 million.

Mr. Davis said he and Mr. Kerr had reached complete agreement on the objectives and standards of the report, and are close on a cost-sharing formula.

His remarks came in an interview following the Commons question period, where he had said he and External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp were going to Washington today to seek U.S. commitment to the objectives of the IJC report.

The commission, composed of officials appointed by the U.S. and Canadian governments, studies boundary issues of concern to both countries.

The commission's report estimated that it would cost the U.S. approximately $1.3 billion to deal with the municipal and industrial waste on its side of the lakes.

Mr. Davis indicated while talking to reporters that the cost of the Canadian side may exceed the $211 million the IJC estimated, because lakes Huron and Superior are also involved to a lesser extent.

But he said the federal and Ontario governments would spend "at least" the $211 million.

Asked whether the federal share would go to assist industries as well as municipalities, Mr. Davis expressed doubts that the federal government would accept the principle that it should financially assist industry in meeting its own responsibility to deal with its waste.

Ontario, he said, still has some negotiating to do with municipalities and industries, and the federal government still had some negotiating to do with the province over cost-sharing.

The IJC report found that a crash program was necessary to improve sewage treatment facilities on the lakeshore.

Asked when one could expect to see a Lake Erie as clean as it would be if it hadn't been abused by man, Mr. Davis said 1980 or 1985—"we hope."

Student Acquitted of Putting Parasites in Food

MONTREAL (CP)—Eric Kranz was acquitted Wednesday of charges of intent to endanger the lives of his four MacDonald College room-mates.

Kranz, originally a graduate student from New York City studying at suburban MacDonald College, was charged with having placed parasitic worms in the food of his room-mates on or about Feb. 1, 1970. A week later the four were stricken with parasitic pneumonia.

Sessions court Judge Gerard Lagnadere acquitted Kranz because circumstantial evidence submitted by Crown prosecutor Maurice Laniel was not incompatible with doubts raised by defence counsel Gabriel Lapointe.

During the trial, Mr. Lapointe argued that the infectious could have come from a source other than that of the ascaris family of pig parasites, which was said to have "caused the illness of room-mates David Fisk, 24, Richard Davis, 25, of Nepanee, Ont., William Butler, 22, and Keith Farr, 20.

Kranz, of West Hampstead, N.Y., testified that he was harassed by his room-mates over an alleged debt of $18.66.

He said he told the four on Jan. 23, during an argument over the funds, that he could "cause mischief to their automobiles, burn the house" and that he had access to "organisms at the institute to put in their food."

He said, however, that these were verbal deterrents to discourage the others from harassing him.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Huck

Couple Wed 50 Years

A pleasant time was enjoyed recently when Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Huck were entertained at a family dinner on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary at their home 218 Herchimer Avenue.

Mrs. Huck is the former Susan Elizabeth Sweet. The couple were married May 4, 1921 by Rev. Father J. J. Kileen of St. Michael's Parish.

Mr. and Mrs. Huck have two children, a daughter Lois (Mrs. William McDowell) and a son Gordon, and five granddaughters — all of Toronto.

The honored guests received many lovely gifts, flowers, and cards along with a congratulatory telegram from Prime Minister Trudeau and a letter from Belleville Mayor Dr. J. R. Scott.

Reception Held on 45th Anniversary

Their wedding attendants Mr. and Mrs. Willie Cox attended and sat at the head table which was centred by a three tiered anniversary cake topped with wedding bells. Tapered candles and tulips also adorned the table.

Mrs. Morley Akey and Mrs. Joe Cox, nieces of the couple poured tea. Mrs. Ross Akey, Mrs. Janet McCrae, Mrs. Douglas Hancock, Mrs. Robert Woods and Mrs. Paul Hanah, all nieces of Mr. and Mrs. Stapley served the guests with a buffet lunch.

Miss Linda Pritchard of Belleville entertained the gathering with piano interludes and Mrs. Emerson Armstrong of Sarnia sang a solo.

Jason Stapley has recently retired from the Canadian National Railways after 43 years of service.

The couple have one son William and daughter - in - law Myrtle. Their three grandsons Mark, David and John passed round the guest book. Guests were present from Sarnia, Toronto, Scarborough and other points.

MISS DEBORAH PLATT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Platt, Belleville, graduated from Queen's University, recently with a bachelor of arts degree (mathematics). Miss Platt is a graduate of Moira Secondary School.

A REMINDER

Wedding forms for write-ups are available at The Intelligencer and should be completed and returned BEFORE the ceremony so a report can be published immediately after the wedding.

Pictures may be submitted by your photographer up to three days after the wedding. We cannot publish wedding write-ups submitted later than six days after the date of the ceremony.

Accounts of showers and entertainments in honor of the bride do not belong with a wedding write-up and should be sent in immediately after they are held, for publication separately.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Prior to her recent marriage Mrs. Douglas Ray (nee Beth Fraser) was honored at miscellaneous showers held at the home of Mrs. John Bowler, and Mrs. Blake Faulkner with Mrs. Susan Carvell as co-hostess. Showers were also given by the Misses Margaret Ray and Betty Stapley and at the Stirling Legion Hall.

* * *

Prior to her recent marriage, Mrs. Kenneth Bruder (nee Elizabeth Wardle) was honored at several social gatherings. Showers were held by Mrs. Fred Martin, Mrs. Watson Hall, Mrs. George Harbin and Miss Wendy Holland. A Jack and Jill party was hosted by Patrick Walshe, a wine and cheese party by Mrs. Allan J. Bruder and a miscellaneous party by Dianne McDonald.

Spring Weddings

RAY — FRASER

Elisabeth Mae Fraser, daughter of Mrs. Pearl Tokley of Stirling, and the late Mr. Albert (Friday) Fraser, became the bride of Douglas Arnold Ray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Ray of Harold, Ontario, at a ceremony held on May 15, 1971, 7:00 p.m., at St. Paul's United Church, Stirling. Rev. J. Bruce Small officiated at the double-ring ceremony while Mrs. Harold West played appropriate wedding music.

Given in marriage by Mr. Roy Tokley, the bride wore a gown of nylon triple sheer organza with a flower designed chantilly lace bodice enhanced with a stand-up collar. A band of ribbon encircled the collar and empire waistline. The long sleeves were caught with matching ribbon forming a ruffle around the wrist. The floor length skirt was fashioned with four tiers of cutout appliques of matching lace. Her headpiece was the new wedding band styling trimmed with matching lace and attached to a two tiered nylon illusion veil edged with lace. She carried a soft glamelia surrounded by lily - of - the - valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Margaret Ann Ray, sister of the bridegroom, of Belleville, wore a flowered rose and cream floor length dress with an empire waistline banded with plum pink velvet ribbon, back bow and flowing ties. Her headpiece was the wedding band styling to match the gown. The bridesmaids, Miss Betty Stapley of Campbellford, cousin of the bride, Miss Debbie Ray of Harold, sister of the bridegroom, and the junior bridesmaid Miss Glenda Anderson of Stirling, niece of the bride, were attired in dresses identical to that of the maid of honor. They carried bouquets of multi - colored daisy 'mums and pink sweetheart Roses.

The bridegroom was attended by Francis Courtney of Harold, as best man. The ushers were Lin Stapley, of Stirling, cousin of the bride, and Larry Vanhorne of Springbrook, cousin of the bridegroom.

Assisting her was the bridegroom's mother in a mauve crepe dress and matching ribbon in her hair. Her corsage was a yellow glamelia.

For the wedding trip to points south, the bride changed to a pink crepe dress with long sleeves and matching shoes. Upon return the newly married couple will reside at 51 John Street, Stirling.

BRUDER — WARDLE

Elizabeth Anne Wardle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. A. Wardle of RR 2, Trenton was recently united in marriage to Kenneth Allan Bruder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan J. Bruder at Tabernacle United Church. The double ring ceremony was conducted by Rev. J. Leslie Dean, assisted by Father Kenneth Stitt of the church of St. Michael the Archangel. The organist was William Connor.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown of cream colored crepe with an attached cowl hood. The skirt featured a high tucked waist and fell into an A-line. The long sleeves tapered to a point over the hands. Her bouquet was a nosegay of mauve daisy 'mums and baby's breath.

The bridegroom was attended by Patrick Walshe as best man.

The bride's mother chose a fuschia silk A-line dress with a V neckline and wide, three quarter length sleeves. The neckline and sleeves were accented with a beaded border. White accessories and a single orchid corsage completed the outfit.

The bridegroom's mother chose a turquoise peau - de - soie dress and coat ensemble. Her accessories were light mauve and her corsage was of mauve mini carnations.

TRUE LOVE

(CP) — The romance crashed but Maggie Tomlin never took off her fiance's ring. And 56 years later, after she had married four times, Maggie and her first love, Joe Cox, are going to the altar. The couple, both in their late 70s, partied in the First World War but again recently by chance in Staffordshire.

Ann Landers

Replies to Answer Given to 'Masquerade'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just caught up with your answer to "Masquerade," the homosexual who married first a lesbian, then a heterosexual woman. You said, "A woman who marries a homosexual is getting what she wants — which is mostly to be left alone."

ANN LANDERS

You are wrong. Such a woman is a "vamp" in the old Theda Bara sense. The homosexual male is the ultimate challenge to her prowess as a female. She may appear passive and low-key, but it is only a pose. She is hard at work trying to break down his resistance and prove herself a superwoman.

If "Masquerade" and others like him are sufficiently bisexual, the vamp will succeed. He then becomes the bridegroom of the widow spider. If he is not sufficiently bisexual, he will escape. I know because I — DID IT.

* * *

DEAR DID: Thanks for a firsthand report. I can tell you, however, from other firsthand reports, that there are a variety of reasons why women marry homosexuals — for example: money, social position, companionship, or sheer panic at the thought of being an "unclaimed jewel." And almost every homosexual has encountered the "social-worker" type who tells herself, "He's sick, poor fellow, but I can make him well." Last but not least is the closet case who looks like a hot number but is actually terrified of sex and hates it. She is the gal who wants a man — but she wants him to leave her alone.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is this for real? I saw an item in our daily paper that said: "A child will not have hair darker than his darker parent. His hair will not be earlier than that of the parents with the earlier hair." Check with your experts. This raises some interesting questions. — A DAILY READER.

DEAR DAILY: Here's what Prof. Joshua Lederberg of Stanford University said: "What, never? No, never. Well, hardly ever. Often that doctrine is mischievous. You should ask which hair you are going to compare — and at what age."

So there you have it — straight from His Worship at Palo Alto . . . and quite a quote it is. Not every Nobel Prize-winning geneticist can make his point by borrowing a line from Gilbert and Sullivan!

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two years ago I married this man. Each of us was previously married for 20 years.

My husband is really wonderful — except for one thing. He has not drawn up a new will nor has he changed some of the records which I feel should be changed. He finally altered one insurance policy last month after much prodding. His other policies must remain as they are because of the property settlement.

His ex-wife still carries a military dependent I.D. card which allows her to use the P.X., commissary and military hospitals. Under these conditions would she be the recipient of the widow's pension or would I?

I work and help him with his children's college bills and the alimony clobber. I have no idea where I stand if he should die or be killed. He has four children. I have two.

What's the next step for me? — FEELING INSECURE.

DEAR FEELING: Talk to an estate lawyer so you can speak to your husband intelligently.

Since the military recognizes only one wife at a time it seems to me you are being denied privileges which are rightfully yours. You should insist that this little detail be straightened out at once.

Single Mothers Prize Their Own Club

By DORIS CLARK

There are more single mothers choosing to keep their babies, we are told. Yet the going is tough. Taking sole responsibility for a youngster — sometimes in relative isolation — can be a pretty disheartening task.

In Vancouver a "Mom's Group" is making these girls feel a little less isolated and giving them a spot where they can share what they think and solve some of their parenting problems. Here they are able to exchange baby clothing and equipment too — a big item when the majority are receiving social assistance.

They can talk about child care with people in the same boat. Recently a church group made available a free sewing course with material and patterns provided and the girls were quick to join up. They even publish a "News and Tid Bits" sheet.

With child care workers beaconing the great need these girls have for moral and practical support, a "Mom's Group" like this is good news.

* * *

Dear Doris: It was either write this letter to you or else try to get drunk all by myself to forget, when I don't even like the taste of alcohol.

This year I have been secretary of our dramatic group, and now I'm in love with the president...Ralph. He and I have shared so many headaches and laughs that we have really come to count on each other for a lot of things.

When I'm with him everything is just great and I forget about his girl friend and my troubles completely. Often at a meeting we each know what the other is thinking and we just have to look at each other to share a joke. But after the meeting I walk home alone.

I want to either be in love with someone who loves me or else not be in love at all. After school is over I'll be so miserable I'll go crazy. — No Social Life.

Dear No: Look, Sweetie, even if you and Ralph were going steady I'd say don't commit yourself. At 17, you have a lot more free-lance social life coming to you, and you sound like a girl with a lot on the ball.

What do the other girls do when school is out? Don't just like the frog who sat on the lily pad and waited for a fly to fly into his mouth. Be starved to death!

When life doesn't seem to be coming to you, you have to go to it. Take your courage in your hands; join a group or travel, go to camp or get a job or begin a new hobby.

* * *

Dear Doris: I enjoy the letters and your answers. You give such good advice to those poor lovelorn (?), rather than sex-torn teeners. Also help and comfort to troubled older folk.

My request is for a fine old poem, of which I can recall only a part. Our mother used to say it to us children to help us over some of our "bumps and bumps" of daily living.

I think it is called The Hope Chest, and it goes:

"In it you pack all your heartache and trouble
Then sit on the lid and laugh."

I hope this will serve to stir someone's memory of the whole poem. — A Fan of Yours

Dear Fan: I'd like to read it myself. We can all do with a lift. Anybody?

* * *

Doris cannot begin to answer all your questions in the column, to make sure of your reply, remember to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A New Recipe For Apple Crisp Dessert

By MARY MOORE

For mothers who want to regulate the amount of sugar they feed their children and in addition want to increase their consumption of protein I have an idea: Reduce the amount of sugar in the topping of fruit crisps and add some skim milk powder.

Incidentally now that cooking apples are becoming harder to find each week this late in the season be sure to store yours in the refrigerator.

NEW APPLE CRISP

(Serves 6)

TOPPING:

½ cup unsifted cake and pastry flour
¼ cup skim milk powder
½ cup granulated sugar
¼ tsp. salt
⅓ cup margarine or butter
½ tsp. cinnamon

Make the topping first by cutting the margarine or butter into the flour, skim milk powder, sugar and salt until size of small peas.

Pack slices of apples evenly into deep 9" pie plate. At once drizzle hot water over them and sprinkle evenly with the spices. Pat Topping firmly and evenly all over top. Press down to be sure there is a bond between topping and apples. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 45 min. or until juice begins to bubble around edges and apples are tender. Serve warm or cold with homogenized milk or serve with VANILLA SAUCE made by combining in saucepan ¼ cup sugar, 1 tbsp. corn starch, ½ tsp. salt then stirring in 1 cup water or milk until thick. Remove from heat and add 1 tbsp. butter and 1 tsp. vanilla. Serve hot.

Most tiny tots, especially little girls, are likely to be full of screams, struggles, and unhappy tears when it's time for a shampoo. The task will be easier if you lay the child across the drainboard of the sink and cup her head in your hand as you hold it above the sink, talking gently all the while. Use baby shampoo, rinse with the sink sprayer and then cuddle her as you rub her hair dry. If you're extra careful about not getting soap in her eyes, she'll soon learn that anything as simple as a shampoo can't be all bad.

Illustrated Talk on Mozart

The Belleville Lodge AF and AM, No. 123 GRC had in store for those in attendance a most unusual treat in the presentation of an illustrated talk by W. Bro. Peter de Karwin of Toronto titled "Whom the Gods Love . . . Dies in his Youth".

This was a brief excursion into the life of the renowned 18th century Austrian composer Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, with special attention given to Mozart's relation to Masonry during the last seven years of his life. Although many famous composers were adherents to Masonry, Mozart was the only one who has left behind a sizeable amount of music written specifically for the Viennese Lodge to which he belonged. Of the over one dozen works having Masonic connotations that Mozart penned, the most famous is the Maurerische Trauermusik (Masonic Funeral Music) which was written for the death of two brothers, both of aristocratic status, that Mozart had known well.

Mr. de Karwin traced Mozart's life, with its many aspects of trial and suffering, notably during its final phases when the great composer was reduced to abject poverty and was forced to borrow from friends and brothers just to maintain a bare existence. This was the period when his last opera "The Magic Flute" was written, a work that is suffused with Masonic symbolism in many parts of its score, having its premiers only nine weeks before Mozart's tragic death at the age of 35.

Following this interesting talk a film was shown depicting the life and times of the composer. A cursory visit to Salzburg, Mozart's birthplace was included, with his humble surroundings accented against the grandeur of the Mirabelle Palace and gardens. Many were the glimpses of the composer and his friends, although the truest portrait of the master, that by Josef Lange was not used. Scenes, both of the age and the persons involved were artfully correlated with voice tracks.

Use of Diplomacy and Decibels Averts Trouble

HAMILTON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau defused a potentially explosive confrontation between police, trade unionists and youthful protesters Wednesday night with diplomacy, several decibels of rock music and reinforcements from Ottawa- his wife Margaret.

Successful avoidance of a clash between the demonstrators and police—both sides appeared ready for one—capped a hectic day of barnstorming through the city, during which more than 25,000 Hamiltonians had a look at the prime minister.

Two hours before Mr. Trudeau was to attend a civic ball commemorating Hamilton's 125th anniversary, about 1,000 trade unionists turned up in front of the Sheraton Connaught Hotel with placards and banners.

The labor people were joined by 200 more demonstrators they didn't want—young members of the League for Socialist Action and the Young Socialists, protesting everything from abortion laws to the war in Vietnam.

The union demonstration was organized by the Hamilton Labor Committee for Jobs, a group representing a dozen major unions with a combined membership of more than 50,000.

The committee wanted to submit a brief to Mr. Trudeau protesting the unemployment situation—about 35,000 people are out of work in the Hamilton region, which the committee says is 10 per cent of the labor force.

But Mr. Trudeau turned them down cold when they asked for a face-to-face meeting. While Mr. Trudeau was eating dinner, his aides were working out a compromise to end the demonstration with union leaders.

In the end, committee representatives presented the five-page brief to Paul Trainor, special assistant to Health Minister John Munro, who promised it would find its way to Mr. Trudeau.

That was good enough for the union men. They packed up their placards and headed for home an hour before Mr. Trudeau was scheduled to arrive at the hotel for the civic ball.

"We got what we came here for," said a nonmilitee spokesman. "We wanted the prime minister to see the brief and we were promised that he would."

The spokesman said the union demonstrators had been warned not to provoke any incidents with police; "but if trouble had come, we were ready to handle it."

As the unionists left, the Young Socialists, who came close earlier to tangling with police, were waving red banners, placards and a Viet Cong flag, and forming up for another run at the hotel entrance.

A girl was giving marching orders over a bullhorn when a rock band, standing by for a street dance that was to coincide later with the ball inside the hotel, launched into an instrumental number with amplifier volume turned up full blast.

The Young Socialists gave up. They furled their flags and stomped off down the street singing and chanting anti-Trudeau slogans.

Mr. Trudeau completed his tour de force by unexpectedly bringing along Mrs. Trudeau when he showed up at the hotel at 9 p.m. She had flown in from Ottawa earlier in the evening.

"I've only two things to say to you tonight," Mr. Trudeau told a happy, cheering crowd of several thousand. "Happy birthday and let's dance."

The day started for Mr. Trudeau in much the same fashion. He flew into Hamilton from Toronto aboard a Canadian Forces helicopter, which touched down in Sam Lawrence Park amid 3,000 school children, given the day off to see the prime minister and to celebrate Hamilton's birthday.

Seconds after Mr. Trudeau disembarked, the children sprinted through police rope cordons in droves and nearly bowled over the prime ministerial party as they tried to grab his hands, arms and jacket.

Police were powerless. Mr. Trudeau's own security forces formed a flying wedge that got him as far as a reviewing stand where he was to say a few words to the children.

The public address system sparked and sputtered to a halt. Children swarmed over the reviewing stand and Mr. Trudeau made of the downtown area in a limousine.

Then the reviewing stand collapsed. It was only two or three feet off the ground and nobody was hurt, though several children fell.

Mr. Trudeau change his limousine for an antique 1930 Packard a few blocks away and headed a parade through the downtown area to Hamilton city hall where he was officially welcomed by Mayor Vic Copps.

In the afternoon, Mr. Trudeau travelled to Ivor Wynn Stadium, home of the Canadian Football League's Hamilton Tiger Cats, for the city's big birthday bash.

The entertainment program there included a line of pretty can-can dancers who jumped from a giant cardboard birthday cake and recruited Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Munro into their routine.

Mr. Trudeau kept up, but Mr. Munro, federal minister in charge of physical fitness, wheezed to a half halfway through the second chorus.

On the way downtown in the parade, student Tessa McKay, 18, ran up to Mr. Trudeau's slow-moving Packard and handed him a pair of red, white and blue hotpants.

"No, No," said Tessa. "They're for you to keep."

Lafleur First To Go

MONTREAL (CP) — Guy Lafleur, the explosive, right winger from Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Junior A Hockey League, today had the honor to be the first player picked in the National Hockey League's 1971 amateur draft.

Lafleur, who scored 130 goals in 62 regular season games last year, was grabbed by the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens. The Canadiens held the first-round pick of California Golden Seals because of a prior deal.

Marcel Dionne, the small but high-flying centre from the Ontario Hockey Association's St. Catharines Black Hawks, was the next to go. He was drafted by Detroit Red Wings.

Dionne scored 62 goals and had 81 assists in 46 games last season and was OHA scoring leader as was Lafleur in the QJAHL.

Trainmen Playing Spoilers

CNR continued their role as Industrial Softball spoilers by handing Unemployment Insurance Commission their first loss of the season last night.

The trainmen, who only the night before had held unbeaten Union Carbide to a 13-13 tie, stopped the, UIC win streak at five games with an 8-6 victory.

Greg Bellis and Brian Plumbe combined to hurl a five - hitter for the winners while Clint Halliday and Bernie Coughlan gave up six safeties in taking the loss.

Ron Conlon had a triple and two singles for CNR with Rob McHurter belting a double and single. Belnap and Collins each had a pair of hits for UIC.

Delore Stelitte tallied four times in the final inning to provide their margin of victory in a 9-5 win over Merch Mariners.

Gary Mattier fired six - hit drill to gain the win, while Wilson Bulpit was the victim of 12 safeties by Delore.

Dennis Lane and Bob Casselman each counted a home run among their two hits for Delore, while Dave Skelly had a double and single.

Not Everyone Loves Parade

The Braves, who are now scoreless in four games this season, applied some early pressure but weren't able to keep up the effort as United coasted to a 5-0 win.

Dave Hadley converted a pass from Ron Jorgenson for the only goal of the first half as Bata, led by captain Zoltan Csasar, pressed but weren't able to come up with a goal.

After three minutes of play in the second half, Joe Romano gave United a 2-0 lead with the first of his three goals.

Romano later completed his hat trick and Jorgenson added the other tally after having two previous scores disallowed.

Braves Looking For First Goal

Bata Braves went into sheir Bay of Quinte soccer match against Belleville United last night looking for their first goal of the season, and came away still looking.

Atoms Split

Queens Motel Olympics split the Steelworker Olympic atoms as the two teams battled to a 2-2 Belleville Minor Soccer Association deadlock last night.

Gregory Walsh turned in an outstanding game scoring both goals for Queens, while Andy Sine turned in a strong defensive effort. John Fraser and Rory MacLeod looked after the scoring and Rick Manderville gave an all-around good effort for the Steelworkers.

In the other contest the Yardmen Olympics got goals from Jonathon Gee, Elliot Royle and Peter Anglin as they edged Olympic 3-2. Jeff Hayward tallied the Olympic markers.

Cannifton Collared

Bill Barberstock put the collar on a six - game Plane's Concrete win streak last night by blanking the South Hastings League leaders 1-0.

His Shannonville teammates managed to plate a single run off Plane's hurler Larry Lewis to gain the victory.

Barberstock threw three-hit ball to gain the win, fanning 16 batters and not walking a man. Lewis gave up four hits in taking the loss, whiffing 12 and issuing a pair of free passes.

Barberstock aided his own cause with a double and single, while Mike Morris doubled and Pete Young had a base hit for Shannonville, batter with a pair of singles, while Bob Wannamaker accounted for the other safety.

Bowman Bumps MacNeil

MONTREAL (CP) — Scotty Bowman, a 38-year-old Montrealer who managed and coached St. Louis Blues in the National Hockey League last season, replaced Al MacNeil today as coach of the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens.

It was announced earlier in Halifax that MacNeil had accepted the job of general manager and coach of the Montreal-owned Voyageurs of the American Hockey League.

The Voyageurs are moving to Halifax on a full-time basis for the 1971-72 season and will be known as the Nova Scotia Voyageurs.

Announcement of the switch was made by Canadiens management at a news conference during the NHL annual meetings.

MacNeil, 35, a native of Sydney, N.S., took over the Canadiens coaching job from Claude Ruel last December and led the club to a third-place finish in the NHL East Division and the Stanley Cup.

There had been widespread speculation for weeks that MacNeil, a former NHL defenceman and coach of the Voyageurs, would offer his resignation following open criticism of his coaching by veteran centre Henri Richard.

Bowman, a former scout and coach of Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, went to St. Louis in the 1967-68 NHL expansion season.

He resigned as coach of the Blues last month because of disagreement with the team's owners.

Jean Beliveau, who announced his retirement Wednesday to become vice-president of corporate development and spokesman for the Canadiens, confirmed that the Voyageurs had been moved to Halifax for the coming season.

AL MacNEIL

SCOTTY BOWMAN

Sam Pollock, general manager of the Canadiens, said the importance of the Montreal farm system was a prime factor in MacNeil's move to Halifax.

MacNeil served as playing coach with Houston Apollos of the Central Hockey League and then in the same capacity with the Voyageurs before coming to the Canadiens last season as assistant to Ruel.

Pollock said MacNeil will be "in complete charge" of the Halifax operation.

MacNeil said he is looking forward to his new position "with optimism."

"I'm not so naive to think leaving as coach of the Canadiens is not a big decision.

"When I left the NHL more than three years ago as a player Mr. Pollock got me back into hockey. It has been a hectic year—an exciting year—and I got a great deal of personal satisfaction from it."

Bowman, reported to have signed a one-year contract although the terms were not announced, said his last four years in St. Louis had been "great." But he was happy to return to his native Montreal.

He said he had been connected with the Montreal organization as a junior player, scout and coach since 1952 before moving to St. Louis.

He lauded Ruel, now chief scout with the Canadiens, as "having no peer as a selector of hockey talent and as a great help to any coach.

Juniors' Trick Fails

Belleville Juniors were up to their old comeback tricks, but they were unable to come far enough back to beat Campbellford, who took a 9-6 decision in their Quinte Junior Lacrosse League contest Wednesday night.

Belleville outscored the home team 4-3 in the final period, but were unable to overcome a 6-2 Campbellford lead.

Jim Lennox was the scoring star for the visitors, potting a pair of goals and adding five assists. Joe Clarke scored twice and assisted on another tally, while Danny Payne and Greg Scarlett counted the other Belleville goals.

The visitors received 12 of the game's 23 penalties.

Jets Grounded by Queen's

Queen's Motor Hotel were playing like kings last night taking a Belleville Minor Lacrosse match from RCAF 707 Jets by a 9-1 count.

In another bantam bout, Bob's Sport dropped a 6-4 verdict to Simpson - Sears.

Centre Paul Desjardins passes football to Greg Barton, recently acquired by Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League from the National League, during an Argo workout in Toronto Wednesday. Both Barton and Joe Theisman, recently acquired by Toronto from NFL, are working out to learn the Canadian style of football.

Renko Plays David to Giants' Goliath

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"I'm in "IT" is manager Charlie Fox's slogan for San Francisco Giants, but he's having trouble dispelling the "June swoon" label.

The Giants managed only one hit—Dick Dietz's second-inning bouncing single up the middle—off Montreal Expos' Steve Renko Wednesday night and went down to a 4-0 defeat, their seventh in eight games this month.

In little more than a week, their lead over Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West has been trimmed from 10½ to seven games.

Asked if the Giants were psyched by the "June swoon" tag, Fox snapped:

"I'm no (censored) psychologist. Did you guys ever consider that your man just threw a one-hitter out there? Don't you guys want to give him any credit? That's all I'm going to tell you."

Elsewhere, Philadelphia Phillies trounced Los Angeles 9-4, New York Mets rallied to beat San Diego Padres 4-2, Atlanta Braves whipped St. Louis Cardinals 8-3, Chicago Cubs shaded Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1 and Cincinnati Reds edged Houston Astros 2-1.

"I have no idea what's wrong with the Giants," he said.

Renko, a tall right-hander, said he might have had a chance on Dietz's ground single.

"I just let it go by," he said. He wasn't even sad about coming so close to a no-hitter.

"I think my first shutout last year was my biggest thrill," he said. "I'll take a one-hitter or a 10-hitter as long as we win."

The Expos didn't get a hit off Gaylord Perry until Bob Bailey beat out a bunt to open the fifth. With two out, Renko doubled him home.Ron Hunt's double, even invited to spring training.

Rusty Staub's single and an infield out made it 2-0 in the sixth and the Expos kayoed Perry in the seventh, scoring their final two runs on Staub's double.

Ferguson Jenkins, from Chatham, Ont., posted his 10th victory as the Cubs downed the Pirates, with Brock Davis driving in a pair of runs with a triple and single. Willie Stargell's 20th home run accounted for the only run off Jenkins.

Johnny Bench's 15th home run, his first since May 25, broke a tie in the eighth inning and lifted the Reds over the Astros.

Chuck Harrison's biceps have bulges, his bat has bounce .... and his opponents have bruises.

Harrison, who destroyed two minor league teams single-handedly Sunday and Monday before his recall to the American League, came through with another knockout punch as Kansas City Royals beat faltering Washington Senators 5-4 Wednesday night.

"I was just looking for the ball," said the 5-foot-10, 212-pounder who found it and slugged it for a bases-loaded single to score two runs with two out in the ninth inning.

The first baseman tuned up earlier with a two-game demolition job with Omaha in the American Association. He tore into minor league pitching for five home runs and 15 runs batted in to pace a 17-15 triumph over Denver Sunday and an 8-4 success over Wichita Monday night.

The victory was the Royal's eighth in nine games while the Senators dropped their sixth straight and 27th in 34.

Cleveland Indians topped Chicago White Sox 3-1, Baltimore Orioles nipped Minnesota Twins 2-1 in 10 innings, Detroit Tigers trimmed Milwaukee Brewers 3-0, Oakland Athletics smacked Boston Red Sox 6-1 and California Angels spilled New York Yankees 4-3 in the other league games.

Harrison, a baseball vagabond who played several years with the Houston Astors' organization before moving to Kansas City, didn't figure in their plans this year and, in fact, wasn't

Argo Pivots Work Overtime

TORONTO (CP) — Two of the most controversial quarterbacks in the game this year are taking a crash course in Canadian football, working from 9 a.m. until about 8 o'clock at night.

Greg Barton and Joe Theismann are working to learn an unfamiliar style of play before Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League go into training camp in fewer than two weeks.

"They say it takes a year for a quarterback to make the adjustment from college ball to pro ball," coach Leo Cahill said Wednesday.

"But Greg and Joe are not merely going into a new system. To compound that, they have to adjust to a new style of game with an extra player, different defence with the other side lining up a yard off the ball, a different field, wider and longer and men in motion in the backfield.

"When they get to the point where they are reacting to all these things instead of thinking about them, they're on their way."

So far, Barton and Theismann agree that most of the differences between Canadian and United States Football seems to favor the offence.

The three-downs system takes some getting used to, also.

"That eliminates some of the screens and draws on second down, but we won't get a chance to test that until we get into game situations on a regular field," Theismann said.

"But it is strange at times when you take a quick look and at first it seems like you've got too many men."

Woman Ump Out

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Organized baseball has won a skirmish in its battle against a New York City woman who wants to become the first female umpire.

The Court of Appeals, New York's highest court, granted the New York-Penn League, a class A minor league circuit, and the National Association of Baseball Leagues a temporary stay against rule changes, ordered by the State Human Rights Commission, pending final determination of an appeal.

The Rights Commission had ordered the New York-Penn League to change physical and other requirements for umpires. The regulations, according to the commission, discriminated against women.

The case was brought by Mrs. Bernice Gera of Jackson Heights, Queens. Mrs. Gera has been trying for several years to become an umpire.

The appeal is scheduled to be heard entirely in September.

NHL Governors Keeping Peace

MONTREAL (CP) — Peace appeared to be the over-riding theme today as the annual meeting of the National Hockey League moved into its final day.

A pair of potentially volatile issues were settled amicably Wednesday when the owner-player's council reached mutual agreement on several points under dispute, and appeals by two clubs against fines imposed by president Clarence Campbell were terminated without any formal hearing.

TERRY SAWCHUK

Four former hockey greats were inducted to the Hockey Hall of Fame in the player category-while a still-active executive was selected in the builder group.

Players selected to the Hall were: the late Terry Sawchuk, who died last year after an outstanding 20-year goaltending career; the late Harvey (Busher) Jackson, an all-star left winger with Toronto Maple Leafs; Ralph (Cooney) Weiland, a former star centre with Boston Bruins, and the late Dr. Gordon Roberts, a centre left winger with the old Ottawa Senators.

Arthur M. Wirtz, chairman of the board of Chicago Black Hawks, was selected in the builder category.

Both Carles Mulcahy, the Boston lawyer who represents the owners, and Alan Eagleson of Toronto—the executive director of the NHL Players' Association —expressed satisfaction with progress the two groups had made.

One of the most aggravating subjects—contract signing before training camp—was resolved when it was agreed by both sides that protected players and players who have played more than 20 games in the preceding NHL season, must be signed to a contract before reporting to training camp and will not be allowed in training camp until signed.

Clubs now must submit contracts to the players by Aug. 9 of each year and they must be signed by Aug. 20 or both sides must submit to arbitration.

Eagleson said that he and Campbell will attend to appoint an independent arbitrator by July 10 to settle contract disputes that may arise later. Previously Campbell acted as the middle man in such disputes.

Eagleson said another forward step had been taken when the owners agreed that the protected players will attend a training camp of 28-day duration this fall, while rookies will go through the regular 30-day training period.

It was agreed that the period of training will not exceed 23 days for the 1972-73 and 1973-74 seasons.

The owners also agreed to pay all protected players a flat $600 for the camps this fall in lieu of payment for exhibition games and training camp allowances. Payments for the lesser time for the next two years will be agreed on at a later date.

Campbell said that the case of Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins appealing fines levied by the president against them for separate bench-clearing incidents by the players of both teams "have been terminated without any formal hearing."

The governors agreed to more severe penalties against the players who indulge in these infractions, authorizing game misconduct penalties against the first identifiable player who jumps off the bench, and any followers who draw any type of penalty after reaching the ice. Campbell now is authorized to hit game misconduct offenders with suspensions as well as the automatic $100 fine.

31 Picked in Reverse Draft

MONTREAL (CP)—A total of 31 players were picked by Western and American Hockey League clubs at the reverse draft proceedings Wednesday.

The AHL and WHL teams were permitted to draft NHL-owned players at a cost of $15,000 regardless on which reserve list the players appear.

Salt Lake (WHL)—Jack Taggart, Goaltender Wayne Rutledge, goaltender Ray Reesor, Joe Roberston.

Rochester (AHL)—Ray Cullen.

Seattle

Jack Norris.

Richmond (AHL)—goaltender Don McLeod, Don Salseki, Hank Nowak.

Montreal (AHL)—Yvon Lambert.

Pascale (WHL)—John Gofton.

Providence (AHL)—Will Martin, Brian Perry, Larry McKillop, Alain Caron.

Hershey (AHL—Raymond Fortin, Bob Gryp.

Tidewater (AHL)—goalie Bob Sneddon, Dick Paradise.

Beliveau Moves Upstairs

JEAN BELIVEAU

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean Beliveau, an 18-year veteran of National Hockey League play, announced his retirement Wednesday at an emotion-packed news conference.

"It was a difficult decision to reach," Beliveau told the gathering. "Hockey has been my life since the day my father gave me a pair of skates when I was five years old.

Beliveau, who will be 40 on Aug. 31, will assume duties as vice-president of corporate relations immediately with the Montreal hockey club.

Beliveau is one of four men to score 500 goals in NHL competition. He played a total of 1,215 regular-season games, scoring 507 goals and 712 assists for 1,219 points.

He appeared in 76 games last season, scoring 25 goals—including his 500th career goal—and adding 51 assists.

He was instrumental in leading the Canadiens to a Stanley Cup triumph this spring over Chicago Black Hawks. It was the 10th time Beliveau was a member of a Stanley Cup winning team.

During this year's playoffs, the native of Trois-Rivieres, Que., fired six goals and counted 16 assists, breaking the playoff assist record of 15 set by Stan Mikita of Chicago.

He won the Hart Trophy, as the league's most valuable player twice and won the Art Ross Trophy as league scoring champion in 1965.

Als Swap Collins

MONTREAL (CP) — Charles Collins, Montreal Alouettes linebacker, has been traded to Saskatchewan Roughriders for Chuck Kyle, the Eastern Football Conference Alouettes said Wednesday. Collins was named to the eastern all-star team this year and Red O'Quinn, Alouettes general manager, called him a "spectacular ball player."

St. Kitts' Boss Up on Carpet

MONTREAL (CP) — Fred Muller, owner of St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A Series, will appear before the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association when it meets here Monday.

Muller faces disciplinary action for refusing to permit his team to play a sixth game in the Eastern Canada Junior A final at Quebec City in mid-May against the hometown Remparts.

It was the first time in the 59-year history of the CAHA that a team withdrew from a playoff series.

Muller said both he and coach Frank Milne had been agreeable to continuing the series at Quebec, but called a halt to it after the parents of several players refused to let them travel back there following a disturbance in the fourth game of the best-of-seven series.

Crop Prospects Improve

OTTAWA (CP) — Rains throughout the Prairie provinces last weekend greatly improved both moisture conditions and the prospects for a healthy crop, Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Wednesday.

In the south of the 1971 series of telegraphic reports on crop conditions across Canada, DBS and Prairie farmers have spent of their crops in the ground and that the recent rains should spur crop growth.

Rain also eased dry soil conditions during the final week of May in most areas of Ontario. Cool, dry weather covered most regions until the final week of the month, allowing seeding to progress quickly.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Criminals Just Act Out Fantasies of Citizenry

Thoughts at Large:

When wrong-doers abound, it is always with the tacit consent of the public; crimes are merely acting out the private fantasies and frustrations of the citizenry, and could not flourish if they did not reflect in some way the unconscious wishes of the populace at large.

* * *

Mankind is continually betrayed, because the many seek pleasure, and the few seek power by offering tawdry pleasures in return for being unmolested in the exercise of power.

* * *

Men may see more clearly than women, but not as deeply: men are better at seeing how to get from where they are to where they want to be, but defective in comprehending what it will be like when they get there.

* * *

* * *

Love affairs end in "friendship" only where neither of the parties was very much in love, but where each was using the other as a substitute for the real thing.

* * *

When someone says to us, "You're entitled to your opinion," we get the uneasy feeling that we wouldn't be if he had his way about it.

* * *

Concern over the moral fibre of the nation is no new thing; before the United States was a decade old, Thomas Jefferson wrote, "I tremble for my country when I reflect that God is just."

* * *

It is not in "dogma" that danger lies, but in the set of mind that makes certainty more appealing than doubt.

* * *

If we were all nudists together, people would start decorating their navels in order to achieve a sense of social superiority.

* * *

Speaking of clothes, the basic and ineradicable conflict in women's dress was best expressed by Ogden Nash, when he wrote: "A woman wants to be dressed exactly like everybody else, but she gets pretty upset if she sees anybody else dressed exactly like her."

* * *

The reason that hatred is an inferior emotion to love is not merely moral, but psychological — in that hatred aims at annihilating the object, and thus extinguishes its own reason for being, whereas love aims at augmenting the object, and thus perpetuates its reason for being.

Only Toronto Provides Aid to Slow Learners

TORONTO (CP) — Parents of children with learning disabilities are being advised to give up their jobs and move to Toronto where the child can attend special classes, an Ontario legislature committee was told Wednesday.

The alternatives are to let the child suffer through regular classes where he may be disciplined for his hyperactivity or to place him in an expensive private school, says a brief presented to the standing committee on human resources by the Ontario Association for Children with Learning Disabilities.

The association says private schools in Canada and the United States charge annual fees of from $3,500 to $10,000 if the child lives in, or from $1,800 to $3,000 for day school.

The association estimates there are 300,000 such children in Ontario.

Such children are disorganize, easily frustrated and have a short attention span.

Some have trouble perceiving what they see, others what they hear. some have difficulty transferring what they know into movements such as writing, catching a ball or speaking.

"The establishment in 1908 of four private schools for learning disabilities is a reflection of the impoverished educational facilities in the public school system in Ontario for our children," the brief says.

"We know of families who have sold their property and are sacrificing the future of other children in the family to pay the large fees involved in private schools because they do not have an appropriate service in their local school area."

The brief says some remedial programs, such as those offered by the Toronto board of education, claim a success rate of 85 per cent.

It says an abnormally high percentage of children in training schools suffer from learning disabilities and recommended that the department of correctional services provide remedial programs.

Government Conference Said Packed

NDP Plans Nationalism Parley

TORONTO (CP) — A counter-conference, aimed at providing a balance to the provincial government's conference on economic nationalism, will be held here by the NDP.

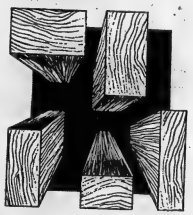
Ontario NDP leader Stephen Lewis told a news conference Wednesday that his party's conference will be held June 23-25. The government conference will be June 22-25.

Mr. Lewis said Premier William Davis has collected all speakers "a glittering array of continentalists—a long list of apologists for the Americanization of Canada."

The NDP conference will feature Eric Kierans, who recently quit the Trudeau cabinet over economic issues, and Melville Watkins, leader of the NDP's nationalistic Waffle movement, and James Laxer, who ran second to David Lewis in the federal NDP leadership campaign.

Mr. Lewis said that "virtually every advocate who holds the view that Canada's economic and cultural autonomy has been seriously eroded was deliberately excluded" from the government conference.

Most of the NDP conference will be held at night at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education so that the general public will have an opportunity to attend and participate, Mr. Lewis said.



The NDP apparently has the support of Canadian Professor Stephen Hymer of the New School of Social Research in New York, who was to have participated in the government conference.

Mr. Lewis released a telegram from Prof. Hymer to the premier. In it, Prof. Hymer said that after reading the list of speakers he "got the distinct impression that mine would be a token presence which would lend legitimacy to a very one-sided presentation."

"It did not seem to me that a conference which would so lead-quickly present the nationalist point of view could in fact offer the public greater knowledge on the issue of nationalism."

Stanfield Is Critical Of Secrecy on Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Wednesday that government secrecy surrounding next week's federal-provincial constitutional conference makes one wonder what Parliament is for.

He made the comment in the Commons after the government again refused to disclose anything about the meeting here earlier this week of federal and provincial welfare ministers.

The discussions were confidential, acting Prime Minister Allan MacEachen said when Mr. Stanfield asked whether Ottawa has offered to pay half the cost of provincial social security programs.

Mr. MacEachen did say that the federal white paper on income security, made public in December, was the main basis for the welfare discussions with the provinces.

Mr. Stanfield asked whether the government's position of December is still its position or whether it is just playing games with Parliament.

Mr. MacEachen said he could disclose nothing about confidential discussions.

The government rejected debate on a motion by Melvin McQuaid (PC—Cardigan) that the Commons constitutions committee attend the Victoria conference. Opposition MPs have already been barred from the closed meetings next Monday to Wednesday.

Mr. McQuaid said that after 100 meetings in 40 cities the committee should be entitled to give its views to the conference.

Mr. MacEachen told Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) that the federal authority will not bargain away its jurisdiction to set national welfare standards.

TURNPIKE STANDARD construction is similar to that employed for original equipment on new cars during the years when these sizes were most popular. However, this stronger Dupont Nylon instead of rayon cord makes today's Turnpike Standard superior. (Owner assumes guarantee risk, saves insurance cost.)

MacBeth Proves Popular at Stratford

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — The familiar again proved the more popular at the Stratford Festival Wednesday night with a near-capacity audience turning out for the opening of Shakespeare's the Bard's Macbeth.

It was a similar scene to that of Monday night when the festival's Thrust stage made its debut with a production of the Shakespearean comedy Much Ado About Nothing.

Again there was the pre-show atmosphere of expectancy and excitement as onlookers gathered outside the Festival Theatre to watch the arrival of the social elite, the critics and entertainment personalities that are traditional to establishment theatre opening nights.

Style of dress of first-nighters including early-arriving from Black tie formats to an underskirt-and-hip-huggers combination among the men, and floor-length gowns to hot pants among the women.

An ex-critic welcome to the festival on the lawns outside the theatre came from members of the Perth County Conspiracy Commune handing out leaflets advertising their downtown coffee house, and a handful of the of shirtless-headed Hare Krishna sect.

The opening night atmosphere and the capacity audience had been missing from the Tuesday night production of John Webster's The Duchess of Malfi, a little-known work by a less familiar late contemporary of Shakespeare.

But if the play's familiarity is the main drawing power of Macbeth, this season's audiences will find little familiar in the treatment given the play by director Peter Gill.

Mr. Gill emphasizes the bloodiness of the power-quest use of the bright-red stageequivalent for blood, lashing having one actor spew it out of his mouth as he dies. And at the play's conclusion he has a non-Shakespearean mob fall upon the body of the slain Macbeth and then face the audience with freshly-reddened mouths as Macbeth's severed head is raised in their midst.

Macbeth, as played by English actor Ian Hogg, making his first appearance at Stratford, is more a madman than a victim of tragic destiny.

Pat Galloway, who played one of the witches, the only other time the festival has staged Macbeth — in 1962 — as Lady Macbeth gives a performance matching in dramatic impact that of the previous night as the duchess.

Views by other critics:

Dalbarry Campeau, Toronto Telegram—"This Macbeth is a far more unhappy production than even the director ever intended. . . It does seem as if Macbeth is trying too hard to be tricky - in its production and not concentrating enough on their quality."

Urjo Kareda, Toronto Star—"This production denies the thirst shred of pathos or glory and this is almost a wilfully incomplete, partial reading of the play. . . . Macbeth is suspect when Peter Gill's Macbeth is too controversial and experimental for the plushness of the Stratford Festival, with its affection for spectacle and star performers."

Zelda Heller, Montreal Star—"Here is a far away, stylized image of Macbeth . . . Greek togs and humor, murder plots and despairing philosophy, even resolution and deep emotion, witchcraft and medicine, all come forth smoothly, reasonably, with very little variation."

Herbert Whittaker, Toronto Globe and Mail—"Gill's approach reduces Lady Macbeth from her accustomed rank of high tragedy queen to become an uneasy Scottish housewife, a tior's attempt to put his own pawn rather than a prime motivator in her husband's rise to power."

Jacob Siskind, Montreal Gazette—"Peter Gill has used stage boldly, has breathed new life into the stage here at Stratford. . . . Pat Galloway's . . . is one of the most intelligent and most touching Lady Macbeths I have ever seen."

William Glavner, The Associated Press—"A young director's attempt to put his own stamp on the classic generates ludicrous eccentricity. . . . The company's unbalanced quality, more noticeable this season than previously, contributes to the unfortunate result."

Play About Arctic Hazards Staged at Toronto Theatre

TORONTO (CP) — Esker Mike And His Wife Agiluk, a Canadian play about human survival in the Northwest Territories, had its world premiere at Toronto's Factory Theatre Lab Wednesday night, about four years after it was written.

For playwright Hershel Hardin, a native of Vegreville, Alta., now living in Vancouver, it marked the first time any of his plays have been produced on stage although Esker Mike was published in a United States magazine two years ago.

Mr. Hardin, 34-year-old father of two, said in an interview prior to the play's opening that Canadian playwrights have difficulty getting their plays produced because the public has a very defensive backward opinion of Canadian theatre."

Mr. Hardin, a philosophy graduate of Queens University, Kingston, who earns his living as a freelance journalist and broadcaster, has been writing plays for about 10 years.

Esker Mike, Mr. Hardin turns to a theme of survival among the Eskimo people of the Canadian North. He notes that he is "a playwright, not an anthropologist" and his play is not intended to reflect the Eskimo way of life today.

"Plays spring out of the mind of playwrights, not from studies," said Mr. Hardin. However, he and the director recently spent a week in Akiavik, where the play is set, researching material for the production. Their visit to the Northwest Territories community was financed by grants from the Canada Council and the cultural exchange program of the Ontario department of education.

The play is about an out-of-work trapper, Esker Mike, and Agiluk, an Eskimo woman who has borne him eight children out of wedlock but refuses to bear him any more, even though he marries her, until he begins earning a living.

The solution resolved by Agiluk when she bears another child fathered by Esker Mike's partner is a tragic reflection of the role of women in general who are forced to bear children in a society that cannot support them.

Mr. Hardin said the play "began in my head as a study of white people alone, but the decline of the muskrat trapping culture of the Eskimos in the Mackenzie River delta in the early 1950's provided a very good background for the kind of conflict I had in mind."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 11

Your birthday today: Now is the time to decide what you really want to do in your chosen vocation. Set or reset goals in accord with present conditions. Unprofitable or nonproductive action is forced out of your reach. Changing circumstances offer occasional distraction but, in general, present more openings for rearranging your life to suit yourself.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Let others close out the workweek — and take the onus for errors later. Forcing issues, insisting on your own way about everything, only gets you into trouble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Give thought to your personal welfare — have a health check up, review your resources to see where added protection could be achieved. Trivial discrepancies are not to be casually disregarded.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Old plans are revived, improved, people and ideas long neglected come back alive and flourishing. Stay busy with changes, exchanges and endless discussions.

CANCER (June 21 — July 23): Temptation is to overdo, perhaps in response to your friends and their provocative comment. Find your own inner standards and abide by them rather than any guides from outside.

LEO (July 22 — Aug. 22): Both gold and glory are regained in following friends' advice. Be ahead quietly, being neither greedy nor grandiose.

VIRGO (Augt 23 — Sept. 22): Look after your possessions and small belongings, particularly anything which you are holding for anybody else.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Sentiment colors much of your motivation — take care that doing things for old-time's sake, or passing romantic appeal does not lead you too far off base.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): What you do shouts louder than anything you say. If you can be consistent and not have to pull any punches, so much the better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Scrutize money matters — level up all the accounts, going and coming, where ever possible. There's nothing like a budget that has self-discipline needed to get there.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your more coherent view of what might be feasible leads you to be critical with others — even less efficiency may then result.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Circumstances arise which defy ready application of your theory and philosophy — have the courage to accept an exception; re-examine what you think you know.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Existing connections, relations are subject to revision. Be sure you are not abandoning a steady, moderate certainty for a wild promise.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Only an unfeeling, unimaginative, completely indifferent person approaches any operation without anxiety. Whether it's the child who's told he has to have his tonsils and adenoids removed, or the elderly patient who faces a hip operation after a fracture — whatever the age, there is the fear of anesthesia, operation and afterpain. But there are psychological hurts, too. For example:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a problem you may think silly but it is very real to me. I had to have four operations and this one makes five. They took out tubes, womb and one and one-half ovaries.

"Of course, you know I can't have children now. But I have been lucky. Before this operation was necessary- I gave birth to four beautiful children. Now that they are growing up, I feel useless; I am only 25.

My problem is that my husband thinks I am not a whole woman now. He told me so. The word "useless" is a mild one, nevertheless I feel dead and empty inside.

I know his words are something I'll never forget. I'll never forgive him for the hurt he has caused me by saying I'm no longer a "whole woman". I love him and could forgive him for anything except this.

Here is my silly question: Is there any way to have an operation to somehow replace these organs by plastic surgery so I can be whole again and be able to carry another child? I'd do anything to be whole again. — Mrs. X.

* * *

COMMENT: Now, at least, plastic surgery cannot do the job of giving you a new uterus, tubes and ovaries. Considering what the new heart surgery has accomplished, in medicine it's no longer proper to say anything is "impossible." Nevertheless, better forget the hope that surgery may make you "whole again."

Having already borne four children, how much more proof do you need to convince you of your womanhood? Even women who have never had children aren't necessarily "useless".

Undoubtedly you are suffering the effects of postoperative depression which some women undergo after hysterectomy. And most likely it will pass in time.

As for your husband I don't know what will knock some sense into him — except, perhaps, having to suffer the psychological after effects of a prostatectomy some day. Then he'll know better than to go labelling a wife "useless" because she has had her uterus removed.

* * *

Dear Dr. Seincrohn: I know your column isn't for the lovelorn, but I think I need your advice. I will not go into detail about how much in love my boy friend and I are.

The problem is that we want to get married, but I keep on hesitating because of anxiety about our unborn children. My boy friend has been in a mental hospital with a nervous breakdown. It was his second in four years.

My parents object to him because of that. I can understand their fears because I have a sister who suffered a nervous breakdown, too. She has been in and out of mental hospitals. I also have an aunt on my father's side who had mental breakdowns.

My own doctor has advised me against marrying my sweetheart. He says if I do, the chances are that our children will be mentally unbalanced. Is there any hope for us?

COMMENT: I never say "do" or "don't" get married. The decision should rest with you — after you know the facts. You, yourself, have indicated that you two have "two strikes" against you already. My advice (before you take another swing and "strike out") is that you consult with a geneticist for advice. Your doctor will look up someone you can consult.

Quebec Producers Protest

Eggs and Hens Dumped on Legislature Lawn

QUEBEC (CP) — Eggs and live hens were dumped on the lawn surrounding the legislature building Wednesday as about 100 egg producers displayed their opposition to establishment of a government-operated agriculture marketing board.

The demonstrators carried placards denouncing the board —PEDCO—as a "communist organization" and criticizing Agriculture Minister Norman Toupin for "having committed treason."

Mr. Toupin later agreed to meet a delegation of the egg producers, while four Liberal members of the national assembly acted as embassies carrying tidbits of information from the meeting to the impatient crowd outside.

Among the demonstrators was Albert Allain, president of the Catholic Farmers' Union, who took the occasion to rap feed and grain suppliers.

The suppliers, he said, were overly concerned with luring as many farmers as possible into their system of the supplying and buying back of produce.

It had resulted in at least 80 per cent of Quebec's chicken producers being controlled by the major suppliers.

Presbyterians Reject Tax Intervention

TORONTO (CP) — The Presbyterian General Assembly turned down Wednesday a resolution urging provincial governments to seek a more equitable way of aiding farmers for education purposes.

The resolution was referred back to the board of evangelism and social action after a lay member Prof. Gordon Hodgson of the University of Calgary, said he did not approve of the church taking a stan on behalf of one segment of society.

Prof. Hodgson said he opposed the resolution, although he was raised on a farm.

The board of evangelism and social action reported membership in the Presbyterian Church in Canada declined to 198,384 in 1970 from a peak of 207,566 in 1964. Presbyterian Sunday school membership dropped to 1960.

Following the report, the assembly decided congregations should be encouraged to have special concern for youth and young adults and approved greater attention to religious broadcasts on radio and TV.

Several executive changes were announced during Wednesday's meeting.

Rev. E. A. Thomson was appointed principal clerk and Rev. L. H. Fowler, and Rev. Donald C. MacDonald were appointed deputy clerks.

Controls Force up Prices

TORONTO (CP) — Sam Weisberg, president of Metropolitan Meat Packers of Toronto said Wednesday he has been forced to illegally import Quebec-produced chickens because large Ontario processors have raised their prices.

The Ontario Broiler Chicken Producers Marketing Board prohibits importation of chickens without a board permit, and it is issuing permits only for eastern Ontario.

A Sunnybrook Food Markets Ltd. store in Toronto, of which Mr. Welsberg is a director, was selling fresh broiler chickens Wednesday at 39 cents a pound or about 16 cents less than the current Ontario price.

Canada Department of Agriculture grade tags on the chickens showed they had been processed by Avico (70) Ltd. of Iberville, Que.

Mr. Weisberg said he is not the only merchant selling Quebec chickens. He said he was outbid for a shipment of Quebec chickens by a large grocery chain.

Firm Plans to Use Whey as Fertilizer

Cheese Plants' Problem Solved

By Ian Robertson
Staff Reporter

Nuclarus Ltd. of Toronto plans to soak 500 Belleville-area acres with whey.

This will :

— Provide premium grazing for beef cattle.

— Provide lawn sod.

— Produce eels.

Nuclarus engineers yesterday afternoon announced they hope to establish an environmental waste control site for whey; a liquid cheese by-product, on an unidentified optioned 500-acre site within 15 miles of the city.

The company has already spent in the neighborhood of $100,000 for research and development and when it gets the go-ahead to start operations, this price tag will jump to a quarter of a million dollars.

This first stage will include the hiring of a minimum of six local people, with an eventual staff numbering two dozen, to handle the spraying of whey wastes onto partitioned acreage at the site. Leased tank trucks will carry bulk whey from cheese factories in the Quinte area.

At one time, farmers delivered milk to the factories and received whey when their milk cans were returned. This liquid was then fed to hogs.

However, the health department clamped down on this practice, claiming it unsanitary when whey was returned in milk cans. The factory now is then forced to dump the by-product in convenient fields, ponds and water courses.

Disposal of the daily total of 50,000 gallons of whey did not meet with stringent pollution controls laid down by the Ontario Water Resources Commission and the factories recently were given the option of cleaning up or facing the consequences of the pollution laws.

Fred Bennis, Belleville Industrial Commissioner, said a cheese factory representatives met with representatives of the OWRC at city hall on May 18.

"The OWRC chap was quick to point out that legislation exists and he told them they'll enforce it to the intensity . . . a fine or closure or both," the commissioner told The Intelligencer.

David L. Harcourt, eastern division director of Nuclarus, in a press interview in Industrial Commission offices here, said "if the cheese factories are forced to close because of existing legislation, the whole basic community suffers."

Under the company's plans, the land will be saturated by a spraying process. "providing nutrients for additional growth in vegetation."

Mr. Harcourt assured members of the press that absolutely no environmental contamination would result from their seven process . . . rather, the spray treatments will create additional enriched soil over the years.

"In the past," explained Mr. Harcourt, "too much whey went on too little, ground, but like the cow manure process, our land will be sufficiently the soil's bacteria will break down the whey."

This first phase would provide excellent grazing ground for beef cattle, to be brought in by Nuclarus. It could eventually lead to year-round cultivation of market gardens and production of lawn sod. The plans used for winter storage of whey could become "breeding ponds for edible eels."

If this first stage proves generally acceptable, a second $1½-million phase would treat the whey directly with a drying process which would produce pure water and a marketable byproduct.

Backhoe Digs Up the Past

The original cornerstone of Belleville General Hospital came to light yesterday morning, as backhoes clawed at the old structure, now coming down to make room for a new administration wing. Mrs. A. E. Purdy, present custodian of the Women's Christian Association, the organization that built the first hospital in 1884, and assistant hospital administrator John Kunetsky, examine the contents of old preserving sealer, cemented into the stone by the executive Sept. 24, 1884. # Locked Wheel Blamed For Train Derailment

SALEM, Ill. (AP) — Officials of the Illinois Central Railroad said today a locked wheel probably caused by an electrical failure—led to the flaming derailment of the City of New Orleans passenger train Thursday. Eleven persons died in the wreckage and 94 others were injured, many critically.

The City of New Orleans, with four locomotives and 14 cars, hurtled off the tracks two miles north of Salem at a speed of 90 miles an hour, officials said.

There were 224 persons aboard.

Investigators from the National Rail Safety Board, the National Transportation Safety Board and the Illinois Commerce Commission came to the scene.

Witnesses said 1,200 feet of track were twisted and torn by the crash.

"God: it was horrible," one survivor said. "I saw a woman pinned under the rails and she had to be cut free. She later died."

Melvin Maxey, 63, a farmer who lives a mile from the accident scene, said: "People were climbing out of the cars and lying on the rails . . . everybody was screaming."

"The engine was on fire and flames were jumping 15 feet in the air," Maxey said.

Doctors and nurses fought to save the lives of the injured, many of them critically, in the worst rail accident in the United States since 1962.

One rail was driven right through one of the cars, another was bent like a bow and others were twisted into loops and giant hooks.

The cries of the injured mingled with the hiss of steam, as hundreds of rescuers set to work to free the men, women and children trapped beneath the wreckage.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A southeasterly flow will bring much warmer moist air into southern Ontario beginning today and continuing through the weekend. Skies will remain mostly sunny with temperatures rising into the 70s today and up into the low 80s by Saturday. Lows will remain in the 50s. A disturbance in the Dakotas has pushed cloud and rain with a few thunderstorms into northwestern Ontario and is expected to continue northeastward today and Saturday.

Cholera Perils Growing

CALCUTTA (Reuter) — Fears that the killer cholera among East Pakistani refugees could spread through this country of 550 million people heightened today as the first monsoon showers drenched the eastern coastal areas.

The rain during the last couple of days in West Bengal state —which has borne the brunt of the vast refugee influx — has been comparatively light, but even an hour-long shower is enough to turn refugee camps, situated on low lying, swampy land, into virtual lakes.

Already the camps are overcrowded and sanitation is extremely primitive, if not non-existent, and once the monsoon breaks in earnest the situation could become desperate.

The Indian government moved to remedy the situation. In New Delhi, it announced that it proposes to move 2.5 million of the refugees from West Bengal to the remote territory of Triura.

A formal accord by the end of the year—it is hoped by fall—after technical experts from both countries work out the details.

Russell E. Train, chairman of the U.S. Council of Environmental Quality, described the agreement as an "important precedent for the rest of the world." He said similar agreements could be appropriate in the Mediterranean and Baltic Seas.

Sharp called the accord a "historic moment . . . in the worldwide challenge presented by pollution."

The bases of the agreement were an IJC report in January, which recommended urgent clean-up measures for Lakes Erie and Ontario, and some supplementary recommendations by a joint Canada-U.S. working group which studied the problem during the last year.

Sharp told Thursday's meeting: "Two of the richest societies on earth, joint custodians of the Great Lakes, the greatest store of fresh water on the planet, are knowingly and wantonly poisoning this unique resource and, by extension, each other.

"We cannot continue to live with this situation."

The IJC has put the price tag for restoring the lower lakes and the international section of the St. Lawrence River at $211 million for Canada and $1.4 billion for the U.S.

Sharp said Canada's bill under the agreement will be "in the hundreds of millions." William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, estimated U.S. costs at $2 billion.

Both countries saw the accord as a precedent in their own relations as well. A joint communique issued after the meeting predicted similar agreements in the future on "other common environmental problems, for example, air pollution."

Ontario's Cost High

WASHINGTON (CP) — George Kerr, energy and resources minister, said Thursday it may cost Ontario between $30 million and $50 million in the next four years to help clean up the Great Lakes, and the province will need federal help.

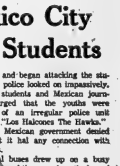
The Ontario minister said that to meet the cost of programs outlined by the working group set up by the International Joint Commission, Ontario might have to spend "from $30 million to $50 million in the next four years."

The province "will need a great deal of help from outside," he said, adding that he was referring to "substantial federal financial support".

Canada and U.S. Agree on Program to Clean Up Great Lakes

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada and the United States agreed Thursday on a precedent-setting plan to salvage the world's largest body of fresh water.

In what External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp of Canada called a "historic moment," the two nations approved a multi-billion-dollar program to clean up pollution in the Great Lakes "and protect them in the future."



"Our purpose is that the water should be good enough for any kind of fish to live in," said Jack Davis, Canadian fisheries and forestry minister.

A major facet of the plan is an expanded role for the International Joint Commission, a joint Canadian-U.S. board set up to deal with problems between the two countries.

The IJC will be given greater responsibility in setting water-quality standards in the lower Great Lakes and ensuring that each nation complies. As well, it will be permitted to extend its operations into Lakes Huron and Superior.

The program also calls for the creation of a Joint Response Centre and a Joint Response Team. A commander and a deputy commander, selected alternately from the two countries, would be stationed on the scene "for all areas of the Great Lakes and boundary waters."

The agreement was announced following an all-day meeting at the state department. It will be translated into

'My advice to you is to quit smoking!'

TORONTO (CP) — A 15-year-old boy whose heart stopped after he was shot Wednesday night in a confrontation with police was in serious condition Thursday in the intensive-care unit of a Toronto hospital. The bullet is still in the body. Doctors will decide later if it must be removed.

Old Fashioned Baker

The art of bread making fascinated youngsters taking part in Pioneer Days project for grade 4 and 5 pupils at Kente School in Ameliasburg yesterday. Angela Baker, 11, of RR 2 Consecon with Gainsborough hat as part of her costume, learned how to use a rolling pin to shape the dough before baking.

Hospital's Origins Unearthed

Workmen found the cornerstone laid on September 15, 1884, to mark the triumph of a group of dedicated women who had set out four years before to provide their community with a hospital.

The chiseled stone had been buried years ago as new construction took place at the hospital. Its location was unknown, but workmen were alerted to keep an eye out for it as they attacked the old walls.

Acting administrator John Kurpetsky and Mrs. A. E. Purdy present custodian of the Women's Christian Association, the organization that built the first hospital, examined the contents yesterday afternoon.

The contents had been sealed in a one quart glass preserving jar, the same kind used today by thrifty housewives "to put up preserves".

It told the story of the zeal of the first group of 178 women who organized themselves as the Women's Christian Association, got a charter in 1880, and set about raising funds for a hospital.

The women already operated an orphanage, called the Home for the Friendless, on the corner of Dundas and South John Streets.

By 1884 they had achieved their second aim, outlined in their charter, to provide a "hospital for the care of those injured by accident or who are sick."

On the great day of the cornerstone laying, schools declared a holiday and Mrs. Nathan Jones, wife of the principal of Albert College and president of the WCA, removed the stone in place. The municipal band provided the music, bringing the event to a close with a rousing accompaniment to the hymn, Rescue the Perishing.

All these details were written out by hand and put in the sealer, along with annual reports of the association, five newspapers — the Daily Witness of Montreal, The Globe and The Toronto Daily Mail, The Daily Intelligencer and The Daily Ontario. The women included seven coins, among them a Bank of Upper Canada token of the 1850s, and a 20 cent piece. Finally they added two vials of "grain of the county" one of wheat and one of barley.

The Women's Christian Association bowed out of active hospital operation when the city and county took over in the 1950s, but it still operates a residence for elderly women on Highland Avenue and sends two representatives to the hospital board. The days when hospitals depended on private charity for support are long gone.

But the contribution of Belleville public spirited women of almost a hundred years ago will not be forgotten. The memorabilia brought to light yesterday is expected to be sealed away again for posterity in the cornerstone of the new addition going up on the site of the first building.

Stephens-Adamson Gets Big Contract

The Belleville plant of Stephens-Adamson Ltd. has been awarded a $750,000 conveyor-for the construction of conveyor systems to be used in connection with the new 552-million Canada Cement Lafarge Ltd. plant to be erected at Bath.

The contract is for two travelling stackers and two bucket wheel reclaimers.

Plant manager V. L. Lewis said the travelling stackers would be used to stockpile limestone and silica raw materials. The bucket wheel reclaimers will be used to reclaim the stockpiled materials for use in the plant process.

Mr. Lewis said delivery date for the four pieces of equipment was for 1972.

Construction of the new cement plant at Bath will begin in August of this year and it is expected to go into operation in September of 1973.

Man Injured

TRENTON (Staff) — A Smithfield resident, Lionel Lagrave, was admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital, Thursday evening with minor head injuries following a car-motorcycle accident on Highway 33 at Princess Acres.

Police said Mr. Legrave was a passenger on a motorcycle driven by William Ormshaw, 17, R.R. 1 Frankford, which was in collision with a car driven by Brian Armstrong, 228 King Street, Trenton.

Mr. Legrave was reported by hospital officials to be in satisfactory condition.

Past Revisited At Kente School

AMELIASBURG (Special)— Youngsters' interest in antiquity is both genuine and sincere.

An example was demonstrated by the pupils of grades 4 and 5 at Kente school yesterday.

The two classes portrayed pioneer days dressed for the occasion. Classrooms were decorated to accentuate the theme.

The idea stemmed from a trip the classes made to O'Hara Mills in the Moira conservation authority earlier this year. The pupils asked their teachers for more of the same kind of live participation afterwards.

The classes learned about making bread, butter and ice cream the old fashioned way. The food produced was used later to provide a party for the youngsters.

The project was unique because the normal curriculum proceeded with little interference. The teaching of French in grade 5 was designed to fit into the exercise, for instance.

The undertaking was also helpful to classes now collecting recipes and remedies for a book to be produced later on.

Dam Locations To Be Surveyed

MARMORA (Special) — The Crowe River Conservation Authority has made arrangements for a survey to be done along Beaver Creek as far up stream as Limerick Lake to determine the best location for a dam site.

Former township reeve Irvin McCoy suggested to Marmora township council that the original sites of the Nobes and Lafferty dams would be the best possibilities for dams and water storage areas.

Reeve John Wilkes said it was the duty of the authority that engineering fees for such small dams would exceed the cost of the structures and still would not hold back enough water to make the projects worthwhile.

Council discussed the best way of using the $96 which would be available to the township under the provincial - municipal Employment Incentive Program.

Daniel Bateman appealed to council on behalf of 12 residents in the Marble Point area for year-round garbage collection. He complained that unknown persons are leaving garbage bags along the road and asked that signs prohibiting such dumping be posted.

quest and will consider a bylaw to provide penalties for persons convicted of dumping garbage along township roads.

The township has received a cheque for $11,500 as year payment from the Department of Highways on the municipality's road program subsidy.

Council reviewed proposed changes in its insurance coverage, noting that it would cost 25 per cent additional to double the limit. The Conn-ax Insurance Agency recommendation for increased coverage was approved with the exception of suggested coverage on the tax collector.

Notice Re: Noxious Weeds

Notice is hereby given to all persons in possession of land, in accordance with The Weed Act of Ontario, (R.S.O. 1960), Chapter 427, Section 3 and 13, that unless noxious weeds growing on their lands within the Municipality of the City of Belleville are destroyed by the 15th of June, July, and September, as the case may be, as often as it is necessary to prevent ripening of their seeds, the Municipality may enter upon the said lands and have the weeds destroyed, charging the costs against the land in taxes, as set out in the Act.

Also, under Chapter 427, Section 19, the said Act provides that every person who contravenes any of the provisions of this Act or of the regulations, or any order made under this Act, is guilty of an offence and on summary conviction is liable for a first offence of a fine of not more than $25.00 and for each subsequent offence to a fine of not less than $25.00 and not more than $100.00.

Not So Artful Dodgers

When it comes to dodging the...draft, or protesting against it, a fellow needs to keep in mind that old axiom about survival of the fittest. In other words those who are on the side of the draft may be tough, decisive and no-nonsense types. Like Congo President Joseph Mobutu and U.S. Selective Service System director Curtis W. Tarr.

First, the word from Kinhasa, capital of the former Belgian Congo, is that President Mobutu, the former army sergeant who rose to the rank of major-general and then became president, has ordered the closing of Lovanium University and the induction of all its 3,000 students into the army for a period of two years.

Now there is discipline for you. Dictatorship you say . . . well yes, but we are sure a couple of years in the army will do something for the young Africans. Or anyone else they seem to be a militant lot, with Mobutu's decision following a battle on the campus between students and soldiers. A spell in the army should take some such militancy while providing an essential leavening of discipline.

Mobutu could well round the whole thing off by doing a swap — sending the army to university, retaining only a few instructors to train the students. This way the Congo would have the best of both worlds, an educated elite who have been to university and who can also turn to the country's defence if need be.

The scene shifts — to Washington — and the office of the director of the U.S. Selective Service System. Five surly-looking protesters are talking with Mr. Tarr and their plan is to place him under what they termed a citizens' arrest for war crimes. After 45 minutes two young men move in with handcuffs. Mr. Tarr shakes one off as he grabs the official's right wrist and sends the other one sprawling to the carpet as he goes for Tarr's left wrist.

Mr. Tarr, a tall lean man, looked more than a match for the pair. "Listen, we talked it out, I think I listened to you," he said evenly after the protesters backed off and were evicted by federal security people.

It is more and more of a bizarre world that produces this kind of situation. You have to admire this group of protesters though, for their imagination in coming up with such a plan, and for their spunk in trying to clap Mr. Tarr in irons as it were. It was Mr. Tarr however who won the day; he is just not the sort of man to tolerate such an affront.

Where Do They Go

We have heard little of late on the subject of "flying saucers," alias Unidentified Flying Objects. For a while there the sky was filled with this strange phenomenon, causing a whole range of reactions from excitement to alarm, despondency and downright fright, and not only to humans but animals as well.

Evidence cited included everything from sightings to burn marks on grass where UFO's had allegedly landed, to actual conversations with crew members.

The only flaw in the whole ointment however has been the complete lack of really concrete evidence that such things exist. Nobody has ever captured a UFO, nor has any of the strange crew members hung around long enough to be as much as finger-printed by the local constabulary.

Still, the UFO's business has many believers, and the latest to come to our notice is Lindon Astle, a 29-year-old public relations officer for a radio station, in the Laurentians of all places, and founder of the Montreal UFO Study Group.

That Mr. Astle is really an enthusiast may be gauged from the fact that he has never seen a UFO. He believes however there is something of substance in the study. "All we want is the truth." We would all like to know that, especially where those elusive flying saucers are concerned.

Population Growth

Some facts on population: last year's census in the Soviet Union put the country's population at 241,720,134. Of whom 111,369,377 are men and 130,320,757 are women. From this it is clear that wartime losses among the male population still reflect in the population figures today.

Closer to home we learn that more people emigrated to Canada from the United States in the first quarter of this year than came from Britain, which traditionally has been in the lead. There were 4,808 Americans compared with 4,269 Britons.

Norilsk Got Its Start with Forced Labor

The Phenomenon of Russia's Great Arctic City

By JOHN BEST

NORILSK, U.S.S.R. (CP) — Built originally by Stalin era forced labor, this booming city of 130,000 on the arctic tundra symbolizes the advance of Soviet technology as well as puts Stalin changes in the U.S.S.R.'s political environment.

Those who have seen Norilsk sometimes are moved to class it as one of the wonders of the world—a mature mining and industrial centre with all the modern amenities at 69 degrees north latitude.

It is easily the largest city of its size anywhere this far north. In Canada, Yellowknife at the mouth of the McKenzie River sits at a comparable latitude. It has a population of 3,000.

Few Westerners have seen Norilsk, which owes its existence to huge nickel-copper reserves discovered in the 1920s but exploited only since 1940.

Public Works Minister Arthur Laing—then northern affairs minister—spent exactly the same amount of time here during a swing through Siberia six years ago.

I accompanied both the Laing and the Trudeau delegations and was struck by some changes.

For instance, the main source of energy now is natural gas, piped from a field 100 miles away. It was coal.

All but one of the seven coal mines in the area have been closed, and the remaining one is scheduled to shut down by 1973.

The population appears to have grown by about 10,000 and five-storey apartment blocks built on reinforced concrete pylons sunk into the permafrost—are going up at a rapid pace.

However, one thing has not changed. Officials appear as tight-lipped as ever on key economic indicators.

Western calculations place Norilsk output at between 72,000 tons and 150,000 tons annually.

But that was before a major new ore discovery at nearby Talnak came into production. The Talnak ore is said to be of a better grade than the raw material mined here, which runs one-half per cent to one per cent nickel.

In addition to nickel, large quantities of copper and lesser quantities of cobalt are produced. Norilsk ore beds also yield vanadium, cadmium and probably platinum, Western experts say.

Another thing they don't talk about is the labor regime on which Norilsk was founded and evidence of which can be seen in the form of barrack-like buildings—some with bars still on the windows—believed to have once housed prisoners.

Forced labor was used from the start of development, which was preceded by construction of a rail line from Norilsk to Dudinka on the Yenisei River 70 miles west of here.

A British journalist, who in 1937 visited Dudinka, now Norilsk's import export distribution centre, told of finding the place populated by convict-laborers.

Prisoners staged a strike at Norilsk after Stalin's death in 1953, but convict labor has long since ceased, replaced by a system of inducements designed to attract workers voluntarily from other parts of the country.

These include, said Bastyanov, a 300-ruble average monthly wage—at least three times the industrial average for the country as a whole—and two months annual vacation.

For those who can't back the long winter night, there is a resthome on the edge of Norilsk filled with such pleasant things as leafy plants and singing birds.

The city has a huge swimming pool, a hockey arena, a school of music and a well-appointed palace of rest and culture.

The city is laced with water, sewage and gas pipelines, all insulated by wooden slats and all resting on stilts of iron or wood imbedded in the permafrost.

Time was too limited for Trudeau and his party to get a close look at the gas pipeline, though Canadian officials frequently have expressed interest in seeing how the Russians handle pipeline construction on permafrost.

The phenomenon of a city this size continuing to function —though there was still plenty of endless, swirling blizzards and temperatures down to 67 below zero imbues the spirit of Norilsk.

When Trudeau and his wife were here, spring was in the air —though there was still bank of snow on the ground—and daylight already lasted 24 hours.

A heavy spring fever held the people, and no doubt was partly responsible for the almost frenzied welcome the Trudeaus received, easily the most tumultuous of their 10-day tour.

"What you have accomplished here under inhibiting conditions of geography, climate and permafrost is surely one of the modern marvels of the world."

He also got in a plug for arctic environmental preservation, saying this is a subject that Soviet and Canadian scientists should discuss.

But in a brief sidewalk interview he did not appear greatly troubled by what a questioning reporter called the desecration of the landscape caused by Norilsk's open-pit mining operations.

A huge nickel-copper pit stretches about five miles, and is perhaps 1,000 feet across and 700 feet deep.

Large quantities of ore also are mined underground.

On a slow-poke train ride into the city from the airport, the one remaining car passes the open pit about two miles long and half a mile wide—could be seen.

"It's hardly a scratch on the surface of Siberia, in terms of pollution," Trudeau told reporters.

Air pollution takes a further environmental toll. The black smoke pouring from industrial smokestacks seems particularly alien in the pure arctic air.

The growth of Norilsk raises some fundamental questions for Canadians regarding northern development.

If such an ore body were found this far north in Canada, would a similar townsite and industrial complex be constructed? Or would it, may be found to move the ore south for processing in an already-populated area?

On past experience—Ungava iron ore for example—it is perhaps more likely that the raw material would be processed in the south.

Between these two alternatives, a halfway method is reported to have received some attention in Soviet academic and scientific circles.

This would involve rotating workers into a northern region, perhaps for no more than a few weeks or a month at a time.

After their time was up they would return south, to be replaced by another shift of workers.

While perhaps holding some advantages in over-all economic terms, the plan would modify Russia's long-established policy of deliberately stabilizing population centres in the north.

As for Canada, Trudeau has said he sees no great building of cities in the north. He told reporters there still is a lot of the country in less inhospitable climes to be developed.

Trudeau said he didn't believe in creating incentives for Canadians to go north if the country is not going to derive increased social benefits from it.

Confusion in Municipal Government

Ridgetown Whig Standard

The former Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs, Darcy McKeough, recently undertook to tell representatives of local governments in the province what is wrong with their outlook and methods. Now the Provincial Treasurer, Mr. McKeough was speaking to the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves on the quality of municipal leadership. That quality, he said, is discouragingly low and. Very frankly, sometimes the prospects for local leadership do not seem bright."

The province, Mr. McKeough reminded the delegates, has set up a program of regional government, reform of the municipal structure and a review of the assessment process. He has been disappointed by the refusal of many municipalities to embrace inter-municipal or regional planning boards and their tendency to cling to existing boundaries. He also deplored the fact that local officials are reluctant to support needed structural changes in municipal government. He added that there are far too many special bodies within the municipal structure which tend to dilute the strength of the elected councils.

There is a lot of popular resistance to regional and county formations these days. Much of it arises out of the fear of increased taxation - especially for education. But, apart from this, the provincial Government is at fault in many ways — a fact which Mr. McKeough entirely neglected to mention. In planning, for example, the responsibilities of the province are divided among three major departments: Municipal Affairs, the Treasury Department and the Department of Trade and Commerce. In financial control there is comparable confusion, the provincial grant system too often creating a shambles in local fiscal policies and planning. As the Smith Report on Taxation pointed out in 1967, these grants are administered by far too many departments.

Other areas of authority and responsibility have remained cloudy for so long that local representatives are often not sure of their clear responsibilities in decision making. Also, priorities and the precise limits of financial commitment in regional development plans are so undefined that local government often do not know how to proceed.

Regional planning has been imposed on the people of this province with more or less contempt for local views. Local government and its traditions of autonomy and local option cannot be simply shoved aside as the province has shown a disposition to do within the past few years.

The reaction of the assembled mayors and reeves has not been recorded, although they are now recommending a halt to the creation of any more regional governments in Ontario. Mr. McKeough should prepare some suitable explanations for the failings of the provincial Government in these matters before he embarks on another such admonitory lecture to local officials.

The Man Who Silenced Dief With the Rulebook

Cornwall Standard Freeholder

Pierre Deffaire, the Liberal MP for Maisne, Que., . . . is the impatient young man who broke Parliament's long standing though unwritten agreement that prominent members of the House should be allowed to complete their speeches even though they have exceeded the nominal 20 minutes allotted to each speaker on a subject. His target was the Rt. Hon. John Diefenbaker, during debate on the Soviet - Canadian protocol; when Hon. Lucien Lamoreux, speaker of the House, naked if there was the custom any unanimous consent for Mr. Diefenbaker to finish, Mr. De Bane, alone among the MPs present, refused his consent.

That Mr. Diefenbaker is still the unchallenged champion of oratory in the Commons, there is no doubt, and that quite possibly is why Mr. DeBane shut him up with the rulebook. The party Mr. DeBane represents is particularly sensitive to eri ticism. There is undoubtedly suspicion, too, that the move was not entirely Mr. DeBane's own idea, but no one is likely ever to prove or disprove that.

Mr. DeBane, who postured defiantly for the photographers after his performance, may well be just another angry young man who considers anyone over the age of 40 a dinosaur whose opinions aren't worth hearing. He obviously doesn't like Mr. Diefenbaker, which is fair enough; there are people who don't think much of Mr. DeBane's leader, either. And Mr. DeBane, again is patently not concerned with courtesy, which he appears to think is as outmoded as everything else Establishment.

Cigarette Ad Ban Starts Next Year--Smokes Will Be Milder

OTTAWA (CP) — Cigarette advertising will be banned starting next year and Canadian smokers who can't or won't quit will have to puff something milder under federal legislation introduced in Parliament Thursday.

The bill introduced by Health Minister John Munro would require all cigarette packages and vending machines to bear these words:

It would give the cabinet the power to regulate the level of tar, nicotine and other substances in cigarettes. Mr. Munro said the aim would be milder cigarettes in terms of these substances.

All newspaper, radio, television and magazine advertising, as well as billboards, neon signs and shop displays would be prohibited.

Time and Reader's Digest magazines, accepted as Canadian, would fall under the proposed legislation, although other imported magazines would not.

The rules would apply to imported cigarettes as well. Canadian cigarettes for export would be exempt.

Penalties of fines up to $100,000 and five years in jail are provided for in the bill.

Mr. Munro said he foresees little opposition to the legislation and hopes it will be passed during the current session, which ends next fall.

He was confident the federal government has the constitutional right to regulate advertising in print media.

The health industry itself appeared to regard the legislation as inevitable and said Canadians appear to have been sold on the link between smoking and ailments such as lung cancer.

Paul Pare, president of the Canadian Tobacco Manufacturers Council, told a news conference he felt the bill would have wide support.

"We feel six million users will want to continue to use the product but will support the legislation," Mr. Pare said.

He didn't feel the government was exceeding its jurisdiction with the bill. But the industry was surprised at its scope.

The regulatory power over nicotine and tar content meant control of the industry by government.

He said 94 per cent of smokers have resisted efforts to tell them use a milder cigarette. If federal regulations reduced strength of cigarettes, smokers might turn to brands smuggled from the U.S.

The advertising ban wouldn't reduce sales, he said, but would make it difficult to introduce new brands and would maintain the status quo in the market.

It would also wipe out the $25 million the industry spends on advertising and promotion. More of this money might go into sponsorship of sports and other events, as sponsorship didn't appear to be prohibited.

The bill appeared to give the minister "a wider degree of authority than any of us expected possible," Mr. Pare said. Federal inspectors would be able to check stocks and records at any time and seize where a violation was suspected.

An all-party Commons committee two years ago recommended an advertising ban to take place over a four-year period.

Mr. Munro explained why the bill goes farther than the committee recommendation. First of all, the bill had been awaited for two years. Second, eliminating advertising gradually presented as many problems for industry as a complete ban Jan. 1.

He tied the measure to the incidence of lung cancer, which struck 4,700 lives in 1969. An official said 3,300 to 3,500 were tied to smoking.

Heart attacks, emphysema and bronchitis have also been linked to smoking, although Mr. Pare said the industry contends there isn't proof.

The bill drew early support from Barry Mather (NDP—Surrey-White Rock), a long-time opponent of cigarette smoking. He said he hoped for early passage of this "good, tough and far-reaching piece of legislation."

Opposing Camps Quickly Form in Reaction to 'Tough' Legislation

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Reaction to the federal government's proposed "get-tough" legislation against cigarette smoking was divided into two camps, with opponents the most vocal.

On one side, criticizing the legislation announced Thursday "hypocritical," were spokesmen for the tobacco and advertising agencies as well as representatives of the media carrying cigarette advertising.

On the other, praising it, were representatives of various health organizations and provincial health departments.

Paul Pare, chairman of the Canadian Tobacco Manufacturers Council, said the council's "greatest single concern" was that federal control of the tar and nicotine levels in cigarettes would mean "control of the industry."

If government lowered tar and nicotine levels beyond a certain point, smokers would stop smoking. Or they might turn to stronger cigarettes smuggled in from the United States.

F. W. Convery, president and director of account services at F. H. Hayhurst Co. Ltd. of Toronto, the agency for Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd., Toronto, said he "just about had a heart attack" when he firs received news of the bill.

"We operate on a ban on broadcast advertising, but I didn't dream it would go this far."

Mr. Convery said the government may be taking the same kind of approach it did with the white paper on taxation—coming on strong in order to get a good reaction and eventually arriving at a middle ground.

The Outdoor Advertising Association of Canada representing billboard companies said cigarette advertising accounts for 18 per cent of all outdoor advertising. Association President John M. Gould echoed the reaction of other representatives.

"If cigarettes are legal, I don't know why they shouldn't be allowed to market them like anybody else."

The chairman of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board also expressed concern with the legislation.

He said government powers to control levels of tar and nicotine could have "a detrimental effect on our export market."

If the government required by new levels to grow a different variety of tobacco, "we would be unable to accommodate both the domestic and foreign buyers."

Representatives of various health and medical organizations gave unanimous approval to the proposed legislation.

Dr. R. M. Taylor of Toronto, an official of the Canadian Cancer Society, said the bill is "the major step we've been hoping for."

Dr. Harding Le Riche of the University of Toronto, who has done research work for the Ontario Heart Foundation on the link between smoking and heart disease, said he doesn't think the legislation would stop "confirmed smokers from smoking."

"But it should be helpful in stopping young people from taking it up," he said.

Dr. Gerald Evans, medical officer of health in Ontario's Waterloo County, said: "There is no justification in any country or in any of the combunications media for the continued advertisement of tobacco products, especially cigarettes."

The Canadian Medical Association welcomed the legislation as an "encouraging" step.

Spokesmen for newspapers, magazines and one of the two television networks expressed concern about losing advertising revenue.

Last year an estimated $4 million was spent on cigarette advertising in newspapers, $3.4 million on radio, $3.3 million on television, $2.5 million in weekend magazines and newspaper supplements, $2.65 million on billboard, bus and streetcar ads, $850,000 in periodicals and $7.5 million on a variety of promotional devices—direct mail, coupons, premiums, gifts, cash incentives and so on.

Keith Campbell, vice-president of marketing for the CTV television network, said: "I view the legislation as basically hypocritical. If a product is that injurious to health, it shouldn't be sold."

He said cigarette advertising accounts for about four per cent of CTV's total advertising.

A CBC spokesman said the corporation has observed a self-imposed ban on cigarette advertising on its TV and radio outlets since 1963.

James L. Cooper, president and publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, said it is "highly dangerous for the government to start legislating advertising on moral grounds."

"You might as well ban advertising of cars because they kill people," he said.

Ross Munro, publisher of the Edmonton Journal, said the legislation would be a serious financial blow to many papers.

R. W. Southam, publisher of the Ottawa Citizen, said the "financial implications are horrifying."

Norman Smith, editor of the Ottawa Journal, said: "We're not crying about lost newspaper revenue but we are concerned about the principle of governments deciding what may be advertised and what may not."

Frank Swanson, publisher of the Calgary Herald, said in a prepared statement that the government's decision would do nothing to change the smoking habits of Canadians.

William Thomson, executive vice-president of the Regina Leader-Post, said if cigarette manufacturers are a legitimate business then they have the right to advertise.

Michael Walker, general manager of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, said in Toronto that weekly newspapers already feeling a profit squeeze because of higher postal rates and material and labor costs, would be hard hit by the ban.

John Crosbie, president of the Magazine Advertising Bureau of Canada, said he deplores any governmental restriction of free enterprise.

Provincial health departments welcomed the government's action but Manitoba Health Minister Rene Toupin was sceptical about how quickly the legislation would be implemented.

He said many bills get bogged down in the Commons for years. Many members of Parliament and cabinet ministers are cigarette smokers and some would not likely be in a hurry to have the law passed, he said.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said legislation passed at the last session of the British Columbia legislature, banning all forms of cigarette and liquor advertising, will take effect Sept. 1 as scheduled.

He said the federal ban "is long overdue" and "again shows that the legislature of B.C. is far in wisdom, is once again the leader in Canada."

Why to Go on Land

Mr. Bainborough explained why consists of approximately 94 per cent water, the remainder made up of protein and sugar. A market for the dried product as food additives and cattle feed exists and Nuclarus has been in contact with local manufacturers who will readily accept the bulk product.

The Quinte area provided an ideal location for this pioneer project, said the engineers.

Making use of agricultural, municipal and OWRC reports, the company selected this region because of soil. "This is very important to us," Mr. Harcourt explained.

Because of the saturation required, proper depth of soil is necessary, and even rotation of land being sprayed.

The year-round operation will operate 24 hours a day, with a maze of pipes controlled by a network of valves criss-crossing the fields. The men will carefully alternate the spraying procedure, giving the soil a chance to absorb the liquids.

Winter months, a major problem for former methods of whey disposal, will prove no problem to Nuclarus, according to the engineers. Plastic - lined pools treated with lime will provide adequate storage facilities and the problem of air pollution will be eliminated. The whey will be enclosed until spring when the spraying cycle will resume.

"The process is proven . . . it's just a matter of getting it to the people," Mr. Harcourt told representatives of Belleville Industrial Commission, whose offices provided research and assistance for negotiations between the township in which the optioned site rests, the OWRC and local health authorities.

Because of the high pollution risk with past disposal of whey, the OWRC, local health authorities and municipalities have demanded complete and detailed reports from Nuclarus, which specializes in water pollution controls.

Nuclarus, established in July of 1969, supplies technical assistance, complete laboratory, research and engineering services for pollution problems and equipment for the removal of undesirable materials.

Its team of technical people provided research and complete and safe disposal of this waste material, but if the unidentified township refuses to sanction the project, an alternate site, also near Belleville, will be chosen.

"Land in the Quinte area is conducive to this development and delivery of jobs are available," Industrial Commission chairman Gerald Joyce told The Intelligencer.

Once approval is received and a licence obtained, "we could start spraying whey well within four weeks," Mr. Bainborough said.

Mr. Bain said "all area farmers will benefit" with establishment of this company. "Most cheese factories are dumping whey out on their own property and in ponds, but they are confined to small operations.

"The transportation has been unbearable but this company will solve that problem."

In closing, Mr. Harcourt added: "Canada is blessed with a lot of land and a lot of water but since the population days, we've been throwing refuse away. Canada has lagged behind countries like Switzerland which, because their land is tight, were forced to come up with answers."

Crombie Declares Charges Are Easily Substantiated

TORONTO (CP) — Any investigation of the federal Opportunities for Youth program "does not have to be very extensive," Ald. David Crombie said today.

"All they have to do is speak to the people in State Secretary (Gerard) Pelletier's information office," he suggested in an interview.

"In particular, they could talk to Mr. David Austin, information officer for the Toronto project. I talked to Mr. Austin here yesterday. He is aware of what happened in the Toronto project and agrees with my assessment of the mismanagement of the program here."

Ald. Crombie was comment ing on a rejection by Prime Minister Trudeau in the Commons Thursday of an opposition demand for an inquiry into alleged mishandling of program funds.

Mr. Austin said later in an interview, however, that he objected to the use of the term "mismanagement" in connection with the program.

He said he talked with Mr. Crombie for an hour Thursday, and the alderman's chief complaint concerned what he said was a lack of co-ordination among Toronto projects.

"I advised him that many of the points that he raised have already been taken under advisement by the Opportunities for Youth people. I told him it would relay complaints on to Ottawa and we would check into them."

"At no time did the term . . . mismanagement ever come up."

Mr. Pelletier's parliamentary secretary, Hugh Faulkner, said Charles L. Caccia, parliamentary secretary to Manpower Minister Otto Lang, would go to Toronto to determine the specific charge made about the project.

The issue arose in the Commons after Ald. Crombie said in an earlier interview he knew of an individual who received about $11,000 and had no program at all to work with. He did not identify the individual.

Ald. Crombie said today he had no comment on the money angle. He said the program "has been mismanaged in Toronto and they have taken a darned good idea and bungled it in terms of administering it.

"The whole business of the $11,000 is not important. What is important is how the whole business is going to be conducted in Toronto.

"I talked to Mr. Caccia and he seemed much more interested in defending than he was in finding out how the program was administered in Toronto."

SPONSORED STUNT

BRIGHTON, England (CP) — Sussex stunt man Ron Cunningham is going on a charity walk with a difference—he's the only one taking part. The walk is to take place along the edge of 50-foot-high coastal cliffs. "In ordinary walks people sponsor a walker for so much a mile. I am being sponsored for so much a foot," 35-year-old Cunningham said today.

U.S. Trade Body Will Make Advertisers Prove Claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission announced Thursday it will demand that advertisers—starting with automobile ads—either document their claims or face deceptive advertising charges.

Robert Pitofsky, head of FTC's bureau of consumer protection, said the policy will be implemented first in the auto industry within the next 30 days, then gradually extended to other big advertisers.

Pitofsky said the agency won't be able to do much with claims about how great something tastes. "But if a firm advertises in its product as being twice as good at half the cost as any other product in its class, we will ask how that can be proved."

The new FTC policy, adopted in response to a petition last December by consumer rights advocate Ralph Nader, represents the second recent victory by those seeking tougher advertising rules.

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT HANNA

Hanna — Weese

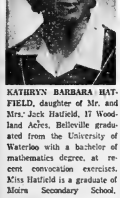
Melrose United Church was the scene of the June 5 wedding of Sandra Jean Weese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clare Weese of RR 1, Shannonville and of Robert Carl Hanna, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Hanna of Corbyville. Rev. William Hendry performed the ceremony and Mrs. Lorne Weese, the bride's aunt provided organ music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a floor length gown of white ottoman cord with a stand - up collar and long bell sleeves trimmed with lace. Matching lace adorned the front of the dress which featured an attached train. A floral head dress held in place a shoulder length bouffant veil. Her cascade bouquet consisted of yellow sweetheart roses and yellow and white daisies.

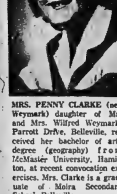
The maid of honor Miss Barbara Weese, the bride's sister were a green floor length French moire dress with a stand-up collar and three quarter length sleeves. A trimming of white lace threaded with green ribbon enhanced the dress. Her bouquet of white and yellow daisies.

Dressed similarly to the maid of honor were the bridesmaids Susan and Marcia Hanna, the bridegroom's sisters. Also wearing a similar costume was Miss Theresa Hanna the flower girl who carried a basket of white and yellow daisies. The ring bearer was Michael Hanna, the bridegroom's brother.



The bridegroom was attended by his brother James Hanna as best man while the ushers were Paul Hanna, another brother and Larry Truman his cousin.

The reception was held at the church hall. The bride's mother was in a A-line embroidered dress of rose polyester crepe with matching long sleeved jacket and accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations and pink sweetheart roses.



The bridegroom's mother wore an empire waisted powder blue peau - de - soie dress trimmed with lace down the bodice and on the collar. A long - sleeved jacket and accessories in a matching color together with a corsage of pink feathered carnations and pink sweetheart roses completed her outfit.

For the wedding trip to points north, the bride donned a green patterned crimplene pant suit, white accessories and a corsage of talisman roses.

Upon return the couple will reside at 181 Dundas Street, East, Trenton.

KATHRYN BARBARA HATFIELD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hatfield, 17 Woodland Acres, Belleville graduated from the University of Waterloo with a bachelor of mathematics degree, at recent convocation exercises. Miss Hatfield is a graduate of Moira Secondary School, Belleville.

MRS. PENNY CLARKE (nee Weymark) daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Weymark, Parrott Drive, Belleville, received her bachelor of arts degree (geography) from McMaster University, Hamilton, at recent convocation exercises. Mrs. Clarke is a graduate of Moira Secondary School, Belleville.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

BY MARY BRYSON

Visit your youngster's kindergarten class and pick up a few pointers on discipline. Teachers have learned that the sound of a bell or whistle will alert the children and gain attention. When everyone is quiet, directions are given in a firm tone of voice. When the day is almost over the children are told it's time to put the supplies away and they respond automatically. Within a week after school starts, every kindergartner knows how to help tidy up the room in a few minutes.

Church Groups

ST. MARGARET'S ON THE HILL ACW

The ACW of St. Margaret's on the hill Church sponsored a parish get together in the form of a barbecue on the church lawn on Monday evening, June 7.

Promptly at 6.30 several men of the congregation had their barbecues blazing and as each family attired with their basket, the chefs cooked steaks, hamburgers and wieners for everyone. Coffee and soft drinks were supplied and everyone from the oldest to the youngest enjoyed an hour of food and fellowship.

After the last hamburger had disappeared, "The Folk Singers" from Moira Secondary School presented a program of songs and music including many old favorites and many modern folk tunes. The group invited the audience to participate and the hour passed quickly.

The successful event, which brought to a close the ACW activities for the first half of 1971 was convened by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Mace and Major and Mrs. William Langley.

MISS JACQUELINE MARY THOMPSON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, RR 1, Corbyville, graduated from Victoria College, University of Toronto, with a bachelor of commerce degree at convocation exercises held on June 3. Miss Thompson is a graduate of Moira Secondary School, Belleville and will return to Toronto in the fall to continue her studies.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM ELLIOTT

Elliott — Sine

Rev. Abel Parsons officiated at the wedding ceremony in Emmanuel United Church, Foxboro on Saturday, June 5, when Elaine Dianne Sine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Edison Sine, RR 2, Frankford, became the bride of William Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Elliott, Belleville. Mrs. Fern Spencer provided traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Robert Heath.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length empire styled gown of polyester featuring a high collar and a lace insert panel bordered with daisies with a long train extending from the back of the gown. A wedding ring headdress was caught to a shoulder length veil and she carried a bouquet of white daisies and yellow roses.

Mrs. Monica Hunter of Sarnia, sister of the bride wore a full length yellow gown of polyester chiffon over crepe featuring an empire waist and long sleeves. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white daisies. Bridesmaids Mrs. Ann Sleeves of Peterborough and Miss Linda Fiddle, Belleville wore aquilar gowns in the matron of honor but in mint green. All were wedding ring headdresses and the bridesmaids carried bouquets of yellow daisies.

Mr. William Lay of Beamsville attended the bridegroom and the ushers were John Hunter, brother-in-law of the bride of Sarnia and Roblin McMurter, cousin of the bridegroom from Belleville.

A reception was held at the Emmanuel United Church hall where the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a peach floral crimplene ensemble with brown accessories and a corsage of white daisies. Assisting, the mother of the bridegroom wore an orange ice coloured dress ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of white daisies.

The couple will reside in Prescott.

Lose 10 lbs. in 10 Days on Grapefruit Diet

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF. (Special) — This is the revolutionary grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. It has made people slim, attractive and feel young again. Literally thousands upon thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories and offices throughout the U.S.

Word of its success has spread like wildfire. This is the diet that really works. No pills or drugs. We have testimonials in our files reporting on its success. If you follow it exactly, you should lose 10 pounds in 10 days. There will be no weight loss in the first 4 days, but you will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter you will lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1½ pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all, there will be no hunger pangs. Now revised and enlarged, this new diet plan lets you partake of foods formerly "forbidden" such as big juicy steaks, roast or fried chicken, rich gravies, spareribs, mayonnaise, lobster swimming in butter, bacon, sausages and scrambled eggs. You can eat until you're full and still lose pounds on the first 10 days of the diet. Incredible? Two days ago we received a letter from a man who says "quick weight loss" diet a sample. Fat does not form fat. The grapefruit acts as a catalyst (the "trigger") to start the fat burning process. You eat as much as you want of the permissible foods listed in the diet plan, and still lose amazingly fat and excess body fluids. When the fat and bloat are gone your weight will remain constant. Many of this very successful diet plan including suggested menus can be obtained by sending $2 to Grapefruit Diet, MONEY BACK GUARANTEE. If after diligently trying the diet plan you have not lost 7 pounds in the first 7 days and 11½ pounds every two days thereafter, simply return the diet plan and your $2 will be refunded promptly and without argument. Fill out the coupon, mail it today, and you will receive your diet zuchnick first class mail. Decide now to regain the trim, attractive figure of your youth, while enjoying hearty breakfasts, lunches and dinners.

It Helps to Make First Move in Friendship

By DORIS CLARK

"I've learned not to wait for someone else to make the first move in friendship," said Mary-Lynn.

"A couple of years ago I met a woman of my own age through our church group. I was really drawn to her, and wanted to get to know her better. She never extended any invitations, though, so I thought she wasn't interested in my friendship.

"Then one day my hairdresser said that a customer had mentioned me in a complimentary way. It was Betty T. and she had remarked that she always enjoyed my company and wished she could be better acquainted!

"Shortly after, I telephoned and invited Betty to come over for a visit. She was delighted, and we found we really did have a great deal in common.

"It has proved to be a friendship I wouldn't miss for the world — yet nearly did because I was afraid to make the first move!" — Dorothy Turcotte

Dear Doris: Our son, 15, was a wonderful boy to raise. Never at any time did he question our authority. He walked young, talked young and was completely trained at a year.

When he started school he was frightened and didn't seem to have the slightest conception of what was expected of him. He failed two grades and now, in grade seven, his marks are terrible. The teachers say he is lazy and will not try.

A psychiatrist told us he was perfectly normal but he just hates school. He refuses to discuss it with us. — A Very Distressed Mother

Dear Mother: I don't have enough clues. Perhaps school doesn't challenge him enough. Could it be he has a learning disability, not yet spotted?

It might even be that those too-perfect early years, with a submissive spirit and, perhaps too much rigid training — unintentionally — caused him to put rigid controls on himself. Now these controls prevent free, creative activity.

If so, he needs help in becoming more spontaneous. Could you forget about school achievement for a while and encourage him — without putting on any pressure, mind you — to find self-expression in a happy activity? Right now life does not hold enough satisfactions for him.

Confidential to Rural Resident, Ontario: The welfare officer who presents you with an arbitrary sum — apparently the first number he thought of — and tells you to manage on it, is not being true to his calling. The family breadwinner has a right to know just how much is allotted to him as a taxpayer.

There are specific amounts provided for families of two, three and four; definite figures to cover a budget of food, rent, clothing and the lot. And you have a right to know these figures.

If your welfare visitor prefers to keep you in ignorance, you may get particulars by writing to The Minister, Department of Public Welfare, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ontario. The same thing is true in all provinces.

Don't just muddle along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris can put you on the way to more Successful Living.

Don't overload cutting utensils. Put just enough food on your fork or spoon for one bite or sip.

Ann Landers

Unnecessary Advice Given to Widow

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband died three months ago. We had 40 good years together and I am grateful for each and every year. I've often heard that when a tragedy occurs, one learns how kind and wonderful people can be. This is true, in a way, but since my sad loss, I have also learned how thoughtless and stupid people can be.

ANN LANDERS

I had three callers last week. One asked me, "Are you lonesome?" Another asked, "Do you dream about your departed mate?" The third came loaded with advice. She advised me not to wait too long to remarry. "After all," she confided, "Your husband is gone, but you are still alive." (A brilliant observation on her part, I thought.) She went on to say I should not be too choosy because widows outnumber widowers five to one. She also warned against comparing the men I meet with my husband because "they'll probably be inferior."

When my friend left I was more depressed than ever. What can be done about folks who are stupid and thoughtless? — UPHILL FIGHT.

DEAR U.H.: Nothing. By the time you read this letter you will be over your depression but your friend will still be stupid and thoughtless. Pity her.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 17-year-old boy with a problem that might seem foolish to you but is very important to me. I can't seem to grow sideburns on the left side of my face. All the guys in our crowd have great burners and here I am looking like some kind of yokel. Several chicks have already asked me what's the matter that I haven't gone along with things. I'm ashamed to tell them about my problem.

Can a doctor do anything to help me or will I have to live with this for the rest of my life? — LOSING BY A HAIR.

DEAR LOSING: Yours isn't the most crucial medical problem I've ever heard, but if you can afford it, go to a dermatologist and find out why no hair grows on one side of your face. It's probably a temporary problem which can be treated. If you were born with no hair follicles in that area (unlikely) you could have hair transplanted to the barren place. I'm not recommending this, however, since it would be expensive, time-consuming and the results might be unsatisfactory. Furthermore, by the time you can afford it, sideburns will probably be out of style.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Recently your column carried a reader's solution to the barking dog problem. A phone call to say, "Your dog is barking," sounded like a sensible idea.

Last night our neighbor's dog broke the peace for quite a while. But we got the phone call. So, may I add a few lines for the unbroken caller:

(1) When you phone a neighbor for this reason, please say, "Your dog is barking," instead of just breathing into the mouthpiece. Silence on the other end of a telephone line is more discourteous than a barking dog.

(2) Before you make such a call, make sure you know whose dog is barking. Had you spoken, I would have told you that our dog was indoors and asleep — as usual.

Tomorrow night, or maybe next week, somebody else's barking dog might be in your backyard.

Good night — and may your sleep not be interrupted, as our was. — BEL AIR, CALIF.

DEAR BEL: The animal known as man's best friend, seems to have stirred up a log of trouble in your neighborhood. Sorry about that — and good night, Irene.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Applesauce Muffins Light as Feathers

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: I am sending you an old recipe given years ago. We think these Applesauce Muffins are very good — light as feathers. — Mrs. E. McC.

ANSWER: Very good is an understatement. They are perfect. My secretary's 15-year-old daughter, Donna, did the testing and my sample muffin disappeared in three or four bites. We have been on a muffin-making spree during the last two months and I hesitate to overdo them but could not resist passing this wonderful recipe on. It is called

APPLESAUCE CUPCAKES
(1 doz. — Courtesy Mrs. E. (McC.)

1½ cups sifted cake flour
½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. nutmeg
7 tbsps. margarine (¼ cup less 1 tbsp.) (or butter).
2/3 cup granulated sugar
1 egg
¾ cup strained (canned) applesauce
½ tsp. vanilla

Sift together sifted flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and nutmeg. Cream together margarine and sugar until light then beat in egg. Remove beaters. Add vanilla to applesauce and fold in alternately with sifted dry ingredients to creamed mixture until batter is smooth. This is a thick batter.

Line standard muffin pans with medium-size paper cupcake liners. Carefully spoon batter into each filling them ¾ full. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 18 min., or until rich gold on top.

NOTE: If you want to change the character of these little cakes you might like to frost them for a change. Thank you very much Mrs. E. McC.

Gals Have Psychological Edge in Sport: They Don't Choke

by
Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

Item: "TORONTO (CP) — An early estimate by one national track and field official puts the onus on girls to win the gold medals for Canada at the Pan-American Games in Cali, Colombia, July 21 - Aug 13. . . But he sees little chance for Canadian men."

Item: "THUNDER BAY (CP) — We're still a couple of years away from winning any medals in the men's events, but our girls' team has so much depth any one of three or four could capture an Olympic medal," national Alpine ski coach Al Raine said."

Fitness expert Lloyd Percival has his own reasons for the feminine sports phenomenon. "Why do Canada's women, on a per capita basis, seem to do better than our men in international games? Well, for one thing, the cream of our male athletic crop go into team sports like football, baseball, basketball, or hockey."

Percival, technical director of the newly-created Coaching Association of Canada, had another explanation why "Olympics" conjures up names like Bev Boys, Elaine Tanner, Nancy Greene, Debbie Brill, or Petra Burka for Canadians more often than those of male athletes.

"Tests are showing that women have a psychological edge," he informed. "Fewer women choke."

Emphasis on sports psychology is a hallmark of the Percival school of coaching thought. "Most people don't even realize the psychological pressure in sport," he says. "But in 1965, the Czechs had an entire team of psychologists working with athletes training for the '68 Olympics."

The key to sound coaching, Percival feels, is the ability to impart pressure into training situations, to make athletes get as "up" for a trial or practice session as he would if he were competing in an Olympic event.

Canadian athletes in the 1976 Montreal Olympics will have an added psychological burden to bear. "The pressure will be even greater on them than usual because they're performing before their own fans in their own backyard," he reasoned.

An athlete's endurance capability is largely a question of mind over matter, Percival's studies have found.

"When Roger Bannister ran the first sub-four-minute mile, he looked like a man about to die when he hit the finish line," Percival recalled. "But as soon as the time announcement over the p.a. system started "Three minutes. . . .", he jumped about three feet in the air.

"And he was out celebrating until four o'clock in the morning."

So much for fatigue.

Feeney Form Fine

A two - hit pitching performance by Dave Feeney carried the Intelligencer into a tie for top spot in the Industrial Softball League last night as they stopped Brooke Bond 3-1.

Feeney outdueled Brooke Bond's Bob Chambers to get the nod in a tight, well-played contest. The Intell hurler gave up singles to Jack Walsh and Brian Baker, striking out four batters and walking three. Chambers allowed only seven hits, fanning six and not walking a batter.

A pair of fours carried AOCO to a 10-4 victory over Mead Johnson with the Optical Workers coming up with two four-run innings.

Ron McCoy's three - run homer in the fourth inning was the big blow for the winners, supporting the nine-hit pitching of Dennis Generesse.

Garry Sero cracked three doubles, while McCoy added a single to his home run shot for AOCO.

Ralph Boomhower led the winners with a homer and single followed by Larry Fritz with a triple and single and Perry Soulis with two base knocks.

When you're voted the top all-round athlete, you have to be able to use a variety of sports equipment. However, Nicholson's John Garvin needs a helping hand from Tim Culhane and John Nolan in order to handle it all at once. Garvin was voted by his teammates as the top all-round athlete at the separate high school, while Culhane got the nod as the most valuable basketball competitor and Nolan as the school's best football performer.

Garvin Big Man on Campus

At six feet one inch, John Garvin is used to being the big man, on the Nicholson Catholic College junior basketball team. The grade 11 student showed that he was big in ability as well as stature by being voted as the best all - around athlete by his fellow secondary school teammates.

Garvin averaged about 20 points per game as pivot for Nicholson's junior hoop squad which finished the Bay of Quinte season with a 12-4 record. In addition to his basketball exploits, he was a key man on the school's football team, which lost 32-12 in the COSSA "A" final against St. Peter's of Peterborough, seeing action at offensive end and defensive safety.

Tim Culhane edged out a number of performers for the top basketball award. The grade 12 forward averaged about 15 points per game for the 9-3 Nicholson seniors and came through with a number of clutch performances.

John Nolan was virtually a unanimous pick as the best football player. The grade ten student provided much of the Nicholson offensive attack from his fullback position.

Cementmen Stub Toes

Point'Anne Cementmen, who were racing along at an unbeaten Commercial Softball League pace, stubbed their toes on a fine pitching performance by Scott Reid last night.

The Rollins' righthander handcuffed Point Anne on two hits as the Construction men posted a 4-2 win to move into sole possession of first place in the five - team league.

The losers counted an unearned run in the first inning, but fell behind in the third when Ralph Plane connected for a two-run homer off the fence in right - centre field.

Point Anne pulled even in the bottom of the inning on a walk, Larry Mavety's single and a wild pitch, but Steve Ling's leadoff homer and an RBI - single by Wes May put the game out of reach in the sixth.

Mavety connected for the only hits off Reid, both singles, while the Ellis hurler was striking out nine batters and walking five. Don Holoway took the loss, giving up five hits, striking out six and not walking a batter.

Ling added a single to his game - winning homer, while the other Rollins hits went to Plane, May and Cliff Scott.

Quinte Hotel and Howard and Robert Printing were dopinch singled by Cliff MacGrimmon and Rick Denard's double enabled Quinte to tie the game at 1-1.

The Printers went ahead again in the eighth frame when Larry Potter led off with a triple and then rode home on Ken Genereaux's sacrifice fly. The Hotelmen battled back in the bottom of the inning with Lyle Thompson driving in the tying run with a single.

The winning run came in the top of the 11th, when Paul Zakos doubled, went to third on an infield error and scored on a wild pitch by Bob Swan.

Bob Elbier, who had come on in relief of Marshall in the ninth inning pitched himself out of a two-on-jam to record the win. Between them, Elbier and Marshall gave up nine hits and five walks, while striking out 11 batters.

Larry Potter was the top hitter with a triple and double while Ken Genereaux, Paul Zakos and Pug Kellar each had two hits.

Tennis Power on Display

Half the battle in sports development is learning by example.

Belleville tennis buffs get a chance to see "how it's done" Saturday when ninth-ranked Canadian Dale Power plays a morning exhibition at 11 a.m. at the Zwick's Island courts.

Power, a sponsored player for Jelinek tennis equipment, will be matched with former Bellevillian David Hurst, who was one of the high - ranking juniors in the province as a member of the Quinte Tennis and Skating Club.

Sunday Power will be embarking on a tour of the U.S. tournament circuit.

Benefit Races Sunday

No Danger Pay in Cycle Racing

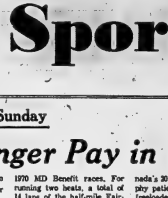
Motorcycle racing is no place for people looking for danger pay.

Dirt-trackers like the 60 who will be at the Belleville Fairgrounds for this Sunday afternoon's fourth annual Muscular Dystrophy Benefit races aren't in the sport for the money.

They're vying for prize money which amounts to 40 per cent of the gate receipts, but when it's split up among all the heat winners in four racing classes, there often is little more than enough to pay for an overnight stop and carfare home.



Bob Swaddling was a perfect case in point. The cherub-faced young Wheatley rider won the expert 250 cc class at the 1970 MD Benefit races. For running two heats, a total of 14 laps of the half-mile Fairgrounds oval at breakneck speeds up to 80 miles an hour, Swaddling took home the princely sum of $67.

The size of purses depends directly on the number of spectators who support the race, so neither the riders nor Canada's 30,000 Muscular Dystrophy patients benefit from the freeloaders who park themselves outside the Fairgrounds paid admission areas.

Belleville's firefighters will stage the race with the cooperation of the Pinto Pushers' Motorcycle Club, have been averaging $1,000 donations to their favorite charity in the three years of the MD Benefit.

Sunday's meet, which gets underway with practice at 1:30, is the first sanctioned Ontario meet of the racing season.

Goals Name Of Game

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's Olympic soccer team is confident of winning its second match against Bermuda here Sunday and the aim will be to pile up goals, says team manager John McMahon.

The goal count could be the decided factor later in breaking a tie with Mexico, which beat the Canadians 1-0 in their first meeting Tuesday in Mexico City.

The Canadians beat Bermuda 2-0 in their first match two weeks ago and, if the Mexicans down Bermuda in their next match June 18, the Canadians would need a win over the Mexicans in their final match in Vancouver Aug. 24.

Hawley May Miss Plate

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Sandy Hawley will learn today whether a riding infraction in a race Thursday at Woodbine racetrack will cause him to miss the Queen's Plate June 19.

Woodbine stewards will rule today on his role in a move by his mount that resulted in a disqualification after finishing first in a $2,500 claiming race.

Hawley, North America's leading rider last year with 432 wins, is scheduled to ride Kennedy Road, the horse picked by experts to win the Plate.

JOHN GARRETT — who played his minor hockey in Trenton, finishing three years ago as a member of the Trenton Golden Hawks Junior B team, was picked by the St. Louis Blues in the third round of the NHL's 1971 amateur draft Thursday. The Glen Miller resident has been the top netminder in the OHA Junior A league for the past two seasons with the Peterborough Petes and saw action with the 1970 Memorial Cup champion Montreal Junior Canadiens. Garrett was the 38th player to be chosen in the draft.

Boyer Fined For Bets

NEW YORK (AP) — Clete Boyer, the jobless third baseman formerly with the Atlanta Braves, was slapped with a $1,000 fine Thursday by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn for betting on college and pro football games in 1968 and 1969.

It is believed to be the first time a baseball commissioner has fined a player for betting on other sports and brought a sudden new twist to the furor surrounding Boyer since he had to buy his own release from the Braves.

At the same time, the conclusion of Kuhn's investigation of Boyer's gambling activities clears the way for Boyer to sign with another club. All negotiations with the 34-year-old infielder had been ordered suspended by Kuhn pending his finding.

This is the second time that Kuhn has taken steps in a situation involving gambling since he took over as commissioner in February, 1969.

Wants Chuvalo Fight

LONDON (CP) — Fight promoter Jack Solomon said Thursday he is trying to set up a Sept. 13 meeting between Canadian George Chuvalo and Dan McAlinden, Britain's third-ranking heavyweight.

McAlinden, a young Irishman fighting out of Coventry, England, scored a fifth-round win at Richmond Wednesday over Roberto Davila of Peru. The fight was stopped when Davila was badly cut around an eye.

Expo Battery Fully Charged

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It took a while to charge Montreal's battery, but when Carl Morton and John Bateman got the current flowing, San Francisco Giants were in for another June jolt.

CARL MORTON

Morton's clutch pitching and a tie-breaking double by catcher Bateman sparked the Expos to a 3-1 victory over San Francisco Thursday night that pinned the National League's West Division leaders with their eighth setback in nine games this month.

Montreal fell behind in the first inning—the result of a wild pitch by Morton and a wild throw by Bateman—and then slowly rallied to complete a sweep of the three-game series against the tottering Giants.

Elsewhere in the National League Pittsburgh Pirates downed St. Louis Cardinals 3-1; San Diego Padres toppled New York Mets 4-3; Philadelphia Phillies tripped Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 and Atlanta Braves edged Houston Astros 2-1.

The Expos came from behind in the fifth inning on singles by former Giant Ron Hunt and Rusty Staub, a sacrifice fly by Bob Bailey and Bateman's run-scoring double.

Morton, who had worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the third, stranded runners on second and third in the eighth and then delivered a Montreal insurance run with a sacrifice fly in the bottom of the inning.

He checked the Giants on seven hits to snap a personal three-game losing string for an over-all pitching mark of 5-8.

Steve Blass scattered seven hits and Bob Robertson crashed his 13th homer of the season as the Pirates pulled the Cards to move within one percentage point of first-place New York in the East Division.

It was the seventh loss in 10 games for St. Louis which dropped into a tie for last place in the topsy-turvy eastern race.

Nobody Sits on This Bench

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Bench, Cincinnati Reds' catcher, and sluggers Hank Aaron of Atlanta Braves and Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants are the early pace-setters in voting for the National League all-star team.

Bench, the National League's most valuable player last season, received 89,506 of the 118,009 votes cast by fans to lead all players in the first week's balloting in figures released today by commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Aaron, 37, and the 40-year-old Mays also received more than 60,000 votes each to 25,000 for Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell, who leads the league in home runs and runs batted in.

Ralph Garr, the Atlanta speedster whose name does not appear on the all-star ballot, received 14,251 write-in votes to rank No.8 among outfielders.

Cash High on Charts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Norm Cash is cashing his hitting streak for Detroit Tigers as he moves toward the top of the all-time Tiger hit parade.

Cash clouted another game-winning home run Thursday night, powering Detroit to a 3-2 win over Milwaukee Brewers as he pulled into a second-place tie with Hank Greenberg on the team's career list—with 310 blasts.

"It's great to tie Greenberg because he was a heck of a ball-player," said Cash.

Based on his hottest start in years, Cash inevitably will soon move into second place all by himself behind team-mate Al Kaline, who has 365.

Cash has been carrying the Tigers this season, including a number of game-winning hits in his team-leading 31 runs batted in and 13 homers.

Cleveland Indians swamped Chicago White Sox 9-0; Baltimore Orioles walloped Minnesota Twins 12-6 and New York Yankees clipped California Angels 3-2 in the night's other American League games. Rain washed the contest between Washington and Kansas City.

Just before Cash's two-run shot in the sixth inning that erased a 2-1 Milwaukee lead, Brewer manager Dave Bristol went out to talk to pitcher Skip Lockwood.

The Tigers had scored their first run in the second inning on a single by Mickey Stanley and triple by Bill Freehan before the Brewers came back to score winner Joe Coleman with Bill Voss' two-run homer in the fourth.

Ray Fosse's three-run homer and Ted Uhlaender's two-run double backed Ray Lamb's five-hit pitching as Cleveland an early-season slump, continued his recent hot streak by driving in five runs on a homer and two singles for Baltimore.

NORM CASH

Robinson singled home the first of two Orioles runs in the first inning, swatted a two-run homer to cap a four-run rally in the second and singled home two more tallies in the third.

In the last seven games, Robby has been batting .500 with 14 hits, including four homers and 11 runs batted in. The streak inflated his average to .314.

Stan Bahnsen kept his band hot with a five-hitter to lead the New York success. It was the fourth straight complete-game victory for the Yankee right-hander, who was stuck in a 1-8 won-lost rut earlier.

Bahnsen, who started his winning string with a five-hitter against the Angels on May 29, brought his record to 5-6 with Thursday night's performance.

Soccer Bribes Alleged

FRANKFURT (Reuter) — An official investigation opened Thursday into West Germany's biggest postwar soccer scandal as new allegations of payoffs were leveled against leading players.

The new allegations involved decisive end-of-season matches which players from Offenbach and Duisburg said they were offered money to throw.

In all five Federal League clubs and four players have been implicated in the scandal.

Walter Bechtold, 23-year-old centre-half for the Offenbach Kickers, told the mass-circulation news paper Bild Zeitung that he was offered $1,300 by a Frankfurt club player to throw a match on which end-of-season placings depended.

Offenbach was demoted to a lower division last week. Volker Danner, 28-year-old goalkeeper of MSV Duisburg, said he was offered $3,300 to see to it that his team lost another crucial end-of-season game.

League headquarters in Frankfurt was barred to the press and public as the commission board statements from a trainer and three first-division players relating to earlier accusations of attempts to fix matches by bribing players.

The scandal was made public knowledge last weekend by Horst-Gregorio Canellas, chairman of Offenbach Kickers, after the team had lost an end-of-season match against Eintracht Frankfurt.

Canellas, who did not attend the football league investigation, was quoted by the Frankfurt Rundschau as saying "It is all much more frightful than appeared after the first disclosures."

Not Much Support For Games' Critic

TORONTO (CP) — A doctor who questioned the wisdom of razzle-dazzle sports days for retarded children got little support Thursday at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds where the Special Olympics are being held.

"These associations are great organizers," said Peg Helmink of Terrace Bay, Ont.

"They're so glad to see kids they meet in other games," said Mrs. Helmink, a mother of eight, one of them retarded. "How can you substitute for something like that?"

The doctor, who asked not to be identified, expressed doubt whether the Special Olympics have therapeutic value for the children.

"I think this is a tremendous thing for the kids, but I think it should be done on a lower key," he said. "Some of these children can benefit, but many of them have IQs from 40 to 60. In some instances they . . . can only derive minor benefits."

The "Grey Cup" atmosphere distracts, some of them weeping happily as they watched their children run, jump, stumble and even fall during track competitions, disagreed.

Another doctor said the beneficial value to the parents made the Olympics worth while.

As for the children, "it is important for them to get out and meet others," said Mrs. Helmink. "People who never had any trouble sometimes forget that."

George Armstrong of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, coaching the Maple Leafs entry in floor-hockey competitions, said "this is good. So is the track meet at the CNE. Some of the kids there are so bad they can hardly run but that makes them try all the harder."

George Doherty, a member of the Richmond Hill Canadian Progress Club who was chauffeur for the Pittsburgh floor hockey team, said "this is the greatest thing that ever happened to the kids."

Julie Woods, a 17-year-old student from the Dogwood School for the retarded in Victoria, B.C., was too busy Thursday to pay attention to the arguing of the adults.

After placing third in the high jump, 50-yard dash, 50-yard dash and ball-throwing events at the CNE, she rushed off to the pool to emulate her heroine, Elaine Tanner.

She won the 25-yard free style with a time of 20.1 seconds.

"I've seen Elaine Tanner swim many times in Vancouver," she said. "I want to swim like her. She's the best."

Imlach May Pair Martin, Perreault

MONTREAL (CP) — Both Punch Imlach and Richard Martin are happy that Martin will be playing his professional hockey next season in the Buffalo Sabres organization.

Montreal Canadiens had the first pick and chose right winger Guy Lafleur from Quebec Remparts. Then Detroit Red Wings took centre Marcel Dionne from St. Catharines Black Hawks. Dionne led the OHA Junior series in points with 62 goals and 81 assists.

The No. 3 pick went to Vancouver which took defenceman Jocelyn Guevremont, a teammate of Martin's at Montreal. St. Louis Blues then grabbed Gene Carr, who had 104 points for Flin Flon Bombers of the Western Canada Hockey League.

"Martin is going to be a great asset to our organization on and off the ice," said Imlach, coach and general manager of the Sabres.

"He's a gentleman and a good looking kid. We consider ourselves lucky to get him.

"He skates a lot like Paul Henderson of Toronto Maple Leafs and he can score goals too.

Martin said he felt "super" about going to Buffalo.

"Phil Goyette told me that Imlach takes care of a new guy like he would one of his own sons," Martin said.

"I think I have a good chance at making the club. They need left wingers. He (Imlach) told me I might play on a line with Bert (Gilbert Perreault)."

Perreault, the Sabres No. 1 selection in last year's amateur draft, was a team-mate of Martin's for two years with the Junior Canadiens.

Montreal's selection of Lafleur came as no surprise.

NHL president Clarence Campbell called the meeting to order and after going over the rules, asked the Golden Seals to begin the proceedings.

A remorseful Garry Young, the Seals' general manager, replied:

The packed audience broke up with laughter when Montreal general manager Sam Pollock called "time" before finally officially taking Lafleur, a 19-year-old who scored 130 goals for the Memorial Cup champion Remparts during the regular Quebec Junior A Hockey season.

The Canadiens took six players in the first two rounds draft as a result of deals with various NHL teams and their own picks in the rounds.

Boston Bruins, first-place finishers in the East Division, had two picks in the opening round, reaching for defenceman Ron Jones as their first draftee and forward Terry O'Reilly as their No 2. choice.

Jones was an outstanding defenceman with Edmonton Oil Kings of the Western Canada Hockey League, while O'Reilly was a key man with Oshawa Generals of the OHA.

Philadelphia Flyers had the eighth and ninth picks and chose a pair of forwards: Larry Wright of Regina Pats and Pierre Plante of Drummondville Rangers.

After the Canadiens picked Wilson and Chicago Black Hawks chose Darcy Spring from Edmonton Oil Kings, the Rangers went back to Toronto to draft rugged defenceman Steve Durbano.

Minnesota North Stars, who gave up their first-round choice in this year's amateur draft to Montreal, chose Rod Norrish of Regina in the second round.

Toronto Maple Leafs, who had two choices in the second round as a result of a trade with Philadelphia, took Rick Kehoe of Hamilton Red Wings as their first choice and Dave Fortier of St. Catharines as their second.

The 14 NHL teams drafted a total of 117 players at a cost of $3,000 a player during the 3½-hour session.

Richard Okays Bowman as Coach

MONTREAL (CP) — Picking Scotty Bowman as the new coach of the Montreal Canadiens was "a helluva good choice," Henri Richard said Thursday.

"He proved himself at St. Louis," said Richard who, during the Stanley Cup playoffs, sparked a flare-up when he called former coach Al McNeil "the worst coach I ever played for."

"They say Scotty is something like Toe Blake in his approach, a hard line," said Richard. "But we'll have to just wait and see."

Richard said that when he was playing for the Montreal Nationales in the old Quebec Junior League, Bowman was with the Junior Canadiens.

"But I don't remember anything at all about what kind of player he was," he said.

Harness Racing Hits High Gear

Only a few weeks ago, Quinte Exhibition Raceway was having trouble getting their weekly harness racing programs off the ground.

Now they're flying at high altitude.

No less than 74 entries are on Saturday night's second card of the 1971 Belleville racing season, including 21 newcomers. Four other horses are also eligible.

Drivers Clarke Newton and Walter Demille, involved in a three - horse pileup in the tenth race at the Fairgrounds last week, are both back with three - horse stables.

This Golf Event A Family Affair

If the family that sprays together stays together, there are at least 73 happy area households.

That's the number of golfing man - and - wife teams entered in Sunday's annual Mr. and Mrs. Tournament at the Bay of Quinte Country Club.

Ann and Fred Fisher of the host club are defending champions in the event, in which husband and wife take alternate shots playing the same ball.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Atherosclerosis Greatest Hazard

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What would you consider the greatest medical discovery? How to do heart transplants that work without rejection? How to put in a new pancreas to treat diabetic patients? A simple, harmless pill a man could take to prevent pregnancy and in this way control the world's overpopulation problem? OR, last but not least, the cure for cancer? Just thought I'd ask.—Mr. N.

• • •

COMMENT: Right now I'd settle for any one you have mentioned. Of these I'd choose the cure for, or prevention of, cancer first. But then I'd say overpopulation is important, too. It would solve many problems if a male could take a harmless pill to lessen some of the emotional load from women who, for centuries, have borne the burdens of pregnancy.

"And what a relief if diabetic patients could have a new pancreas by operation that would relieve them of being on tedious diets and taking insulin or other medications.

As for heart transplants, frankly I have never believed that they are — or will ever be — the answer to the heart problem. In isolated patients, yes. For most heart patients, no.

This brings me to what I believe will be the greatest medical discovery, the prevention and cure of our greatest enemy, atherosclerosis.

Most of us know that this potential deterioration in the walls of arteries wherever they are (in the heart, brain, kidneys, legs — anywhere in the body) is what causes heart attacks, strokes, kidney trouble, leg damage and other threats to health.

Once the specific management of the atherosclerosis problem is at hand, the old will be young longer, and man will not be circumscribed by the usual conception that life is inevitably a three-score - and - ten measurement.

Right now all we have are theories on how to prevent heart attacks. For example: don't smoke; don't overdrink; don't overeat and get fat; don't under - or overexert; don't live in too much tension don't let diabetes or hypertension go untreated; don't allow cholesterol to reach high levels in the blood.

True, we have some ways to circumvent the dangers of atherosclerosis.

But these methods are not specific. When will we discover this elixir of health and life: the prevention and treatment of atherosclerosis? I don't know. We are working on it in laboratories all over the world. But when it comes, and if I'm still around, I'll unhesitatingly call it the "greatest medical discovery."

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband is in general good health but he is always sleepy. He says this has gone on since he was in his teens.

In church he sleeps soundly through the whole sermon. (Meantime I'm nudging him all the while and getting little out of the sermon myself.) He can watch TV for five minutes and again he is sound asleep.

For the past few months it has grown worse. He even falls asleep when we are entertaining guests, regardless of who they are. We both work and the few hours we are together as a family in the evening end with Dad sound asleep.

Can you tell me what might cause this? Is it reason enough to see a doctor even if he is apparently healthy? — Mrs. W.

COMMENT: A common and often overlooked ailment is what we call narcolepsy. It causes unnatural sleepiness. Your doctor will have to make the diagnosis.

If this is the cause of your husband's trouble, there are drugs that will wake him up so he can live as alertly as anyone else.

Being sleepy all the time is much worse, I think, than suffering from insomnia. Narcolepsy deserves early treatment.

White's District

WHITE'S DISTRICT — The Bayside study group met at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Wilson on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith and son Kendrick of Hagton attended the convocation ceremonies at Trent University, Peterborough on Friday afternoon when their son David Roy Smith received his bachelor of science degree. He will be joining the meteorological department in Toronto this month.

A pot luck dinner for the senior choir was held at Westminster United Church on Thursday evening. Those who attended were Fern and Ralph Losey, Gladys and Harleigh Hamilton, Lloyd and Doreen Pearson, Carol, Brenda, Maud and Edgar Ray, Keith and Ruth Johnston, Rosemarie Walter, George and Muriel Bilham and Marina Arthur.

The HiC group of Westminster United Church conducted the service at Eastminster United Church, Belleville on Sunday morning. It was attended by parents of many of the members

Sydney J. Harris Says

Sayings Are Half-truths

Truths on the Half-Shell:

"It's not what you know, but who you know, that counts."

("Who you know" may get you out on the track a little sooner, but doesn't help you much once you start running.)

• • •

"If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

(If at first you don't succeed, ask yourself why; perseverance is a virtue only when based on talent; if it is rooted in self-delusion, then all your trying will get you only a broken head.)

• • •

"Opposites attract."

(Only if such supplies what the other lacks, like two matching parts in a jigsaw puzzle; otherwise, rank opposites are very typical to fit together but can find no common contour of surface.)

• • •

(No, but you can make a diamond out of carbon, indicating that many a valuable item can come out of "dirt".)

• • •

"Fine words butter no parsnips."

• • •

(Fine words, spoken at the right time, can make unbuttered parsnips taste better than those steeped in the finest butter.)

• • •

(Human beings are not geese or ganders, and what's "sauce" for one person may be a stomach-ache for another.)

• • •

"There's no smoke without a fire."

(But those who are smoked out may have had nothing to do with starting the fire.)

• • •

"Familiarity breeds contempt."

(Not as much as ignorance breeds a sense of superiority; those who acquire a feeling of contempt toward the familiar are merely projecting their own unconscious awareness of unworthiness.)

• • •

"Seeing is believing."

(No greater half-truth ever existed, as any stage magician or sleight-of-hand artist will assure you.)

• • •

(This tends to be true of companies, but not of individuals; most persons are pound wise and penny foolish, dissipating their funds in trivial ways that utterly negate their large concern for the pounds.)

• • •

"Better late than never."

(Only for some things, as the old man said when he came down with a case of measles.)

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 12

Your birthday today: Simplicity becomes a prime goal this year. Games and bad habits have to be dropped. Whatever you do that requires detailed management is subject to division or interruption. Property tends to become burdensome and in some cases nearly profitable to get rid of tha to keep.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your money genius wings seems enough to send it fluttering. Being handy also sets you up for a credit referee, a guarantor, and the like — it's better to be away or stubborn.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Family and friends pitch in, although much of what they do is not well organized or coordinated with what you had in mind.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Watching and puzzle solving is the order of the day. Human behavior is the handiest riddle, but there are others too. Attend work diligently so as to leave conditions free of disturbance.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): It takes all day for implications to come clearly to mind. Every word has an extra meaning; listen twice before you react.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your ideas run short of reality pictured in your plans. Take a slower pace, check facts and figures as you go.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): It's good to have alternative courses lined up, an extra set of tools or supplies, a contingency plan.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Confidential information leaks today. Wait before assuming all of any secret is out. There may be nothing for you to say anyway.

Women Riot At Pen

OTTAWA (CP) — Eight of nine inmates of the Kingston Prison for Women are in solitary confinement following a rebellion which ended with a brawl with male guards.

The eight were flushed from their cells with tear gas after smashing their furniture, a spokesman for the solicitor general's department said Thursday.

The ninth woman had voluntarily come from her cell earlier and returned to normal prison routine.

The trouble began Wednesday night when the nine women refused to return to their cells at the 11 p.m. lock-up time. After a discussion with prison superintendent Corm Edwards, they agreed to go to bed. Thursday morning, however, they refused to leave their cells and refused breakfast.

Male guards from Kingston penitentiary were called in as reinforcements about 12 a.m. Sometime later eight women "began smashing cell furniture."

"Very little tear gas was used, just enough to get them out of their cells," the spokesman said.

Once out, the women began fighting with the guards. They were subdued about noon and "..... removed from contact with other inmates."

The spokesman said the cause of the disturbance is believed to have started when another inmate was told her father-in-law had died.

The woman became hysterical and was taken to the prison hospital and sedated.

Other inmates were sympathetic with the woman, the spokesman said, "..... but these nine seemed to think she was being punished in some way because she was upset over her father-in-law's death."

NDP Fights PCs On Jobless Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey stood well back Thursday and watched the Conservatives and New Democrats do most of the fighting over unemployment insurance reform.

About 20 opposition amendments were on the order paper as the unemployment insurance legislation entered the report stage of consideration by the Commons, one step removed from third and final reading.

By the end of the day, more than half the proposed amendments had been debated, the bill remained relatively unscathed and only once had the Conservatives and New Democrats combined in opposition.

The exception was a move to reduce to one week from two the period a laid-off worker would have to wait for benefits to begin.

Opposition spokesmen said the two-week wait would create hardship and be an unfair penalty on the unemployed. Mr. Mackasey agreed the arguments were persuasive but suggested they were also Utopian and impractical.

Two other amendments the minister welcomed as extensions of the principle of universal coverage.

On three Conservative motions which would have substantially altered the bill, however, Mr. Mackasey entered only brief objections and left most of the fight to the New Democrats.

The principal Conservative amendments would have:

—Permitted municipal governments and school boards to exempt their employees from coverage under the plan as provincial governments would have the right to do;

—Extend to 12 weeks from eight the minimum period of work required before a worker could qualify for insurance benefits;

—Eliminate a provision for a first payment of three weeks' benefits in a lump sum for workers laid off after completing a record of 20 weeks of work.

Mr. Mackasey claimed the first would wreck the basic concept of the reform. If universal coverage were to be knocked out of the bill, he said, there would be no plan.

Census Called Success

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's first attempt at a mail-back census shows all the signs of being a resounding success.

Census officials said in a news release Thursday that by Tuesday, almost three million of the 3.5 million census questionnaires expected from mail-back areas had reached census offices.

This represents an initial 82 per-cent response rate.

The continuing flow of census questionnaires through postal channels indicates that within a few days the rate will exceed the record 85 per cent established in the world's first mail-back census in the United States last year.

In Canada's census, the mail-back system was used for about 60 per cent of the estimated six million Canadian households.

Another 27 per cent of the households, or about 2.3 million, were covered by the same self-enumeration method, but are being picked up by census representatives rather than being mailed back.

The remaining three per cent of the population, mostly in the remote areas, is being enumerated by traditional canvasser methods.

The official census date was June 1.

In cases where questionnaires are not received from mail-back areas, census representatives are making house-by-house checks to obtain the forms.

Across Canada, the receipt of mail-back questionnaires as of Tuesday was 97 per cent in the Maritimes, 94 per cent in Newfoundland, 74 per cent in Quebec, 80 per cent in Ontario, 89 per cent in Manitoba and southern Saskatchewan, 86 per cent in northern Saskatchewan and Alberta and 83 per cent in British Columbia.

Davis Is Asked to Protect Ontario's Economic Interests

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis was asked Thursday to protect Ontario's interests against incursions by Quebec at next week's constitutional conference in Victoria.

Douglas Kennedy (PC-Peel South) said: "In the new economic partnership which lies ahead it is time that those who pay the piper should begin to call the tune."

Speaking during budget debate in the legislature, Mr. Kennedy said Ontario and other provinces are being asked by Ottawa and Quebec to accept "a more inequitable partnership than that which existed within the Province of Canada from 1841 to 1867."

He said Ontario taxpayers this year will contribute $2,000 million in taxes more than they will get back, or $1,150 for a family of four.

Quebec would get more than $700 million in equalization payments in addition to "he lion's share of other federal programs."

"Yet in the constitutional conventional wisdom of today's almost all of Quebec's grievances are being attributed to English-speaking Canadians, the federal government or the constitution. And we are expected to pay a very heavy price so that these grievances may be rectified immediately."

Allan Grossman, minister responsible for the Ontario Housing Corp., denied opposition allegations Thursday that Headway Corp. of Thunder Bay gets too large a share of OHC contracts.

In other business:

—Legislature pages, holding a mock parliament, called for less school, wide-open bars and more time off for legislature pages.

—Charles McNaughton, minister of transportation and communications, said the provincial government, Metropolitan Toronto and the Toronto Transit Commission will set up a joint agency to study the city's future transportation needs.

—Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic party, took a shot at the Liberal party because of several different views expressed within the party last week at news that the Spadina Expressway would not be completed.

—Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence said $100,000 worth of aid will be sent to cholera-stricken Pakistanis crossing the border into India;

—Labor Minister Gordon Carton said some persons responsible for elevators have been neglecting their responsibility to keep them operating safely. He told a committee beginning study of his $23.8 million estimates the government will gradually move to a role of setting design and maintenance standards for elevators.

—Pat Reid (L—Rainy River) said the Ontario Association of Architects is running a "closed shop" because it insists on prescribed fees and is restrictive in its membership; —Provincial Secretary John Yaremko, in reply to a question by Bernard Newman (L—Windsor Walkerville), said Ontarians can buy beer in 12½-gallon kegs although selling in that quantity has not been given much publicity.

—Bills to provide additional benefits to persons in the agriculture industry were given second and third readings.

Injunction Sought To Bar Apartments

Six Try to Prevent East Hill Project

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

A group of six East Hill homeowners worried over the proposed construction of apartment buildings in their better class single-family residential area, have initiated legal action to prevent the erection of a seven-storey apartment block at 217 Bridge Street East.

The East Hill homeowners, through the office of Toronto solicitor Malcolm Robb, have made application for an injunction restraining the city from issuing a building permit for the above East Hill residential property recently sold by Hastings County Judge J. C. Anderson to a Toronto developer.

Named in the writ were the City of Belleville, City Engineer Wilbur Purcell, Grant E. Stickle, building inspector, and his assistant William Hoard.

The requested injunction would restrain the city from issuing a permit to demolish, alter or construct any buildings on the property at 217 East Bridge Street.

Named as plaintiffs are Dr. Jack A. Marshall, G. A. Freeman, R. C. V. Aitken, T. Burnett, William Spinelli, and John A. Bush.

The injunction application was taken out in Toronto and was delivered to city hall staff officials late Friday afternoon.

The city has 10 days to enter a defence against the action.

City Solicitor John A. Miller was not available this morning for comment, while Mayor J. Russell Scott said he had not seen the injunction papers.

What has been termed "indiscriminant" construction of apartment buildings in the old city area, has this spring caused concern on the part of homeowners in both the East and West Hill districts.

Quebec Stand Vital

QUEBEC (CP) — The constitutional conference which begins Monday in Victoria is the toughest test of Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa's leadership since the terrorist crisis late last year.

Political pressure from all sides will be bearing heavily on the slim figure of the 37-year-old premier as he faces the leaders of the federal and other provincial governments for three days of talks.

The most immediate pressure will come from Prime Minister Trudeau, who wants Mr. Bourassa to accept a proposed formula for amending and patriating the Canadian constitution.

The formula emerged from the last constitutional conference, held Feb. 8-9 in Ottawa, and its formal adoption, which would start the process of bringing the constitution back to Canada, awaits only Quebec's assent.

However, Mr. Bourassa refuses to accept the formula, although it is apparently satisfactory to him, until he receives acceptance in return of his demands in the field of social policy.

Mr. Bourassa wants more powers in this field, including a constitutional amendment guaranteeing Quebec legislative "primacy" in the particular area of income security programs.

This would give Quebec the initiative in planning and applying income security programs which would eventually form an integrated income-security policy aimed at meeting social needs more effectively.

Hees Wants CDC Top Pay Boosted

OTTAWA (CP) — The prime minister and silence in the Commons Friday when asked whether the government has had any success in a search for a qualified businessman to head the proposed Canada Development Corp.

The question was put to Mr. Trudeau by George Hees PC—Prince Edward-Hastings who suggested that the proposed salary for the position be increased to $100,000 a year since no one would take the job at $75,000.

Mr. Hees suggested that as many as 25 businessmen have been approached to take the job but all have refused.

Dear Boy!

MIDDLESBROUGH, England (Reuter) — A 13-year-old boy equipped his parents with some of the little extras in life —such as a refrigerator, washing machine, spin dryer, knitting machine, record player, water heaters, and even a carpet.

And all of it was stolen property, a court was told Friday.

The boy robbed neighbors' houses and carried away his booty on a handcart with his parents apparently turning a blind eye to his exploits, police said.

Police said the boy's mother told them:

"Every time he brings something in he says 'I found it mom' and he always tells the truth so I let him keep them."

Great Garbage Heist

Presbyterians Dislike Films

TORONTO (CP) — Resolutions concerning sex in Canadian movies, the Canada Evidence Act, cannabis, and relations between Canada and China were dealt with Friday by the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

The assembly accused the federal government of providing funds for the production of movies exploiting violence and sex and voted to inform Ottawa "that we view with grave concern the use of public funds for the production of Canadian movies exploiting violence, immorality and sex."

The resolution referred to grants and loans from the Canadian Film Development Corp. for the production of movies such as Valerie, L'Initiation and Ipads and Tails.

Wounded Gunman Surrenders

Plane Passenger Slain In Chicago Hijacking

NEW YORK (AP) — A gunman hijacked an airliner in Chicago, killed one of its passengers, police said, then fought a gun battle with a deputy U.S. marshal as the plane flew to New York before the hijacker was subdued here early today.

The hijacker is reported to have demanded to be flown to North Vietnam after he took over the plane by placing his gun at the head of a blonde stewardess.

The slain passenger was tentatively identified as Howard Franks, 63, of Darien, Conn., who was shot and killed, apparently as other passengers scrambled off the plane at O'Hare International Airport in Chicago.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said it was the first time a passenger had been killed in a U.S. plane hijacking.

The hijacker, identified as Gregory White, 23, of Chicago, was seized by FBI agents when the Trans World Airlines 727 jet landed at Kennedy International Airport. The FBI said one of its agents shot the man and wounded him in the left arm after the hijacker fired a shot at the agent.

The hijacker barged aboard the Boeing triget as it was stopping at O'Hare en route from Albuquerque, —M.M., to New York.

After seizing the stewardess, the hijacker allowed the passengers to leave.

But Franks went back to get his coat and "apparently walked between the stewardess and the gunman," police said.

The hijacker allowed authorities to remove Franks's body.

The hijacker held a gun to the head of the stewardess, Catherine Culver, 24, officials said. He also kept aboard as hostages the pilot, Captain Robert E. Elder, 42; First Officer Ronald J. Dupuis, 31, and flight engineer Don E. Welshimer, 34.

The hijacker told the crew he wanted a plane ready in New York to take him to North Vietnam. He also demanded $75,000 and a machine-gun.

As word of the 11:30 p.m. EDT hijack spread at O'Hare, Deputy U.S. Marshal Jagesh Zito, who was operating a magnetic detection device nearby, heard that a small man was being sought to crawl into the plane.

Zito, who is about five-feet-six and had just put in his last day as police chief of Cary, Ill., volunteered.

Wearing a TWA flight jacket and armed with two pistols, Zito wriggled through a window into the cockpit while the hijacker was in the plane's cabin.

As the plane took off for New York, Zito looked through a peephole at the hijacker, who was occupied in watching Miss Culver, the marshal told a news conference.

About 30 minutes after takeoff, the hijacker walked away from Miss Culver toward the back of the plane.

"I think I can get him now," Zito said he told the captain.

With Elder's consent, Zito said, he opened the door and fired twice.

"He fell behind the seat—I don't know whether I hit him— and I ducked behind the seat," Zito said.

"We lay there the whole flight, him watching me and me watching him," Zito added.

The stewardess took cover between the two men.

Zito said that he gave one of the pistols to Dupuis, who also took "a couple of shots" at the hijacker.

When the plane landed, Zito said, the hijacker shot at him once more. Zito said he asked that Miss Culver be freed and the hijacker let her exit through the escape chute in the front of the plane.

Zito and the other three crew members followed her down the chute moments later.

"We got under the plane," Zito said, "and thanked God we were there safe."

"It was my first flight and I fired at the FBI agent who approached the hijacker standing at the head of the chute in the plane. The agent fired back, hitting the hijacker.

A few minutes later, the hijacker told authorities over the plane's radio that he was ready to give up. He slid down the chute, his white shirt drenched in blood. He was seized as he stumbled about the runway at about 2:30 a.m. EDT.

Elmer Diefenbaker Dies

The Chief's Brother Was 73

SASKATOON (CP) — Elmer Diefenbaker, 73, brother of former prime minister John Diefenbaker, died Friday night.

Funeral arrangements were expected to be announced later today.

Mr. Diefebaker had been in hospital since Feb. 8, when he suffered a heart attack. His illness was complicated by pneumonia and an attack of jaundice earlier this week.

He was considered his brother's closest confidant and during the last six years had travelled extensively with him.

Mr. Diefebaker was born March 21, 1898, in Grey County, Ont., the youngest of two children. His father once taught Mackenzie King and later served as a federal civil servant.

In 1905 the family moved to a Saskatchewan homestead and five years later moved to Saskatoon.

He was educated in Saskatoon and received a bachelor of arts degree from McMaster University.

He taught school in several areas of Saskatchewan and later owned a brokerage firm in Prince Albert, his brother's constituency.

He also served with the Royal Canadian Air Force in the First and Second World Wars.

"He devoted his entire life to me," the former prime minister once said of his younger brother. "He had more friends than anyone I have ever known.

"He never did anyone any harm . . . never did a mean thing in his life."

A bachelor, Elmer Diefenbaker was active in politics and was a staunch advocate of his brother's policies.

Tractor Tips, Kills Farmer

NAPANEE (Staff) — A 24-year-old Odessa farmer was crushed to death yesterday after the tractor on which he was riding overturned on a bank, pinning him to the bottom of Wilton Creek, 11 miles east of here.

Mitchell Vanderkel Jr., of R.R. 1, Odessa, was working on his father's farm when the mishap occurred sometime between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m.

Constable Robert Pollard of the Napanee OPP investigated at 5.45 p.m. and the deceased was taken to Kingston General Hospital where he was pronounced dead by Coroner Dr. Stuart Patterson.

A post mortem was ordered for this morning.

Spraying Is Science Says Hydro

MADOC (Special) — The application of pesticides can be dangerous but Ontario Hydro employees are taught to be cautious in their use, Roblin Gardner, Hydro's district forester with the vegetation control branch told a group meeting in the Orange hall at Tweed recently.

Hydro's agricultural research program is developed by special training of employees, he pointed out. "They are educated to preserve nature and it is with the best interests of the future, considered at all times."

His photography he illustrated his subject, depicting experiments Hydro conducts continuously in an effort to save the beauty of the landscape.

He emphasized the danger of spraying in even a light wind. "A droplet of herbicide can easily be carried as far as three miles by a five mile per hour wind," he explained, stressing the importance of knowing how to apply insect and fungus eradicators.

Two Children Bump Into Cars

Two children were injured in separate incidents yesterday when they walked into moving automobiles.

Joan Alexander, 9 of OSD walked into the side of a car at 4.26 p.m. on Sidney Street and Vernon Jones, 5, of 236½ Foster Avenue walked into the rear of a car near his home. Both suffered minor scrapes and were released from Belleville General Hospital.

estimated for a complete overhaul of the 1942 steamer . . . the days of steam would continue for excursion - hungry steam buffs.

As the last operating steam locomotive in Canada, this engine has travelled much of the eastern seaboard and portions of upper United States as a good will ambassador of a dying age.

But with discontinuation of this mode of transportation, unskilled engineers and mechanics are hard to come by. Even more difficult to obtain are the parts needed to keep 6218 running and the machine shops at which to do the work.

So CN recently announced retirement of the loco' in special ceremonies at Belleville on the long holiday weekend. Where the final resting place will be is anybody's guess . . . CN isn't saying.

But these prospects didn't meet with the approval of railway enthusiasts and special petitions to N. J. MacMillan, chairman and president of CN are being circulated by Mr. Barnes and his associates in an attempt to gain support for the Steam Savers.

Much of the nostalgia that surrounds the steam locomotive comes from remembering the wailing whistle in the distance, the site of massive drive wheels and released steam. With only one remaining on the rails, a page in Canada's history will be closed with the retirement, and preveration of this step is an ultimate goal.

A phrase which may very well become the banner for the Steam' Savers, brings to mind the history surrounding 6218.

"To this, and future generations, she's a glorious big chunk of the living iron that bolted this country together in '." — The Hamilton Spectator.

If the project proves successful, a 95 per cent. money-back guarantee is offered.

"THE COST" . . .

"The cross is laid on every Christian. It begins with the call to abandon the attachments of this world. It is that dying of the old man which is the result of his encounter with Christ. As we embark upon discipleship we surrender ourselves to Christ in union with His death — we give over our lives to death. Since this happens at the beginning of the Christian life, the cross can never be merely a tragic ending to an otherwise happy religious life. When Christ calls a man, He bids him come and die, it may be a death like that of the first disciples who had to leave home and work to follow Him, or it may be a death like Luther's who had to leave his monastery and go out into the world. But it is the same death every time, death in Jesus Christ, the death of the old man at His call."
From the Cost of Discipleship, by Deitrich Bonhoeffer.

Trailers as Residences Again Concern Council

AMELIASBURG (Special)—Council called for a review of township trailer regulations after hearing complaints about mobile homes located at a number of points without the owner giving notice to the regulating authority.

The bylaw relating to trailers and to trailer camps took effect September 14, 1965.

It specified no land within the municipality shall be used as a trailer camp and no person shall use and no owner or lessee of any trailer shall permit the use of any trailer for the living, sleeping or eating accommodation of persons within the municipality of the township for 30 days or more in any one year without first having obtained from the treasurer of the municipality a licence to do so, which must at all times thereafter be valid and subsisting.

The licence fee was set- at $20 per month, payable in advance, except for the first 30 days.

Also specified trailer accommodations would not be allowed until sanitary conveniences received the approval of the medical officer of health of the Prince Edward County health unit.

The bylaw applied to any trailer, whether or not such trailer is jacked-up or has had the running gear removed.

The bylaw does not apply to any trailer operated in connection with any exhibition, fair, carnival or other entertainment authorized by the municipal council.

A person convicted of a breach of the bylaw is liable to pay a fine not exceeding $50, exclusive of costs. Each day the conditions contravenes the bylaw is considered a separate offence.

Since the bylaw was approved, council has had to deal with delegations critical of mobile homes threatening property values.

Mobile home owners with build additions on their dwellings to comply with floor space requirements under zoning regulations were the main argument used against trailers moving into residential areas by two permitted Bedeerville Road homeowners recently.

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY

During the past two weeks the local labor market has reflected a changed trend in the various areas of employment. The past strong labor demand from the area's record construction projects was superceded by a sharp increase from the retail trade outlets, as well as an improvement from finance, insurance and real estate firms. There was also an increased demand from the public administration and defence sectors of employment which includes the various governmental levels such as federal, provincial and municipal departments. As is normal at this time of the year, there was a demand from local farmers for general farm hands. However it must be admitted that this demand was a limited one. It is also observed that aside from one new industrial plant, the Community's manufacturing firms, although maintaining their labor forces, required very few additional plant workers.

I should like to discuss a few aspects of the available local labor supply. New employers interviewing prospective workers are very impressed by the quality of and the calibre of persons seeking local employment.

This available local labor supply can be divided into three categories: first the regular worker who is currently unemployed; second, the graduate student either from a secondary or post-secondary school who is now ready to take the labor force at their initial permanent job; third, the students who are looking only for temporary summer work.

Together this adds up to a large number of persons competing for the limited suitable positions. Under these conditions the majority of these persons now seeking work do so under very competitive and selective conditions.

The counsellors of the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre, 324 Church Street, and the student employment offices at the Canada Manpower Centre for Students at 279 Pinnacle St. will be pleased to give every assistance to anyone with regard to the current labor market information and the other services coming under the responsibility of a Canada Manpower Centre. In the Bay of Quinte area these offices are located not only in Belleville, but also at Napanee, Picton and Trenton.

Scott Flies To Saskatoon

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott will fly to Saskatoon on Sunday where he has been invited to be a panel member at the fourteenth annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

Mayor Scott's convention will be "Social Unrest; Participation or Confrontation."

Mayor Scott said he would be speaking on extra legislative influence groups.

Host for the evening of musical entertainment, also known as Doc Williams, the country music star who has been in show business for more than 23 years.

Prince Edward Farmers Trying New Pea Types

Robert Cobbledick, fruit and vegetable specialist for the Ontario department of agriculture in Picton said yesterday 27 pea varieties have been planted on ten farms and 18 data fields sown.

The experimental plantings, which began in May, were completed this week. Duplicate trials using 13 pea varieties also are under way in Smithfield. The research plots were put out by Edward Tamasack, summer assistant to Guelph College instructor Dr. Ib Nonneckc.

Local experiments initially were triggered when Kent County farmers, not satisfied with their pea yields, urged Dr. Nonneckc's advice. In 1970 he consulted with vegetable growers' associations and county boards in Exeter and Essex County, then spearheaded an experimental planting program. Prince Edward farmers, who plant approximately 6,000 acres in peas annually, were not interviewed then but trial pea varieties have been planted in the county this spring.

Experimental plots sown among regular pea crops in growers' fields can be compared with them for growth and yield under identical conditions.

Five local canning companies are involved in this project as well as five growers under contract to them. Experimental varieties have been sown both in early and late growth fields and in different soil types.

Dr. Nonneckc has introduced several short-stemmed varieties which show greater resistance to slime mold. These short-stemmed peas reach heights of approximately 24 inches under favorable growth conditions.

Slime mold usually occurs when pods which have been blown down by heavy rains followed by hot weather. A combination of heat and moisture increases the probability of slime mold and also the chance of a highly yield. Mr. Cobbledick explained, however, that short-stemmed pea varieties may grow only eight inches in height in certain soils, making their harvest impossible.

The growth characteristics introduced this spring will allow Prince Edward farmers to observe the pea varieties necessary for each variety to thrive. In Smithfield, new varieties will be processed to determine their suitability to this area.

Mr. Cobbledick said experimental plots in Prince Edward will permit farmers to become involved on a preliminary level with the research now underway. Processors also can observe how new pea varieties grow on lands under contract to them.

Arctic Trading Post

Mark Foster and Jamie Ablarde, grade 8 students at King George School, display some of the many objects collected in their classroom to transform it into a replica of an Eskimo trading post. With the help of their teacher, H. E. Butcher, the students moved out all the furniture and moved in objects and artifacts to transform the room into the Arctic store. The entire student body at the school is engaged this week in a study of the Arctic and Eskimos.

PUC Uses Loyalist Computer In Modernizing Billing Chore

The utilities commissions of Belleville and Trenton have joined together to enter the computer age with bills now being compiled through the data control centre at Loyalist College.

At a press conference in Belleville PUC offices yesterday afternoon, utilities manager E. L. Burnham said at least $30,000 capital expenditure for new equipment will be saved by use of the college facilities.

Outmoded billing machinery had presented numerous problems to billing clerks at the Front Street office. "One of our greatest problems was in the number of days down . . . the service man would come there and he'd hardly be out of town before we'd need him back again," said Mr. Burnham.

With the new system, a simplified bill has been prepared with nine sections designed for easy reading. The PUC anticipate customers will not be burdened with past difficulties in reading bills.

Punch card machines have already been installed at the utility offices and the first residential customer accounts have been computed for Belleville, general service accounts in Trenton.

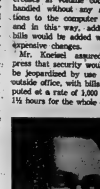
Clerks in the PUC accounts department prepare computer punch cards which are then taken to the college data centre.

Time involved in producing the final product is expected to be cut short but Mr. Burnham anticipates no work layoff, other than two or three temporary employees.

"We won't need such a big staff, but we won't be laying off people right away," he said.

Computer manager Jim Moore said there are more than 100 mathematical checks built into the computer program designed to eliminate incorrect billings. Any discrepencies that are caught by the computer are then checked manually to ensure accuracy.

College director of public relations, Ernest Kneisel was reluctant to say exactly how much the municipalities will pay for this service, commenting only that "we are working at competitive commercial rates."



However, he and PUC officials agreed that the cost of the new service and costs of the old method did not vary to any great extent.

They re-emphasized that old billing systems would have had to be replaced and the PUC has been considering a new method since last year. Mr. Burnham said they had consulted the Oshawa utilities and at one time had considered employing their computer service.

Although they decided to use the college facility, Oshawa engineers were brought in to consult with the Loyalist's computer programmers on the design for the program system which controls the computations.

Mr. Moore did say that with design of the program, increases in volume could be handled without any alterations to the computer setup and in this way, additional bills would be added without expensive changes.

Mr. Kneisel assured the press that security would not be jeopardized by use of an outside office, with bills computed at a rate of 1,000 every 1½ hours for the whole cycle.

Injunction Is Sought

The first protest was from West Hill homeowners who raised a petition protesting the proposed sale of Albert College Manor property on Highland Ave. now used as the Wellington Crescent playground.

The college has offered the two - acre property for sale and fears are that it will be sold to developer for apartment construction.

Apartment construction is allowed under present zoning in both the East and West Hill areas and residents have asked for zoning to be changed from "B" to "A", which would block apartment construction.

But months could elapse before a zoning change might receive final approval from the Ontario Municipal Board and without legal action such as instituted by the East Hill homeowners there is nothing to stop the city building inspector from issuing permits for apartment construction.

The Judge Anderson property has been sold to a Toronto developer who already has obtained a demolition permit for the existing dwelling and has also made application for a building permit to construct a seven-storey 75-unit apartment.s

The demolition permit was issued about mid-week, but the building permit for the construction of the apartment block was held up pending supply of architect's plans and investigation of sewer requirements.

The Toronto developer is said to be the same firm which a few years ago built the Regency Towers on Victoria Avenue and last year completed the new apartment block on Bridge Street at the top of the hill.

The demolition permit for the Judge Anderson property was taken out in the name of "The Parkwood."

Deseronto Centennial Planning All Set For Start Next Week

DESERONTO — With less than a week remaining before the big event gets under way planners of the town's week - end Centennial celebrations call for the weatherman to be kind to them throughout.

The celebrations begin Thursday, June 17 and continue through to Sunday, June 20 with activities ending with families getting together at Centennial Park at a mass box lunch social. Earlier Sunday morning the program calls for the celebrants to attend services at churches of their choice.

Celebrations are kicked off Thursday with a colorful parade marching to Centennial Park to music provided by the Rob Roy pipe band and Sea Cadets both from Kingston.

With the procession will be Legion color parties from Belleville, Kingston and Deseronto, including members of the servicemen's women's auxiliaries as well as members of the Mohawk reserve Orange Lodge in buckskins, and Deseronto Guides and Brownies in uniform.

In the parade there will be florats and Deseronto firemen, in appropriate Centennial dress riding on the fire truck and pulling the old hose cart reel.

There will be a band concert in the park following the dismissal of the parade.

On Friday the program includes guided tours from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.) of the town's industries and Open House at Deseronto public school.

In the parade there will be have been invited to a Centennial Tea (garden party) on the lawn of one of the former Rathbun houses, now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Ross Sexsmith.

In the evening at Deseronto public school a play primarily for children will be presented. It will be followed by a musical variety show advertised as the Centennial Jubilee.

Featured in the children's play, based on Indian legend, will be performances by members of the Quinte Island Theatre, a Prince Edward County group which recently had the honor of performing at the National Art Centre in Ottawa.

At 1 p.m. the activities turn to the waterfront with displays of water skiing by the Prince Edward water ski and kite flying club.

Later in the afternoon 2 p.m. interest turns to plaque unveiling. Indian dancing by a group of children trained by Mrs. Earl Hill.

In the evening 8 p.m. there will be a fashion show with period costumes (not necessarily from 1870) to be judged for prizes.

Stump Not So Easy To Have Removed

PICTON (Staff) — Picton reeve Albert Piroth was "stumped" temporarily during a council debate concerning tree removal Monday night.

He insisted all stumps remaining on town property should be removed and was puzzled because one, such stump has not been dug loose.

Councillor Bessie Ward informed him the stump in question is located on her property. "I am very fond of that stump," asserted Mrs. Ward, who said she became disturbed when she saw town workers preparing to remove it. She intervened in time to save the tree stump.

Reeve Piroth suggested if the stump is on Mrs. Ward's property then the felled tree was also there and the town should not have been financially responsible for its removal. Mrs. Ward declared the tree was cut two years ago on the authorization of former public works chairman Bernard Hepburn and added she did not want it cut.

"It was on my property and I felt badly when it came down. I didn't know it was being removed until I heard the saw," she said. She assured Mr. Piroth if the stump must be removed at a future date she will have it done at her expense since it is on her property.

"I'm worried about the principle of the thing and about that stump, not just Mrs. Ward's," announced the reeve.) He urged that town workers avoid trespassing to cut trees and said all stumps on town property should be removed.

Homebuilders Said 'Doing A Job'

Construction costs in the Belleville district have been kept down compared to larger Ontario centres because organized unions haven't shown their strength, Alec Kelly, president of the Ontario Council of National Homebuilders told the Quinte Homebuilders Association meeting at the Sun Luck Gardens this week.

"The price of resident i a l construction may be substantially increased if all the labor is done by union help," he told the representatives of area construction and affiliate industries.

"The cost of construction in Windsor is about $19.50 per square foot, by union labor, compared to $15.40 in the municipality of Tilbury, a small community near Windsor."

MORE

Members agreed with Mr. Kelly and local builder Charles Lambert commented, "the subtrades are making real good money in Belleville on a non-union basis and we can provide housing for about $15 per square foot here."

Mr. Kelly outlined several affiliate union scales; notably Hamilton's average of $8.80 an hour for electricians and he suggested steamfitters in the plumbing trade are negotiating for an increase of between $9.10 and $9.20 an hour, also union scale.

He said there has been too much emphasis on larger municipalities concerning control of construction industry prices and wages.

"There is more to Ontario than the city of Toronto . . . small communities like this one have housing needs and it is your responsibility to fill these needs.

Mr. Kelly continued, congratulating the homebuilders for "their' voice, heard on the local scene".

He was speaking primarily of the association's recent efforts to halt the adoption of an official plan in Trenton. With the halt, the homebuilders were able to present a brief, suggesting a decrease in the amount of park land and industrial land use area in the projections for the plan.

"The Quinte association is rare in having the respect and a good liaison with its local municipal councils."

Referring to an article in the Globe and Mail, in which the opposition in the Ontario legislature charged the Ontario Housing Corporation with playing favorites in choosing builders of public housing in Ontario, Mr. Kelly commented, "it is well known in the Quinte area that a local builder has been successful in being awarded the majority of the contracts for both senior citizens and geared-to-income housing.

He said "it is gratifying to see that the work is being done by local people with local subtrades getting the work. This business is not handed to any developer . . . he must go out and get the business."

STEPHEN J. HUNTER son of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Hunter, Elmwood Dr., received the degree of bachelor of arts at the convocation of Queen's University. Mr. Hunter is a graduate of Moira Secondary School and plans to study law at Dalhousie University, Halifax, Nova Scotia, in the fall.

DOUGLAS WALTER CONLEY, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Conley, 20 McGill St., Trenton, Ont., graduated from Queen's University faculty of medicine on Saturday, June 5. Dr. Conley received his earlier education at Dufferin Street school and Trenton high school. He will be continuing with his internship at Kingston General Hospital.

A Familiar Theme

Over-population and consequent strain on the world's resources is one of the great spectres of our day. We think of movie actor Cornel Wilde's production concerning what could happen when food and other resources give out. For our part we have been under the illusion that natural disasters such as the cyclone in Pakistan, earthquakes in Turkey, that sort of thing, are keeping a balance. Then we read that in Asia such population losses are swiftly repaired, as the following extract from an article by Garrett Hardin of the University of California, indicates.

"Those of us who are deeply concerned about population and the environment — econuts we are called — are accused of seeing herbicides in trees, pollution in running brooks, radiation in rocks, and overpopulation everywhere. There is merit in the accusation.

"I was in Calcutta when the cyclone struck East Bengal in November 1970. Early dispatches spoke of 15,000 dead, but the estimates rapidly escalated to 2,000,000 and then dropped back to 500,000. A nice round number; it will do as well as any, for we will never know. The nameless ones who died, 'unimportant' people far beyond the fringes of the social power structure, left no trace of their existence. Pakistani parents repaired the population loss in just 40 days, and the world turned its attention to other matters.

"What killed these unfortunate people? The cyclone, newspapers said. But one can just as logically say that overpopulation killed them. The Ganges delta is barely above sea level. Every year several thousand people are killed in ordinary storms. If Pakistan were not overcrowded, no sane man would bring his family to such a place. Ecologically speaking, a delta belongs to the river and the sea; man obtrudes there at his peril. . ."

• • •

Interesting, Mr. Hardin makes a lot of sense. Moreover, aside from this theme there is a parallel in his opening remarks with recent statements by P. D. McTaggart-Cowan, executive director of the Science Council of Canada.

In saying that the public has been fed a lot of "gobbledegook" about dangers to the environment Dr. McTaggart-Cowan suggests a degree of overkill on the subject of pollution, additives of food and so on. Certainly there is pollution, it is everywhere, ruined waterways, smoke and fume-filled skies, name it and it exists, but is it exaggerated?

According to McTaggart-Cowan scientists who do not communicate effectively with journalists must shoulder much of the blame. Some issues, notably cyclamates in food and water pollution by phosphates and mercury really are tempests in teapots. Scientists and bureaucrats had released some information to the press. The public had reacted. Politicians, feeling the weight of public pressure, came up with unwise laws and regulations. The federal ban on cyclamates, were an example, and from one U.S. experiment in which six rats were given massive doses of the chemical, used as an artificial sweetener. Cancer, and wide news coverage, resulted.

• • •

There is more in the same vein. A similar situation he says, applies to marine life. While action was necessary against the practice of dumping mercury into fresh water, mercury in the ocean was a different matter. Research shows that man discharges about 5,000 tons of mercury into the oceans annually, but this is nothing compared with the 20 to 30 million tons of mercury estimated to be present in sea waters.

Phosphate-based detergents, says Dr. McTaggart-Cowan, should not have been banned by the government. Human sewage was a far more important cause of the over-fertilization that ages lakes, choking them with weed growth. Thorough sewage treatment was the proper protective measure.

We wonder where Dr. McTaggart-Cowan was when we were in the midst of the controversy over phosphates, mercury and all. As the man in charge of the clean-up program for the oil spill from the tanker Arrow in Nova Scotia waters, perhaps he was too busy, or if he were indeed issuing such warnings then Ottawa must have turned a deaf ear.

Dairy Innovation

West Germans may soon be drinking milk out of bottles "fresher" than the milk itself. A machine has been developed which dairies can use to make plastic bottles according to need from day to day. Said to be a cheaper method than in the past, the machine is undergoing trials in several dairies.

College in Debt - Haven for Misfits Says M. P.

Rochdale—'A Symbol of Everything Wrong in Canada'

By GREG CONNOLLEY

OTTAWA — Rochdale College in Toronto has a sorry record as an educational institution and if it has any claim to fame this lies in the number of police raids on the institution and the amount of drugs seized by police.

The college has a $5 million Mortgage and Housing loan of nearly $3 million and currently the loan is in default to the tune of $359,000.

Citizens in Toronto, members of the Ontario legislature and the House of Commons protest the continued existence of this disastrous experiment in permissive education but to no avail.

It seems that the more police raids there are the more drugs uncovered, the more riots and disturbances at Rochdale, the more reluctant are federal officials to shut down the operation.

Robert Andras, minister of housing is the man who permits Rochdale to continue. From all accounts it is a failure with little or no prospect of ever existing on an even keel. Yet Andras brutalizes and delays taking any firm action to clean up the situation.

William C. Scott, MP for Victoria-Haliburton constituency in Ontario, is the latest to try and get some answers from the government on Rochdale. If ever received was a verbal run-around from Ray Perrault, parliamentary secretary to Labor Minister Bryce Mckasey.

Perrault, who used to be Liberal leader in British Columbia, said Rochdale was not just a simple mortgage problem. It it were, he indicated CMHC would take action to recover the taxpayers' money invested in this alleged institution of higher learning.

But Mr. Perrault went on to say that the positive role of Rochdale had not been understood. He spoke of the role it played in the lives of many young people in Toronto.

He told the Commons that "the negative aspects of Rochdale administration" had received the greatest attention. This was Mr. Perrault's parliamentary description of messy goings-on at Rochdale. He seemed to suggest that the college was not being treated fairly.

This again was part and parcel of the rather mystifying approach of Mr. Andras to Rochdale. In the college really doing something worth while? Are there political factors involved which are sensitive for the Liberal party? Is it just that the Trudeau government stubbornly does not want to admit being a party to a serious error?

But Mr. Scott has no misgivings in declaring that Rochdale should be shut down. He says bluntly that it is a symbol of everything wrong in Canadian society. He refers to police files showing Rochdale rivalled Yorkville as a haven for "drug users and pushers, hippies and yippies, deviates and social misfits of every type and description."

Mr. Scott also approached the Rochdale situation from a straight business sense, which perhaps is not appreciated by Mr. Andras and his officials. Scott wants to know why such a large CMHC loan should be allowed to fall 14 months in arrears.

He suggests that if some ordinary citizen got into this kind of difficulty, the government agency would be quick to deal with him and he could not expect the kind of mercy being lagled out to Rochdale.

The Ontario MP takes the view that Mr. Andras has decided to deal with Rochdale in a manner inconsistent with CMHC regulations. And he suggests that if this pattern continued in CMHC it would not be long before the corporation was caught up in sheer chaos.

The government of course has set up the inevitable committee to look into the Rochdale situation and to see how the public investment in the college may be protected.

Whatever solution — if any — the government provides, Mr. Scott suspects that the taxpayer will get it in the neck again.

A City's Wealth

Kimberley, the diamond city of South Africa — here Cecil Rhodes started the de Beers Mining Company — is a city of many attractions, among them the Duggan Kronin Bantu gallery with its collection of 8,000 photographs illustrating the traditional tribal life of the country's Bantu people. Some depicted in the exhibition were employed at the early Kimberley diggings, along with white adventurers, farmers, mechanics, clerks and countless others who flocked to the area, living in canvas towns along the Orange and Vaal rivers, in search of wealth. Among the latter was Rhodes, destined to greater fame and nation-building. The gallery's founder, A. M. Duggan Kronin, went to Kimberley as a Christian Brother and subsequently took many photographs at de Beers and throughout the country. (South African Digest picture).

Bikes, Kids, Dogs and All

A Languid Afternoon at Zwick's Island

Editor,
The intelligencer.

On Wednesday you complained of young motorcycle riders who "ran their big machines up the slope above the canteen, parked on the grass, and with girl friends in tow, held the kind of stag-in one associates usually with Front Street, dragged languidly around their bikes."

I guessed this obscene demonstration while I was "draped languidly" on a lounge chair. I was "draped" there because I was cleaning evidence of a dog from my shoe at the time. Does that mean we should lock up dogs? While I was languishing I also noticed several young couples lying side by side on blankets, some walking hand in hand and some lying (are you ready?) not only sitting in (heaven forbid!) but actually "draped languidly" on the grass. My God! "A cruiser had been in the park shortly before!" Thank God, policemen don't write editorials.

I was there incidentally, enjoying ten boys who were having a birthday party. The minute I arrived at 1:30 I really did wonder what had happened to my "quiet weekend". Strange groups, neighbours, families, several men helped my boys untangle fishing lines, and one gentleman carried a log from the whirl-around after he caught his foot in it. Good heavens — let's get rid of these kids - they're disturbing someone's quiet week-end.

I am surprised that your writer didn't mention dirt and long hair - six out of ten of the boys (9 years old average) who were with me had hair to their shoulders and all of them (me too - from dirt) were dirty! Those "young riders" with their "girl friends in tow" were a great deal cleaner than we were. (I guess he noticed this).

"Quiet week-end"! Because I work five days a week, like most people, I stop Saturday and hope to relax Sundays. Try stopping Saturday on Front Street - the "young riders" congregate in two or three places - everybody who lives here walks home - the road in front of them and who does it inconvenience? I often have several children "in tow" and these young people never upset me. I try walking anywhere else on Front Street except in a straight line - farmers meet, old timers meet, office workers meet, relatives meet - try to get past them. No wonder we go to Zwick's Island on Sundays.

Give me the sweet sound of nine year old boys, the pleasant smiles from people at spanky picnic tables, the enthusiasm of young people on motorcycles, the young love, walking hand in hand.

Send the police cruiser back for the dogs and the editorial writers.

ENID PETERS
EDITOR'S NOTE: OK! OK!
So the kids were minding their own business, and harming nobody, . .but who said anything about obscenity, dirt and long hair? It was jeans and regulation helmets from where we sat. Our point was simply this, that the parkland at Zwick's Island is no place for motorbikes. Let them stay on the roadway. . .and happy languishing to all with only the sound of children's chatter for background noise.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

June 12, 1971 . . .

The World Economic Conference began in London 33 years ago today—in 1938—in an attempt to solve a world-wide industrial and financial collapse. The conference failed, largely owing to President Roosevelt's refusal of European proposals to set up an unrestricted interchange-exchange system based on a fixed price for gold. The U.S. felt this would inhibit its own efforts to raise prices and reach industrial stability.

1863—An agreement was signed providing for a responsible government in Laos, to be made up of pro-Western, neutralist and Communist elements.

1964—Kenya was incorporated.

1937—1,542 died in an earthquake in Assam, India.

1897—Prime Minister Anthony Eden was born.

1852—Harriet Martineau, women's reformer, was born.

English as the Language of World Affairs

"Montreal La Presse: (French) President Pompidou is right in pointing out that, to remain European, the Common Market countries should prefer French to English as the working language, because French has the merit, so he says, of not calling to mind any imperialism, as is the case of English, the vehicle of American imperialism.

The remark is true, but it does not interfere with the brutal reality: French is marking time while English is constantly progressing.

An English-speaking conference recalled several facts the other day. English is a global language, he said. It is the most prevalent language in the world, along with mandarin in China. It is the second language of the principal countries of Europe.

Incidentally, and by a strange irony, the only country in Europe where French is considered as the second language is England. . . .

Specialists in the affairs of the Common Market have no doubt that English will finish by becoming the language of communication in Multiple Europe. Even French specialists recognize that, already, English is the language of current affairs, and yet England has not yet joined the European Economic Community.

Jean-Marcel Jeanneney, a French politician, (has) predicted . . . that English will become "the common political, scientific and commercial language" of the Common Market. Furthermore, he adds, "how vain it would be to preserve at all costs the appearance of a total French juridical sovereignty, if it led a subordination to outside forces."

To skirt this painful difficulty, the Common Market, like Quebec, still has a compromise formula: "Equality of the two languages in official reports."

President Pompidou notes further, and quite rightly, that French and English remain the "two languages with a claim to an international calling." English, he adds, has the advantage of being more easily adaptable to the rapid evolution of technology, whereas French remains a language whose rigor makes it an incomparable vehicle of precision and clarity.

"A person who speaks, or at least understands, French and English, has more and more right to feel himself a citizen of the world, and this is a comfortable feeling that weeds errors, is ever mounting numbers, are beginning to look for.

Six Toronto Citizens Members Of Church of Final Judgement

TORONTO (CP) — They call themselves followers of Christ rather than Christians because they say Christian churches tend to place the blame or guilt for a fallen world on others rather than on themselves.

They are members of The Process: Church of the Final Judgment, and there are six full-time members of them here, dedicated to a monastic life without personal money or possessions.

The church, founded about eight years ago in England by Robert de Grimston, appears to have a theology unlike other contemporary religions but at the same time with a mixture of several.

One of the books they sell to passers-by on busy Yonge Street is titled The Gods and Their People, an outline of the basic tenets of their faith. It expounds the belief that most people follow three gods: Jehovah, Lucifer and Satan.

The Jehovian is an austere individual, an apostle of doom, strong-willed and single-minded, and tends to be an authoritarian or tyrannical individual, it says. Of the others:

The Luciferian is the quiet, harmless, self-indulgent person who loves success, beauty and pleasure.

The follower of Satan worships destruction and doom, and his faith verges on insanity. He may be a user of drugs or is a mystic, an outcast who starves his body to shortest his mind.

Father Malachi—which is his full church-given name—is the leader of the Toronto group. He describes the belief this way:

"A conflict between the Jehovian and Luciferian parts of the individual is a mental conflict. When Satan is present there is a conflict between the body and the soul. Things are done for the betterment of the body and at the detriment of the soul. Or vice-versa.

"Things are moving more and more out of control and people are moving out of contact with the things they ought to be relating to. And so there is an extreme urge to place blame.

"In The Process you can find personal acceptance, no moral judgment and no aim to convert anybody. We're not going to jam help down anybody's throat."

The six members of the Toronto group are from the British Isles and all have been in Toronto for about two months. They hope to establish permanent quarters here soon.

Mass Given New Touch

HALIFAX (CP) — A 31-year-old Halifax lawyer who didn't care for the traditional hymns rung in most Roman Catholic churches has brought a contemporary touch to Sunday mass at St. Agnes Church here.

E. J. Flinn can be seen at noon mass on Sundays playing his guitar and leading a group of young people in singing what he terms "contemporary" hymns.

After playing a guitar in the church last summer at his sister's wedding, Mr. Flinn became convinced that something could be done to modernize liturgical music and propute congregational singing. With the permission of the church's pastor, Mr. Flinn taught a group of teen-age girls some modern hymns and startled the congregation one Sunday with the swinging rythm of the guitar and exuberant young voices.

The group started with eight girls and now has grown to 15 singers. All the new recruits volunteered after hearing the choir perform.

Mr. Flinn says the group is not a "folk choir" and that it doesn't sing a "folk mass".

"We sing hymns—but modern hymns. And we don't divest them out with the heavy beat of strumming guitars, drums or tambourines."

Coffee Club Bowlers Hold Banquet

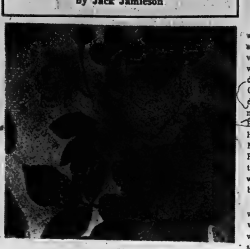
FRANKFORD — The Frankford Coffee Club bowling league held its bowling banquet on June 2, in the Frankford Legion Hall with women from both Trenton and Frankford participating. Play was at the D and A Bowl in Trenton.

Special guests for this occasion were Mrs. Audrey Ann and Mrs. Derek Dell.

Top scores for the year were attained by Sally Hyde who scored the high average of 207; high single of 321 and the high triple of 864.

The league champions were the Jolly Jumpers and members of the team included: Bridget Bell, Marie Clifford, Gladys Howard, Kae Murray, Gerry Melnyk and Margaret Davis. Runners-up were the Wild Cats and the last place team were the Misers.

In the A Division the play-off champions were the Whipsters with members of the team: Lorena Newton, Arvella Lawrence, Marguerite Carr, Ellen Daniels, Isabelle Blackley and Ben Schultz. Runners-up were the Rolly Jumpers who were league champions. In the B Division, the consolation winners were the Misers. The playoff last place team was the Scramblers.



The most improved average award was won by Gerry Melnyk and ten pin dishes with bowling figurines were presented to all the bowlers.

Lucky door prizes were drawn. Pins with those attaining a "300" score were presented to Freda Evans, Sally Hyde, Yvonne Desbenie, Sunny Davis and Eleanor Hoyle.

The new executive for the coming year includes: president, Ethel Harvey vice-president, Arvella Lawrence, both of Frankford and secretary, Lois Hewitt and Sylvia Rice, both of Trenton.

Tapestry Designed As Formal Garden

Occasionally an astounding value turns up unrecognized. The illustration shows a section of a carpet find, a piece so valuable any museum owning one would certainly not let you walk on it, and probably not even let you touch it.

The illustration comes from a small section of a tapestry designed as a stylized parterre or formal garden. Most tapestries were intended as wall hangings or upholstery but this one was made as a carpet, although never used as such. It is about 17 feet long by 14 feet wide and was made some time about 1840, possibly in France but probably in England. The last recorded sale of this type and size was $10,000 in 1969.

The carpet turned up in a second hand store in Hamilton, it was taken to Ottawa by a dealer, but because of its rarity and value was not suitable for any museum restoration going on in Canada, although it was considered for some of the refurnishing going on at the White House in Washington. When the City of Hamilton began completing the restoration of "Whitehern", the 1844 McQuesten residence, the drawing room carpet had to be replaced. This tapestry was suggested and it was found that not only did it fit the room exactly but also that it matched the existing mid-19th century drapes and furniture. The City of Hamilton was able to acquire it for less than the replacement cost of ordinary carpet.

The value of the carpet still remains at $10,000, partly because it is in such excellent condition. There is only one like it in the United States, as Winterthur, the Du Pont museum in Delaware. Queen Elizabeth owns a number and some are on display at the Brighton Pavilion in England.

The manufacture of tapestries was a royal prerogative in France for many centuries. Most tapestries were copies of pictures. In the 18th century the brothers Gobelin had tapestry carpets made to go with their furniture styles. Many were made by Thomas Moore of Moorfields.

In France, Aubusson and Beauvais are the main names connected with tapestries and they continue to manufacture by traditional methods. Each section of each color is woven separately by hand and the result looks like a jig-saw puzzle carefully fitted together. The weaver cannot see the face of his work. He has to observe the pattern by looking through the warp threads on the front at a mirror which reflects his work in reverse.

When the French monarchy fell in the late 18th century, many of the existing tapestries with the royal cypher were destroyed. In the early 1800s the factories were forbidden to manufacture carpet that represented the human form. It was said to be against the political aspirations of the Republic to degrade the human race by walking on the human figure. Hence this design of flowers in a formal garden.

Tapestry carpets, when they turn up in second-hand stores don't look like much. They are thin, either all wool, silk and wool or all silk. They wrinkle badly on the floor and the sections of the tapestry tend to separate, requiring continual needlework. However, even after 130 years the colors of the rug are brilliant and good for a few centuries.

WEDDING

Potter - Lang

The marriage ceremony was solemnized in St. Thomas Anglican Church, Belleville, on Saturday May 29, when Nadine Grosse Lang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curt Lang of Bonn, Duesseldorf, Germany was united in marriage to Thomas Charles Potter, Toronto, son of the Rev. Dr. Richard Potter and Mrs. Potter, RR1 Belleville. Rev. Peter Tett, minister of the church officiated and wedding music was rendered by Mr. D. Davenport.

For her wedding, the bride wore a full length gown of white chiffon over taffeta with a floral headdress and short veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses interspersed with lily-of-the-valley and ivy.

Maid of honor was Miss Karen Potter, sister of the bridegroom who wore a gown of turquoise crepe with three matching turquoise roses in her hair. She carried a bouquet of pink and white sweetheart roses.

Robert Anderson attended the bridegroom, while Andrew Potter, brother of the bridegroom ushered the guests.

A reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents at 21 Bell Avenue RR1 where the bride's mother and the hostess Mrs. Potter welcomed the guests. The bride's mother was attired in pale blue gabardine dress with bone accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. Mrs. Potter wore a turquoise lace dress with white accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter will reside in Toronto.

Necktes for All Occasions

MONTREAL (CP) — Fallier's Day ties have been the brunt of many a joke but, if you know your man, there is little excuse for your choice finding its way to the back of his closet.

Charles Lasarus, vice-president of Park Lane Neckwear Co., and his designers divide the male population into several categories and, if tie-buyers do the same, they should wind up with the accessories intended for them.

"Take a look at the people walking down any main street at noon hour," Mr. Lasarus said.

Leading the parade is the white-collar worker, a man who is likely settled down with a family. His job requires him to look presentable and he dresses within the boundaries of good taste.

This man, Mr. Lasarus said, wears color-co-ordinated clothes—brown shoes, suit, toning shirt and tie—subdued, yet fashionable.

For him, choose ties with a conservative design, neat geometric patterns, narrow stripes or plains.

Next in line and growing in number is the young white-collar or junior executive type. He is married, but his wife wears hot pants, not shirtwaists.

"He's a little bit of a swinger," wears colors which are a little lighter and is very susceptible to the fruit shades of purple and raspberry. His ties should have spaced figures, abstracts."

The sporting group, which considers itself more sophisticated, is "where you can really do something with fashion."

"These men emulate their heroes—the football and golf pros they see on television every week.

"Look at Tommy Ivan (general manager of Chicago Black Hawks)—he wears truly fine clothes in excellent taste.

"Peter Mahovlich of the Canadiens, on the other hand, is a different type. He wears garish clothes to express his more flamboyant personality."

Sports fans are likely to enjoy florals, large designs and bold stripes on their ties. What is lacking for this group, however, are ties long enough to go around their thick necks and still hang almost to the waist, instead of only to the second shirt button.

But there isn't sufficient demand for long ties, Mr. Lazarus said, so any sportsman who want them will have to place a special order.

Last and least, is the sales division anyway, are what he called "the flunkies."

"Flunkies take the worst of everything in clothing and somehow make it look okay. They're not fashion-conscious; their clothes are just pick-up stuff."

The manufacturers still get calls from women wanting to know where they can buy plain white shirts and three-inch ties for their husbands.

"I've got to tell them I just don't know," Mr. Lazarus said, adding that a good salesman should be able to put a soft mauve shirt and matching tie together in a combination that even a bank manager will wear proudly.

"Sell the style, not the stock."

Color television and magazine advertisements have made the demand for up-to-date clothing a countrywide phenomenon.

But show discretion when imitating an idol, Mr. Lasarus advised.

"Remember when Dean Martin started to get popular again about five years ago? He always wore wide bow ties with formal wear. They looked good because he is tall and slim.

"Well, we were forced to start making them too, even though most guys looked like absolute hell in them."

Senior Citizens Club Enjoys Trip to Ottawa

TWEED — Eighty-one members of the Tweed and District Senior Citizens Club journeyed to Ottawa by bus recently, where they were greeted by Mr. Lee Grills, MP at the parliament buildings. The group arrived about 12 noon.

Luncheon was provided by Mr. Grills in the confederation room in the West Block of the parliament buildings. This is a beautifully decorated room which is used for state visits and other important gatherings.

At the close of the luncheon, after some brief remarks by Mr. Grills, Senator Josie Quart addressed the gathering briefly, explaining some of the activities of the Senate and Committee work in general.

Expressions of appreciation were extended on behalf of the Senior Citizens for the hospitality shown by Mr. Grills by Albert McTaggart and Mr. H. Jenkins.

Following the luncheon, the guests visited the Centre Block and were escorted to the floor of the House of Commons by Mr. Grills who explained the function of the Commons Chamber to them.

During the visit to the Centre Block, several of the group were able to meet the Honorable Lucien Lamoureux, the Speaker of the House of Commons.

Church Marks 100th Anniversary

RAWDON — On Sunday June 6, over 200 people were in attendance for the 100th anniversary of the Mount pleasant - Rawdon United Church which was dedicated in 1871 as Hubble Hill Episcopal Methodist church. In 1900 the name was changed to Mount Pleasant.

Rev. W. C. Cox conducted the service and a former pastor Rev. R. R. Bonstreel of Stratford gave the message. The junior and senior choir sang and Miss Judith Mc-Adam gave a vocal solo with Miss Linda Potts as accompanist.

Mrs. Malcom Sharp, organist and Miss Jeannette Hoard pianist, furnished a musical prelude. The hymns included an old favorite, "The Churches' One Foundation."

The memorial flowers placed on the altar were in memory of Mrs. Roy Thrasher, Mrs. Ross Hoard and Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Hoard.

Gifts for the church were received and dedicated. The donors were the messenger group of the UCW, Mrs. Herbert Rivard, and Mrs. Lenore Williams. Letters of welcome were read from Mrs. W. E. Laycock of Kingston, Mrs. Wesley McTaggart of Hampton and a former pastor Rev. Henry Vaclavik, St. Catharines.

Lindsay McKeown read a brief history of the church. At present there are 79 families and 174 members.

Ross Hoard was in charge of the guest book which was signed by people from many distant points including Toronto, Stratford, Norwood, Oshawa and Belleville.

At the close of the service, a cafeteria lunch was served in the church hall under the direction of the UCW. Mrs. Garth Jorlin, president of the UCW and Mrs. Marguerite McMullen were at the door to welcome guests.

The hall platform was decorated with cedar boughs and centred with the tiered anniversary cake made by Mrs. Heybert Smith. Later four women of the church, Mrs. Earl McAdam, Mrs. Leonard Sharpe, Mrs. Allen Reid and Mrs. Percy MacMullen passed the cake.

A table was arranged with a large array of pictures of bygone days, a scrap book with the letters received at the 60th anniversary, and a large book with pictures and church records which had been gathered for the 75th anniversary by the late Rev. Townsend.

Ann Landers

'Socially Acceptable Outlets' Questioned

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Thank you for your Twelve Rules For Rearing Children. Number Three is, "Help your child find socially acceptable outlets for anger and hostility." What are "socially acceptable outlets?" Please print [illegible] my letter and elaborate on your answer. I'll bet I am not the only mother who needs help with this. — H.J., SYRACUSE READER.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR H.J.: Bottled emotions can cause a variety of physical problems — migraines, ulcers, colitis, and skin rashes, to name a few. Uncontrolled emotions can cause problems, too — such as broken heads, missing teeth, swollen eyes, etc.

All children experience anger, hostility and frustration. They should be encouraged to express these normal feelings in ways that are not destructive to themselves or others. For example: Encourage your child to play games that allow him to make noise and get rid of energy. You can make a game of breaking old toys or smashing cheap dishes. Let your child know that hitting a punching bag — but never people — is a good outlet. Any sport that produces fatigue is excellent — jumping up and down or running around the block. Beating drums or blowing a trumpet can be useful, too.

Children who are taught early in life to get rid of hostile feelings in a socially acceptable manner do not punch teachers, beat their wives, or become involved in street fights and lawsuits.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My cousin came to live with us when her husband died last year. It is in her middle 60's and in unusually good health. We are in our 40's and I wish we felt and looked as well as she does. My husband and I invited B to make her home with us because we wanted to be kind, not because she is rich. Nothing was said about room and board but B offered to pay $50 a month. (This is peanuts when one considers her income, to say nothing of her stocks and bonds.)

The other evening B announced out of a clear blue sky, "You will be wealthy when I die." My husband said nothing but he was thinking plenty. We do aspire to be wealthy, Ann, but we could certainly use a little help in paying off our mortgage and putting our kids through school — Now.

My cousin won't spend a dime unless she absolutely has to. When the two of us go downtown to do errands we usually stop for a cup of coffee and a piece of pie. She always manages to fiddle in her purse for the exact amount and I say, "I have it." This has happened so many times it's gotten to be a joke.

Why don't people with money realize that the time to give it away is when their relatives need it? Print this if you want to, but no name, please. — HURT.

DEAR HURT: You say in your opening paragraph that you invited your cousin to live with you because you wanted to be kind, and not because she is rich. If this is true, be kind — and stop complaining because she doesn't fork over large sums of money now. If you don't think $50 a month for room and board is enough, say so (in my opinion it's pretty darn little) but don't confuse the issues.

The really sad part of your letter is the fact that the old tightwad is cheating herself of the joy that comes from giving. She is more to be pitied than censored.

Dreams Give Expression to Some Frustrations

By DORIS CLARK

Not only do dreams help us to give expression to some of those subconscious frustrations which are taboo during the day. Not only do they sometimes give us an unauthorized peek into the future, (or so we are told), we now find evidence that telepathy occurs frequently in dreams. There's an experimental laboratory which is finding out about it.

What they have found out is that when a sender concentrates on a specific thought — a painting perhaps, — the dreamer has, more often than not, been able to report a dream in which he was viewing a scene much like the painting.

* * *

Dear Doris: The man I go with and I both have two marriages behind us. He says he needs me, but everything goes his way. I give him gifts, he gives me none.

I only see him when he calls. I cannot phone him because it upsets his 14-year-old daughter. He is the first man I have really cared for. My prince I have waited for all my life. We are sexually compatible. — Foolish 45

Dear Foolish: You said it — I didn't. A few things need ironing out before it would be anything but foolish for you to consider marrying this man.

A future together will involve his daughter and he should be the first to help you two to become friends. Then you should have an open-and-above-board courtship. You need to stand aloof a little until these things fall into place.

He says he needs you. He is the one who should be proving it. Prince or no prince, he is not good marriage material until he learns to put you on your special pedestal.

* * *

Dear Doris: My girl friend is getting married and going to Australia. I want to have a shower for her. What can we do that will be different? Most of them have games, gifts, lunch and that's it. — Looking for an Idea.

Dear Looking: Would you like to make it a luncheon shower, perhaps held at noon on Saturday? That would be different. You could serve a hot casserole dish with some tossed salads and a specially decorated shower cake.

You might find it a change to put on a skit like our "Mock Wedding". Or how would you like the sheet wedding Suitable for a Shower?

It isn't going to be easy for this bride to transport bulky things half way across the world — and Doris suggests a shower of things that are easy to pack like linen, or a personal shower to include lingerie, notepaper and other small personal items.

Install a baby gate at the top and bottom of the stairs. Have stairs carpeted to provide firmer footing. If surfaces are uncarpeted, check to see they are not slippery. Teach baby to back down their stairs as soon as he learns to climb up them, and insist other small children hold an adult's hand or a railing until they are sure-footed enough to maneuver without help.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Reader Writes in Appreciation

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: I just read your column tonight and read about the one that did not like your Kentucky fried chicken. I really think they need their head examined. We were in Florida all winter. I received the paper and saw the recipe. I cut it out and the next time we had company I tried it out and they just loved it. Two of them wrote the recipe out, then for our church cover dinner I made it again and everybody asked to made that chicken? They said the meat was so nice and juicy. Also a week ago we had company for dinner and I had the chicken and both girls wanted the recipe. I really don't think I have tasted chicken like it, so I hope you continue. Also the pineapple squares you had in the paper the other night, I had lost my recipe and I sure cut it out in a hurry and one of these days I will be making them. So Mary Moore keep up the good work. Thanking you for all the nice recipes I cut from your paper.

— Mrs. Hopwood

ANSWER: It was a great relief to receive your letter and others praising the Kentuckian Fried Chicken. Maybe our complaining reader got out of the wrong side of the bed on the morning she wrote. I hope I am reinstated in her favor.

QUESTION: I am a 22 year-old bride. My husband has a bought a portable barbecue and wants to cook our steaks on it. I have never bought a steak. Would you please print in your column some hints on how to buy sirloin steak for barbecuing? We want to invite our friends. — Nancy M.

ANSWER: Assume a knowing air when you talk to the butcher. Ask for steak that has been hung for at least three weeks — preferably four weeks. Pick a sirloin with a small amount of bone (wedge or round bone); but for maximum tenderness look for the sirloin with a long, flat bone. That is top sirloin and is best. Also look for a large "under-cut". The undercut is a crosswise slice of the beef tenderloin attached under the bone section and is the tenderest part of the beef. Ask the butcher to help you find a sirloin steak with all of these requirements. He can spot them in a minute. Sirloin steaks should be at least 1" thick — preferably 1¼" but you may have to be quite firm in making your request for a steak that thick. You can quickly become an expert if you assert yourself.

JEWELLERY JUBILEE

" . . . and jewels . . . that on the stretched forefinger of all time sparkle forever." — Tennyson.

* * *

"Ah, June, the month of engagement and wedding rings," sighed a friend as we noted a young couple gazing at the rings in a jeweler's window.

"I'm glad," she went on, "that jewellery isn't confined to just June alone. How desolate the world would be without the intriguing glint, sparkle and design of all jewellery. Whatever would woman do without it? Like perfume it gives the spirit such a lift.

"In fact, to go into a department store of any kind which has no jewellery counter to welcome one, with its fascinating array, is to miss a treat at once. It is like being served bread without flavor.

"Of course," we offered, "managers of such stores will tell you that selling jewellery today is a risky business. If the designs and type offered for sale aren't to the customers' liking - the loss is considerable. The space is better kept for sure - fire selling merchandise . . .

"True and I am aware of that. Yet never it seems has there been such demand for it as today. There are masses of it in boutiques, in small shops now, where ever one goes. Note how men's shops are going in for male jewellery. Perhaps we're going full circle. Did you by any chance see the TV series on "Henry the Eighth?"

Thus I learned: both men and women wore jewellery in Elizabethan times. It marked the height of male jewellery, but since then has been on the decline, though not true as far as the women are concerned.

"Strange as it may seem," my companion continued, "it was Henry the Eighth who, impressed by his French rival Francois I introduced to the English court unheard of collections of jewellery. Naturally his nobles followed suit, but did not dare to out shine their monarch. He is described as wearing a cap with a band of gold and enamel ornaments, a gold collar over a mantle, its pendant entirely of diamonds.

"The pendant, usually hung on a fine gold chain, became popular in the 16th century and was worn by both women and men. The girdle often made of gems and enamel medallions might be hung with small scissors, mirrors. Elaborate bracelets were favored, and because the rings were set with large stones, gloves were slashed that they might be seen.

"The general favorite though was the pearl, which Tudor ladies wore in their hair as well as on their dresses. They often were stitched over the entire bodice, and thought to be artificial, since that art was known then.

"So you see, perhaps this all explains at least my love for jewellery. It's inherited Or again - perhaps it is just the gypsy in me that finds every jewellery counter so appealing and draws me forward it as a magnet.

Lewis Promised Action

Carton Shocked by Services to Strike-bound

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, asked Labor Minister Gordon Carton Friday to investigate a firm that offers "specialized services to a strike-bound company," in-cluding a sherman pinscher trained for crowd control.

Mr. Lewis called it a professional strike-breaking company that violates the intent of the Labor Relations Act—that such companies should be outlawed.

After hearing the contents of a letter sent out by the company, Mr. Carton called it "abhorrent" and promised he would not let the matter rest.

Mr. Lewis read parts of the letter, at a meeting of the legislature's administration committee. It was signed by R. A. Grange, president Ontario operations, Canadian Driver Pool Ltd.

It claims the company helped 43 industries break strikes and in some cases achieve up to 85-per-cent productivity during a strike.

"Once the striking employees see that the company intends to stay productive without their help, the morale of the strike has been broken and we have separated the hard-core union-ists from the employees who are just worried about how they are going forward to meet their next monthly payments," the letter says.

It offers "an experienced security force . . . using the latest electronic equipment."

"These men have been trained especially for this type of work and operate with doberman pinschers which are trained for crowd control and plant security . . . The security team will also supply cameramen who will record any acts which could be detrimental in any way to your company.

"This information is useful in presenting a case with regard to an injunction against the union."

The letter says Canadian Driver Pool Ltd. will supply drivers to move a product safely in and out of a strike-bound plant.

"There are many other services which are tailored to your special needs but these, due to security, can only be discussed with you personally. There is one point I would like to make and that is, we never use 'force', only 'the law and its means'."

Mr. Grange said in a telephone interview he would not comment on who controls or owns the company.

He would not say what other operations the company is engaged in or how long it has been operating in Ontario.

In other business:

—Labor Minister Gordon Carton told a committee studying his department's $25.8 million estimates for 1971-72 that he might intervene in a dispute between The Star and six unions before a strike deadline Thursday.

—George Kerr, minister of energy and resources, said Ontario is negotiating with Ottawa to help it finance the $360 million cost of cleaning up provincial waterways under the new Canada-United States agreement on Great Lakes pollution control.

—Attorney-General Allan Lawrence introduced legislation that would increase the maximum award for victims of crime to $15,000 from $10,000.

—Attorney-General Lawrence, in reply to Donald MacDonald (NDP—York South), said he had nothing to do with raids of the offices of two denturists in Mr. MacDonald's riding this week.

—Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) said Ontario is advertising for engineers in Britain while engineers in Ontario can't find jobs.

Davis Won't Serve As Parley Mediator

TORONTO (CP) — "I don't cast myself in the role of a mediator," Premier William Davis said Friday as he made last-minute arrangements for the federal-provincial constitutional conference opening Monday in Victoria.

Mr. Davis said the Ontario delegation, to include three senior cabinet ministers, will approach the conference with the attitude that "substantial agreement" is possible on the major agenda issues.

For example, he said, he could see no significant bottlenecks to achieving full agreement on an amending formula to return the British North America Act to Canada. Such an agreement would be regarded as a major step in constitutional reform.

Mr. Davis was scheduled to arrive in the British Columbia capital Sunday, along with Treasurer Darcy McKeough, Attorney-General Allan Lawrence and Thomas Wells, minister of social and family services.

Minutes before arriving at a news conference to brief Queen's Park reporters on the Victoria conference, the premier received a lengthy telegram from Quebec officials setting out the paper that province will submit to the delegates on social policy.

Mr. Davis would not discuss the paper, or release it to reporters, saying he had had time only to scan it briefly. But an initial glance convinced him that the paper "could add a degree of complexity" to the conference discussions.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa succeeded in having social policy placed on the conference agenda, which has not yet been made public.

Mr. Davis told the news conference Ontario agreed to having the issue placed on the agenda, although "significant economic implications" are involved.

Mr. Davis said he has not discussed the issue with Mr. Bourassa and no formal meeting is planned in Victoria with the Quebec leader, or Prime Minister Trudeau, prior to the conference.

Quebec Demands for Control Of Social Affairs Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec's demand for complete control of social affairs is completely unacceptable, highly-placed informants said Friday.

The sources said the federal government and the other provinces will firmly oppose Quebec's demand for extended jurisdiction in social affairs at next week's federal-provincial conference in Victoria.

There was hope the proposal is just a means of negotiation.

The informants said the Quebec demands involve the whole social security field and are contained in the province's proposal to amend article 94a of the BNA Act.

The article entitles the federal government to legislate in the areas of old-age pensions and additional allowances, including those for surviving dependents and invalids.

It adds that "no federal law based on this article should interfere with the application of any present or future provincial legislation in these areas."

The provision for the provinces to adopt the major role in such matters has been seized upon by Quebec, which includes such areas as family allowances, social welfare, manpower training and unemployment insurance in what it considers social policy.

The informants said the Quebec government, led by Premier Robert Bourassa and Social Affairs Minister Claude Castonguay "are waging a propaganda war" in trying to gain support for their position.

The federal government will consider any serious recommendation on the amendment of article 94a, they said, and has already submitted two proposals to the provincial governments which would give the provinces more power.

If the Quebec demands were accepted it would be Quebecers who would suffer most, because of fiscal transfers which would not develop, the informants said.

All provinces, including Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia, would have to be given the same powers as Quebec and it would be the poorer provinces, including Quebec, which would suffer. The informants said the other provinces are sure to throw their support behind the federal government.

"A WEEKEND OF FUN AND ENTERTAINMENT FOR ALL THE FAMILY"

Cholera Checked But - -

Refugee Flood Flows On

BARSAT, India (Reuter) — Large numbers of refugees continued to trickle into this town in West Bengal from across the East Pakistan border today and many were moving out on the other side of the road to Calcutta 15 miles to the south.

They are only a tiny part of the continuing exodus from East Pakistan into West Bengal and Assam states and the centrally administered territories of Tripura and Meghalaya. Already about six million have fled into India.

An Indian refugee official said heavy rain in East Pakistan and some of the West Bengal border areas has cut the number of refugees to between 30,000 and 35,000 a day. Earlier this week they were flooding out at the rate of 60,000 to 100,000 a day.

The cholera raging among them is still rampant—and men, women and children die unnoticed and unmourned by the roadside every hour. Latest estimate is that more than 3,000 have died.

But doctors report the epidemic now is under control and vaccine and other relief supplies are pouring into Calcutta's Dum Dum airport every day from foreign countries.

This town has a normal population of around 90,000. During the last week 200,000 East Pakistani refugees have walked in, producing fears of riots as they moved into local mosques and private homes before being evicted by armed police. Now there are about 150,000 occupying open land, schools and government buildings, and all the sidewalks.

Most of the refugees, who have tramped many miles from across the East Pakistan border toward Calcutta, are emaciated, suffering from malnutrition and disease.

Dr. A. K. Ghose, a doctor at the town hospital, said 737 refugees have been admitted to the small crowded hospital during the last three weeks and 103 have died, most from cholera.

But cholera admissions are going down. Only 29 were admitted two days ago compared with 75 seven days ago.

"Cholera has not been properly checked yet, but it is being controlled," said Dr. Ghose. "But there is a terrible danger that it could flare up again."

Several cases of pneumonia have also been reported. This is the disease doctors are coming to fear most with the onset of the monsoon. Thousands of refugees already weakened by exhaustion and lack of food and shelter could die.

Except for two heavy showers which virtually submerged the low-lying refugee camps around Calcutta, the full monsoon has not yet reached the area.

But the heavy overcast sky each day is an ever-present threat of torrential rains to come.

The misery of the refugees is heart-rending.

Walking through Barasat, I saw a woman dying on the open ground with three young boys, triplets about three years old, beside her.

One of the emaciated children sucked desperately at her breast for milk. There was none.

A second moaned softly, over and over again to his mother: "Are you dead? Are you dead?"

The third sat quietly, waving a rag and staring stolidly at passing people.

State government officials said more and more refugees are moving into Calcutta itself, although government authorities have tried to prevent this by setting up camps and check points on the roads into the city.

The Indian government already has put into operation a plan to move up to 2.5 million refugees from the border areas to 30 new camps with the help of an airlift by British, American, Russian and Australian aircraft.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi began a two-day tour of refugee camps in Assam and Meghalaya Friday.

Russia Is Reassuring China

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Speeches by Soviet leaders this week indicate Moscow is trying to reassure China on its relations with the United States while keeping up the momentum of calls for talks with the West on reducing the arms race.

In the last of a series of addresses by the Kremlin's triumvirate before Soviet elections Sunday, Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev affirmed Friday night Soviet readiness to discuss with the U.S. cuts in their naval forces cruising in distant waters.

But in his speech Wednesday Kosygin suggested he was seeking both to denounce China's accusations and allay its fears in rejecting a suggestion that Moscow and Washington plan to reserve to themselves the solution of world problems.

Brezhnev renewed Friday night his call for a conference of the five nuclear powers and said Russia and the world public are waiting for an answer.

To make sure the point was not lost he named all five, listing China second after the Soviet Union. The others are the U.S., Britain and France.

Brezhnev laid stress on the need for "equal security" between the Soviet Union and the U.S., especially with reference to their talks on limiting the strategic nuclear arms race.

The same principle, applied to the problem of European force reductions, could go some way toward the NATO demand that such cuts be mutual and balanced, but none of the three leaders has used this Western formulation.

Brezhnev went farther than any other Kremlin figure had previously done when he said Moscow is ready to discuss reductions in both national and foreign forces.

The foreign-policy section of his speech provided a strange contrast with Kosygin's, which attacked the U.S. with a catalog of exporting its monetary crisis to its allies.

Brezhnev spoke mostly of relations with the U.S., almost as if ignoring Kosygin's warning that U.S. "barbarity" in Vietnam could not help affecting those relations.

But observers here have little doubt the speeches were carefully co-ordinated in advance. Kosygin's could be read partly as reassurance to China that Moscow is not going to make deals with Washington at the expense of socialism.

Hydro-Quebec Crews Returning to Their Jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — Hydro-Quebec's emergency repair crews were reported returning to work in some parts of Quebec today following issuance of a temporary injunction ordering the utility's 12,000 striking employees back to their jobs.

Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer announced signing of the injunction during a brief news conference shortly before midnight Friday.

The injunction, effective until next Thursday, orders "an immediate end to all illegal acts, walkouts, strikes or illegal actions."

Representatives of the Canadian Union of Public Employees declined, however, to speculate on whether the four-day wildcat strike would be ended by the court order.

"At this point, it's up to the membership," said Jacques Campeau, one of 13 union leaders who could face contempt of court charges if the illegal walkout continues.

CUPE officials said they would meet today to discuss the injunction and possible further action.

Prospect of Hulme-Stewart Battle Looms at Mosport

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — The prospect of a battle between two of the world's premier auto racing drivers stimulated most of the interest in Sunday's Can-Am auto race as a potential field of 37 drivers began qualifying runs Friday.

Scotland's Jackie Stewart and Dennis Hulme of New Zealand turned in the fastest qualifying times in Friday's sessions but Canadian John Cordt came in with the fourth fastest run.

The drivers face another torrid day of qualifying runs today and all will be shooting to better the 114.522-mile-an-hour lap turned in by Stewart Friday in his new unproved Lola T260.

Hulme, the defending Can-Am champion, will handle the No. 1 McLaren team entry with Peter Revson of the United States handling the No. 2 car. McLaren-designed machines and Hulme have dominated the series since the beginnin in 1967, winning 29 of 33 races.

Stewart, Hulme and Revson had the only faster times than Cordt's in Friday's workouts, but today the Lotus Manchester car hit the track and they are potentially faster than the McLaren. MBC handled by the Barrie, Ont., driver.

However, Cordt was optimistic that his one minute, 20.4 second lap averaging 110.107 miles an hour can be improved on "if we can get better tires for tomorrow".

Three other Canadians have entered Sunday's $75,000 event leading to the Canadian-American Challenge Cup title. Andersh, Rodi Batting of Toronto, Sifton's above Friday.

Roger McCall of Calgary had a 1:25.8 lap but expects better times in two weeks when he and his McLaren MBE. Ralner Brenska of Toronto, in A McLaren M6B, Ran out of gas on the course and Gordon Dewar of Ottawa experienced vibrations in his March car, the only one in the series, during speed tests.

Today's qualifying runs were scheduled to start at 11:45 p.m. EDT.

All drivers will have shot at the track today with their best times from the Friday-Saturday sessions determining the starting positions for Sunday's race.

"The car is still not anywhere near right because it's so new," said Stewart, current leader in the Grand Prix world championship for Formula I cars.

The 32-year-old Scot is expected to break the McLaren-Hulme monopoly in the series but still has some reservations about his own car.

While his car turned in top performances Friday, Stewart expects the experienced McLaren cars to lap in the "low 1:24s" during the course in one minute, 18 seconds.

"With all the years of development behind them, they have a much better chance of finding that extra second than we do," said Stewart. He admitted his own crew was constantly making adjustments to the Lola which, as yet, is untried in the Can-Am series.

Stewart, vice-president of the Grand Prix Drivers' Association, supported Hulme's earlier contention that tracks such as Mosport should be continually refurbished to give the drivers the best possible surface on which to manoeuvre their cars.

Hulme said that Mosport track was potted with potentially-dangerous cracks and that since the drivers and sponsors spend millions to improve their machine, track owners could at least spend thousands to improve the facilities.

He said unless improvements came about, the situation could force Can-Am drivers into a position where they would consider strike action against the track.

There was no threat of drivers not showing for a race, but Hulme felt that track owners be made aware of their complaints.

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Debbie Austin, a 23-year-old blonde bidding for her first golf victory since turning pro in 1968, equalled the course record with a brilliant five-under-par 68 Friday to take the lead at the half-way mark of the $53,000 LPGA championship. Miss Austin's birdie spree, after an opening-round 73, gave her a 36-hole total of 141 and a three-stroke lead in her bid for the top prize money of $7,950. The first-round co-leaders, Kathy Ahern and Jane Blalock, slipped to 74s. They were tied for second place with Kathy Whitworth, the 1967 LPGA champion. Sandra Post Elliott, formerly of Oakville, Ont., who upset Miss Whitworth in a play off here three years ago, fired her second straight 73 for fourth place, five strokes off the pace.

* * *

EDINBURGH (Reuter) — Eddie Thomas manager of Ken Buchanan, Scotland's world lightweight boxing champion, said Friday he would not stand in the way if Buchanan chose to settle in Canada. Buchanan, visiting relatives in Toronto, has been reported as saying he is seriously considering settling in Canada. Thomas said: "It would not worry me too much if we had to part, though it would be a pity. after the success we have achieved."

TORONTO (CP) — Conn Smythe, commenting that "standards are going down everywhere today," has resigned as chairman of the governing committee of the Hockey Hall of Fame. Smythe, the man who built Maple Leaf Gardens 40 years ago and made his team a power in the National Hockey League, quit over induction of th elate Harvey Busher Jackson to the hall. He said his letter of resignation went to NHL president Clarence Campbell Thursday. Jackson, a member of the famed Kid Line of the Maple Leafs with Joe Primeau and the late Charley Conacher, died in 1966.

Andy Still Handy

KITCHENER (CP) — Defending champion Andy Bathgate won the 11th annual professional hockey players golf tournament Friday with a one-under-par 72.

The victory at the 6,729-yard Westmount Golf and Country Club was the fourth in the event for the veteran National Hockey League right winger, who played this year with Pittsburgh Penguins.

Toronto Maple Leafs' Paul Henderson and minor leaguer Jack Stanfield were tied for third with 76s.

Two shots back of them were Peter Mahovlich of...Montreal Canadiens and NHL referee Bill Friday.

Kitchener amateur Gary Cowan shot a 72 and was low amateur in the guest division followed by Mike Whitby of Kitchener with a 75.

Horsemen Hear Epidemic Rumors

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's equestrian team entry in the Pan American Games is attempting to find out the seriousness of a reported epidemic in Venezuela of a disease which affects horses, the team chairman said Friday.

W. D. Whitaker said team officials are to meet this weekend with Dr. Kenneth Wells, veterinary director-general of Canada, and will announce a decision Monday about participation in th Games.

The United States entry withdrew last Wednesday because of a rumor of an epidemic in Cali, Colombia, of equine encephalo-sleeping sickness.

Controlling Shares Must Go On Block

BC Commission Orders Canucks Sold

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Securities Commission Friday seized the records of Northwest Sports Enterprises Ltd., parent company of Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League, and directed that a controlling block of the company's shares be put up for auction.

The commission also ordered the locks changed on the doors of the Canucks' offices in the Pacific Coliseum, home arena of the Vancouver club.

The move, which stunned hockey fans in the city, came 24 hours after Medical Investment Corp. (Medicor) of Minneapolis failed to repay a $3.5 million debt arising from transfers of money to the United States.

The seizure of company records was one of a series of swift-paced developments Friday that began when the four Canadian directors of the NHL club announced in a letter to shareholders that they intended to step down because of disagreement with the majority American ownership over the transfer of money from Canada.

The Vancouver Stock Exchange followed with an order during the middle of the trading session to halt trading on publicly-owned shares of Northwest Sport. The stock was trading at $6.50 a share at the time, down 75 cents from Thursday's close.

Friday's developments were the outcome of a number of behind-the-scene moves started last April when the Canadian directors, Coleman Hall, Cyrus H. McLean, Frank McMahon and Max Bell learned that $3,503,000 had been transferred by Medicor four months earlier from Northwest funds to the U.S.

Mr. McLean said Friday night that the directors heard about the transfer from "the superintendent of brokers who had got an anonymous phone call from Minneapolis."

William S. Irwin, B.C. superintendent of brokers, ordered Medicor to deposit its 601,000 shares, representing 60.1 per cent, of Northwest shares and additional securities with Montreal Trust Company as securities for the money transferred from Northwest.

Under terms of an escrow agreement of May 12, Medicor was given until June 10 to return the funds. When the money was not repaid, Montreal Trust instructed Royal Securities Corp., as its agent, to seek a buyer for the securities lodged by Medicor.

The agreement provides that Medicor will have 72 hours in which to make a counter-offer after a buyer or buyers are found. If sale of the collateral does not cover the debt, Medicor is liable for any deficiency.

Within hours of Friday's announcement, industrialist Ben Ginter of Prince George, B.C., expressed interest in buying the Canucks. Mr. Ginter, who owns a block of Canuck shares, said that "all things being equal I'll be able to do it myself."

Tom Scallen, president of Medicor, is quoted by the Minneapolis Tribune as saying the corporation is "in the process" of arranging a loan for payment of the $3.5 million.

In a telephone interview from New York, Mr. Scallen told The Tribune that the Vancouver club is in "solid financial condition" and added:

"There is every reason to believe once the $3.5 million is deposited with Montreal Trust Co., we'll be back in control."

Mr. Scallen also said "the Canadian directors wanted the money invested in Canada and I felt it could yield a better return by investing it as I did."

The letter to Northwest shareholders from the company's Canadian directors said the shares were placed in escrow as a result of the following transactions made without their knowledge or agreement:

—$3 million was sent last December from Northwest Sports Enterprises Ltd. (the Canucks' parent company) to the account of a Chicago financier; —Between August and November of last year $505,000 was transferred from Vancouver Hockey Club Ltd. (the Canucks) to Medicor of Minneapolis, Minn., a firm which owns 89.1 per cent of Northwest Sports Enterprises.

The Canadian directors also said they were opposed to a plan by Mr. Scallen to spend $2.5 million of the company's money to purchase the ice show, Holiday On Ice.

Language Barrier

QUEBEC (CP) — Guy Bertrand, lawyer for hockey player Mike Bloom who did not appear in court here to face charges of striking a policeman with his stick, asked Friday that the charge be dropped because the summons issued had been written in French only.

Every Canadian has the right to have his summons written in his own language, the lawyer argued.

Bloom, a forward with St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, is charged with having struck a policeman in the face with his hockey stick May 8 as his team was being escorted to its dressing room following a heated Richardson Cup playoff encounter with Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Junior A Hockey League.

Judge Yvon Sirois said he would rule on the matter next Tuesday.

Gray Going Great

KITCHENER (CP) — Clyde Gray of Toronto, the Canadian welterweight champion, had little difficulty in defeating fifth-ranked Walter Arsenault of Summerside, P.E.I., in his feature bout of the first professional boxing card here in 29 years.

Gray, ranked No. 6 in the world, stopped Arsenault on a technical knockout at one minute and 48 seconds of the second round before a crowd of 667.

Gray weighed 149 pounds to Arsenault's 150½.

Encore Ace

NORWICH, Eng. (AP) — John Hudson hit on a million-to-one chance in the $15,000 Martini Golf Tournament Friday. He scored two consecutive five holes in one.

The 25-year-old pro got his first on the 194-yard 11th with a four iron. Then, after a 20-minute wait to tee up, he got his second on the 311-yard 12th.

Hudson's drive was down wind. "I hit the shot on what seemed the right line," he commented later. "It pitched just short of the green and trickled in at the last gasp."

Hudson finished with a second round 72 for a 36-hole total of 144, five strokes back of the leader, Bernard Hunt at 139.

The record books show only two previous successive holes in one in Britain, by Roger Came at Waller in 1964 and Dr. Robert Anderson at Charlton two years ago.

Cookie Crumbles Royal Opponents While Boog Begins to Belt Long Ball

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kansas City's Cookie Rojas, whose name can be found among the American League batting leaders but not on the all-star ballot, slammed a three-run triple that propelled the red-hot Royals to a 6-3 victory over Boston Red Sox Friday night.

BOOG POWELL

"I come to play, day in, day out," says Rojas, whose .310 average tops all league infielders. "And when you're batting .310, well, there's nothing like playing for a winner."

The winning habit has caught on for the Royals, who have reeled off nine victories in their last 10 starts to move within six games of the West Division lead.

New York Yankees toppled West leaders Oakland Athletics 6-4, Baltimore's streaking Orioles, East Division pace-setters, downed Chicago White Sox 8-5, Detroit Tigers trimmed Minnesota Twins 4-1, Cleveland Indians the Athletics at Oakland, Jerry Kenney's triple, a double by Bobby Murcer and a two-run single by Thurmon Munson were the key blows.

Reds edged Milwaukee Brewers 2-1 and California Angels beat Washington Senators 4-3 in other Friday night action.

Luis Tiant, making his first start for Boston since being recalled from the minors, filled the bases on three walks in the first inning at Kansas City. Rojas promptly cleared them with a triple to left-centre field and then scored what proved to be the winning run on Chuck Harrison's sacrifice fly.

The three RBI gave Rojas 28 for the season, matching his 1970 total for the Royals.

The Yankees chased nine-game winner Jim (Catfish) Hunter during a four-run eighth-inning uprising that sent them Slump-ridden Boog Powell, who led the all-star first base candidates in the early-balloting despite a below-.300 average, cracked a two-run homer and a single as the Orioles flattened Chicago's Joe.

Willie horton drove in two Detroit runs with a double and homer and left-hander Mike Kilkenny, of Bradford, Ont., nailed his first victory of the year by checking Minnesota on six hits.

The Indians topped Milwaukee on a two-run homer by rookie Chris Chambliss and the tight pitching of Steve Dunning and a pair of relievers.

California pounded Denny McLain for nine hits and four runs in six innings, handing the Senators' luckless ace his 11th setback—high in the majors.

Richie Allen knocked in four runs with two homers and a sacrifice fly and Al Downing pitched a five-hitter for Los Angeles. Wes Parker had four hits for the Dodgers, who blasted off with an eight-run second inning.

Ed Spiezio struck a sacrifice fly in the second inning and Clarence Gaston cracked a run-scoring single in the third for the only hits in the San Diego victory.

Southpaw Dave Roberts turned back Philadelphia on eight hits, blanking the Phillies until the eighth, to win a duel against Barry Lersch.

Miscue Costly to New York

Mets Out-Fumble Giants

The bumbling, fumbling San Francisco Giants found a way to win Friday night. They used a wild pitch to score the winning run in the 10th inning of a 3-2 triumph over New York Mets.

"It was a human error," said Mets' relief pitcher Tug McGraw, whose pitch sailed past catcher Jerry Grote and allowed Hal Lanier to score from second base.

It was only the second Giants victory this month.

"I threw a fastball and Grote was expecting a screwball", said McGraw of the fouled-up play. "I thought he called for a fastball and he says he called for a screwball. One of us made a mistake."

New York manager Gil Hodges also made a mistake by protesting the play, claiming that a fan touched the ball after it bounced off Grote's glove, and that the runner should have only been awarded one base. Hodges was thrown out by umpire Lee Weyer.

The loss sent the Mets to second place in the dizzy National League East race, 1½ games behind Pittsburgh Pirates, who whipped St. Louis Cardinals 11-4. The Cards now are third, 1½ games behind the Pirates and 10 per centage points behind the Mets.

In other league games, Houston Astros topped Atlanta Braves 5-4, Cincinnati Reds nipped Chicago Cubs 4-3, Los Angeles Dodgers routed Montreal Expos 13-1 and San Diego Padres trimmed Philadelphia Phillies 2-1.

Mets' Dave Marshall delivered a tying, two-run homer with two out in the ninth to send the game into extra innings.

The Giants had held a 2-0 lead on Willie McCovey's two-run homer.

Pitcher Dock Ellis helped himself by driving in three runs on the way to it at even the way to his seventh straight victory as Pittsburgh pounded St. Louis.

Joe Torre's two-run single off Ellis in the fifth cut the Pittsburgh lead to 6-3 but Willie Stargell ripped his 21st homer in the seventh and the Pirates capped it with a four-run burst in the ninth.

Jim Wynn came home with the winning run on a two-out, field bouncer in the ninth as Houston sank Atlanta. The Astros had lost a 4-1 lead in the top of the ninth.

Tony Perez hit a tie-breaking home run with one out in the eighth inning to carry Cincinnati over Chicago Cub pitcher Bill Hands had earlier served successive gopher balls in the sixth inning to Tommy Helms and Lee May.

Johnson Blasts Teammates

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alex Johnson, volatile American League batting champion of 1970 who has been benched by California Angels, was quoted today as being embroiled in personal battles with various team-mates, some of them racial in nature.

The comments were printed in today's editions of the Los Angeles Times in an interview done by Bill Lane of the Los Angeles Sentinel, a black-area newspaper.

Johnson was quoted as saying some players on the Angel team, whom he did not mention by name, disliked him and let their feelings be known to news paper men.

"As far as some of these players going to the newspapers with statements about me, there again you can see who is doing the agitation," Johnson said.

"I was taught you keep your arguments in the clubhouse. Here I been quoted as saying out in public that this or that player is no good, that I don't want to play with him."

Johnson intimated that some of his squabbles with the club resulted from his being black.

"Hell yes, I'm bitter. I've been bitter since I learned I was black," he was quoted.

"The society into which I was born and in which I grew up and in which I play ball today is anti-black. My attitude is nothing more than a reaction to their attitude.

"But they don't keep the hatreds to themselves. They go out of their way to set up barriers. . . .

Johnson, an introvert, rarely made extensive comments to reporters, and almost never about his relations with teammates or the club. Last season, when his batting average was dipping to below .320 and there was still a chance Johnson could earn the batting title, manager Lefty Phillips admitted he had a "man-to-man" talk with the left fielder.

Johnson eventually won the title with a .329 mark but never communicated publicly about his relationship to Phillips, before or after the talk.

Early this season, Johnson hit a batting slump and after a 1-for-34 slump in early May, was benched by Phillips on May 21 for not hustling.

Two days later he was benched again and then asked Phillips for another talk.

He came back to the lineup May 28 and in the next five games, collected nine hits in 20 at bats but when he failed to run out a ground ball on June 4 he was benched and has since appeared only once, walking as a pinch hitter.

Throughout the row with Phillips, Johnson has been silent.

"A small minority of the white ones are good people," he was quoted as saying.

He said management was "making it impossible to play my game to the fullest."

"It's a lack of communication between the management and me. . . ."

Porsche Team In Gear

LE MANS, France (AP) — The Porsche team goes into the 39th Le Mans 24 hours Autorace today with the manufacturers' championships already in the glove compartment.

But second-place Ferrari will be trying harder because car owner Enzo Ferrari says, it is better to win Le Mans than the World Cup.

While the fastest machinery will be German and Italian, the team management will be British and American. This is where the difference may lie.

The top Porsches will be operated by a proven old-time British afficionado. The leading Ferrari will be run according to the rules of modern American management.

The Porsches, faster in the time trials than the best Ferrari, are under the wing of John Wyer, 62, of Britain, who brought his first team to Le Mans 21 years ago.

Roger Penske of Philadelphia manages a Ferrari he has rebuilt in his own particular fashion for the race, set to start at 11 a.m. EDT.

The drivers are a mixture. One of Wyer's Porsche 917s will carry two former Le Mans winners, Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico and Jacky Olivier of Britain. The nine top Ferrari 512 models will be teamed by top-drawer fliers from Italy, Britain, Belgium, France, Spain and the United S'-es.

Wyer is operating only three of about 30-Porsches in the field of around 50 cars. Only seven of them are the four-litre, 12-cylinder 917. The rest are smaller 908s, or the 911 that can be seen on any city street.

COLOGNE, West Germany (Reuter) — The Cologne prosecutor began criminal investigations Friday against a professional soccer alleged to have asked for a bribe to fix a crucial end-of-the season Federal League First Division soccer match.

In a statement, the prosecutor said the inquiry was directed against Cologne goalkeeper Manfred Manglitz, alleged to have asked another team for 20,000 marks (about $6,720).

In one of the final matches of the season, FC Cologne played Red-White Essen, facing relegation along with the Offenbach Kickers.

The prosecutor says Manglitz said that if he were paid he would see to it that FC Cologne throw the game against Red-White Essen.

Cologne beat Essen 3-2 but in the end Offenbach was relegated from the First Division because of later match results.

Belleville Athletes Capture Four Special Olympic Medals

TORONTO (Special) — The 12 - member delegation from the William R. Kirk School for the Mentally Retarded came up with a highly creditable showing at the special Olympics held in Toronto this week.

Competing against entries from all across Canada the Kirk students managed to win four medals and seven ribbons in the track and field and swimming events.

The team lost a chance for an even better showing because of a schedule conflict which saw a number of the Belleville boys miss their track - events because they were competing in swimming at the same time,and their events were being contested.

Darlene Trudeau of Tweed came up with the top showing winning a gold medal in the 17 - year - old hurdles competition and adding a second place ribbon in the 100 yard sprint.

Carol Ann Claus, a 14-year-old Deseronto girl, took the other Belleville gold in the 100-metre swimming event.

Other medal winners were Julia Murray in the 25-yard swim and Shirley McAvoy in the hurdles. Both girls won bronze medals.

Accompanying the team were Moira Secondary School students Phil Kirby, Dave Caswell, Jack Ralph and teacher Ron Moffat along with 15 team's regular coaches Mrs. Ellerton, Sue Clarke and Brian Reddick.

A total of 62 other Kirk students travelled to Toronto Friday as spectators to the events. Over $1,000 had been raised by Belleville residents in support of the team.

Maurice Fraser applied plenty of pressure on his competitors as well as his tires in Belleville last year, winning three races and finishing second in another en route to earning the number one plate as the top dirt track racer in Canada. Fraser will head the field in tomorrow's Muscular Dystrophy races at the Belleville Fairgrounds, which get under way at 1.30 p.m.

Kinsmen Balked by Oshawa

A rather unusual ruling cost the Belleville Kinsmen Juniors a chance for their first Lakeshore Intermediate League victory as they dropped a 4-3 decision to Oshawa seniors last night.

With the score tied 3-3 and one out the Oshawa district umpire ruled that catcher Paul Hall had been out of the catcher's box when he received the ball, and charged a ball against the Kinsmen which brought in the winning run from third base.

The struggle twist which capped a two - run rally in the final inning hung the loss on Stan Brooks, despite a strong three - hit pitching effort by the rookie Belleville hurler.

Brooks fanned seven and walked four batters during the course of the game, while winning roundsman K im Rogers gave up eight safeties for Oshawa.

The Kinsmen's next home appearance will be Wednesday night when they face the Kingston Juniors in an 8 p.m. bout at the Belleville fairgrounds.

BRIAN COUSINS

Kinsmen, blasting a fifth inning homer and picking up a pair of singles as well.

Terry Meagher added a pair of singles to the Belleville attack with the other hits going to Hall, Barry Culkin and Bill Kirkham.

Organizers Seek Sunshine For Benefit Cycle Races

If the Belleville firemen, the Picton Pushers Motorcycle Club and a few thousand cycling fans were to get together for a sing - a - long, the most prevalent tune would be, "Don't Let the Rain Come Down".

The three factions will be looking for co-operation from the weatherman to enable them to get together Sunday afternoon for the Muscular Dystrophy Benefit Motorcycle Races.

Rain problems plagued the races last summer, with no less than three delays being laid at the door of the weatherman, who is predicting partially cloudy periods for tomorrow afternoon.

Two people who also hope to have a Sunday meeting, although under more competitive terms than the other groups involved will be Maurice Fraser and Bob Swadding.

Fraser, who was the Canadian Dirt Track Champion last season, captured the 750 cc expert class in last year's races, while Swaddling came through with a victory in the 250 cc event.

The 21 - year - old Swadding has been competing with the experts for only a year, but the Kingsville competitor has already marked himself as a force to be reckoned with.

The main objective of the competition is to provide funds for children stricken with muscular dystrophy, a pet project of the sponsoring firemen. Last year a total of 3,000 fans attended the event. Admission price will be $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12 years of age.

Yardmen Hailers On Track

The CNR Yardmen midgets didn't let Deseronto get untracked as they won a 9-0 Belleville Minor Baseball verdict last night.

Ron McTaggart and Peter Molaski combined to fire a four - hit shutout for the trainmen while Doug Green gave up only six safeties for Deseronto.

Dale Tumon slugged a triple and double for the winners with Gary Christopher and Tom Coughlan each getting a pair as well.

In tyke play, Mulroney's Bunco stopped Alhambra 109 by an 11-8 margin.

Greg McEachern rapped a homer and two singles for the winners while teammate Paul Marineau had three singles and a double. For Alhambra it was Ken Revoy with a homer and two singles and Dale McTaggart with three doubles among his five hits.

Deseronto bantams came out ahead of a 14-16 slugfest with the CJBQ Expos in the only other scheduled game. Steve Kemp had a homer and three singles for Deseronto, with Garnet Brant rapping five hits and Brian Layfield and Alfred Claus four each.

Union Carbide On Top

Union Carbide remained the only unbeaten team in he Industrial Softball League by taking a 16-11 blitzers contest from the Post Office last night.

The winners plated eight runs in the first inning and went on to build a 15-1 lead before the Posties could climb back into contention.

Ken Osborne went the route for Union Carbide despite giving up 14 hits. He recorded nine strikeouts and walked two batters. His teammates collected a dozen hits off a quartet of Post Office burners.

Morch Mariners stopped VL Card 13-5 in the other game last night as Glen Berberstock and Wilson Bulpit combined to pitch a nine-hitter.

Berberstock socked a homer and two singles for Morch, while Glynn homered and singled and Dan Fobert added a single, double and triple. Gary Clarke and Murray Yeoh homered for VL Card.

Pettingill Finds Stock Car Diamond

Despite the fact that it was the first Friday night for Riverview Speedway stock car racing, George Pettingill was celebrating his diamond anniversary.

Pettingill and his big diamond eight-cylinder car 33 jointed forces to win the featured race in his class, despite a crackup that saw only five of the nine starting cars finish the race. Pettingill also had a first, third and fourth place finish in the qualifying races.

The "B" feature for six-cylinder cars went to Bob Allen.

A number of pileups dotted the ten-race card, but no one was seriously injured in any of the crashes.

Plays Right Cards

Cricket In Ashes

LONDON (CP) — "Many people seem to think that England players hate the Aussies. That's nonsense. We just like to beat the hell out of them! Often."

John Snow, England's top fast bowler, thus summed up Anglo-Australian relationships on the cricket field after the latest gruelling test series down-under in which England regained he coveted Ashes.

The trophy, exclusive to English and Australian cricket, originated from the rivalry between the two countries.

England and Australia have been battling away at each other between the stumps practically since cricket took serious shape in the early 19th century.

An England team first sailed to tour Australia in 1861 and although no record exists as to the result of the series, the final test match filled the 6,000-capacity Melbourne ground and established the two countries as the nucleus of early cricket.

The Ashes became the symbol of victory for one country or the other in 1872 when Australia defeated England on English soil for the first time.

Alouette Fans Bi-Lingual

HALIFAX (CP) — George Springate, place kicker for Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League and member of the Quebec legislature, says successful Canadian unity can be obtained through sports, a necessary social need for all Canadians.

The Grey Cup parade that followed the Alouettes' Canadian football championship was attended by more people than any single sports event in the history of Canada, and no one asked "are you cheering in French or English?"

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from Mrs. Richard Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

This is one of the best reasons for owning a Volkswagen.

It happens to the best of us.

Sooner or later, you're bound to run into a little trouble.

However, if you run into it with a Volkswagen, it doesn't hurt you very much.

VW parts are inexpensive. And easy to replace.

And for the most part, you don't have to dismantle half the car to replace most parts.

Take the crumpled up fender in the picture for example. It can be replaced simply by unbolting nine bolts.

A VW dealer won't have to look high and low for a new fender for you either. He's got all the parts right at hand.

And since anything that needs replacing can be replaced so easily, labour costs are held way down.

Which means you don't have to be limited to just headlight smashing.

You can jab the trunk. Graze the door. Or bump off a bumper.

It may make you furious, but it won't make you poor.

So if your garage door just happens to jump out in front of you and dent up your VW a bit, don't worry.

We can conveniently replace anything you use to stop your VW. Even the brakes.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

MAURICE H. ROLLINS CONSTRUCTION LIMITED

BRAND NEW-OLDER EAST HILL
4 BEDROOMS

Now you can own a new 4-bedroom home without moving into the outlying new sub-divisions. Close to downtown, this home has 1½ baths and full basement. Sound good? Well listen to this? The downpayment is under $3,000.00. Possession almost immediately.

THEY SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE

but we did it anyway: built a 3-bedroom home with carport on a fully-serviced lot with sodded front yard, close to schools, for under $20,000.00. No, it hasn't got colored baths fixtures, it has a family room, but it is darned good 3-bedroom accommodation for the family that doesn't want the kids smothered in an apartment. Call us today! You will be pleasantly surprised.

APARTMENTS FOR RENT

Some with immediate possession. East and West hill locations. All services paid. Most apartments fully carpeted.

WE'RE STARTING SOME NEW ONES

Check our list of new models in start this month. Some in the East end. Ask about our new 3-bedroom model with garage. A large variety available.

Buffalo Policemen Like Our Fishing

CONSECON (Special) — When four Buffalo policemen return to duty this week, there will be no need for them to exaggerate stories about their fishing holiday in Canada.

Louis Reiner, Larry Bachre, John Vickerd and Don Walen made up of the foursome that had so many lucky strikes in bays and lakes in and around Prince Edward County after arriving in the Quinte area last Thursday.

"It's our first trip here and it won't be our last," commented Don Whalen, spokesman for the happy quartet as they engaged in cleaning and packing a full quota of northern pike for transportation back across the border.

The majority of the pike came from Consecon Lake above the conservation dam. They also managed to pick up a good sized pickerel from the same waters. They concentrated on adding more of the walleyed species to their impressive catch the remainder of the time they had left before heading out for home.

Tweed Area News

TWEED — Recently the 7A class of Tweed - Hungerford Senior Public School, accompanied by Clarence Woods and two members of the Forestry Branch, travelled to the Kiwanis Club's Centre Creek reforestration area, where they were instructed in the method of planting trees.

One group planted white white spruce in the lowland, and the other group went up on the hillside to plant scotch pine.

It took 45 minutes to plant 500 trees. Some taking part would like to thank Mr. Woods for providing the transport upon their return to Tweed village.

Miss Dianne Gunning, Dairy Princess for Ontario, recently visited Tweed-Hungerford Senior School, Tweed, to tell the students about her job as Dairy Princess. Miss Gunning works with the Ontario Milk Marketing Board and gave many interesting facts. For instance, there are 20,000 dairy farmers in Ontario and in Hastings County alone there are 550. Hastings County is known for its cheddar cheese. As part of her job Dianne visits schools and makes appearances at fairs promoting the dairy industry.

It was an enjoyable and profitable afternoon for the students. Arrangements for the visit were made by Mrs. Gary Smith, the Home Economics teacher.

Michael Craigen received a bachelor of education degree at the spring convocation of McArthur College, Queen's University on Saturday, May 22. Mr. Craigen who obtained an honors BA in history from the University of Ottawa last year, has accepted a position on the Etobicoke Secondary School staff.

Mrs. Graham Hart, of Mountain Grove, is a patient in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston.

The United Church Women of Henderson, held a successful bake sale on Saturday.

Mr. Mervin Arney of Henderson, has recently undergone eye surgery in a Toronto hospital.

A number of women from Marlbank, attended a United Church Women's meeting at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Hart in Robin recently. The president, Mrs. Claude Brown presided, as it was a special meeting for the mothers and grandmothers, and there was a good attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thorpe, of the Bol O Way, Tweed, are holidaying with relatives in Chatham and London.

Mrs. Norman Lemke of Belleville, visited this past week with her mother, Mrs. James, Plevna. Mr. and Mrs. Lemke will soon be moving to Fenelon Falls.

Layoff Mean Higher Rates

Job Insurance Levies Vary

OTTAWA (CP) — An employer whose layoff pattern is higher than that of other companies in the same industry might face higher unemployment insurance rates under proposed federal legislation.

"I do not look on this as a penalty against certain industries but rather as a reward to others," Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said in the Commons Friday, defending the provision against Conservative and New Democrat criticism.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said the provision might simply deter employers from hiring more workers in certain cases.

Robert Coates (PC—Cumberland-Colchester North) said it would be an unfair burden. And Charles Thomas (PC—Moncton) added that equity suffered because there were no similar measures to penalize employees who make many claims.

But Mr. Mackasey wouldn't budge.

Formal voting on disputed amendments to the bill is expected Monday night, with third and final reading of the new unemployment insurance legislation later.

A routine bill to increase the number of federally-appointed judges and their salaries also is due for debate Monday.

Unemployment insurance benefits would be increased and coverage would be extended next Jan. 1 to an additional 1.2 million workers, or almost everyone who isn't self-employed. At present, those earning more than $7,800 a year don't contribute to the plan, or benefit from it.

Conservatives Friday succeeded in inserting a watchdog clause in the bill as all parties supported an amendment by Alf Hales (PC—Wellington) that would have the auditor-general report on commission spending.

However, Mr. Mackasey refused to accept the other amendments and they were to be voted upon Monday night.

St. Ola

ST. OLA — Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Marchand, Wooster, Ohio arrived on Monday to spend the summer at their cottage on Gull Lake.

Rev. Ed Cook, a former minister of St. Ola UC pastoral charge and his wife have moved from Flinton to new Perth. Mr. Cook will leave shortly for Nova Scotia to further his education towards ordination. Rev. Sid Bates, also a former minister of St Ola United Church and his wife will take up duties on July 1 at Flinton.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 13

Your birthday today: Today begins a new dispensation. Old ideas no longer work quite the same so that you must rethink, redesign your life, a day at a time, beginning right where you are and working up and onward. With determination, love and prayer all comes up roses.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Cooperation and collaboration are essential. An early effort to meet others halfway sets the mood and pace.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Emotional tides run deep and strong in your life now. Remember past cycles and what came of similar urges; find proper perspective.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): There's much turmoil and nervous anxiety getting everything and everybody into and out of this Sunday's activities. You can do nothing but make the most of it and enjoy watching expressions of others.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Before you know it you're likely taking on more than you can handle. Pause, reflect and look where you're going.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Once you've participated in community functions, the less you do the better. Meditate and rest.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Penny wise and pound foolish is apt to be your attitude this lively Sunday. Friends and neighbors are up to no much activity you can load and just watch for a change.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): The final bits of a long-building picture fall into place. Live with your new knowledge for a while before using it. Perhaps you should never explain what you figured out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 11): Nothing stays the same after the moves people around you make today. Make room for new faces and spirits — see life in broader terms.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Pay no attention to petty competition but, where it counts, promptly give as good as you get and you'll feel better.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): This Sunday breaks a pattern. The people you meet now all bring new ideas, stimulate personal growth.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): The distinctly designed elements you've worked to create now bear results and the day carries its own momentum. You don't have to push so hard.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Anything you do spontaneously this Sunday is likely to be a provocative idea. Go right ahead and stir everybody up.

For June 14

Your birthday today: Adjustments, improvements in your vocation come easier in the year ahead. Part time study goes along with better working conditions. Today's natives usually express themselves fluently, often are very talented.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Everybody has his own idea about what should be done and how to go about it. Don't waste your time quibbling.

Canadian Stocks Show Gains

By PETER LEICHNITZ
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock exchanges posted broad advances in most sectors for the second consecutive week in active trading this week.

A major factor, some analysts said, was investor anticipation that tax changes, which will be announced in next week's federal budget, will benefit holders of some Canadian dividend-paying companies.

Prime Minister Trudeau said in a speech in Toronto Tuesday tax changes in the coming budget need not be feared by the business community.

On the week, the Toronto Stock Exchange industrial average, a prime indicator of market movement, climbed 4.12 points to 194.07.

Observers noted that news of rising consumer credit contributed to the bullish market. Investors generally interpret a rise in the amount of consumer loans as a general sign of strengthening of the economy.

The TSE's index of major merchandising stocks climbed about 15 points to 349.13.

Many investors sold parts of their portfolios, preferring to be in a cash position for the budget.

Volume at Toronto was 13.10 million shares, up from 11.83 million last week.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index rose 3.46 points to 182.11.

Total volume at Montreal was 7.02 million shares.

At New York, speculation that the Federal Reserve Board would increase its discount rate —the rate at which it lends money to the banks—had a "dampening" effect on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 key blue-chip stocks, the main market indicator in the United States, dropped 5.67 to 816.47 this week.

Total volume on the New York exchange was 66.38 million, up from 62.86 million last week.

At Toronto, gold issues were sharply lower earlier, reflecting reduced pressure on the United States to raise its fixed price for gold. However, a rally late in the week erased most of the losses and the TSE's gold index closed at 171.85, down .39 points.

Western oils moved moderately higher this week, primarily on speculative buying. Analysts again attributed the rise to speculation about coming tax changes.

On the week, the Toronto western oil index reached a high for the year, up 2.09 points to 219.92.

Several major mining companies posted moderate advances at Toronto, but observers said the increases were mainly due to bargain hunting after previous weakness.

On the week, the Toronto base metal index rose 1.37 points to 95.54.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Actions Should Go With Kind Words

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband says nice things but never does nice things. Ever hear of anyone being killed by kindness? — Mrs. M.

* * *

COMMENT: While on a recent visit to New York I saw a waiter almost killed before my eyes. Yet, like a coward, I sat there speechless, not even offering him one little hope he could cling to.

On that memorable day I sat down at the counter in the restaurant's one remaining empty seat. Next to me were two women in their late 60s, dressed in black, fingers heavily laden with rings, and their necks encircled with many strands of pearls.

Only one waiter was in charge of the entire horseshoe counter. I counted 16 hungry, impatient people. That waiter was as busy as any I have ever seen.

Why only one waiter? Many of the patrons asked the manager this question. He said, "You know George who waits here. Well, he broke his leg last night. That's why it's all on Fred today. Tomorrow we hope to have someone to help."

But tomorrow was a long way off for Fred. A middle-aged, pale-faced man with puffy rings under his hollow eyes he was doing his best to satisfy his impatient customers. Worst of all was one of the women in black. Her voice was low and cracked, sometimes typically the end result of too many cigarettes and drinks. In order to hear her, he had to come close and cup his ear with a trembling hand.

* * *

First she had him return her beef because it was too rare. He took it and perfunctorily acknowledged her general, "Thank you so much!" When he returned it she pointed to her empty glass and asked for a refill of water. "Thank you so much!"

A few minutes later she beckoned him. It was salt and pepper she wanted. A simple request from a neighbor would have saved the waiter a long walk from the other end of the counter. He placed the shakers before her. "Thanks so much!" she said. Later, instead of mustard she wanted vinegar and oil. "Thank you so much!"

And so it went on and on. As a doctor I could feel the waiter wilting under the barrage of hypocritical kindness. Sine he was paid in full by her "Thank you so much," she believed there was nothing he shouldn't do for her at the slightest request.

At last they slid off the stools and left. I waited to assess the reactions of the waiter. The repressed tension and dislike had tightened the muscles of his face. He had to struggle to move his lips.

"Some people kill you with kindness," he said. "I'm almost dead."

* * *

All I could do was nod in agreement. It looked at me, thankful that I understood. For days I have been hearing in my inner ears the ringing reverberations of the words that almost killed him that day: "Thank you so much" — "Thank you so much" — "Thank you so much."

I hope your husband reads today's column, Mrs. M. Perhaps he will see himself as he is. If so, he'll resolve never to kill anyone with (hypocritical) kindness.

* * *

For Mrs. F.: Asthma is not catching. I see little danger in visiting your cousin. However, if the patient has a bad cold, also, and bronchitis with fever and cough, there's always the possibility of catching the cold or bronchitis.

* * *

For Mr. T.: You are labeling me an immoderate. It happens that I do believe that exercise in moderation is all right for those physically and emotionally attuned to extracurricular exertions. But I still insist that physically lazy persons have the rights (without being deprived) to pursue relatively inactive lives and to do so without threat to their health. He rights (without being denigrated) to pursue relatively inactive lives and to do so without threat to their health.

Tanker Target Of Arab Shells

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — Israel stood determined today to protect the shipping lanes of all its ports following the shelling of an Israel-bound oil tanker at the entrance to the Red Sea.

Premier Golda Meir said Sunday Israel would do all in its power to keep the lanes open following the incident Friday when a launch fired a salvo of bazooka shells into the 78,120-ton Coral Sea in the Bab el Mandeb straits.

Palestinian Arab Guerrillas have claimed full responsibility for the shelling.

The Liberian tanker continued her voyage under her own steam up the Red Sea to Elath, at the head of the Gulf of Aqaba, where she is due in the next 48 hours.

From there her cargo of oil will be trans-shipped through the Elath-Ashkelon pipeline to the Mediterranean and Europe.

It was Egypt's closure of the sea lane to Elath at the straits of Tiran, where the Aqaba gulf enters the northern end of the Red Sea, which was the principal cause of the six-day Arab-Israeli war in 1967.

The attack on the Coral Sea was made more than 1,000 miles south of Elath as she was entering the narrow Bab el Mandeb straits between the Gulf of Aden and the Red Sea.

Mrs. Meir called on all maritime countries to take action to prevent such "terrorist activity" and a former chief of Israeli army intelligence, Gen. Hahn Herzog, proposed setting up an international force to patrol the 11-mile wide Bab el Mandeb straits.

The Coral Sea was slightly damaged in the attack and a fire was started, but there were no casualties among the crew of 37, of whom 22 are Israelis.

A spokesman said a front unit, which had set out from a base in Aqaba, fired five rockets which hit the tanker at two points and set fire to her oil.

Germans Design 'Pocket' U-boats

KIEL (AP) — Building up a new U-boat fleet, the West German navy has developed a small submarine the sailors are proud of. Considering its size and small crew of 22, they say, it has more punch than any other undersea craft anywhere.

U-boats, from the German name unterseeboot, were notorious in two world wars.

The new U-2, named after a Second World War craft lost at sea, is 140 feet long and weighs about 400 tons. It can go 17 knots; the cruising range and diving depth are secret.

Lt.-Cmdr. Horst Ewald told a visitor to his "pocket" U-boat:

"With eight torpedo tubes forward, and each of them double loaded, we have 16 torpedoes ready to go at any time. This is

Price Index Jumps

'Hey Honey! You forgot your gun!'

OTTAWA (CP)—Higher food, automobile insurance, furniture and beer prices led the consumer price index to a jump of half a point to 132.7 in May from 132.2 in April, compared with 129.6 in May last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The index based on 1961 prices equalling 100, meant that it cost $13.27 last month to buy what $10 bought in consumer goods and services 10 years ago. It was an increase of five cents in this shopping bill for the month, and 31 cents in 12 months.

The bureau said all the principal components of the price index rose, with the biggest increases in food, transportation, health and personal care, and tobacco and alcohol. The latter rose to reflect higher beer prices.

Of special significance was an acceleration in the rate of price increases. In percentage terms, last month's over-all index was 2.4 per cent ahead of a year earlier. In the last several months, this year-over-year rate of increase has been less than two per cent.

Most economists regard an annual rate of price increase of two per cent or less as generally consistent with price stability. The bureau noted, however, that the May index indicated prices had already risen 2.2 per cent this year. Early in 1970,

Seven Persons Slain Another Is Wounded

DETROIT (AP) — Seven persons were shot to death and an eighth was wounded critically today in what homicide officers called execution-type slayings in a suspected narcotics den.

Four women who were slain were found with their arms tied behind them. All eight of the victims were found in the first-floor living room of the two-storey dwelling.

District Inspector James Barron, who headed the police team at the slaying site, said a quantity of suspected narcotics—believed to be heroin—was found in the house along with a dozen handguns and long guns, none of which appeared to have been fired recently.

None of the dead was identified immediately. Police identified the wounded man as Robert Gardner, 28, who was taken to hospital with two gunshot wounds in the chest. His condition was listed as critical.

The multiple slayings occurred on Hazelwood Street, just off predominantly black 12th Street—the focal point of the 1967 Detroit riots.

Police expressed belief the mass killings were the latest in a string of about 25 narcotics-connected homicides since the first of the year.

They had said previously a power struggle is under way in the Detroit narcotics underworld.

The slayings were discovered when the wife of the wounded man returned home at 4:30 a.m.

"The house looked like a blood bath," she told police.

Dan Smith, a next-door neighbor, said he heard what sounded "like small firecrackers" during the night but that he did not realize anything was wrong until he heard police sirens approaching.

One Dead, 11 Wounded

Youths Beserk In Albuquerque

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (CP) — A state of civil emergency was imposed early today after a night of wild disorder in which one person was killed and 11 were wounded by gunfire, businesses burned and looted and police headquarters stoned by a crowd of 500 young people.

The dead man was shot, possibly by a security guard, while looting a liquor store, police said. The store was later set on fire.

Police said at least 24 persons were injured, two critically.

The trouble started Sunday afternoon at a crowded city park when police attempted to arrest a young man, or a group of youths for public drinking.

After the attempted arrests at Roosevelt Park, an area popular with young people and about two miles from the downtown area, a crowd gathered and pelted the officers and police reinforcements with rocks and bottles.

Two police cars were overturned and set afire. Three others were damaged. Officers responded with tear gas. An Albuquerque Journal reporter at the scene said police then drew their pistols and fired at persons in the crowd.

At police headquarters, the crowd threw rocks at the building, set fire to another police vehicle, overturned a private car and broke windows in many nearby buildings.

U.S. Air Transport Missing in Pacific

HONOLULU (AP) — Military aircraft searched the Pacific Ocean 700 miles southeast of here early today for a missing U.S. Air Force transport jet carrying 34 persons believed to be military personnel.

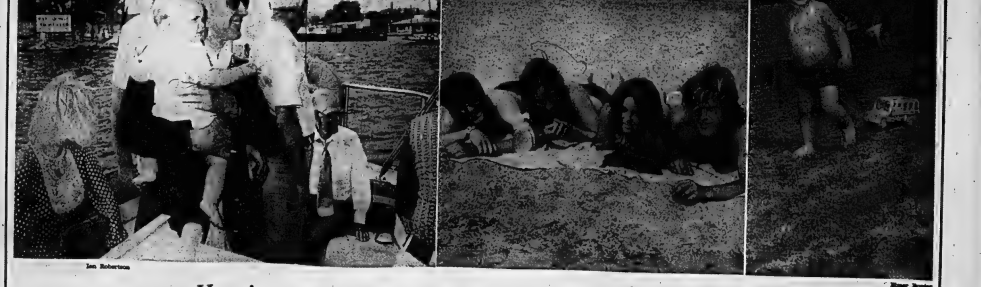
The four-engined C-135, military version of the Boeing 707, disappeared Sunday on a 2,227-mile flight from Pago Pago, American Samoa, to Hawaii.

An area 200 miles north of Palmyra Island became the centre of search operations after rescue planes picked up the signal of a crash position indicator, said Capt. Bill Ballee, an air force information officer.

"We can't be positive that the device is from the missing plane," Ballee said. "We'll only know for sure after we have it picked up after daylight."

He said no debris had been spotted.

Ballee said the crash position indicator is ejected from a plane when the crew knows it is going down. It sends a constant radio signal to guide searching aircraft to the site.



Ballee said the device was spotted by a search plane that followed the beacon's signal.

An air force-navy air search was launched after the transport failed to reach Hickam Air Force Base near Honolulu at 8 p.m. HST. It left Pago Pago at 10:10 a.m. and carried fuel for nine hours.

Ballee said all those aboard the aircraft are believed to be air force personnel.

Happiness in June Is A Day in, on or Beside the Water

Sailing can be fun for the whole family as the photo on the left shows, with all ages seeking pleasure from an outing in the fresh air and sunshine in Belleville harbor. To get away from the heat, North Bay near Consecon affords plenty of sand and sun for anyone's requirements. While warmth on the beach left something to be desired yesterday the foursome from Trenton, centre, snuggled together without objection. However, 15-month-old Daniel Rooney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Rooney, RR 2, Trenton, decided to keep his cool, stepping off sharply, right, for a spot of beachcombing on his own.

Col. Vanderwater Site Gets Grant

The provincial government has approved a grant of $4,200 to the Moira River Conservation Authority for general development work at the Col. Vanderwater Conservation Area at Thomasburg.

An authority official said today that approximately $7,000 will be spent for general development at the popular picnic site and conservation area.

Included will be improvement of picnic areas and campsites together with extension of the access road by approximately one mile to the south.

A picnic shelter, 20 x 40 feet has already been erected at the Vanderwater area, but not all work on the access road extension will be carried out this year.

Price Index Climbs –

prices were climbing 4.5 to five per cent a year.

The index is based on a monthly survey of retail prices of more than 300 goods, and services representative of the purchases of urban, low to medium-income families.

Because it now cost $13.27 to buy $10 worth of consumer goods and services at 1961 prices, the economic dollar has withered away in purchasing value by 25 cents in 10 years. On the basis of the old consumer price index formerly based on 1949 prices equalling 100, it would have cost $17.14 last month to buy $10 worth of 1949 goods and services.

DBS has no exactly parallel index of family incomes, but the latest available data on average weekly wages and salaries paid in a broad cross-section of industry showed $131.59 a week was paid in February, compared with $130.62 in January and $121.14 in February a year ago.

That showed an increase of six per cent in average weekly wages and salaries in the year, while in that same period—the 12 months to February this year —the consumer price index rose 1.7 per cent. In the three months since then, consumer prices have risen a further 1.4 per cent.

DBS said the increase in food prices in May this year was the largest such drawn since May in any year since 1965. The food price index rose eight-tenths of one per cent in the month. A year ago, it fell nine-tenths of one per cent.

For the family food basket, the index meant that it cost $13.01 last month to buy what $10 bought in food in 1961. This was up from a food bill of $12.91 in April, but was still two cents less than for the same food basket a year earlier, when it was $13.03.

A Cleaner Trent From Saturday's Exercise

Young people turned out to help Lower Trent region conservationists across Operation Cleansweep, They went along the banks on foot and in boats picking up refuse between Hastings, and the mouth of the Trent River. The crew of youngsters shown hard at work here includes Bob Miller, Paul and Tim Armstrong and Peter Menzies with district 8-9 co-captain Dave Stewart.

Trenton's Cleansweep A Success

TRENTON (Staff) — Another victory was chalked up for the army of volunteers participating in Operation Cleansweep on Saturday.

The project designed to restore the Trent waterways between Hastings and the mouth of the Trent River to natural beauty and bountiful marine life, was sponsored with success for the second year running by the Lower Trent Region conservation authority.

At the peak of the operation around 11 a.m.; Saturday, more than 300 people, with 40 trucks and as many boats were combing the banks and shoreline of the popular fresh water route for any kind of debris above or under the water.

The shoreline between CFB Trenton and 12 O'Clock Point at the Murray Canal received special attention from a crew manned by Trenton's assistant municipal clerk Ar-

Good hunting for refuse was reported from crew managers in all areas. Murray township reeve Harry Lafferty and his councillors assisted the cleaners with headquarters at German's Landing north of Stockdale. Trenton's mayor Duncan McDonald joined the collectors responsible for collecting the waterfront along the north shore of the Bay of Quinte.

Late Saturday night project chairman Cy MacDonald reported the operation had accomplished the removal of 1,200 garbage bags of litter and the harmony of individuals and organizations participating for the first time.

"The volume was smaller than the first year of the undertaking and is evidence our effort is paying off," Mr. MacDonald said. "The key is there is to pick up the better, our message is getting across."

Death Ends Farm Hunt

TRENTON (Staff) — A groundhog hunting trip on the family farm ended with the death of a Murray township resident Saturday.

William Puffer, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Puffer, RR 2, Brighton, west of here suffered a gunshot wound in the abdomen when his 22 - calibre rifle was accidentally discharged. He had returned from the shooting expedition and was removing the firearm from his car when it somehow went off, a younger brother told police investigating the incident.

Younger brother Joseph, 13, said he heard the noise of the shot while he was walking from the house to see how successful his big brother had been. He found the older brother lying beside the car.

The older brother underwent emergency surgery at the Trenton Memorial Hospital but failed to recover and died early Sunday morning.

Thirteen Permits In Thurlow

CANNIFTON (Staff) — A total of 13 building permits in Thurlow Township were reported at the regular monthly meeting of council, with a total revenue of $157.94 realized.

Capital value of the construction was $216,400 for residential construction, additions, addition to a church, cottage and garage construction.

By comparison, the skipper says, the British atomic submarine Churchill has only six torpedo tubes and although it carries 49 torpedoes must take time to reload in five again.

"By that time," he said, "we could be long gone."

German submariners interviewed at the Kiel naval base express belief that the day of the U-boat as a menace is fast fading, particularly for small, hard-to-find craft lying silently in wait for a ship from underwater. With an apparent standoff in nuclear weaponry, they see their conventionally armed fleet gaining in importance.

Within NATO, the West German navy has the task of guarding, and if need be mining the approaches to the Baltic from the North Sea.

"I am confident," Ewald declared, with his other officers concurring, "that if any weapons arms will be used in our operational area, it is the submarine."

The navy has five operational subs of the type 205 that Ewald commands. They cost about $9 million each. Eighteen boats are being built. Five older craft serve for training.

"We can run underwater with no sonar detecting devices operating and without using our radar, both of which are giveaways," Ewald said. "We sail strictly by dead reckoning."

Three-car Crash Damage $2,500

CORBYVILLE (Staff) — More than $2,500 damage was recorded following a Sunday night accident 3½ miles east of here on the Fourth of Thurlow.

A car driven by James Harry Gilmour, 20, of RR1, Corbyville, first struck a parked vehicle and then a car driven by Elizabeth Rowlands, 21, of RR2, Belleville, which was being parked at the time.

Miss Rowlands and Patricia Lyn Rooke, 19, were treated for minor injuries at Belleville General Hospital and released.

Tweed Jailhouse Will Open Again

TWEED — Tweed's tourist information booth will open in North America's Smallest Jailhouse, on Saturday, June 26, with Miss Sheeran Bush and Miss Margaret Spencer as hostesses.

The future of the information booth was in doubt for some time. In past years, the money needed to operate the booth was provided from the proceeds of Tweed Annual winter carnival along with financial assistance from the Land O'Lacts and Highlands of Hastings Regions.

Last February's carnival was worse than a total failure. Owing to winter storms and snow-blocked roads, it was a financial calamity. As a result, the Tweed Chamber of Commerce, which operates the information booth, found itself without the necessary funds to carry on several planned projects.

It was felt, however, that the booth could be opened part time with the money received from membership fees and with the financial assistance from the tourist regions. The booth will open for as long as funds or operation are available. Chamber of Commerce directors decided at the recent meeting held at the Tweedsmuir Hotel.

The booth will open from noon until 5 p.m. from Monday to Thursday, and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday, but will remain closed all day Sunday.

Before the projects from the booth is closed. Heath Jones Motors and Tweedsmuir Hotel have kindly offered to assist tourists.

Miss Sheeran Rush, is at present contacting Tweed and district businessmen and asking them to renew their memberships in the Tweed Chamber of Commerce.

Boaters Safe

TRENTON (Staff) — An overdue pleasure boat with four people aboard sent water, land and air search units into action during the weekend, the duty officer at Rescue Co-Ordination Centre at CFB Trenton reported.

The Splendrift from the Canadian Coastguard was ordered to patrol Lake Ontario off Grimsby, Ontario while a Dakota aircraft searched overhead. OPP called for assistance when the occupants of the 26-foot craft failed to return to port before nightfall. Meanwhile a violent rain storm with thunder and lightning developing in the lake outside the harbor caused concern for the boaters' safety.

It was after the noon hour before the missing craft was spotted near the entrance to Grimsby harbor.

The lateness is arriving was due to engine trouble according to their rescuer — another boatman from Grimsby who reported all aboard none the worse for the experience.

R
—IT TAKES LONGER NOW TO BECOME OLD

In the past there always were a few people who lived long lives. But, most of them acquired the disease of old age before they were fifty years of age. After that they suffered from pains, aches, lack of energy, chronic coughs and other ailments.

Medical knowledge, diagnostic techniques and positive acting drugs have greatly improved. Now many people are young at seventy and hope to stay that way. To a great degree, how long you will live depends on you regularly having your physician check your body. By treating any ailment before it has time to become a serious problem, you can add many years to your life.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge.

Yachts Crowd Bay For Sailpast

Warm weather and the beginning of the boating season arrived together Saturday as about 50 yachts, both power and sail, marshalled for the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club's annual sailpast. They manoeuvred around the commodore's yacht, anchored off Victoria Park for the salute, and headed out to open water again, until sailpast festivities, including a dinner and dance, began at the yacht club in the evening.

Solicitor Seeks Time To Prepare City's Case

The city of Belleville will ask for an adjournment of Wednesday's hearing in Toronto on the application for an injunction brought by East Hill residents seeking to bar the construction of a 75-unit apartment building in their area.

The notice of motion requiring the city not to issue a demolition permit or building permit for 217 East Bridge Street was served on city staff officials late Friday afternoon.

But City Solicitor John Miller was out of the city and did not see the injunction papers until this morning.

Today, Mr. Miller said he would appear Wednesday in Toronto but due to the short notice and the fact he had no instructions from city council, would ask for dismissal of the action or adjournment.

Mr. Miller said he would oppose the motion on the grounds that insufficient time had been given to prepare a defence, that he did not know the basis of the injunction application and that he would be unable to receive instruction from city council until the next council meeting.

The city solicitor said City Planning Director Bert Kenny was doing a study on rezoning of the city's older residential area and would make his report on June 24.

Mr. Miller said the whole matter of the injunction hearing should be put off until the planner's report was received.

Belleville Mayor J. R. Scott is in Saskatoon this week attending a convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

The East Hill residential property at 217 Bridge East has been sold to a Toronto developer who already has taken out a demolition permit.

The Toronto developer has also made application for a building permit to erect a 75-unit apartment building on the site. Issuance of the building permit was delayed pending provision of architect's plans and investigation as to sewer requirements.

Earlier, East Hill residents and also residents of the West Hill district petitioned council to have their areas rezoned from "B" to "A" which would block the erection of apartment buildings.

Education Department Priorities Set

The Ontario department of education has a five-point program of priorities in education Hastings county principals learned last weekend at their annual conference.

The deputy minister of education, Dr. E. E. Stewart, outlined the government's priorities at the three-day event held at Cedar Glen, in the Cold Creek Conservation Area near Bolton.

First on the department's list of priorities is improving the quality of the educational program by upgrading teachers. Dr. Stewart was referring particularly to the necessity for elementary school teacher candidates to have degrees before being admitted to teachers' colleges — with 1973 the target date.

The second priority is an evaluation of the educational program in light of the costs. The department is looking into the ways educational money is spent and trying to determine if it is being used in the most productive manner.

The department is calling for better communication with the public on the part of local boards and their teachers. Until recently there was no need for this liason with the public, but now that school boards are autonomous in their locality, it is up to them to establish and maintain contacts with the people, Dr. Stewart said.

New machinery to effect changes in the courses of study in schools is under investigation by the department. Rather than major upheavals in the curriculum, the department is working out ways of implementing constant improvements and changes, especially at the elementary school level.

Final priority for the province is more emphasis on the non-school aspects of education. The deputy minister advocated increased emphasis on outdoor education and field work, to help students relate what they learn in their locality. It is up to them to establish and maintain contact with the practical world.

Theme of this year's principals' conference was priorities in education, and the elementary and secondary school principals from the county heard several points of view on the theme.

To lead off the conference, Donald M. Soutter, managing editor of The Intelligencer spoke on a citizen's expectations from the schools.

Following the deputy minister's speech, Donald Williams, chairman of the Hastings county board of education outlined the trustees' position.

He said tax dollars could be spent most effectively on improving the schools' staff and eliminating poor performers, if necessary. He told the principals that it is the board's intent to put its money on the instructional part of the program — already the segment taking the largest share of the board's funds.

The administrators, headed by Eric Runacres, director of education, gave their plans for improving the people in the system — by workshops for principals and more professional development opportunities for teachers.

For their part the principals called for improved communication with those above them in the system as their first priority in education.

Policy decisions should be made in co - operation with principals and teachers, they said. While they realize the responsibility of senior administrators and trustees to make policy decisions, they would like some of the policy to filter up from below instead of having it all come from the top down.

On June 16, the Canada Post Office will release its second in a series of commemorative stamps designed by Miss Alma Duncan, depicting the Maple Leaf in four seasons. This second, the Maple Leaf in Summer, honors the green finery of Canadian maple species . . . the Vine, Broadleaf, Douglas, Mountain, Striped, Red, Silver, Sugar, Black and Manitoba Maples.

CPR Overpass Heads Area Construction List

A construction start during the 1971-72 fiscal year for the proposed CPR overpass on Highway 2 just west of the city limits is indicated in this year's highways department works program.

The grade separation at the Belleville Cemetery would be part of the proposed reconstruction program which will see Highway 2 rebuilt to four lanes between Belleville and the Trenton Air Station.

Clearing for the widened roadway has been proceeding for several months with many of the stately trees lining the present right-of-way now removed.

Other highway work in the Belleville area this year will see the resurfacing of the Macdonald Cartier Freeway east from the Moira River bridge for 6.4 miles; resurfacing of highway 2 east and west from Actinolite, including 14.4 miles and resurfacing of the Quinte Skyway at Deseronto.

At Foxboro, work is now under way on intersection improvements at the junction of Highways 62 and 14.

This year will also see completion of the paving on Highway 14 from Foxboro to Stirling, where reconstruction was carried out last year.

In Prince Edward county, reconstruction of Highway 33 from Bloomfield to Picton is scheduled along with intersection improvements at the Highway 49 intersection at Picton.

Grading, drainage, base and paving on Highway 49 is planned from Roblin Mills south for 3.4 miles, while work on Highway 33 from Picton to the Glenora Ferry docks will be carried out.

Strong And Free?

When Prime Minister Trudeau talked about American domination, while visiting the Soviet Union, and got hauled over the coals about it on returning to Canada, he might not have been that far out of line. Even elsewhere on this page is a remarkable article, taken from a United States publication which talks of-U.S. annexation of Canada within a decade.

You see, the U.S. will need Canada's resources, according to the not so friendly predictions of one Henry Gablinger, who is described as a resources expert and advisor to President Nixon.

So if we are worried about Quebec seceding, that would be child's play compared with the spectacle of U.S. troops moving across the border. Or failing that (aggravated by our weakened position in the event of Quebec becoming independent), succumbing through economic pressure.

It would certainly be a lesson to us. For we moan about U.S. economic domination of the economy right now, forgetting that without American capital and technical know-how this country would be nowhere near as strong as it is. Consider communications alone, and in this instance we are thinking of transportation, where would we be without the U.S. auto and aircraft industries?

And what about the true north strong and free? In effect all of Canada. The neighborly Mr. Gablinger says "we have been treating Canada for years . . . they would not be so well off now if it was not for us." But read the full text. It is an eye-opener. So too is a statement Gablinger attributes to President Nixon:

"As the President said to me, 'We're going to have to start calling in our I.O.U.'s and Canada's the one deepest in debt to us'."

Maybe Mr. Trudeau hit the nail on the head when he was in Russia, and if Mr. Nixon reportedly was vexed to the point that he may not visit us as anticipated, that is too bad.

And yet, we cannot afford, either of us, Canada and the United States, to reach a serious stage of alienation. The recent Washington talks on pollution refute, for the moment at least, any suggestion of acrimony. Still, we must take the long-term view. The United States is gobbling up resources at a furious rate and Canada, with an abundance of water for one thing, is viewed by the U.S. as an untapped source.

Who is to say that in ten years or less, Washington does not say the hell with it and invade Canada? The article by John Samson is a serious statement of possible intent and Ottawa would do well to treat it accordingly. For a start it had better take the diplomatic initiative, call the Americans' bluff if necessary. Nixon should be challenged on the statement he is said to have made (what a question for his next Press conference!). And if the U.S. needs our resources, well then let the two countries work something out on a cooperative basis, while continuing to respective each other's sovereignty. But let's not do nothing while the Americans continue to cast covetious eyes northward.

If there is to be any war, it had better be a diplomatic one. Let Mr. Trudeau and External Affairs Minister Sharp get busy on this right away. Mr. Sharp could have raised the issue while in Washington. But has he seen this article — it has appeared in at least one other Canadian newspaper — has anyone in Ottawa seen it?

Rock Festival Ban

Is a rock festival different from any other gathering of people? Any different say from the crowd at Woodbine race track, or at Mosport, or at a ploughing match? It is a crowd of people, an aggregation . . . but there, we suggest, the similarity ends.

If facilities for a rock festival were as efficient, organized and disciplined as they are at gatherings as we have mentioned, then there would likely not be the fear of them in the minds of the general public as there is, and which in part have led to a court injunction prohibiting one in Madoc township early in July.

Rock festivals are a new phenomenon and for those who dig them — the young principally — enjoyable. They are, in fact, the evidence of other festivals, notably Woodstock, has shown that along with the enjoyment there have been problems on a large scale.

Drugs of course come to mind. There is the difficulty too of policing such a gathering, and there are the wishes of the local population, in this case a quiet rural township, to be considered.

It is a pity though that, given the interest among young people in this kind of entertainment, facilities cannot be set up. Better though that if such facilities can be provided they are not just plunked down willy-nilly in the heart of the countryside. Why not some sizeable building like the Maple Leaf Gardens. It might not have the same atmosphere as the great outdoors, but at least it would be more manageable.

Spectre of Resource-Hungry Americans

More on the Great Environmental Problem

John Samson in The Examiner, a U.S. publication.

Within ten years the United States will be consuming over 50 per cent of the world's energy and resources, according to an expert in this field.

Within ten years, all fresh water in the United States will be polluted.

Within ten years the United States will have to take over Canada, through either economic pressure or force. In order to survive.

"It's not really a question of how" says resources expert and advisor to President Nixon, Henry Gablinger. "We certainly have the means to conquer Canada.

"It's a question of when. I've advised the President we should start moving within the next two years."

If you think this is dialogue out of a science-fiction story, think again. Mr. Gablinger is deadly serious.

Granted that Canada has been our peaceful neighbor for several hundred years and that we have shared a borderline from Maine to Washington with out incident. But life in the international jungle is rough and if the U.S. is to make it to the year 2000, it needs the fantastic natural resources that sit just a few miles above its border.

"It's all very simple," says Gablinger. "Just look at the figures.

"By 1965 there could be as many as 275 million people in the United States. And by the year 2000 the population could approach 330 million. Canada is expected to have a population of 38 million by the year 2000."

But even more than its present voracious consumption of fuel, power, minerals, metals, chemicals; plastics and exploding population, the U.S. is dedicated to an incredible growth in the use of all critical materials.

Every 30 years the consumption of energy and key resources doubles.

"Yet from a resource viewpoint," Gablinger explains, "the United States is a have-not nation. Some 33 separate basic materials are on a 'critical list. Among those the U.S. must now import and continue to do so at an accelerated rate, are crude oil, iron ore, bauxite for aluminum, copper, lead zinc potash, uranium, pulpwood, timber, manganese, rubber and gold."

What all this boils down to is very simple. Canada has an abundance of most of the above materials, but is exporting them at a very slow rate.

After all, they don't want to be caught short when the crunch for raw materials comes.

But the U.S. has never been shy about taking what it wants in the past. And driven to the wall, it will do the same with Canada.

"Actually we're being very nice about it," said Gablinger. "We have offered all kinds of deals to the Canadians such as the Continental Energies Program which would unite all the resources in North America into one common pool. If they don't accept it, we'll just have to force it on them.

"We have the economic arsenal to do it. We could buy enough Canadian dollars on the speculation exchanges to drive their value down to 15 cents."

The other natural resource that Canada has in overwhelming abundance is water. Within the next few years, water will become the world's most precious element perhaps replacing gold as a medium of exchange between nations.

"The United States now uses 400 billion gallons of water per year," says Gablinger. This will become 600 billion by 1980. Canada has one fourth of the world's fresh water and the largest coastline in the world.

The bargaining over Canadian water has started a cold war if instances that Canada can only lose.

To international observers there are many small signs of the growing tensions between the two nations — tensions that will eventually either erupt into a war in which Canada will be humiliatingly defeated or another into Canada's complete submission to any U.S. demands.

Last month U.S. customs men manning the huge Canadian border began carrying hand weapons for the first time since prohibition.

Defoliation of areas on the American side of the border has already begun. The war creats a 2,000 mile-long swath of open space between the two countries.

Canada's swinging Prime Minister Trudeau recently blocked the sale of a huge uranium mine to U.S. interests and America retaliated by cutting down the imports of oil stocks of the Canadian prairies.

The two countries say arguing bitterly over the sovereignty of the Arctic. The bugs oil tanker S.S. Manhattan recently made an historic trip through Arctic waters and now Canada is trying to place restrictions on further such voyages.

All of this doesn't even begin to touch on emotional issues like the placement of the ABM missile defence system so that nuclear explosions will fall take place over Canadian Territory.

"Look," says Gablinger, "we've been protecting Canada for years. In this game, you don't get nothing for nothing. It's time they paid up for the privilege of living next to the richest country in the world. They wouldn't be so well off now if it wasn't for us.

"As the President said to me 'We're going to have to start calling in our I.O.U.'s and Canada's the one deepest in debt to us'."

So, in the next few years, look for some new stars on Old Glory. When the flag's design symmetrical, ten would be a good number and that's just the number of provinces in Canada.

NDP Win Brant Riding

A Look at the Recent By-elections

Ottawa Le Droit: Much was written on the meaning of the by elections in Chambly, Trois-Rivieres, Brant and Central Nova before they were held, and on the probable reactions of the voters . . . in face of the economic policies of the federal government. . . .

The results . . . leave the parties as they were before, except in the Ontario riding of Brant where the New Democrats defeated the Liberals.

It does not follow that the byelections provide no lessons. In Quebec, they indicate that even with unemployment the population, still traumatized by the events of October . . . remain faithful to Mr. Trudeau. The member elected in Chambly riding . . . crushed his closest adversary, a New Democrat, by more than 10,000 votes. . . .

In Trois-Rivieres, . . . long represented . . . by (a) Conservative, the Liberals won closely over a Social Credit candidate who had energetically denounced the present administration's policies.

In these two ridings . . . the Conservative party was swept away. On the other hand, Mr. Stanfield . . . had the consolation of having his candidate elected . . . in a riding already held by the Opposition (Central Nova).

No sign of a sudden change in the feelings of the electorate so far.

But it is not the same story in Brant riding in Ontario, where the victory of the New Democrats could have serious consequences on the provincial level.

Brant is represented in the legislature by Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon. . . . At the federal level this riding includes the city of Brantford, whose representative in Toronto is New Democrat Mac Makarchuk and where several factories have closed or laid off a part of their work force.

This time, the attacks on the negligence of the federal government in face of the tragedy of the unemployed brought a fatal blow to the prestige of Ottawa. . . .

The Consumer Trap

Guelph Mercury

Soon the consumer will be able to refuse payments to the finance company if he was sold an item which is defective. Also, if the finance companies will be under an obligation to ascertain that they are dealing with good quality merchandise through their financing.

This will mean that finance companies will think twice before becoming involved in taking over a deal in which the consumer has purchased inferior goods.

Unfortunately, despite all the protection government tries to give, there will always be people who will fall prey to some kind of consumer trap. We, as consumers, must learn to protect ourselves, by making our purchases with some degree of intelligence, and buying from dealers that are reputable.

Shortage Of Power

Almonte Gazette

North America, insatiably demanding ever greater amounts of electric power, is facing a critical shortage of that power.

"Brownouts," lowered voltages, appeals to conserve electricity, actual power failures are telling us that huge wattage demands for industry and for buildings heated in winter and cooled in summer by electricity are exceeding available power supplies and taxing present generation methods.

The thermal fuels which turn so many generators come from a depleting supply that is becoming ever more costly to process and transport. Coal is heavy to move and pollutes the air when burned. Oil also pollutes the atmosphere and is doing the same to water through accidents to wells and tankers.

Nuclear power, once thought the answer to the problem, has developed technical flaws, such as plague the Cape Breton deuterium plant. Nuclear generators discharge water at a heat harmful to aquatic life, another form of water pollution.

River power developments create least environmental pollution but their possible sites will soon be all taken up and their output is subject to seasonal fluctuations.

Solar power is a theoretical possibility but its practical development seems a long way in the future.

Tidal power on the other hand is extensively available "as long as the sun and moon endure." It is in use in Russia and in France. In the Bay of Fundy, Canada has tidal fluctuations up to 50 feet in a site not far from the continent's greatest area of demand.

Lifetime In Canada

Letter to the Montreal Gazette

Just 50 years ago today, June 1, 1921, the writer with a young daughter and pregnant wife, sailed from England to find a comfortable living in (at that time) "God's own country," and he found one and made a decent living for 25 years, possibly a little better than the living he would have kept at home.

He does not consider himself responsible for any of the injustices attributed to him and others like him by French Canadian Communist writers. Like many of his friends he wishes Gen. Wolfe had never seen the Plains of Abraham and could comment on this at great length.

Possessing good training and some natural ability, he was able to save enough to ensure an income just large enough to avoid the pension increment.

He still sings the National Anthem at sports events but "God is not his native land" and he is confused on what he stands to guard his native land. The possibility that the $1.42 per month increase granted him early this year will be revoked.

Hordes of Hitch-hikers Are Taking to Road

The summer months attract hundreds of young people to the highways and byways of the country each year.

Armed with a knapsack, a sleeping bag . . . and in many cases not even these, plus a possible guitar or harmonica, they show the ever - present thumb to motorists in the hopes of obtaining a ride to the next stop.

Certain areas of the country look more kindly on these young people and in the past few years, armories, church basements and schools have been thrown open to the transients with an occasional bowl of soup thrown in for good measure. It may not be the most reliable way to travel but with enthusiasm and luck many have crossed the country at little or no money.

Some towns frown upon the influx of this type of visitor and the cold shoulder is often apparent. But the dogged and determined young people forge ahead in a more kindly spot.

Municipalities and law enforcement agencies are reluctant to enforce stringent restrictions but the thumb-riders should be armed with a new brochure being supplied by Ontario's provincial police.

The OPP are printing 200,000 booklets warning hitch-hikers of stretches of provincial highway where pedestrians are prohibited and in the past, these rules have been heavily enforced.

Although the Belleville area does not become involved in the restricted road zoning, travellers from this area will be invited to pick up a brochure and inform themselves of those portions of highway that do.

The prohibited highways are:

— The Queen Elizabeth Way from the western limits of Toronto to Lake Avenue in Hamilton and from Martindale Road just west of St. Catharines to the intersection with Highway 405 on the outskirts of Niagara Falls;

— Highway 400 from Jane Street in Metropolitan Toronto to Penetanguishene Road, two miles north of Barrie;

— Highway 401 from Highway 10, east of Toronto, to Highway 33-115 east of Trenton;

— Highway 402 from the intersection with Highway 7 on the eastern outskirts of Sarnia to "a point 200 feet measured easterly from . . . the centre line of Mara Street in the Village of Point Edward" on the other side of Sarnia;

— All of Highway 403, which runs from the QEW northeast of Hamilton to Highway 2 near Ancaster, southwest of Hamilton.

— All of Highway 405, from the western outskirts of Niagara Falls, intersecting with the QEW, to the international bridge to New York State.

— All of Highway 406 from Ste Catharines to Thorold and additional parts of the route to Welland now under construction;

— Highway 7 from Victoria Street to King Street in Kitchener and Highway 7 and 8 from King Street o Fischer Drive;

— Highway 17 from Moodie Drive in Nepean Township west of Ottawa to the Montreal Road in Gloucester Township on Ottawa's eastern boundary;

— Highway 27 in western Toronto from Evans Avenue south of the QEW to Dixon Road north of Highway 401;

— The Airport Expressway in Metropolitan Toronto between Highway 401 and the intersection with Dixon Road.

The number of travellers has been growing noticeably across the province to the extent that Norman Depoe of the CBC has joined them to discover the whys and wherebys these young people take to the roads.

"Last week we've noticed a substantial increase but we've had no complaints so far," a spokesman for Belleville's detachment of the OPP said this morning.

In the city, police reported "no problems or complaints."

When asked if any hitch-hikers had stopped overnight with tents or sleeping bags, the city police spokesman said "if they are they're being set up where we can't see them."

In 1949 Mr. Gibson, his wife and family moved to Cloyne, where he and his son - in - law, Howard Watson, operated a successful general store for 13½ years.

For the past five years Mr. Gibson has resided in Ottawa, where he was a member of Good Companions Club. Mr. Gibson rested at the Bush Funeral Home, Tweed, until Monday, June 7, where the service was conducted in the chapel at 2 p.m. with Rev. David Sinclair officiating. Interment was in Little Lake Cemetery, Peterborough.

Bearers were: Howard Watson, Glen Watson, Roger Watson, Arthur McCarry of Tweed, Douglas Watson, Larry Hobbs and Maurice Gadd.

ANAF Weekly News Notes

There was a large crowd on hand for the general meeting and after the regular business of the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201 was completed, the membership chairman, Archie Jordan presented about 20 new members for initiation. Sgt. Major H. L. Kokesh paraded them to the podium where they were duly initiated and welcomed by the president and members.

Cdr. Archie then escorted several old members to the podium where president John Brousting congratulated them on completing 25 years' service and presented them with their 25 - year lapel pins.

Youth committee chairman Stan Mribourne gave a brief report on the activities of the Air Cadet Squadron sponsored by Unit 201. The meeting then adjourned and the special lunch, which turned out to be "Mess Special", was served and enjoyed. Many expressions of appreciation and thanks to the Ladies Auxiliary for the tasty lunch were heard on all sides.

The Friday evening socials are continuing with the Tartan Lounge being opened at 5 p.m. for social, visiting and relaxation until 8 p.m. and the dancing starting from 8 p.m. until closing time. For the at - home - indoor comfort of the Lounge, the good comradeship and the live music and entertainment, by 11 p.m. couple, it would be hard to find a better bargain any place in town. In these days of rising prices. All are welcome.'

The golf tournament was a huge success with 50 ardent golfers, enjoying a great day on the course. They arrived back about 3 p.m. a bit tired, hungry and thirsty but still full of enthusiasm. The Ladies Auxiliary served delectable hot roast beef sandwiches in the Tartan Lounge. The hungry players certainly did them justice and proposed a hearty vote of thanks to their charming hostesses.

A pleasant surprise to most was the fact that this being the first tournament, everyone was presented with a prize according to their score and ability. The man with the less wife as follows: 1st low gross, M. Acquafredda, 2nd low gross, R. Hipson and 3rd low gross, H. McLaughlin. 1st low net, J. Semark. 2nd low net, S. Houston and 3rd low net, K. McLeod.

After all the prizes had been distributed came the big draw for the magnificent set of golf clubs, bag and cart and that lucky comrade, Hank Ford's ticket was drawn. Maybe he will take up this ancient Scotch game now and be as successful as he was at the cribbage tournament.

The sports chairman, Ken MacLeod is already arranging another tournament and further information will be announced at a later date.

The Provincial Sports meet will be held in London on the 26th of June and Cde. Ken will escort a six - man dart team and two - man cribbage team to try and uphold the honor of Unit 201. Best of luck, comrades, and bring the bacon home.

The Marg Flett Trio will be the entertainers on Friday, June 18 and on June 25 Wally Sawyer and company will be on hand to greet you.

Three comrades are in Belleville General Hospital, they are K. Hollerich, room 225; G. Batchelor, room 714 and R. Foran, room 312. The chairman reports all have been visited and are progressing as well as can be expected.

ROBERT JAMES REYNOLDS, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Reynolds, Regency Towers, Belleville received his bachelor of arts degree from the University of Toronto on June 4. Mr. Reynolds, who plans to study law at Dalhousie University, Halifax, Nova Scotia graduated from Moira Second ry School, Belleville as an Ontario scholar.

MR. AND MRS. NORMAN DAVID CRAWFORD

Crawford – Vesterfelt

Canon R. B. Wright officiated at the wedding ceremony in Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday June 5, when Mary Darlene Vesterfelt of Belleville was united in marriage to Norman David Crawford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Crawford, also of Belleville. John C. Withers provided wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown of Chantilly lace in empire style featuring a ruffled stand-up collar and short puffed sleeves all accented with seed pearl trim with an A-line skirt extending into a chapel back. Her headdress was a triple bow of nylon organza set in clusters of nylon organza flowers caught to a two-tier veil which was highlighted with cascading streamers, knotted with leaves of matching material. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of white daisies mingled with pink roses, fern and pink baby's breath.

Miss Helen Crawford, Belleville, sister of the bridegroom wore a full length gown with empire waist and A-line skirt of peach shade taffeta with an overlay of nylon flocked with tiny embroidered daisies. Her headdress was a cluster of matching daisies with seed pearl centres and leaves with short net veil. She carried a basket of white daisies, peach carnations mingled with fern.

Brenda Bailey of Toronto and Carolyn Osborne, Fort Erie, as bridesmaids were identically attired to the maid of honor but in lilac shade. Miss Sherry Osborne, Fort Erie, niece of the bride was also similarly attired, but in yellow with a circlette of white daisies in her hair and carried a tiny basket containing white daisies and yellow carnations.

Warren Calbury of Belleville attended the bridegroom, while Gordon Vesterfelt, brother of the bride and Reg. Osborne, brother - in - law of the bride were the ushers. Ring bearer was Barry Vesterfelt, brother of the bride who carried the rings on a white satin pillow.

The reception, followed by a dance was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall with Jack Chumbley as master of ceremonies. The bride's mother wore a coat and dress ensemble of lilac silk worsted, white accessories and a corsage of lilac glamelias.

Assisting, the bridegroom's mother wore a coat and dress ensemble of turquoise crimplene with matching lace trim, white accessories and a cymbidium orchid corsage.

For the wedding trip to New York State, Montreal and the Laurentians, the bride donned a blue and white dress with white accessories and a single gardenia corsage.

On return Mr. and Mrs. Crawford will reside at 38A Orchard Drive, Belleville.

Engagement Notice

Interesting Slides Shown at UCW Meeting

FRANKFORD UCW

The UCW held a general meeting in Rose Lowry hall. The president Mrs. G. Savage extended greetings to all and a special welcome to guests from the Holy Trinity ACW. The minutes of the previous meetings were read by Mrs. C. Partington and the treasurer's report by Mrs. C. Moran.

The leaders of the individual groups reported on the plans made for future activities. All groups had agreed to cater for a wedding on June 26. Mrs. F. Rabel reported that 85 per cent of the village calendars had been sold and that the village of Frankford was planning a birthday celebration for the third weekend in August and would appreciate the co-operation of all groups.

Because of the success of the supper held on May 31 to boost the renovation fund it was decided to hold another supper in the latter part of June.

The next meeting will be on September 14 in the form of a potluck supper with individual unit meetings afterwards.

It was suggested that Christmas cards with a picture of the newly remodeled sanctuary be obtained to sell to the members of the church. Mrs. Richards will investigate the cost involved. There was a stewardship seminar on June 7 at Tabernacle Church, east of Campbellford.

The worship service was led by Mrs. H. Richards. Mrs. M. Grills and Mrs. G. Harrington and opened with a reading. An article read by Mrs. G. Harrington compared the development of a butterfly to the reawakening of faith. Scripture readings, a poem and prayer closed the worship service.

Mrs. J. Weese and Mrs. C. Partington sang a duet accompanied by Mrs. Frost.

Mrs. Richards introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Harold Morgan of Brighton who has served as president of the UCW, Cobourg Presbytery and is now teaching geography at Spring Valley School.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan recently travelled to Jamaica, accompanying a group of agricultural workers home to their country. She showed many interesting slides of the country and especially of a class from Ocha Rio School with whom her class now corresponds. There were slides of the sugar cane fields, flower carts, banana trees, water falls and the very blue sea. She showed posters and displays made by her class as well as souvenirs she had brought back.

Mrs. G. Savage thanked Mrs. Morgan for the informative and interesting presentation. Lunch was served by unit 2.

Teacher Receives Award

TWEED — Jack W. LeSage, program consultant, with the department of education, was named one of the four recipients of the Rene Descartes Medal for Mathematics. Mr. LeSage, who taught at Barrie North Collegiate received the award for his contribution to the teaching of mathematics, and to honor him for consistently, outstanding work in the classroom.

The awards were presented at the annual awards dinner of the Rene Descartes Foundation of the University of Waterloo. # New Group Keeps in Touch with the Elderly

By DORIS CLARK

News from Hamilton is the creation of Seniors Tele-Touch. This is a project that was started by the Volunteer Bureau of the Social Planning and Research Council, and has now been taken over by two local churches.

The idea is to set up a system of keeping in touch, daily, with people who are living alone; are elderly or handicapped. They are called on the telephone every day, with the mutual agreement that no phone call shall occupy more than three minutes.

The beauty of it is that each senior on the list knows he will be checked on, every single day. If he wants a visitor or needs some kind of help, he can say so to his contact.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 13 and very bashful. When someone mentions my name or makes some remark about me I turn red.

I can't talk freely to the girls at school because they are always talking about their dates and parties. They think I'm square because I do not go out and I don't want to go on dates because I'm too bashful.

Also, I haven't got the best of clothes, at least not as nice as the other girls. Could you help me overcome my shyness in some way? — Bashful

Dear Bashful: If you could just get it through your noggin that everybody else is not standing around ready to criticize every word you say, this would help. People are not nearly so anxious to pull you apart as they are to get into what goes on themselves.

And this is a clue for you. When you encourage other people to talk by asking about the things that they find exciting, you automatically get them appreciating you. Write that down somewhere. Make it a habit which will stand you in good stead for a lifetime of friendships.

I'm sending you my 10-cent leaflet Tips on Talking.

* * *

Dear Doris: This morning on the radio I heard the minister say, "If you hear anything bad about your friend, do not repeat it." What a wonderful world it would be if everybody practised this!

I know about false gossip. I went through it myself and I bet you my very special male friend was the only person that stood by me.

I am R.C. in religion but I thought that minister made the best speech I ever heard in my life. I had my chances to gossip about the same person who gossiped wrongly about me, but I didn't. After I heard that minister I felt proud of myself and I realize now that it is better to grin and bear it than to go along gossiping.

God bless those who talk like they walk. — Faithful to R.C.

Dear Faithful: It really hits home when you have suffered through the damage done by malicious tongues, doesn't it? Down with the gossips, say I!

Don't just muddle along. Doris knows human behavior and can help. Write to her address a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Strawberry Jam Is Ideal for Beginners

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I've been learning to cook because I'm getting married this month. My folks have a farm and will give us fruit and vegetables. My fiance teases me about making jam and I want to show him I can. My mother says your strawberry jam recipe is good. Do you have that one for frozen strawberry jam too? I would be grateful . . . Judy K.

ANSWER: I hope your husband-to-be gives these jams his loving nod of approval.

STRAWBERRY JAM
(Standard)

2 qts. strawberries (approximately)
7 cups granulated sugar
1 box (1¾oz.) powdered pectin (Certo crystals)

In large preserving kettle mash the washed and hulled berries with a potato masher. You should have 4 and one-half cups when mashed. Mix in pectin, and bring to boil, stirring. Immediately add the sugar, stirring constantly, and boil rapidly one minute. Remove from heat, skim off foam and stir and skim for 5 min. to suspend fruit in jam uniformly. Pour into jam glasses sterilized in boiling water. Cover with new melted paraffin, adding second thin coating when first is set.

FROZEN STRAWBERRY JAM (uncooked — stored in freezer — ideal for beginners)

2 cups mashed strawberries
4 cups powdered fruit (berry) sugar
1 box (1¾ oz.) powdered pectin (Certo crystals)
¾ cup water

Wash berries under running water in a sieve, hull them and drain well. In a flat-bottomed pan mash them, and measure 2 cups. Add the berry sugar, stir very well and let stand 15 min., stirring occasionally. Meanwhile mix together the water and powdered pectin and cook stirring until they come to hard boil and boil 1 min., stirring constantly. Immediately add to fruit-sugar mixture and stir for 3 min. Pour into clean dry 8-oz. jam jars to within ¼" from top. (to allow for possible expansion when frozen). Cover with Saran, then lids at once. Let stand at room temperature for 24 hrs. Store in freezer. NOTE: If this jam is to be used within two or three weeks it will keep in the storage part of your refrigerator — not a freezer.

Best of luck to our new brides.

First Class Secretary Minds Own Business

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is the first time I got so mad I knew I had to write to you, although I've been tempted several times. I am furious at that dame who signed herself "First Class Secretary." If you ask me she is a lousy secretary. I strongly suspect her interest in her boss goes beyond business.

I am also employed by "a wonderful guy" but he is married which means he is off-limits so far as I am concerned. It doesn't make a particle of difference to me how many times a day his wife telephones him. It's my job to put the calls through. If he doesn't want to talk to her he can tell her so. It is also none of my business how much time the boss' wife spends at this office. If she wants to bring a bedroll down here and sleep on the floor, it's O.K. with me.

If the secretary who wrote, wants to be "first-class she can start by keeping her nose and her mouth out of her boss' family affairs. — TWENTY YEARS ON THE JOB WITHOUT TROUBLE.

* * *

DEAR NO TROUBLE: One of the cardinal rules for being a first-class person — as well as a first-class Secretary is to M.Y.O.B. I am not surprised that you have been "Twenty Years On The Job Without TROUBLE." Thanks for writing.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband, who is a handsome, virile, intelligent and gifted man in his middle years, has dirty literature hidden all over the place. When I say "dirty" I don't mean just girlie pictures. I mean the filthiest hard-core pornography you can imagine. Several months ago I complained about the stuff belonging to the house. I learned last week by accident that he is now receiving this garbage at his office.

Is he nuts or is the world sick? I've suggested psychiatric help but he says there is nothing wrong with him. He claims I am narrow-minded, provincial, and hung-up.

Our children are grown. I hate to think of spending the rest of my life with an old fool who gets his kicks from looking at dirty pictures. You usually have a good answer. Do you have one for him? — NUMB.

* * *

DEAR NUMB: He doesn't need an answer. He has one. It's dirty pictures. A middle-aged man with a hobby like that is operating at an adolescent level. But you aren't going to change him, so give up. In your opening sentence you say he is "handsome, virile, intelligent and gifted." Count your blessings, Lady — especially blessing number two. Some of those "lookers" can only look.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our grandson will be five years old soon. My husband is crazy about the child. We are having an argument over the boy's birthday gift. My husband has selected two fancy toy guns from a catalogue. I am opposed to guns for children. In my opinion, there is too much violence on TV, in the movies everywhere one looks.

My husband says cops and robbers and Indians and cowboys are as American as apple pie. He insists it is a healthy way for kids to get rid of excess energy. What do you say? — AGAINST IT.

* * *

DEAR AG: I say, banana oil. Games and sports are much better outlets for youthful energy than make-believe killing. I suggest swimming, hiking, roller skating, bicycling and ping-pong. I am appalled by games that make murder "fun." Such games desensitize children and teach them to accept violence and killing as part of their everyday lives.

Anniversary Celebration at Lodge

Montgomery Lodge was the scene of the recent golden wedding anniversary celebrations of Mr. and Mrs. Healey Derry. A number of guests arrived to congratulate them and they also received congratulatory messages from Prime Minister Trudeau, Robert Stanfield, George Hees, Duncan MacDonald, Mayor of Trenton and Fred Freeman, administrator of Montgomery Lodge. Tea and refreshments were served for the large number of relatives and friends who came to visit the couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Derry have lived in the Trenton area all their married lives. They have two children Cecil and Evelyn.

Mr. Derry was born near Bancroft on September 12, 1893. Mrs. Derry who is the daughter of Vance Stalia, the one-time owner of a newspaper in Trenton was born in the U.S. Both moved to the Trenton area when they were children.

The Derrys were married on June 1, 1921 in the Grace United Church by Rev. Harry Frost. Both are actively interested in church work. Mr. Derry feels that there are many problems concerning the younger generation of today but he accepts the fact philosophically and remembers that he was young once too.

Mr. and Mrs. Derry are residents of Montgomery Lodge to which they went in January 1969.

LESLIE ANNE GENEJA, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Geneja, Corbyville graduated from the Kingston Psychiatric Hospital School of Nursing, on Friday June 11. Miss Geneja who is a graduate of Moira Secondary School, Belleville plans to remain on the staff of the Kingston Psychiatric Hospital.

Curlers Enjoy Party

TWEED — A curlers' party was held Saturday night, when they danced to the music of Jim Bosley from Napanee. The party was held so the curlers could meet their new executive who were elected to guide the club for the 1971-72 season.

Next winter, the members will enjoy the game again, and all the amenities a curling club can offer.

The executive states that new members are most welcome.

BONNIE GALLINGER of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. Shirley Gallinger, graduated at the recent convocation from Sir Sandford Fleming College, Peterborough with a diploma in social services. Miss Gallinger was a graduate of Moira Secondary School.

CHRIST CHURCH GUILD - ACW

Members and their husbands attended a potluck dinner at the summer cottage of Mrs. Cousins on June 8th.

At the business meeting the president thanked everyone for the support given to her through the year and hoped it would continue in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Beeby were especially welcomed back to the parish from their stay in India.

Mr. Hawkins, curate spoke a few words on the overseas' work tour which three of the young people are taking. Mr. Hawkins will preach his farewell sermon next Sunday.

After the reports were read Mr. Hawkins closed with prayer and benediction.

MISS DONNA MARIE WHALEN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Whalen of Belleville, received her bachelor of arts degree (English) from St. Michael's College, University of Toronto. Miss Whalen intends to continue her studies in Nice, France, for the summer. She is a graduate of Nicholson Catholic College, Belleville.

Bank of Montreal
The First Canadian Bank

You may feel shy about asking your Bank of Montreal manager for a loan. You needn't be. If a loan will help you out, your branch manager is sure to understand perfectly.

At the Bank of Montreal, we're flexible about granting loans. Each application is judged on its merits. And, when you get your loan, it amounts to more than just dollars and cents. You get your money's worth in financial advice, follow-up services, and straight information about how to handle your banking affairs.

Rich people are always getting advice from their bank manager. We see no reason why you shouldn't have that advice, too. You may not become wealthy — although you might — but you certainly would know how to get the most for your money. And that means you'd more than likely do better than you're doing now. We want you to get your money's worth.

An Affair of the Heart

- HOW DO YOU CARE for a member of your family who needs more care than you can give at home?
- HOW DO YOU ENSURE that the person dear to you will receive the kind of care required?
- MOST OF US have to face this problem some time in our lives. Our nursing homes assist you in solving this problem.

MONTGOMERY LODGE

What is a nursing home?
A nursing home is a facility which provides nursing care in surroundings as home-like as possible.

Our homes provide, at a reasonable cost, highly professional nursing services in friendly, comfortable surroundings.

Nursing care.
Though the atmosphere is anything but clinical, our homes provide skilled nursing care according to the nature of the person's illness or disability.

GREEN ACRES

OUR FACILITIES AND OUR PROGRAM

Our residents receive nursing care, personal care, diet therapy, recreation and re-activation. They are provided with drugs and other treatment required and prescribed by their physician. Our facilities are modern and tastefully furnished.

Three loan applicants: Who got their money's worth?

He owed too much money:
Robert M. is a carpet salesman. Last year, when his wife became ill, Robert found his medical coverage was insufficient. He felt he needed to borrow $2,500. His Bank of Montreal manager loaned him $3,500 to pay all his bills. Consolidating these debts reduced his rate of interest. Robert feels he got his money's worth.

He wanted to "hit the road":
Joe G., a T.V. repairman, loves the country. A mobile camper was his dream. His Bank of Montreal manager lent him $4,000 to buy a camper and showed him how to dovetail the loan with a savings plan. Joe now takes his family on weekend campouts, has a good time, and his savings are growing steadily. He got his money's worth.

She got more elbow room:
Ann B. is a suburban physiotherapist. Recently, she decided her treatment room wasn't large enough. She asked her Bank of Montreal manager for $2,000 to enlarge it. He lent her $3,000. The extra would allow her to enlarge her waiting room, too. Her patients are now more comfortable and her business has increased.

Power-power

Peterborough native Dale Power slams into a swerve during an exhibition bout at the Zwick's Island courts Saturday. The ninth-ranked Canadian tennis player was in town for an informal match with Belleville's David Hurst. Power is currently attending university in Oklahoma on a tennis scholarship, while doing promotional work in the summer.

This Tennis Power Going to People

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The Jelinek Sporting Goods Company will be giving "Power to the people" this summer and Dale Power doesn't mind the racquet in the least.

The Peterborough native, who played hockey in the Lift-lock City with Mo-Hawk winger Ray Johnston, expects to be involved in about 20 demonstrations for the company this summer. Power is the ninth-ranked Canadian tennis player.

In addition, he plans to play in all of the top tournaments in Canada, although he may decide to forego a brief four on the American circuit. "I'll will only be for a few weeks if I try the tour this summer, so I may decide to play the top Canadian tourneys this year, and possibly try the American circuit next year, he says.

Power who was in Belleville Saturday for an informal match with former provincial junior standout David Hurst, will be in his second term at Oklahoma City College when he returns to school this fall.

He feels that receiving the tennis scholarship to Oklahoma has brought about a significant improvement in his game. "It is like any other sport, if you stop playing for a long time it's going to take you a couple of months to get back into top shape. By playing all year-round you can stay in the groove and things come automatically, which you have to have when you play in top competition."

Facilities to compete year-round and a more business-like approach to the game are the major differences that he sees in American tennis from the game played here.

"In the south they can play outdoors all winter, and even in places like New York, there are a lot of indoor facilities. I think that in the future you'll see a number of these indoor courts in Canada, and that it will bring a big improvement in our game."

The other significant advantage that top-flight Americans players have is that they start at an earlier age. "In California, they're playing competitively when they're six or seven years old, whereas I didn't start until I was 13," explains Power.

The demonstrations, which the Jelinek Company are using to promote their expansion from skating and track into tennis equipment can be beneficial to Canadian youngsters by "showing them top flight tennis and building enthusiasm in the game," he believes.

Long Point Anne Climb Finally Ends

Point Anne climbed, and climbed . . . and finally climbed into a tie with Bolliott Construction for first place in the Commercial Softball League.

The Cementmen finally took a 4-3, 16-inning decision from Howard and Robert Sunday night, to gain their share of first place.

Bob Ethier tried 23 times to send Point Anne tumbling to defeat, recording that number of strikeouts, while winning hurler Jamie Hunter whiffed only four batters in the course of the three-hour battle.

The winning run came in the 16th frame when Rick Rosebush led off with a single and moved to third on a two - base belt by Bruce Stickle. The Point Anne shortstop then raced home on a passed ball to score the winning run before Ethier could record the third out.

Hunter retired the side in order in the bottom of the inning to preserve his nine-hit win. Ethier allowed a total of

RICK ROSEBUSH

16 hits to the Ox Pointers, while not walking a batter. Hunter issued only two free passes during the entire contest.

Point Anne had appeared to be well on the way to getting the win when Eric Maher blasted a solo homer off the left - centre field fence to give his team a 3-2 lead in the tenth.

"Moe" Hunter squared accounts in the bottom of the frame, however with a lead off triple. He scored on an outfield error. .

Mike Cox topped out four singles for the winners with Doug Olson adding a double and two singles and Maher a homer and base knock. Rose-bush and Stickle each accounted for two hits.

Hunter, Pug Kellar and Larry Potter each had a pair of safeties for Howard and Robert.

Firemen Use Escape To Share Seventh Spot

The Firemen gained a share of sole place in the Industrial Softball standings Sunday, but not without a lasting scare from Mead Johnson.

The Meads pushed three runs across in the top half of the seventh inning, but the Firemen escaped with a 10-9 verdict, largely thanks to a big six - run fourth - inning assault.

Brian Reid and Stan Uens split the pitching chores for the winners, issuing ten walks between them. Uens struck out five.

Larry Fritz, Perry Soule, Ralph Boomhower, and Brian Smith each contributed three hits to the Firemen's cause.

Garry Genereaux and Sonny Holoway shared the losers' slab, issuing nine free passes and combining for ten strikeouts. Wayne Storms accounted for three of Mead-Johnson's 12 hits.

Would up to $25,000 make life brighter?

Money builds up in your house. Every time you make a house payment. Every time property values go up. Your equity keeps growing.

You can make that equity work for you, with an Avco Homeowners Loan for $2,000 — $5,000 — $10,000 — as much as $25,000. How much? Just estimate how much your house is worth today, and subtract how much you still owe on it. The difference is your equity — and your borrowing power. It's yours!

Get out from under your bills. Buy a second car — a boat — more education. Take a once-in-a-lifetime vacation. You name it.

Bannons Net Mr. and Mrs. Honors

When is a handicap not really a handicap? When you're playing in a low net golf tournament, of course.

For that reason, Doug and Fran Bannon didn't really feel that they had a chance to capture the Wilson Concrete Trophy Sunday as low net scorers in the annual Bay of Quinte Country Club's Mr. and Mrs. Tournament.

"It was just a few weeks ago that we were saying we didn't have a chance in the low net tournaments, because we didn't feel that our handicaps were high enough for us to get into the money. Since then we've won the Trenton Mr. and Mrs. and now this tournament," explained Doug, obviously not upset by his poor prediction record.

Doug, who plays to an eight handicap and Fran, who gets 17 free strokes combined for an 82 gross in the two - ball tournament, in which teammates alternate shots.

The team covered the front nine in 41 strokes and the back nine in an equal number. "Actually I don't think that you could say we had any key holes, because we missed birdie putts on 15 and 16, which could have really clinched things," claimed the Mr. half of the team. "The best part of our game was our putting and the fact that Fran was driving well enough that we could make the par-four greens as regulation figures."

They were awarded a final net score of 68½ to better runners-up Mr. and Mrs. R. Butler of Bowmanville who netted 70. It was the first time in the six years they've been entered that the Bannons have won the Wilson Trophy.

Low gross honors went to Alex and Betty Ingram who carded a score of 85 over the lengthy par-71 Quinte layout. Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Sutton of Quinte finished third in the low net section, with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Grange of Napanee holding down fourth spot.

Second low gross went to Quinte's Mr. and Mrs. J. Elliot, while Garry Cvatchup and his wife of Napanee took third place honors.

A total of 72 teams from Quinte, CFB Trenton, Smith Falls, Napanee, Picton and Bowmanville were entered in the tournament, which was organized by a committee consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Pigeral, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Rofion, Phil Dybie and Dan Mahorey.

Betty Lying Seven

Belleville's Betty Ingram is hoping that the good luck associated with number seven carries over into the golfing fairways.

(The perennial Bay of Quinte Country Club Woman's champion) has qualified for the seventh spot on a provincial team that will compete against the top women golfers from New York State later this week.

The competition between the ten best golfers from Ontario and their American state counterparts is an annual event. Places on the team were determined by a number of test matches between the top women golfers from across the province.

The matches will be held at the Niagara Falls, N.Y. Country Club this Thursday and Friday.

Playing it Cosy

Cosy Grill exercised a woman's perogative of wailing until the last minute as they tallied twice in the final inning to defeat Weese's Flowers 7-5 in a Women's Softball League bout Sunday.

Sandra Claus hurled a seven-hitter for Cosy while Nora and Donna Barberstock yielded a similar number of safeties for Weese's.

Flying John Gets Revenge

Driver Pat Herrington, placed last by judges for interference a week ago after reining Flying John to the fastest (2.12) heat of the night, brought George Thomas' five-year-old brown gelding home in a blistering 2.09-4 to win Saturday's eighth race.

The winning time was the best of the two-week old Belleville racing season.

Bernard Corcoran was the only driver to record more than one of the 10 heats, reining Debbie Jan Scott in the first, and Roger Lee in the second.

Royals Still Putting Skid On Red Sox

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The red-hot Kansas City Royals made it six straight over Boston Sunday with a 4-3 victory that dumped the Red Sox into third place in the American League East Division, five games behind Baltimore Orioles and one-half game back of Detroit Tigers.

The Royals have won five in a row and 11 of their last 12 and pulled within five games of Oakland in the West as the Athletics bow to New York Yankees 5-1.

Elsewhere, Baltimore edged Chicago White Sox 2-1 as Mike Cuellar posted his eighth consecutive triumph, Cleveland Indians blasted Milwaukee Brewers 11-0 behind Sam McDowell's two-hit pitching, Washington Senators beat California Angels 8-2 and the Tigers tripped Minnesota Twins 9-5.

The Royals, who started Boston's slide with a three-game sweep in Fenway Park two weeks ago, kept it going with three weekend victories, giving the Red Sox four straight defeats and 11 in their last 14 games.

The Royals stole four bases Sunday, giving them 44 in 56 attempts. Freddie Patek swiped second and third in the first inning to set up a run and Ted Savage stole third in the fifth and scored on a single by Patek.

The Royals broke a 3-3 tie in the sixth inning and pieced Sonny Siebert with his third straight setback.

Willie Horton drove in five runs with his 12th homer, a double and an RBI single to pace the Tigers past the faltering Twins. Tony Taylor, a veteran National Leaguer making his AL debut, and Ike Brown also had three hits each.

Mark Belanger bounced an infield hit off home plate in the seventh and Brooks Robinson came home with the winning run as the Orioles nipped the White Sox for their 19th victory in 11 games.

Cuellar worked out of three jams in hitting his record to 10-1.

Roy White drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and a double in support of Fritz Peterson's seven-hit pitching as the Yankees defeated Oakland. The Athletics had their starters on base in every inning but Peterson faltered only in the fifth when Bert Campaneris singled and Joe Rudi doubled him home.

Fresh Yankee Pushing Million Mark

YONKERS, N.Y. (CP) — Amazing Fresh Yankee poured on the speed in the stretch Saturday night and defeated Dayan, the 2-to-5 favorite, by two lengths in the $25,000 Star's Pride Trot at Yonkers Raceway.

The perfectly-gaited trotting mare, now eight years old, raised her season's earnings to $65,712 and lifetime to $322,222.

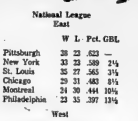
In her personal contest with Dayan, a five-year-old bay horse, Fresh Yankee now has an even split at eight victories each.

Her time was 2:00 4-5 and she paid $6.60, $2.20 and $2.10 in this fifth victory in eight starts this season.

Trainer-driver Joe O'Brien, native of Alberton, P.E.I., handled the reins for Fresh Yankee as usual.

Fresh Yankee, voted harness horse of 1970, is regarded as the best bargain of all harness-racing history. Bred by Charlie Keller of New York Yankee baseball fame, she was bought by Duncan MacDonald of Sydney, N.S., for $300 as a yearling. The Canadian owner's return on his investment has been better than 1,000 to 1.

King Ranch Bids $1½ Million for Canonero



CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Pedro Baptista, owner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, Canonero II, said Sunday the horse "has not yet been sold" but that there is an agreement between himself and Robert Glover of the King Ranch for the sale of the three-year-old colt.

"I have not received any money for the horse yet," Baptista said, "but the offer is a million and a half dollars."

According to his arrangements with Glover, Baptista said "a decision must be taken before the end of this month.

Braves' Rookie Makes Most Of Filling Boyer's Shoes

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Earl Williams' couldn't crack the lineup when Clete Boyer was at third base for Atlanta Braves. Now he's making the most of his opportunity.

Atlanta's rookie infielder knocked in six runs with two homers Sunday, leading the Braves to a 9-0 shelling of Houston Astros.

"You have days like that," said Williams, who always seemed to play his best as a fill-in for Boyer, the slick third baseman released recently after a squabble with management.

When Boyer was sick earlier this year, Williams played third during a three-game National League series with Philadelphia Phillies and had a party at the plate with three homers among his seven hits.

Pittsburgh Pirates tripped the slumping St. Louis Cardinals 8-4, Los Angeles Dodgers clouted Montreal Expos 7-1, San Diego Padres nipped Philadelphia 9-8, Cincinnati Reds stopped Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 11 innings and New York Mets edged San Francisco Giants 5-4 in 10 in other Sunday action.

Chicago defeated Cincinnati 5-2, San Francisco stopped New York 5-1, Philadelphia blanked San Diego 3-0, Los Angeles clouted Montreal 7-3, Houston edged Atlanta 3-2 and Pittsburgh downed St. Louis 4-3 in Saturday's play.

Williams crashed his first circuit blast in the second inning off Don Wilson and caped Atlanta's scoring with a three-run drive off Buddy Harris in he seventh.

In between the Williams's power display, Hank Aaron lashed homer No. 19 and the 611th of his career. Pat Jarvis fired a five-hitter for his second victory in a row after seven losses.

Richie Hebner's three-run homer completed a five-run uprising in the ninth to help Pittsburgh hammer St. Louis and maintain first place in the East Division by 2½ games over New York. St. Louis, which, droped 3½ games behind in third, has lost six straight and 10 of 12.

Bobby Valentine hit his first major league home run, a three-run job in the second inning, and added three more singles as Los Angeles took its 12th victory in 16 games and climbed within six games of first-place San Francisco in the West Division.

Valentine singled to start another three-run uprising in the fifth and drove in a run in the eighth with his fistful hit.

Pinch-hitter Bob Barton drove in two runs with an eighth-inning double to pull San Diego from behind to decide a slugger's battle with Philadelphia.

Tony Taylor singled home the winning run in the 11th, sparking Cincinnati's success. May's game-winning hit off Fergusbn Jenkins scored Pete Rose from second and handed the Cub ace from Chatham, Ont., his sixth loss in 16 decisions.

The Reds had tied it 3-3 with an unearned run in the eighth. Jimmy Stewart opened with a pinch single, went to second when Jenkins bobbled Dave Concepcion's sacrifice bunt, advanced to third on an infield out and scored on Tommy Helms' bouncer.

Ken Singleton's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the 10th scored Bad Harrelson with the winning run for New York as the Mets salvaged the finale of a three-game set with San Francisco.

AURORA, Ont. (CP) — Barbara Simpson took the lead in the Pan-American equestrian selection series at the halfway point, winning Sunday's Grand Prix of Aurora.

After two equestrian meets to select Canada's Pan-Am equestrian team that will travel to Cali, Colombia, in August, the Calgary rider has 51 points, one ahead of Terchy Millar of St. Marguerite, Que., and two up on Olympic gold medallist, Jim Elder of Aurora.

The 23-year-old Western Canada equestrian had two faultless rides to win Sunday's event.

TORONTO (CP) — Chatty Cavalier won the first division and Kennedy Road the second in the $10,000 Plate Trial Stakes in the seventh and eighth races Sunday at Woodbine racetrack.

Saturday, Lauries Dancer overtook nine horses in the backstretch to capture the 16th running of the $47,800 Canadian Oaks Stakes.

Lauries Dancer, owned by Mrs. Arthur Stollery of Toronto and ridden by Sandy Hawley, finished 1¼ lengths ahead of favored Painted Pony to capture the richest race in Canada for three-year-old Canadian-bred fillies.

Lauries Dancer ran the 1¼-mile in 1:50 3-5 for her fourth win in five starts this season. The winner's purse was $31,070.

Hawley had four wins.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Two-year-old pacing sensation Strike Out won his fourth consecutive race Saturday over a field of older and more experienced horses in the sixth race at Garden City Raceway.

The rookie pacer covered the mile in 2:03 2-5 and paid $3.40, $2.20 and $3.10.

The red-coated son of Bret Hanover went to the lead at the beginning and finished 1½ lengths ahead of Non Stop, Maxie Mir was third.

* * *

Keystone Song and Volo Knight paced their hearts out for half the mile in splits of 28.4 seconds and 1:01, only to finish last and second-last while Rapid Henry blazed through their dust to win the mile pace in 2:04, a personal record for the distance.

With Andre St. Amour at the reins, the five-year-old chestnut gelding, owned by Rejean Marion and Henry Ouellette of Russell, Ont., was something of a surprise and returned $18.40, $10.10 and $4.70.

HAMBURG, N.Y. (CP) — Cathy Lee, driven by Brian Schroeder, turned in the fastest trotting mile of the season here 2:02.3-winning the featured seventh race at Buffalo Raceway Saturday.

Cathy Lee, paying $5.40, $3.20 and $2.80, beat out Bonus Boy by a nose. Satchel the Pro was third.

A lot of pretty nice girls drive Toyota Corollas. (One out of every three Corollas are bought by women.) We figure it's because women just naturally know a good bargain when they see it. They know how much a gallon of gas costs and how nice it is to go up to 35 miles on one. They know about the optional automatic and 4-speed all synchromesh transmissions. (Even if they don't know what all the synchromesh is about.)

They also know that along with every Corolla you get a lot of nice gadgets. Like fully reclining front bucket seats, an electric rear window defroster, Fresh-Flow ventilation, and front disc brakes.

But there's another reason why so many women buy the Corolla. They like the way it looks. And they naturally feel that one pretty face and nice figure deserves another.

And so it does.

Orange Cars at It Again

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — The bright orange sports cars of Team McLaren made it one-two in the opener of the Canadian - American Challenge Cup series Sunday, threatening to dominate motorsport's richest series for a fifth year.

New Zealander Denis Hulme took the chequered flag after completing the 200 miles in elapsed time of one hour, 48 minutes, 15.2 seconds at an average speed of 109.333 miles an hour. Only nine-tenths of a second behind him was team-mate Peter Revson of Harlae City, Calif., driving an identical McLaren.

Sunday's event was the first in a 10-race series for big-bore sports cars in which more than $1,000,000 in purses and manufacturers' prizes is at stake.

Since the series began in 1966, there have been 41 races and Team McLaren drivers have won 30 of them. The team has won 20 of the last 21 races.

New Zealander Bruce McLaren founded the team and scored many of its victories before he was killed in a track accident in Britain last year. All of the cars are designed and built in the McLaren works at Colnbrook, England.

There was little excitement in the race after Scotsman Jackie Stewart dropped out. As top qualifier in trials last week he was the one man in the field of 26 given a chance to beat the McLaren team.

He took the lead away from Hulme after nine laps but in the first 14 minutes oil began to pour from the rear of his Lola. He packed it in on the 18th lap with a seized transmission.

Then Hulme took the lead, followed closely by Revson and they held their positions for the rest of the race with no threats from any other driver.

His victory enriched him with $13,000 in prize money and the Labatt's Blue Trophy.

The New Zealander watched Sewart's car in the early laps and knew what was going to happen.

"Straightaway I saw he was losing oil from the transmission," Hulme said later.

"I knew he couldn't go on forever, so I just backed right off to nil and see what would happen."

The race was rough on the cars and at the finish only 16 machines were running. Track marshals reported 44 incidents on the course, ranging from dragging hoses to spin-outs.

Two Californians, Lothar Motschenbacher of Newport Beach and Bob Bondurant of Tustin, had a little race of their own far back from the leaders. They finished third and fourth respectively in McLarens.

John Cordts of Port Sydney, Ont., made the best showing of a Canadian in any race since the series started when he brought his McLaren home in fifth place.

Roger McCaig, a westerner who now races out of Scarborough, Ont., finished 10th, also in a McLaren.

Rainer Brezinka of Toronto in a McLaren, Gordon Dewar of Ottawa also in a McLaren and Rudi Bartling of Agincourt, Ont., in a March were not running at the finish but officials placed them 15th, 16th and 20th.

Cordts, who was among the first four for most of the race, was exhausted after fighting his car which began to give him trouble when oil from a breather pipe soaked a rear wheel. When he pulled into the pits his crew splashed him with cold water before he could finish the race.

McCaig, whose seat was not properly positioned, also suffered from heat and his crew also gave him the water treatment.

Next date for the Can-Am racers is Le Circuit, Mont Tremblant, Que., June 27.

Bay of Quinte Yacht Club Commodore Ray Day and his wife Peggy hoist signal flags on their sloop, Sinbad V, before Saturday's sail-past at the yacht Club. The commodore took the salute from his yacht as about 50 boats belonging to club members turned out for the annual event that heralds the official opening the yachting season.

Sail-past Launches Season

The local yachting season opened officially Saturday at 4 p.m. with the annual sail past of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

Commodore Ray Day took the salute from skippers and crews of about 30 sailboats and 20 power boats. As the boats circled the commodore's Shark class sloop anchored off the tip of Victoria Park, the 34-member Sea Cadet band from RCSCC Quinte played nautical selections.

Robert Lanning in Mad Hatter led the sailing yachts, across the bay for the sail past and Albert Horlock led the power boats. A dinner and dance at the yacht club followed the sailpast.

The third race of the season, held Sunday afternoon, was scratched because of light winds.

Friendly Rivals

Triumph teammates Ted Newton and Dave Sehl waged a friendly, but highly competitive rivalry at the Muscular Dystrophy Benefit Motorcycle Races held at the Belleville Fairgrounds Sunday afternoon. The 1,200 fans on hand for the event witnessed duels between some of the top Canadian and American dirt track racers. Newton won the 250 cc expert class, while Sehl came through with a victory in the 750 event.

Sport Briefs

MONTREAL (CP) — David Molson, president of Montreal Canadiens, says his club is not for sale, despite various rumors to the contrary. Canadian Arena Co. which owns the Forum and the Canadiens was $9.50 on the Montreal Stock Exchange two months ago and began climbing after the Canadiens defeated Boston Bruins in the Stanley Cup semi-finals. It closed at $14.50 Friday. "The stock should be worth $25," said Bill Molson, who with his brother David and Peter owns 60 per cent of the shares in the company. "We are equal of Maple Leaf Gardens, with as many shares, and yet it stands at $27 a share. It's the situation here that has held the price down. To sell you'd want at least $25 a share." If offered anything like that, would the Molson's dispose of the arena? "That's a hypothetical question," said David Molson. "It's like asking, would you sell your wife for a million dollars. You'd have to hear the offer before you could consider it."

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — "It's like shooting craps," Tom Weiskopf said of his playoff victory over Dale Douglass, Lee Trevino and South African Gary Player in the $150,000 Kemper open golf tournament. Weiskopf, who broke a three-year victory drought with his come-from-behind triumph Sunday, was talking about the use of sudden-death to settle ties after 72 holes. "If you've got more than one player, then sudden-death isn't really a major test. A lot of luck enters into it." The $30,000 first prize, pushed his earnings for the year to $60,367.

MONTREAL (CP) — Phil Wimmer, president and general-manager of Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, announced Saturday that Roger Bedard has been retained to coach the team for the fourth straight season. Bedard led the team to the Memorial Cup for two straight years in 1968-69 and 1969-70.

Knudson Returns To Open

TORONTO (CP) — George Knudson of Toronto, who has been having putting problems on the United States Professional Golfers' Association tour, will take time off from the tournament trail to seek his third Ontario Open title here this week.

Knudson, Canada's most successful tour golfer, hasn't played an Ontario Open since he last won it 10 years ago at Toronto's Islington club.

Other prominent PGA touring Canadian set to tee off at Toronto's Weston golf club this week include Al Balding, Gary Bowerman and Ben Kern of Toronto, Montreal's Ken Fulton, Wilf Homeniuk of Winnipeg and Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver.

Bill Wright Jr. of Edmonton will be back to defend the title he won last year.

Hillman Becomes King

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Flyers have dealt 34-year-old defenceman Larry Hillman to Los Angeles Kings, also of the National Hockey League's West Division, for right winger Larry Mickey.

Flyers' general manager Keith Allen announced the trade Sunday night.

Four Babies Live

Canberra Housewife Gives Birth to Nine

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter). — Only four of the nine babies born Sunday to a Canberra housewife who took a fertility drug were still alive today, and doctors refused to speculate on the chances of survival for three of them.

Seven of the nine babies were born alive to 29-year-old Geraldine Brodrick, but three died Sunday night after developing breathing difficulties.

In a bulletin announcing the deaths of two boys and a girl, the Royal Hospital for Women this morning said the condition of two of the three surviving girls and the only remaining boy was "causing concern."

The condition of the fourth surviving baby, a girl, was described as unchanged from birth. At that time, the hospital described the babies' chances as the same as in any multiple birth: None of the babies weighed above two pounds.

The babies were two months premature.

The birth of the nonuplets was the largest multiple birth on record. Amid the proliferation in mass births since the use of fertility drugs became widespread in the last decade, eight babies were born to a Mexican woman March 16, 1967, but all died within 14 hours.

The hospital spokesman said Mrs. Brodrick had made an excellent recovery and was in no need of any special post-natal treatment.

Doctors treating Mrs. Brodrick said that she had been treated with a fertility drug—although not for infertility. She has two other children: Belinda, 5, and Jacqueline, 4.

Mrs. Brodrick's husband, Leonard, is a 33-year-old meat salesman and she is a former nurse. They live in Canberra, Australia's capital.

Commons Goes Into Second Week of Overtime Before Holidays

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons goes into its second week of overtime today in an 11th hour drive to push through legislation and rise for summer recess.

Scheduled for debate beginning at 11 a.m.—three hours earlier than usual—are bills to amend the Judges Act, create five pilotage districts for Canadian shipping, and establish standards to fight air pollution across the country.

The bill to amend the Judges Act, the only one of 12 bills remaining on the Commons order paper which has yet to receive second reading, was slated for first consideration.

It would increase the number of federally-appointed judges by 12 to 41 and raise the salaries of such judges by as much as $9,000.

The other two bills are at report stage, the step immediately following committee consideration and preceding third and final reading.

The government also hoped that Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey's unemployment insurance bill would be given third reading tonight.

Debate has been completed on amendments proposed at report stage, and votes on those amendments that require formal counts are scheduled for 8 p.m. EDT.

If debate on third reading is short, the bill could have Commons approval by the end of the sitting.

It would expand the unemployment insurance program by bringing in 1.2 million people who haven't been covered, would increase benefits and reduce qualifying work periods.

Debate on legislation will end at 5 p.m. Friday, when Finance Minister E. J. Benson brings down his budget.

There are two days set aside this week for debate on subjects of the opposition's choosing.

The Social Credit party will introduce a motion for debate Tuesday, and the Conservatives Wednesday or Thursday.

One of the most contentious bills of the year remains on the order paper at report stage, with 27 amendments waiting to be debated.

It is the farm products marketing bill, which has been fought hard by the Conservatives since last spring, when it was first introduced.

If there is any legislation that will keep members from leaving Parliament Hill by the end of the month, that is expected to be it, although it could be held over until the fall.

Newlyweds

Following Highly Publicized Wedding Tricia Nixon and Husband in Hiding

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Edward and Tricia Cox, married Saturday in the most publicized White House wedding ever, spent the remainder of the weekend on their honeymoon at an undisclosed place.

Such was the secrecy veiling their hideaway that it was not certain they had left the Washington area. There was speculation that they might have spent their first night at Camp David, the presidential retreat in the Catoctin Mountains of western Maryland about 50 miles from here.

At the wedding Saturday, President Nixon said he had an idea where his daughter and his new son-in-law were going, but hinted only that they would not go out of the country or to the Caribbean.

Tricia was still dressed in her white silk organdy wedding gown when she and Cox swept out of the White House and away from the 400 guests and 600 reporters and photographers.

Tricia, who has been exposed to publicity through most of her 25 years, was promised honeymoon privacy by her father.

"Not even the Secret Service will be there," Nixon said after the wedding. But he hinted that agents might not be far away.

The only threat to the success of Saturday's wedding was a light drizzle which delayed the ceremony for 30 minutes. But Tricia was determined to be the first White House bride to be married outdoors and insisted on keeping the rose garden as the site for the service.

The spectacular wedding fulfilled her hopes to be "a day we want to remember as both historic and beautiful."

The brief, 10-minute ecumenical ceremony, drawn from the Roman Catholic Methodist and Episcopalian liturgies, was conducted by Rev. Edward Gardiner Latch, Methodist chaplain of the House of Representatives.

Tricia smiled, but Edward, 24, was solemn as they exchanged identical vows beneath a bower of flowers over an altar in the garden outside the presidential Oval Office.

The ring which Cox placed on the finger of the president's daughter contains 30 full-cut brilliants set in platinum, the White House said.

The couple have known each other for seven years and were engaged secretly for two.

Most of the 400 guests were friends and relatives of the Nixons and the socially-prominent Cox family, who are from New York.

The newlyweds will live in New York City this summe where the groom will work as judge's clerk. Then they wi move to a $180-a-month apar ment, in Cambridge, Mass while Cox spends his final yea at Harvard law school.

West Pakistani Journalist Accuses Army of Genocide

LONDON (Reuter) — Accusations of genocide by Pakistan government troops against Hindus and Bengali Muslims in East Pakistan are made by a Pakistani newspaper editor in a 2½-page article in The Sunday Times.

Anthony Mascarenhas, who was assistant editor of the Karachi Morning News and The Sunday Times's correspondent in Pakistan, left Pakistan with his family to tell the world why more than five million refugees had left East Pakistan for India, stoking famine and cholera, the London newspaper says.

He was one of eight Pakistani journalists to fly to East Bengal in April shortly after the Pakistan army moved against Bengali rebels there.

Mascarenhas writes that the censor allowed him to report the events following the March 25 rebellion of Bengali troops and paramilitary units stationed in East Pakistan and the fact thousands of Muslim families were wiped out.

He says the government of Pakistan let the world know about that first horror, but suppressed the second and, he says, worse horror which followed when its own army took over the killing.

Mascarenhas reports that West Pakistani officials privately calculated that altogether both sides had killed 250,000 persons — not counting those who died of famine and disease.

Soviet and American Transport Planes Stand Ready to Move Bengal Refugees

CALCUTTA (Reuter) — Giant Soviet and American transport planes will join in a massive race against the clock to move refugees from congested border areas to avert an outbreak of killer pneumonia.

Already, special trains have carried to a desolate area in central India about 20,000 of the 6.5 million refugees who have fled East Pakistan into the Indian states of West Bengal state and Assam and the centrally administered territories of Tripura and Meghalaya.

The pneumonia threat provides a new headache for harried officials just as they appear to have consigned the cholera epidemic which already is estimated to have killed more than 5,000 of the refugees.

Doctors at a refugee camp on the outskirts of Calcutta reported this weekend that they were treating up to 40 cases of pneumonia a day and a number of people were dying.

Hopes of moving out enough refugees from this and other camps before the situation gets worse are pinned on the special trains running daily and the American and Soviet planes.

Three big Soviet Antonov transport aircraft are due at Calcutta's Dum Dum airport tonight to start ferrying refugees 350 miles to the southwest to the remote Mana area of Madhya Pradesh.

Wednesday, four American C-130 transport aircraft will start ferrying refugees from Tripura territory to Gauhati in Assam.

At least 10 trains, each carrying over 1,000 refugees, have left for Mana in the last week.

Three trains carrying between them close to 4,000 refugees have set out from Hasnabad on the border with East Pakistan and about 15 trains with about 1,000 East Pakistanis each have left Barasat, 15 miles from Calcutta, since June 7.

Many of the refugees do not want to go to Mana, a reclaimed forest land area originally cleared to resettle the hordes of refugees who came into India at the time of the sub-continent's partition in 1947.

"There is no other way," said a Hasnabad refugee camp official. "We are dispatching them to Mana because there is no question of shelter here."

White's District Personals

Members of the Bayside Bible Study group attended the memorial service for a member, Mrs. Mary Arnott at the Pinkston funeral home on Thursday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bilham attended the Dorothy Dickey dance recital at BCI, Belleville on Thursday evening when their granddaughter, Roxanne Kleinsteuber danced, representing the month of March in costume.

Jimmie Jones, his mother Mrs. Eric Jones and Andrew Palmer attended the Hastings and Prince Edward cadet corps inspection at the Belleville armories on Sunday. Jimmie and Andrew took part in the inspection which showed cadets on parade. The flag party, the instructional staff was introduced and weapons and first aid were explained.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Millar, Douglas, Carolyn and John, Carolyn O'Connor of Oakville and Mrs. Garry Millar of Napanee attended the Dorothy Dickey 19th annual recital at BCI when Miss Carolyn Millar contributed acrobatics baton and two tap numbers.

Quebec Hydro Strike May Break Out Again

MONTREAL (CP) — A spokesman for the Canadian Union of Public Employees said Sunday that another strike may break out at Hydro-Quebec if a scheduled meeting today between Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer and Hydro's board of directors does not bring concrete results.

Hydro's 12,000 workers were to return to work today in response to a temporary injunction ordering them back on the job after a four-day strike.

The injunction, effective until Thursday, ordered "an immediate stop to all illegal acts, walkouts, strikes or slowdowns."

Earlier Sunday, CUPE issued a statement claiming Mr. Cournoyer's decision to meet the Hydro directors was a union victory.

The strike was ruled illegal because the current contract for Hydro workers does not expire until Dec. 31, 1971. It began last Tuesday when 4,200 installation and maintenance workers represented by CUPE walked out to protest lagging negotiations over job reclassification.

IN THE MATTER of an application by the Minister of Transportation and Communications for approval to expropriate lands in the Township of Sidney,

FOR THE PURPOSE of the reconstruction of Highway No. 2.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that application has been made for approval to expropriate the land described in the schedule hereto. ✍

Any owner of lands in respect of which notice is given who desires an inquiry into whether the taking of such land is fair, sound and reasonably necessary in the circumstances or the objectives of the expropriating authority shall so notify the approving authority in writing,

(a) in the case of a registered owner, served personally or by registered mail within thirty days after he is served with the notice, or, when he is served by publication, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice;

(b) in the case of an owner who is not a registered owner, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice.

THE APPROVING AUTHORITY IS

The Minister of Transportation and Communications, Parliament Buildings, Toronto 5, Ontario.

Minister of Transportation and Communications
W. G. Hay
Director, Right-of-Way Branch.

NOTES :

1. The Expropriations Act, 1968 - 69 provides that,
   (a) where an inquiry is requested, it shall be conducted by an inquiry officer appointed by the Minister of Justice and Attorney General;
   (b) the inquiry officer,
   (i) shall give every party to the inquiry an opportunity to present evidence and argument and to examine and cross-examine witnesses, either personally or by his counsel or agent, and
   (ii) may recommend to the approving authority that the party to the inquiry be paid a fixed amount for his costs of the inquiry not to exceed $200 and the approving authority may in its discretion order the expropriating authority to pay such costs forthwith.
2. "Owner" and "registered owner" are defined in the Act as follows:
   "owner" includes a mortgagee, tenant, execution creditor, a person entitled to a limited estate or interest in land, a committee of the estate of a mentally incompetent person or of a person incapable of managing his affairs, and a guardian, executor, administrator or trustee in whom land is vested;
   "registered owner" means an owner of land whose interest in the land is defined and whose name is specified in an instrument in the proper registry, land titles or sheriff's office, and includes a person shown as a tenant of land on the last revised assessment roll.
3. The expropriating authority, each owner who notifies the approving authority that he desires a hearing in respect of the lands intended to be expropriated and any owner added as a party by the inquiry officer are parties to the inquiry.

SCHEDULE

DEMENTED DOCTOR

LEWES, England (CP) — Reginald Koopchand worked for two years as a psychiatric doctor in four hospitals without any qualifications until some of his forged documents were spotted. His background, unravelled by Sussex judges, showed that before practising medicine, Koopchand had been a mental patient. He was sent to jail for five years.

Sick Leopard Proof Lead Pollution in Air Threatens All

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — A sick black leopard, his dead twin brother, and other zoo animals seem to be sounding an alarm bell that humans are endangered by lead in the air, pathologists cautioned today.

The main source of this lead seems to be gasoline fumes and industrial operations, they said.

The ailing leopard — nicknamed Mr. Leo Park—is being treated at the New York Medical College to rid his body of high concentrations of lead for the second time in his 18 months of life.

He was recently brought in again, suffering from convulsions, from the Staten Island Zoo in New York City, where his twin brother, died last November. An autopsy found that animal "loaded with lead." Can lick their fur, which can attract lead or other heavy elements in the atmosphere.

Sending Mr. Leo Park back to the zoo again could be his death warrant from a third round of lead poisoning, said Dr. Ralph Strevel, one of the pathologists.

The animal's name comes from a laboratory technician who analyzed a blood specimen marked Leopard, thought it had to be a human patient named Leo Park and so marked his returns report.

Other big cats-lions, tigers, jaguars—at the Staten Island Zoo have been found to have elevated levels of lead and since in their stools and hair, and so to a lesser degree have big cats at the Bronx Zoo 15 miles away, said Strebel, associate professor of pathology at the medical college. He is project director of a comparative pathology program designed to benefit both humans and animals.

Dennis F. Craston, toxicologist in the chief medical examiner's office, found elevated lead content in animals and in grass, leaves, bricks and air exhaust ducts of new buildings.

Paints containing lead-including some latex paints supposedly free of lead—on walls or bars that animals can rub against or lick are probably the second main source of the lead, Craston said.

Strebel said many thousands of people may suffer from effects of lead and other heavy metals. These effects could include lethargy, a slowing of nerve condition, vage pains, thesia and enzyme activity in and interference in protein synthe the body, he ad Craston said.

The human body content of lead is higher now than 18 years ago, they agreed. Traffic patrolmen and people working in certain industries have been found to have particularly elevated contents of lead in their blood.

Illness, mental retardation and death have been attributed to the chewing of old lead-containing paints by young children.

Sinatra Gives His Last Performance

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — He stood with feet apart, head tilted, his throat quivering as he sang in a hand-held mike.

Frank Sinatra had performed in his unique style thousands of times in the last 30 years. But this time it was different. He said it was his last performance.

Sinatra, 55, was the last performer at an all-star Music Centre gala that raised $800,000 for the Motion Picture and Television Relief Fund. He followed such stars as Bob Hope, Mitzi Gaynor, Jack Benny, Johnny Durante, Cary Grant, James Stewart, Princess Grace of Monaco, the Fifth Dimension and Pearl Bailey with a Hello, Dolly! chorus that includes Rock Hudson, Sammy Davis Jr., David Niven, Jack Lemmon and Don Rickles.

Immediately before Sinatra, Barbara Streitand electrified the audience with her songs. But it was Frank Sinatra's night.

Sinatra announced last April that he was retiring from show business.

He also introduced Sunday night by actress Rosalind Russell. In a voice heavy with emotion she termed him: "This greatest entertainer of the 20th century." He came on stage for the first of three standing ovations during his half hour performance.

"This was the beginning," he remarked and launched into All Or Nothing At All, his first hit record after leaving the Tommy Dorsey band to go on his own.

Next, Nelson Riddle's thumping arrangement of I've Got You Under My Skin, then he launched into I'll Never Smile Again which catapulted him to fame with the Dorsey band.

Old Man River . . . That's Life . . . Try a Little Tenderness . . . Fly Me to the Moon . . . Nancy With a Laughing Face, which he sang when daughter Nancy was a small girl.

The ovation was thundering when the lights went up. "Goodbye—I love you," he said, and then strolled off stage for the last time.

Closing of Famous Stork Club Marks End of Era in New York

By JACK KAVANAUGH

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The Stork Club, whose very name evoked exclusivity, class and status has closed.

El Morocco, a mecca for international social unions and a veritable symbol of elegance in nightlife, is also gone.

The Latin Quarter, renowned for its long legged showgirls and flamboyant entertainment, has shut its doors, along with Lindy's, celebrated by Damon Runyon and a longtime raucous gathering place for Broadway characters and show business folk.

Toot's Shor, a regular watering hole-restaurant that attracted sports figures, politicians, newspaper men and such show business personalities as Jackie Gleason, Frank Sinatra and Bob Hope, is gone as well.

In swift succession over the last few years, five of New York's best-known restaurants and nightclubs have shut down. And their demise, in a sense, chronicles the death of New York nightlife, once the city's most glittering and glamorous lure.

In the 1940s and 1950s New York night life reached its zenith. Scores of nightclubs, big and small, abounded.

Today, only the famed Copacabana remains. Apart from dropping its chorus line three years ago, the Copa has not changed its successful format, which generally includes a popular singer such as Tom Jones or a singing group, a comic and separate American and Latin orchestras for dancing.

Patrons are charged a minimum of $8.50 which can be applied toward food and drinks. But there is no cover charge, which is believed by many to have led to the downfall of some night spots.

Otherwise, New York night life for the most part consists of a number of so-called supper clubs, intimate bistros that usually feature a singer or comic. A few jazz spots remain along with a number of discotheques.

Also remaining are a handful of hotel nightclubs such as the Empire Room at the Waldorf-Astoria, the Persian Room at the Plaza and the Royal Box at the Americana. But soaring prices keep many would-be patrons away, or, at least, make them infrequent customers.

Perhaps the most successful phenomenon on the New York night life scene in recent years has been the singles bar.

Concentrated mainly on Manhattan's fashionable Upper East Side, they are dimly-lit, cosy cocktail lounges catering to young people.

What killed New York night life? The reasons are varied.

Some say the nightclubs were done in by television, which is partly true. In the 40s and 50s people went to nightclubs to enjoy the shows, to eat, drink and to dance. But dancing no longer has the appeal it once did—at least not the type of dancing done in nightclubs.

The rise of New York night life that has boomed in the last few years is prostitution. Prostitutes by the score walk the streets or stand in doorways soliciting passersby, unmolested by the police except for occasional periodic sweeps.

Pause That Refreshes

Michigan rider Ted Newton pauses for a cool drink after winning the 250 cc expert class at the Muscular Dystrophy Benefit Races Sunday. Newton outclassed a field, which included fellow American Cliff Keener, 750 winner Doug Sehl, Canadian dirt track champion (dirt) Fraser and Bob Swaddling who won the event in 1970. Newton indicated that he may be back to attempt a repeat performance at the Ontario championships here July 11th.

However, the mechanical troubles that forced Whitby down rider Doug Sehl to drop out after one lap from the 250 competition weren't in evidence in the 750 final as he raced away from the rest of the field.

A disappointing crowd of 1,300 showed up for the races, held Sunday afternoon at the Belleville fairgrounds, however the field of racers was high on both quantity and quality.

Organizers of the races felt that the Can-Am auto races held at Mosport this weekend helped reduce the size of the crowd, which dropped drastically from the 3,000 fans present in 1970. On the other hand, a large motorcycle road racing championship at Laconia, New Hampshire helped insure a stronger than usual field in Belleville. A large 750 invaded American dirt track riders made their appearance, because there were no major American dirt track races this weekend.

Sehl, younger brother of last year's Canadian Nationals winner Dave, took the lead in the first lap of the 750 final and was never seriously challenged after that. "I knew that 'Corky' (Keener) was right behind me," said th e first-year American Motorcycle Association expert-class rider, "when he put on a little bit, then so did I."

The Triumph rider felt that the condition of the Belleville track kept the time to a relatively slow 3:53 for eight laps. "It was pretty rough out there in spots and as a result we had to go a little slower. I felt a lot more tired today than I do in many of the longer races."

"You think it was rough where you were! You should have been back with me," chided teammate Ted Newton. The Pontiac Michigan rider survived some bumping in the closely - bunched pack at the start and then had to thread his way through the field for a third place finish behind Sehl and fellow Michigan competitor Cliff "Corky" Keener.

Newton had little trouble in the 250 class, gidding his Harley - Davidson Sprint to a winning time of 4:04 in the four-mile race. The American rider actually prefers the larger 750 cc machines to the 250, despite his success in that class yesterday.

"It's the first time this year that Doug has beaten me. I guess I must have caught him on his home ground," was how he explained his loss in the 250 event. It was the first time that he has raced in Canada this season.

The strength of the field was evidenced by the fact that 1970 winner Bob Swaddling finished last in the finals.

Younger brother Dave Newton made it a clean sweep for the family by placing his Harley to a win in junior events.

Toronto's Doug Cornwell was the other top junior rider trailing Newton to the line in the 250 final and then winning the 500 cc class with his large Bultaco bike.

A total of 18 heats, which included a number of eliminations before the regular heat got under way, had to be run because of the large field of 56 junior riders and 18 expert.

The next major local race will take place on the same track Sunday, July 4th, when the Ontario Championship will be held in Belleville for the 11th straight year.

Legionnaires Best All Round

Dale Best was the best performer for Belleville minor baseball's best representative team in weekend action.

Best rapped four singles to lead the Belleville Legion Intermediate Lakeshore Intermediate League win of the season.

Garnie Adams went the route for the Belleville Juniors giving up seven hits, fanning seven and walking three batters. He got out of a jam in the ninth inning when Kendal came from a 5-2 deficit to score two runs before Adams could halt the rally.

Terry Carleton took the loss for Kendal. Failing to make safeties, striking out five and walking three batters.

Paul Hall slammed a homer and single for the Kinsmen with Glenn Carleton getting two singles. Randy Burke a triple and Adams a double.

Other hits went to Barry Calkin, Steve Moore and Bill Kirkham.

Alarm About Sleep Is Not Convincing

Lately there have been some more "Thou shalt not" in medical articles warning against the dangers of sleeping too much. According to this new development, if you sleep longer than eight hours or so every night, you are more liable to have a stroke or heart attack.

I am not convinced. I still believe you will be healthier and enjoy life more if you get your personal quota of sleep.

You will note I have said "personal quota". For it is true that some of us get along very well on six hours nightly, while others need at least eight hours of sleep. And some as much as 10 hours before they feel completely rested. After reading about the warning against too much sleep, a reader wrote:

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am in my late 60s. All my life I have required at least nine hours of sleep at night. In addition, I take a half-hour nap in the afternoon. I've had perfect health all my life. Now I'm troubled. I've read that too much sleep may be dangerous. Do you suggest that I set the alarm two hours earlier and get only seven hours? — Mrs. B.

COMMENT: Sell your alarm clock, give it away, or throw it into the wastebasket. Under no circumstances let it be the instrument for getting you out of bed so much earlier than you've been accustomed to all your life. Continue with your present sleep-quota. There's too much sleep interruption as it is.

For example, consider the sick patient, actually aching for a good night's sleep while he is in the hospital. How many times have you heard the hoary joke: "I can't get any sleep. The nurse comes in to wake me up to give me a pill to go to sleep." Or, "They wake me up to take my temperature." or "Why should they begin cleaning my room at 6 o'clock in the morning and wake me up so early?"

So go the "beefs" from patients. We are coming to realize that the hospital is no place to get a good night's rest. There have even been some recent complaints in medical journals by doctors that their patients, seriously ill in [CU (intensive care units), are deprived of necessary sleep because of so many interruptions.

I could go on and on. So be thankful, Mrs. B., that you are a sound sleeper. Keep on with the regular sleep-quota that has helped keep you healthy for over 60 years. Don't let every new (improved) theory throw your schedule off. I know many insomniacs who would gladly swap places with you.

* * *

For Mr. B.: Although it is true that baldness is sometimes caused by excessively oily hair or dandruff or some actual scalp disease, in at least 90 per cent of all cases of male baldness of the usual pattern it is a waste of money to depend upon claims of "special treatments" that promise to cure or prevent baldness.

* * *

For Miss G.: Bobby pins should never be used to remove excess wax from the ear. It's possible that the itching in your ear may be due to wax, but better let the doctor remove it. Any sharp objects are liable to scratch and injure the lining of the ear canal.

Besides, it may not be due to wax. Sometimes a fungus or bacterial infection is the cause of the itch. This can be stubborn if untreated.

Two Plane Crashes Add to Mishap Toll

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two airplane crashes, one of which killed five members of an Ontario family, accounted for nine of the 67 accidental deaths in Canada this weekend.

L. David Lesver, 36, of Campbellville, Ont., his wife and three daughters were killed Saturday in a crash at Tobermory, Ont., 65 miles northwest of Owen Sound. Mr. Leaver was general manager of the Leaver Mushrooms Co. Ltd., the largest mushroom growers in Canada. Another daughter was in critical condition in hospital.

Saturday, four persons died in the crash of another light aircraft on Tod Mountain, 25 miles northwest of Kamloops, B.C. Harold Palmer of Kamloops, pilot and plane owner and three unidentified passengers were killed.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Sunday night showed that 38 persons died in traffic accidents and 10 by drowning. Two died in fires, two when hit by a train, one by lightning, one by asphyxiation, and one in an accidental shooting.

The 38 traffic deaths on the weekend, and 44 in the previous week, brought the number of persons killed on Canadian highways since Jan. 1 to at least 1,225.

Ontario's total of 25 deaths was the highest in the country. Besides the five killed in the plane crash, 11 died in traffic, seven drowned, a youth was killed when struck by lightning on a golf course, and a youth hunting died in an accident.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Nobody Sees World Clearly

Everybody looks at the world through colored glasses. Nobody is able to look at it through a "clear_pane," because each temperament and personality colors its vision and calls this color "the real world."

Some look through rose-colored glasses, others through darker hues. Some see the world in a bilious tone, others in muted shades of gray, and still others in dramatic scarlets, or even yellow.

The "realist," therefore is not one who foolishly imagines that he alone sees the world in its "true" or "natural" color, without the distortion of spectacles — rather, it is the one who recognizes the particular coloration of his personality, and discounts it in his estimate of "reality."

Even modern science has become increasingly modest in its view of man's objects. It is beginning to learn that "subjectivity" is impossible to escape in scientific research and investigation; the very process of human examination itself disturbs the "realness" of the object being inspected or measured or photographed.

This is why we have only mathematical models" of the elements in subatomic physics, and not "pictures" of these particles at work.

Predictions and projections about "what is going to happen" in the next few years depend as much upon the temperament of the predicter as upon the philosophy or history or ideology he holds.

"Two seers can take the set of facts and interpret them quite differently — one using them to see nothing but chaos and destruction ahead, the other using them as a basis for hope of progress and reconciliation in the conflicts of man.

And their philosophies, while pretending to be rooted in fact or theory, are little more than extrapolations of their individual temperaments — rosy, black, or some shade in between. Every idea they touch is colored by the "glasses" they inevitably wear.

But while scientists have learned to allow for the "personal equation," most thinkers have not. And we ourselves gravitate to those thinkers (or soothsayers) who most closely approximate our own temperaments, because we find their ideas congenial, and not because we have made any objective evaluation of them.

Indeed, it is impossible to make any objective evaluation of the future, for it is precisely the "invisibles" in history that determine events. The most honest thing we can do is discount at least 50 per cent of what we "believe" as being in the service of both our self-interest and the particular shade of glasses we were born with.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For June 15

Your birthday today: Today begins a year of expansion and personality buildup. Scattered coincidences spice your social experience with memorable incidents, some of them embarrassing, most of them beneficial. Today's natives tend to concentrate much effort on relatively few activities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Relax and just be yourself; speak mainly for your own interests. Early diligence puts you way ahead.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Steady does it. A full, consistent day includes some troubleshooting correction of wild ideas. No direct way of serving ambitions is evident at the moment.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Be a good winner—even when you don't see yourself winning. Care and courtesy become essential to all.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): The image you project now may make more difference to the world and your rewards than any real personal merits. Git in the habit of presenting a good appearance.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Keep right on being serious-minded about people and fundamental causes. Casual bragging is for those who aren't going anywhere.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Along comes a stiff breeze, so to speak; go with it in philosophic curiosity — see where it leads.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Maintain your own independent line of approach. Expect strong pressure to get you to join another set of people with different goals.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Now the drift is toward more responsibility than is reasonable under the circumstances. If you are to be well rewarded, flow go ahead!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Picking up the pieces gets to be a general chore — do your share. Put people back on their hobbyhorses without criticism and go on about your regular pursuits.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Be alert to changes. Put your own innovations into working reality. A long, busy day of reasonably high achievement is yours for the doing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Let down and blame roll of quickly rather than mull off quickly rather than made done there's no time for garlands.

Many Optimistic

Premiers Tred Softly as Constitutional Fate Hangs in Balance

VICTORIA (CP) — With fears that just one slip could collapse the cards, Prime Minister Trudeau and the provincial premiers today were beginning another round of delicate negotiations which, they hoped, would bring a revised constitution home to Canada.

On the eve of this seventh constitutional conference in the current search for a made-in-Canada replacement for the British North America Act, none of the political leaders was making any detailed predictions.

But they all warned of the danger of collapse if hands were overplayed, or if there was over-reaction, in the bargaining talks that are generally acknowledged to be at a head.

There was unrestrained optimism last February when the political leaders decided on "a feasible approach" to a formula whereby the BNA Act could be amended in Canada without the approval of the British Parliament.

Since then, that formula has been discussed in all provinces with the idea of giving it formal approval at the Victoria conference, being held in the midst of British Columbia's Centennial year.

In this flag-bedecked city, where the conference visit will include motorcades, pageantry, parties and other flamboyant functions, a final solution to the long-sought amendment question would be a ringing achievement.

The formula, which the 11 leaders earlier decided represented a "feasible approach, would permit constitutional amendments with the approval of Ottawa, Quebec, Ontario, two of the four Atlantic provinces, and any two Western provinces representing 50 per cent of the west's population.

Quebec is anxious to get approval for a package deal under which the formula would be accepted, along with actual constitutional changes which would give the province far greater jurisdiction in the field of social security. Premier Robert Bourassa said he was "realistically hopeful" that agreement could be reached.

Prime Minister Trudeau has said several times that the federal government does not want to vacate its power to make payments to individual Canadians.

Otherwise, Ottawa would not be in a position to maintain national standards in such areas as health services, old-age pensions, unemployment insurance and other national schemes.

The resistance to Quebec's requests is not centred solely in Ottawa. Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia said Sunday that "we could probably live with it, if only Quebec had this jurisdiction—but what if Ontario took up the same option?"

Ottawa would no longer be able to maintain national social standards, he said, and this would hit hardest at the so-called have-not provinces.

Some provincial spokesmen were hopeful that Quebec would settle for far less than its publicized position, and perhaps even agree to the amending formula before going on to the actual division of powers.

Ontario Premier William Davis said he is "very encouraged" by developments so far, and "I am really very optimistic that we will agree on this formula in Victoria."

Mr. Davis was a cheerful figure on the eve of the conference, chatting with other delegates—and even his opponent, Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon—about the discussions ahead.

"And I think there is some reason for optimism," said Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island. "We did make a lot of progress last February and there is no reason why this shouldn't continue."

"I am always optimistic," said Newfoundland Premier J. R. Smallwood.

Mr. Trudeau spent a quiet weekend in Victoria, staying in a private home where he talked about constitutional matters, and particularly Quebec's position, with Gordon Robertson, clerk of the Privy Council.

The prime minister moved into the elegantly-rambling Empress Hotel late Sunday, in time to entertain the premiers at a private dinner in his suite. The gathering broke up Sunday night without any statements.

Mr. Davis said he had nothing to add to his previous comments.

Mr. Bourassa stayed later than the others, but he also left without any further comment.

The only premier absent is Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan, involved in a campaign for the June 23 provincial election. Saskatchewan's delegation is headed by Attorney-General D. V. Heald and Dr. L. B. Estey, minister of industry and commerce.

Don-premier, who asked not to be identified, said his greatest concern involved Saskatchewan.

"They tend to have a fairly firm position and if Ross is not here himself, there might be just a little less flexibility. I'd feel better if he were here."

Just the opening and closing sessions of the three-day conference are expected to be open to the news media. The bulk of the bargaining will be behind closed doors.

Documentation of War

Report Traces History

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The United States defence department refused to comment Sunday on a published document purported to be an official study of how four American administrations became involved in Vietnam, from the end of the Second World War up to May, 1968, when peace talks started in Paris.

Part of the 7,000-word record appeared in the New York Times which says it will publish further extracts in the next few days.

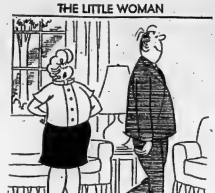
It says the report was commissioned by Robert F. McNamara when he was President Johnson's defence secretary to determine how and why the United States had become so deeply involved in Vietnam. It took 30 to 40 civilians and military officials a year to complete.

The report runs to 2.5 million words of narrative and documents, the newspaper says, and contains many inconsistences and some important gaps.

"But whatever its limitations." The Times says, "The Pentagon's study discloses a vast amount of new information about the unfolding American commitment to South Vietnam and the way the United States stumbled itself in the conflict."

Among the conclusions and specific findings included in the report were that President Truman's decision to give military aid to France in its fight against the Communist Viet Minh in Indochina directly involved the United States in Vietnam and ensured the course of American policy.

It said that from the Truman administration onward U.S. governments felt it necessary to take action to prevent Communist control of South Vietnam. They used as a rationale the so-called domino theory — that if South Vietnam fell other countries would follow.



The report said the Eisenhower administration's decision to rescue South Vietnam from the Communists and an attempt to undermine the Communist government in the North, gave the United States a direct role in the ultimate breakdown of the 1954 Geneva settlement for Vietnam.

It said the Kennedy administration transformed the limited risk gamble that it inherited into a broad commitment that left President Johnson with a choice between more war or withdrawal.

The report also said that although Johnson was reluctant and hesitant to make the final decision, his administration intensified its covert warfare against North Vietnam and began planning early in 1964 to wage overt war, a full year before it publicly revealed the extent of its involvement and its fear of defeat.

The New York Times' summary says the four successive U.S. administrations built up the American political, military and psychological stakes in Indochina, often more deeply than they realized at the time, beginning with the large-scale commitment of military supplies to the French in 1950.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"You may have won the argument, but you've escalated the war!"

Budget Dilemma

Same People Pay Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson's budget next Friday is expected to point up the fact that as many as three kinds of governments look to the same people for tax revenues.

At present, federal and provincial income taxes are to a large extent integrated. But under the plan proposed in 1969, that would change.

And there has been no move by the federal government towards giving taxpayers any offset for municipal taxes on land or houses.

Under current federal tax law, after computing his ordinary federal income taxes, a taxpayer deducts 28 per cent which is set aside for the province in which he lives. Ottawa collects the money, but pays that amount to the province.

Taxpayers in Nova Scotia, Ontario and British Columbia—and for the present, at least, in Prince Edward Island—pay no more in provincial income taxes. But the other provinces, and P.E.I. starting July 1, levy additional taxes.

Many current rate is 33 per cent of federal taxes in Newfoundland and Alberta, 34 per cent in Saskatchewan, 38 per cent in New Brunswick, and 39 per cent in Manitoba. Starting July 1, P.E.I.'s rate goes up to 30.5 per cent from the present nominal 28 per cent.

Many Ottawa politicians have been unhappy for many years about the fact that Ottawa taxes and collects money that is spent by the provinces. Ottawa gets all the odium of taxing, while the provinces get whatever kudos there are for spending.

Under the tax plan proposed by Mr. Benson and not likely to be changed when he brings down Friday's budget, Ottawa will simply tax for its own purposes. It will leave it to the provinces to carry the political load of setting their own tax rates.

However, Mr. Benson says Ottawa is still willing to act as a collection agent for the provinces. The provinces would have to write their provincial tax laws in terms of straight percentage of the federal tax.

Publisher Finds Party Can Be Costly Affair

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Publisher Stewart Brand surprised some 1,500 guests at his all - night hippie party by holding up a fistful of $100 bills—$20,000, he said, in all — and announcing they could vote on how to spend it.

As frizzy - haired guests swizzled red wine and sniffed laughing gas, someone suggested letting partygoers touch the money to inspire them to think up good ideas.

From there, the party and the money literally got out of hand. About $5,000 is said to have vanished, and the group allowed a youth most of them had not seen before to walk off with the rest.

Brand, 32, who wore a monk's black robes, threw the party Saturday night through dawn Sunday in the stately and huge Palace of Fine Arts.

He was celebrating the final edition of his prosperous publication, Whole Earth Catalog, and invited everyone ever connected with it. The publication, sold nationwide, contains recommended mail - order items and advice on living off the land, buying a sun lamp, starting a school, delivering a baby and everything in between.

On a $10,000 inheritance, he founded the publication in 1963 and since has netted, friends estimate, about $500,000. Then he announced last month he was quitting the project "just to see what happens."

The $100 bills were handed out and Brand advised guests to suggest worthy causes.

Ideas included aid to Pakistan refugees or American Indians. Some wanted to divide it among themselves. Others suggested flying a marijuana - loaded airplane across California planting seeds for history's biggest "trip."

An hour later, a speaker asked for the money back and reported $5,000 was missing.

Brand appeared upset but his helpers continued taking suggested ideas. Light hours later as the sun was rising, they still could not agree how to spend it.

Guests were observed quietly slipping $100 bills into their pockets. Without Brand's knowledge, one youth left and was overheard telling a friend he was taking $300 to buy carpenter's tools because someone stole his old ones. Another group that lives in a commune and produces plays left with an unknown amount of money.

About 30 guests remained around the podium arguing bitterly about how the money should be spent.

Meanwhile, at one end of the hall a group played volleyball on a court and at the other end, mothers stripped to the waist and breast-fed their infants.

"This is nothing more than a typical middle-class power struggle over money," declared Paul Krassner of Realist magazine.

"One thing we've learned is that it's not easy to give money away!" said a youth wearing a black beret. "If we didn't know it before tonight, money is a corrupt thing."

Brand fell asleep at 6 a.m. on a pile of pillows as the arguments continued.

Finally at 7 a.m., a youth named Frederick Moore persuaded the group to let him keep the $15,000 for a month and he would call a meeting to decide how to spend it. He took addresses and promised to call everyone, but most guests said they had not seen Moore before the party.

"But we know him because he introduced himself," said one girl.

Brand, wearing a tired, glazed expression, got a receipt from Moore and said the plan is "all right with me" if that's what guests agreed.

Woman Injured

TWEED (Special) — A Dunnville woman is recovering in Belleville General Hospital from shoulder injuries sustained in a one car accident June 13 at 3:48 p.m. on Highway 37 about eight miles south of Tweed.

Mrs. Ilona Senyvef, 62, was taken to hospital after a station wagon and camper trailer driven by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Senyvef, 29, also of Dunnville, went out of control and rolled over. Mrs. Senyvef jr., her husband John Senyvef, 32, and Kathy Ashton, 6, sustained minor injuries and were not admitted to hospital.

Canada Out To Control Sea Powers

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian authorities are working on a three-stage program to develop environmental law with teeth and curb the privileges of major shipping states on the high seas.

If it unfolds as planned in about two years, it will result in one or more international agreements imposing legal obligations on states to prevent marine pollution.

Payment of compensation would be required where infractions occur.

The mood here is summed up by one official who said: "There is little or no environmental law now and we're to start some."

In the Canadian view, it's the traditional concept of freedom of the seas that hinders stacking the growing pollution problem.

The Canadian approach is to try to temper rights and privileges of shipping interests with duties and responsibilities.

It is hoped controls of the problem will flow from a series of international meetings in 1972 and 1973.

The first is a Stockholm environment conference in about a year.

Authorities here hope the Stockholm conference will produce a declaration of principles aimed at protection of the total human environment.

A Canadian draft document tabled at a preparatory meeting two months ago tied protective measures to the need for an environment permitting the fullest individual rights.

Every state could take the measures necessary to preserve its environmental integrity and no state could use either its own or any other territory in such a way as to damage the environment.

The preparatory committee will attempt to establish principles based on draft proposals from several countries including Canada.

These would be referred to a meeting of the Intergovernmental Maritime Consultative Organization with a request that it create a set of technical rules covering the marine environment.

A 1973 law-of-the-sea conference finally would convert the rules and principles into formal conventions—drafts of which Canadian experts already are working on.

Automatic Monitoring Of World Air Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — A United States atmospheric scientist said Monday the first units of an automatic system to monitor global air pollution could be operative by July, 1972.

The statement, however, came on the heels of a warning by a British environmentalist that nations should not involve themselves too deeply in co-operative monitoring of global pollution because most pollution is local in character.

Herman D. Axelrod told a four-day international symposium on identification and measurement of environmental pollutants the National Centre for Atmospheric Research at Boulder, Colo., has developed a self-contained automated sampling station to help fill the gaps in the knowledge about global contaminants.

It would be effective in all latitudes, would be maintained by local personnel, who also would analyse samples gathered, and would give an indication of the build-up, if any, of several gaseous pollutants and of polluting particles and pesticides.

The stations would run by battery, and a timer would signal the sampling equipment to operate for 24-hour periods once or twice a week.

Dr. Martin W. Holdgate, director of the central unit on environmental pollution for the department of the environment in London, told the opening session it is necessary for countries to monitor "jointly what is happening to the oceans and the air.

But he asked scientists to recognize that much pollution affects only small areas near its source and is best studied on a local or national basis.

"By all means let us interchange scientific data and administrative experience as widely as possible, but let us be wary of constructing world-wide monitoring programs when the present and foreseeable problems are essentially regional or national in character."

Times Declines To Keep Quiet

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York Times says that despite the threat of injunction it "must respectfully decline" a justice department request to halt the publication of a secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war.

Meanwhile, a full-scale security investigation was under way today to determine who leaked the secret documents viewed by Senate doves as proof that former president Johnson took the United States into the Vietnam war by stealth and deceit.

Attorney-General John N. Mitchell asked the newspaper in a telegram Monday night to refrain from further publication of the documents on the ground that it will cause "irreparable injury to the defence interests of the United States."

The secret documents are part of a three-year-old, 40 volume study of how the United States became involved in the Indochina war.

The third instalment of the series appeared in today's editions of The Times.

Replying to Mitchell, The Times said in a statement that it "must respectfully decline the request of the attorney-general, believing that it is in the interest of the people of this country to be informed of the material contained in this series of articles."

Regarding a possible injunction, the statement said:

"We believe that it is properly a matter for the courts to decide. The Times will oppose any request for an injunction for the same reason that led us to publish the articles in the first place.

"We will, of course, abide by the final decision of the court."

'Drugicare' Favored By Bert Lawrence

TORONTO (CP) — A. B. Ra Lawrence, Ontario health minister, said Monday he favors the idea of a universal drug insurance program.

People would pay a premium of about $1 or $1.50 a month under the government-run program plan to cover drugs prescribed by doctors, he said in an interview.

"I think it's obvious that a totally comprehensive health plan would include a drug plan," he said.

He said next year the government intends to combine hospital and medical insurance plans so people pay a single premium for both.

"We could hitch a drug premium on to that quite easily," he added.

However, Mr. Lawrence emphasized there has been no decision on the drug insurance plan and it is only one item in a list of priorities.

He indicated there would have to be some indication the public wants such a scheme and the government would have to find the money to finance it.

Behind-scenes Moves Frantic

VICTORIA (CP) — After Monday's tough-talking start, the federal-provincial constitutional conference headed today into its crunch issue — a formula for amending the constitution — with frantic, behind-the-scenes negotiations offering a glimmer of hope for a compromise solution.

The issue is acceptance of a formula whereby Canada's constitution—the British North America Act—could be amended entirely within Canada. But such acceptance is hinged on Quebec's demand that it be given increased jurisdiction in the field of social security, including old-age pensions, family allowances, manpower and health services.

The conference was to reconvene at 1 p.m. EDT in a closed-door session.

Working into the night, constitution experts on all sides of the negotiations—but particularly those from Ottawa and Quebec City—tried to reach an acceptable solution that would allow this highly-heralded conference to declare itself a resounding success.

"... It is incumbent on us that we do not fail again," said Prime Minister Trudeau Monday, as he talked about the long and often disappointing search for an amending formula.

If there was no success at this mugging, he warned, "it may be long before we find another occasion when we, or first ministers who come after us, can succeed."

At the end of the day's sitting, and while still firmly holding to the view that the federal government will not give up its right to make payments to individual Canadians, the prime minister said his government would recognize provincial paramountcy—and he also used the word primacy—in "some areas" of social security.

Asked what areas would be involved, he replied: "This is what we are negotiating."

There was apparent impatience to get on with the job Monday as the 11 governmental delegations gathered here for their seventh in the current series of constitutional meetings.

While most of the government leaders had a good deal to say in prodding constructive process, Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island made his point with a 24-second opening speech. He was there, he said, to help change the constitution and "let's get to work."

But before the premiers and their supporting delegations were to go behind closed doors to tackle the task, there was a lot of public underbrush to be cleared away, some of it predictable, some not.

While most premiers, in their opening televised speeches, struck out at familiar themes, there were some raised eyebrows over the force of the remarks.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia, the host of the conference who led the delegations through the streets of Victoria in a spectacular, music-accompanied motorcade, didn't pussyfoot with his guests once the session began.

Economic Policies Criticized

VICTORIA (CP) — Social Credit, socialist and Liberal—the western provinces slammed down with a vengeance Monday on the Trudeau government's economic policies.

Their forum was the federal-provincial constitutional conference and, although they didn't give constitutional matters a completely cold shoulder, concern over unemployment, figures got obvious precedence.

Social Credit Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia, the host for the talks, said the provinces want the most urgent need confronting Canada today.

He, Bennett said a guaranteed annual income could be brought about through the use of negative income tax system under which people whose total income was less than the guaranteed amount would receive a payment making up the difference.

Premier Harry Strom of Alberta, Mr. Bennett's Social Credit next-door neighbor, proposed that a federal-provincial conference be convened in the next month or six weeks to deal solely with the economic situation "and the need for innovative policies."

"We must counteract the harmful effects of recent federal policies," he said.

The only premier not at the conference is Liberal Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan, who stayed home on the campaign trail after he was unsuccessful in having the conference put off until after a June 23 provincial election.

His stand-in, Attorney-General D. V. Heald, said Saskatchewan wanted to emphasize to Ottawa the importance of sharply accelerating the study of freight rates which were working to Saskatchewan's disadvantage.

New Democratic Party Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba said the unemployment crisis—"part of which has been deliberately induced"—still exists with little change projected for the immediate future.

"It is difficult to understand how the federal authorities could ever have let themselves be persuaded that unemployment should be an instrument of national policy."

Pollution Fight Is In Bad Hands

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Canada must not allow its anti-pollution programs to be taken over by politicians, do-gooders and lawyers as has happened in the United States, a Michigan sanitary engineering consultant said Monday.

John E. Kinsey of Ann Arbor said not only have the U.S. programs been taken over by the wrong persons but the technically competent are not presenting the correct pollution facts to the public.

Quebecois Acquitted

MONTREAL (CP) — A courtroom audience applauded noisily today when Charles Gagnon and Jacques Lacoste-Langlois were acquitted of seditious conspiracy charges alleging that they conspired to overthrow the Quebec government by force.

Trenton Developers Beat Plan Deadline

TRENTON — Two Trenton men got in under the wire last night, receiving permission from council to proceed with construction of a 40-unit apartment building under provisions of the old official plan, minutes before a new one was approved.

By the new plan, developers Bill Menzies and Barney Ferguson would only be allowed to build 14 units on their property (less than one acre) at 67 Queen St.

Menzies explained they had been held up by the committee of adjustment at one stage of the planning. He said they had been scheduled to meet the committee on one date but one member was sick and another out of town.

According to Mr. Ferguson, the committee of adjustment had instructed them to tear down a six-apartment structure on site within 10 months and Bill Menzies asked that council allow them to leave this standing to provide revenue while plans for the new building are formulated.

Council did not accede to the request, although the developers will be permitted to build the large apartment house on the property as originally planned.

Councillor Ted Parker received support to council secure a site plan for the new building, expressing "grave doubts that 40 units can be put in there with all the amenities".

The plan provides for limited income housing suitable for elderly, retired or single persons, according to Mr. Menzies.

Passer Sentenced

William Stuart Burns, 24, of 343 Dundas Street West, Napanee, found guilty May 31 in county court of possession of counterfeit money circulated in the Quinte area at Christmastime, 1970, was today sentenced to one year in prison by county court Judge Gerald E. Smith.

Also, because his probation order from previous sentence was revoked, he could be required to serve out the old term . . . amounting to 23 months. This decision will rest with the probation board.

Two accomplices, Henry Evan "Happy" David, arrested Dec. 22 at Belleville's Towers Store in the act of passing, and Mrs. Linda Alaabse, of Kingston, served jail terms of 14 days each. A third accomplice, Margaret Kidd of Kingston, was released on two years probation.

Aziz Supports Labor's Bid

TRENTON (Staff) — The Quinte District Labor Council has won a new advocate in its bid to gain representation on the board of governors of Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Councillor Pete Aziz asked council meeting here last night if it could do anything to help the QDLC in realizing its objective.

"My view is their request is very reasonable . . . labor representatives are just as intelligent as members of council," Mr. Aziz stated.

The Quinte Labor Council has sent a letter to health minister A. B. R. Lawrence asking his assistance in achieving labor representation on the hospital board here. The QDLC is represented on the board of Belleville General Hospital.

Inquiring what the procedure is for gaining elective office in the Trenton hospital corporation, Mr. Aziz was told by Mayor Duncan McDonald that it would be a good idea if he consulted the board and reported to council.

Labor councillor and town councillor Geoerge Greer, told council he was sure "if the board wanted a labor representative it would not have to try hard to get one."

To elect members of the board or serve on it, one must pay $5 annually as a membership fee in the hospital corporation.

"The hospital is private," said councillor Ted Parker, who suggested the QDLC could make this contribution "then line up the voter" to achieve representation under the present system.

"The minister of health may issue an edict (forcing the board to give labor a seat) but I think it is unlikely," he added.

Budget Snowed Under

Even the best penny-pinching efforts of public bodies can be thwarted by nature on the rampage.

Hastings county board of education's efforts to stay within a tight budget was plowed under this year by the unusually heavy snowfall of last winter.

Trustees got the bad news last night — snow removal costs doubled in the winter of 1970-71, to a high of $20,000.

"Couldn't we ask the government for a grant on the basis of extraordinary expenditure?" trustee Mrs. Miriam Graham, "After all, this was an act of God."

But the board will have to assume the costs out of its maintenance budget.

Rezoning Hearing Convenes

AMELIASBURG (Staff) — A hearing on the township's application for rezoning part of lot 33 in the first concession from R-1 residential to R-1 commercial got under way here this morning with the Ontario Municipal Board sitting in the council chambers.

Owners of homes in the area on Rossmore Crescent Building Place Road objected to the proposed change, maintaining expansion of the present farm produce retail-wholesale outlet would increase commercial activity and harm residential property values.

Rezoning in this instance would affect a piece of land 210 by 147 feet north of the main road west of Albury Church belonging to Harold and Donald Bonter.

Temporarily Insane

Former OPP Constable Acquitted of Charges

By KENNETH SMITH
Staff Reporter

COBOURG (Special) — After hearing testimony for two days and deliberating for over two hours, a jury here yesterday afternoon returned a verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity, in the case of the Crown vs Glen Irving Doyle.

Doyle, 46, a former Ontario Provincial Police constable with the Belleville detachment was facing charges of armed robbery and forcible seizure, arising from incidents last September 15.

On the night of the 15th, a man had entered the 1867 Restaurant on Highway 401 near Trenton armed with a .38 calibre police pistol, held up night-shift supervisor Mrs. Annabelle Hayward and for a get-away blackjacked a tractor-trailer truck driven by Montrealer Leopold Lacoste.

Defence attorney, Robert Temple did not deny that Doyle was the man in question but presented proof, to the jury yesterday, to the effect that the accused was not in complete control of his faculties at the time of the occurrences.

In Friday's proceedings Mrs. Hayward recalled being told by a waitress at the service centre restaurant that a man was waiting to see her in the dining room of the complex. She said she went to the room and saw Doyle, whom she had known for a year.

"Don't be scared, I mean it: I'm going to rob you," the supervisor testified he said, adding she did not believe him until she saw his gun and a serious look in his eyes.

Moving to the cash register, Mrs. Hayward emptied $184.25 into a cardboard box and handed it over receiving the order that she wait 15 minutes before calling the police.

In his testimony, Leopold Lacoste recalled stopping at the service centre for coffee when a man came walking toward his truck shouting "you are going to have the surprise of your life," pointing the revolver and taking command.

He noted that Doyle, who was shoeless, asked for his shoes and wallet. He said, "I was afraid because there was nothing in the wallet anyway."

With Lacoste driving, the truck moved west on the freeway, made a U-turn then cut back to the east, south to Highway 2 and west again to Cobourg, where it was finally stopped by Cobourg town police and the community's west end shopping centre — by cards from the United Counties Council House — Administrative Building where Doyle was held.

Mr. Lacoste stated that during the flight to Cobourg, the accused Doyle had said, "Why did my kid have to die that night — four or five times."

Mrs. Doyle to the Cobourg detachment, OPP Constable D. B. Hunt recalled Doyle had asked to be allowed to take an escape so he could be shot, saying "Life is not worth living any more."

A breathalyzer test at the detachment here revealed the accused was impaired at the time.

"A conscientious and hard worker," was the way Sgt. James Denver of District Nine headquarters, Belleville, described Doyle. The sergeant read character letters of commendation Doyl had received to the court Friday — two from citizens he had aided, one from OPP Superintendent D. E. Wellesley.

Mrs. Glen Doyle told the court she and her husband had been married 17 years and with no children had made a the decision to adopt one. "I know how much he wanted the baby," she said of her husband's regard for the infant.

She mentioned that during the day of the robbery she had told him that she was having difficulty coping with the baby and contemplated not keeping it.

Friends of Doyle, who saw him before the 1867 episode, testified he had been deeply concerned during the day about the prospect of losing the child. One said he was "crying and upset".

Key defence testimony came yesterday from Dr. Cameron Stephenson of Queen's University and Kingston Psychiatric Hospital, who had been dealing with Doyle after the incidents of Sept. 15.

He said that he had submitted the accused to sodium pentathol (truth serum) treatments under which he could remember more of the activities from which the charges arose.

He may have given the appearance of appreciating what he was doing . . . (but) his ability to comprehend was impaired, impaired to the point of incomprehension," the doctor explained. "He did not know what he was doing."

The Jury also learned that Doyle was taking tranquilizers and had coped with a serious drinking problem in the past.

In summation, Robert Temple pointed out that to convict a man believing his child was first going, then dead and the thought of this was particularly stressful.

As far as the 1867 affair was concerned, he said, "what man who is sane goes in to his friends and robs them?"

He submit that on the balance of probabilities, he was not in his right mind at the time," Temple concluded.

Judge J. C. N. Currelly advised the jury that, before the law, insanity does not necessarily have a harsh meaning but can mean being in a state that is not being able to appreciate the nature or quality of one's actions or to distinguish right from wrong.

The judge commended the jury for its handling of the case, which he found not argue with their decision.

Glen Doyle will undergo a short round of medical examinations at Penetanguishene prior to his release.

Caribou on Way To African Home

TRENTON (Staff) — Three Caribous from 424 Squadron left CFB Trenton this morning never to return. Five more will follow them to Tanzania in coming weeks bringing an end to over a decade of service with the Canadian forces.

With a brief ceremony at Nine Hangar, prior to the departure, Lt.-Col. Jack Osborne of last summer's Peru disaster relief mission, were officially handed over to the Tanzanian High Commissioner, His Excellency A. K. Sykes, who had flown down from Ottawa earlier in the morning with a party of Tanzanian and Tanzanian officials.

Announcement was made last week that five of the planes had been sold but a further report boosted the total to eight — all the 424 Caribous.

Representatives of the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation, on hand for proceedings today, negotiated sale price for the Caribou that was $3 million, including spare parts.

Setting off on the 15-day trip to Tanzania with the first three planes will be a crew from CFB Trenton and six Tanzanian airmen. They will travel via Greenland, Iceland, Scotland, across Europe and down the East African coast to Tanzania.

The Government of Tanzania will pay the return fare of the Canadian personnel and CFB Trenton Base Commander, Col. W. G. Paisley, the High Commissioner will travel out to the tarmac to be introduced to crew members of each Caribou shortly before they revved engines, moving out to the runway for takeoff.

A further three Caribous will leave from Trenton in mid-July while another two at CFB Lahr will leave for Tanzania about the same time.

The remaining plane serving with the United Nations at Islamabad, West Pakistan will fly to its new African home when a replacement Twin Otter arrives from Canada.

The Caribou entered service with the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1960, on operations with 115 Air Transport Unit at 23 Arish, Egypt as part of the United Nations Emergency Force.

In 1963, the Caribou was dispatched to Yemen for peacekeeping duties and later to Cyprus for additional UN service.

However, the greatest renown for the planes and their crews was during the Peruvian relief operations of June 1970 in which Canada's Caribous hauled tons of medical supplies into the remote valleys of the country's interior, evacuating the injured to hospitals in Lima.

In Canada, the Caribou has served a variety of roles — primarily light transport and search and rescue.

One defence department spokesman said today he anticipated the planes will have many years of service, with the Tanzanian military, comparing them to the Dakotas which are noted for their longevity.

SHOULD A HOUSE FOR SALE BE OCCUPIED?

Ideally, it should be both occupied and furnished as tastefully and charmingly as you can make it.

Home sellers must realise that buyers are guided in their decisions by mental images which form in their minds as they view prospective homes. They are trying to picture themselves in their surroundings.

It is best to make their imagining as easy and pleasant as possible with the scene you present for them as they inspect your property.

Quality furniture charmingly arranged, for instance, will usually increase the selling price of a property significantly even though the buyer realizes that the furniture does not go with the house.

Painting and decorating almost invariably pay for themselves with profit to sprare.

A "lived in" house that is clean and well cared for has an atmosphere that buyers immediately feel. The image of that house as a home for them is more easily perceived than bare rooms and blank walls would make it possible.

Like a girl dressing for a date with her favorite beau, don't neglect the daffodils. They could get you the "proposal" you're after.

Nuclarus Whey Disposal Proposition Gets Rough Treatment

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

MELROSE (Staff) — What first emerged as a whey disposal site proposal by the Toronto waste management firm Nuclarus Ltd., last night expanded into plans for a full-scale cheesemakers' industrial park.

This announcement, made by Nuclarus during a heated session at the Melrose Town Hall, was met by audible signs of surprise from residents of Tyendinaga Township, in which the proposed disposal plan would be put into effect.

Nuclarus representatives David Harcourt and Bill Bainborough attended a citizens' meeting last night together with John Vogt, industrial water divisions of the OWRC, E. J. Newman, air management branch of the department of energy and resources management. Doug Tipper, agricultural representative for Hastings County, Don Presant, agricultural engineer for the Ontario department of agriculture and food for Hastings-Prince Edward, members of Tyendinaga council and more than 50 township residents.

Little was gained after more than three hours heated discussion and the evening ended in a power lack.

Reeve Carmen Gibson told the Nuclarus representatives unless a complete report, accompanied by geological surveys was put before council, no action on the proposed site on lot eight of the 5th concession, would be taken.

Although the government representatives were invited to attend, they presented a hands - tied series of answers to residents' questions.

Dr. D. C. McVicker of Desoronto, moderator for the meeting, summed up the problem faced by both Nuclarus and the township: "both the applicants and the recipients are barking before they're bitten."

Company represented a tive David Harcourt said his associates were reluctant to table a full-scale report because of the expense.

"Before we can go any further, we need to know from council if we are contravening any bylaws."

Reeve Gibson reiterated: "Until you produce a program in detail, no way can you proceed."

And before the whey disposal group can get council's sanction, it will also have to sell the idea to the residents. From the meeting last night — this is not going to be any easy task. The group's a long ' way from convincing the township that the disposal site will neither foul the air, ground or nearby streams nor interfere with the operation of the 28 cheese factories in Hastings, Prince Edward, Frontenac, Northumberland, Lennox and Addington and Peterborough Counties.

Said one resident: "I couldn't see why there wouldn't be odor. Over a long period of saturation, there's bound to be contamination of wells and streams."

Mr. Vogt of the OWRC informed the man that "if properly operated, the ground water couldn't be contaminated . . . organic material is disposed of by bacteria.

"We would carry out surveillance four times a year," he added.

Mrs. Gladys Smith, a leading spokesman for the residents, told the meeting other Nuclarus representatives had assured them "all approvals had been given."

Mr. Harcourt identified their representative as a lawyer retained for the job. "We've had verbal acknowledgements of the venture."

Mr. Newman broke in at this point. "There has been no verbal undertaking . . . all government representatives May 18 had a meeting with representatives of Nuclarus and we were asked for approvals.

"We would not give approval."

In reply to another question, Mr. Newman said "natural aeration just won't work" and Mr. Vogt added that Nuclarus "will have to provide mechanical aeration to prevent odor."

Another resident expressed concern for hunting, stating the twin lagoons would be "detrimental to ducks and animals in the vicinity."

It was at this point that Jim Mayo, a township farmer, told everyone present "they don't have my 100 acres" and said he had been misled into believing Nuclarus was a government agency.

In explaining that their 500-acre option did not include Mr. Mayo's land, Mr. Bainborough stressed they were hopeful of receiving government grants if their project was shown to work, and this may have misled certain ratepayers approached. .

"The options were signed under false pretenses. . .pretty crafty," Mr. Mayo retorted.

Selfish figures concerning costs to the cheese factories were not available and Mr. Harcourt said that without a complete report, including individual quantity estimates, prices could not be quoted.

Mr. Vogt suggested that the average factories dispose of their whey for between $2,000 and $3,000 per year. Mr. Tipper suggested a higher figure of between $3,000 and $4,500.

In a telephone conversation, a representative of the Foxboro Cheese Factory told The Intelligencer prices quoted to them by Nuclarus almost quintupled costs for their present operation, which has prored satisfactory under Ontario Water Resources Commission regulations. He added this higher price also included transportation by tank truck.

Mr. Bainborough said, depending on volume, Nuclarus might be charged as much as one cent per gallon for disposal and this could amount to approximately $80 per day.

Mr. Vogt, during an interview following the meeting, said "50 per cent of the cheese factories are satisfactory and in all cases, factories have installed some equipment".

He added that approximately 20 per cent of the factories in the province simply did not have adequate disposal facilities, a problem highlighted in winter months.

"We've told them we will have to take stronger action, legal action. We've been putting quite a bit of pressure on the factories," he said.

"However, we haven't leaned on cheese factories quite as hard as we would have, because we realize their problems," he added.

Because many local cheese producers have installed expensive equipment in recent years, they may be reluctant to incure further expenses for pollution control.

Mr. Bainborough then announced Nuclarus' plans for an industrial park. "We have visualized an industrial park with offers to cheesemakers to join the industrial park.

Mr. Vogt added "the government agencies have their hand tied concerning the Nuclarus company.

"Neither the OWRC, the health department or agriculture could answer residents' questions because they have not been clued in by Nuclarus."

Nuclarus has been hired by the town of Mississauga for their waste disposal problems. The company told those gathered that they are equipped with a full-scale laboratory.

The company is reluctant to spend further funds without approval and few in Tyendinaga Township will readily approve the process without assurance by their government agencies that no problems will arise.

"I wouldn't like to be a dumping ground for other townships," resident Herb Hiller said, to general applause.

In a preliminary attempt to show their process to the public, Nuclarus invited residents to a whey-spray at the Foxboro Cheese Factory this morning. Only Sidney Township Deputy Reeve Gordon Wilman was present for the demonstration.

"I guess a lot of people do not know what we are talking about," admitted Mr. Harcourt.

"It's not a Mickey Mouse operation with somebody holding a garden hose."

Once and if approval is given, Nuclarus hopes to begin spraying approximately 80,-000 gallons of liquid whey onto pasturelend to produce fertile grass for cattle grazing, lawn sod production and, with winter storage in two plastic-lined lagoons" selfsla eed production.

But what are the chances for success?

Said Mr. Vogt, "Based on one cent per gallon to dispose of the whey, I can't foresee any cheese factory participating in this scheme."

David Harcourt, right, and Bill Bainborough, centre, of Nuclarus Ltd., invited all interested parties to view a whey-spray demonstration behind the Foxboro Cheese Factory this morning. Only Sidney Township deputy reeve Gordon Wilman had arrived by 10 a.m. The Nuclarus company, when announcing location of their whey disposal site last Friday, said an alternate location could be available if Tyendinaga Township turned their application down.

"We're wasting a tremendous amount of time discussing this in the open," E. J. Newman, Department of Energy and Resources Management air management branch, right, said at a meeting with the Nuclarus waste disposal company at Melrose Town Hall in Tyendinaga Township. He agreed with fellow government officials, Doug Tipper (Ag. Rep.) for Hastings County, left, and Don Presant, agricultural engineer for the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food for Hastings-Prince Edward, that Nuclarus will have to table a complete, detailed, report before sanction can be given for the whey-disposal operation.

Lifestyle

Globe and Mail writer Barbara Gail Rowes' interview with ballerina Alicia Alonso of the National Ballet of Cuba now appearing in Ottawa reveals a strong-willed and compassionate woman whose love of her country is above politics.

Formerly with the American Ballet Theatre — in 1948, at the peak of her dancing career with that company, she was listed as one of the ten most notable women in the United States — Miss Alonso returned to her native land to lay the foundations of a company bearing her own name and which, following the 1959 revolution, became the National Ballet of Cuba.

Of the period before leaving for the U.S. Miss Alonso says: "It was all very difficult. There was no future in Cuba. I had to go outside to make my career. I always knew it would be very hard to become professional. But I don't get afraid. I just work. I have worked and worked and worked. This is the principle of my life."

Later, the same restless spirit was to send her back to her homeland. "When I came back to Cuba everyone told me I was crazy. But I knew I was wasting my time in New York. I was a star. I belonged in a golden cage. It is very lonely in that cage. I had always planned to go back to Cuba to push for ballet . . ."

Of a still earlier time she said: "When I married Fernando I was 14. But even then we both had the same dream. We planned to work hard in America but we always planned to come back and construct this . . . We had wanted to help our native country. We believe that you give and you receive. Otherwise human beings are worth nothing. To eat and to sleep, is that life? It is only loneliness. And loneliness is that which comes to those who never give.

As writer Barbara Rowes notes, Alicia Alonso has given more than her share. She works a 16-hour day as artistic director of the company and, incredibly, remains the leading dancer. And this despite the fact that in 1940 she gradually began to lose her sight. Today she is said to see only shadows, but "you don't get afraid," she says. "You just keep working. You don't give yourself the luxury of worrying or fear. I must put it in my brain where everything is on the stage," and she notes that on arrival in Ottawa she went to the stage to feel the floor.

Of her art, and life and humanity in general, Miss Alonso, still under 50 according to company publicity material, makes this statement: "I need to dance . . . I think it is a shame that every human being — when he is born has not been taught how wonderful it is to move. It is the best part of life. But we are taught when we are very little that the best part of life is to sit and do nothing. I have never realized that. In my mind it is a very strong thing to work. I feel we are born to move, to keep moving, no matter what happens."

In Miss Alonso's philosophy there is something for all, and there comes to mind the saying that "life is short, art long, decisions difficult, experiments perilous." If life is movement there must be decisions and experiment, difficult or not, and sometimes an application of brakes (as in the case of the Spadina expressway). And there is Shakespeare's famous imagery about the tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune. Yes, something for all in the lifestyle of this remarkable person.

Beach Drawback

It was not such a bad weekend after all. The electric storms did not develop, not in this area at least, the sun shone and there was plenty. Still, the water was chilly at The Outlet and there is the perennial problem of the dead fish. When all is said and done public swimming facilities in the Quinte area are not of the best, certainly not when sand and water are polluted in this manner. In such circumstances there is room for a large public swimming facility. The children have one at Zwick's Island, but we lack one for the public at large.

A Birthday

Prince Philip is 50. What can we say? Well, one thing for sure, he's a jolly good fellow. Recently he took another tumble playing polo, but was unhurt. There will be more falls no doubt, but he will surely survive again. One of a kind, Prince Philip is an estimable, upstanding man; we hope he will be around for a long time.

Lesson For Belleville

Penticton, B.C. Eleventh in Convention Stakes in 1970

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — You are a hotelman, a restaurateur, you run a sight-seeing service, manage any store all the way from little boutique to big department, operate a theatre?

None of these things?

Okay (yes) this has to take you into the circle of interest: you are a local taxpayer, paying taxes through your rent (even if you are a tenant.

So what is new?

You have a friend in the federal Government here in Ottawa you likely seldom, if ever, heard about before.

He is trying to help you, bringing new money into Your-town, Canada, to boost spending, increase business, step up employment, put something extra and perhaps unexpected into the civic coffers — and, hopefully, indirectly, easing the tax burden.

He is Ben Carbonetto, working under the title of Convention Promotion Chief — that is how it reads on his office door and letterhead — for the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

His business is selling Canada — and indirectly Yourtown — as a great place for conventions, American and Canadian, where the delegates can get a fun-and-profit deal out of the average $35 daily each of them spends on accommodation, food, drink, local travel and personal services and entertainment.

Ben Carbonetto and his staff do business in the "big picture" perspective, marketing all of Canada as the best of all possible playgrounds for a convention caper.

He makes his biggest and best pitch for the big American spenders, but makes an odd pass at potential international conventioneers abroad — more and more in recent years have been looking across both oceans our way.

Then, in much smaller focus, he does business on the local level, too, alerting the convention bureau, the chamber of commerce, the board of trade, or even the hotel and tourist association in Yourtown and-or Yourregion of what delegates are shopping in what areas for which style, taste and price of accommodation and services.

Small stuff moneywise?

Do not for a costly minute ever think that.

Instead, look up the dollar figures as compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics or, if you have not yet been told, is now known as "Statistics Canada."

(Neat way the Government has of getting rid of the royal inference of "Dominion," what?)

Well, DBS, or SC reports that last year Toronto, the big money-maker of convention towns and cities, drew better than 300 such jolly, usually free-spending gatherings, bringing in more than 150,000 delegates each getting rid of an average $35 daily, for a total take of over $52,500,000.

But size has nothing to do with it, or not everything.

For even Smalltown, if it has the foresight to have provided the convention facilities and the get-up-and-go to sell them to the delegates, can turn a mighty pretty penny.

Like Penticton, tucked away there between the mountains in British Columbia's Okanagan Valley, with a population just over 15,000 by the last federal Government Canada Year Book record.

Sure, Penticton is pretty, even enchanting, glorious weather, too. But convenient of travel reach?

Easy of quick access or not, Penticton, because it has the facilities — hotels, motels and most of all a fine convention centre — ranked eleventh in drawing the delegates and their dollars, just behind Windsor, and difficult though it may be to credit, just ahead of Victoria.

Convention money is any town is the next best thing to found money.

Let us do some more convention sampling by city.

Of course, as their very size compelled it, the big cities, Toronto, Montreal, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, Ottawa, Quebec City, Hamilton and Windsor got the big conventions and the big spending.

Then, in elevated place, Penticton broke the size pattern with 35 conventions, bringing in some 20,000 delegates who spent $3,200,000.

Then, in descending order — not all cities reported their totals to Ben Carbonetto's convention sales task-force —came these:

Victoria, with 81 conventions, 10,500 delegates who left $3,113,-000 behind.

Halifax, 75 conventions, 30,-359 delegates, $2,850,000 revenue.

Saint John, 111 conventions, 15,300 delegates and $2,988,000.

Kitchener-Waterloo, 23 conventions and uncounted sales meetings, symposiums and seminars with 13,300 delegates and $1,500,000.

Thunder Bay, 42 conventions, 29,000 delegates, $1,160,000.

St. John's, 46 conventions 9,060 delegates, $314,000.

Stratford, 40 conventions, 6,-650 delegates, $400,000.

No city, says Ben Carbonetto is too tiny to get in on the convention action. For if Penticton can get to be very respectable "Number Eleven" outranking even conventiony hard-hustling Niagara Falls, anything is possible.

Ben Carbonetto's salesmen have been pitching at the convention-trade in Washington, New York, Boston, Detroit, Chicago, Denver, Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

What are the Americans shopping for in conventions?

Among many, the one big thing they have not got and we have: peace, order, and reasonably good government cities that keep their municipal cool, and it is safe to leave the protection of the hotel for a stroll around town.

Is Quebec's Secession Only Matter of Time?

Richard Needham in The Globe and Mail

I've spent much of my life thinking about the "unthinkable", and not only thinking about it, but seeing it actually happen. For example, during the 1930s, a Second World War was deemed "unthinkable", it would be so brutal and destructive. Result - we got the brutal and destructive Second World War. It was "unthinkable" at various stages in my existence, that the British Empire would be dissolved, that France and Germany would join hands, that the United States would accept defeat at the hands of Asian peasants.

Ho hum, time brings all things. Some four years back, in the rosy glow of Expo 67, it was "unthinkable" that Quebec would leave Confederation. But many well - informed people in Ottawa are now admitting it's possible, and others that it's probable. For my own part, I think it's a certainty - as near close to a certainty as one can have in this unpredictable world. I feel so sure of this that the 6.5 million people of Quebec "want" to get out: I just mean that enough of them (I don't like to take many) have enough determination and desire to get out that they'll take the rest of the Quebecois with them. History is made always by the passionate few, not by the soggy mass.

George Hees, the Conservative MP, has written a book himself among those who believe Quebec's departure is "likely". Expressing the hope (an ill-founded one, I fear) that this departure will come about "through the democratic process of the ballot", Mr. Hees says we in English - speaking Canada should start to fight for it, but instead should work out some kind of Common Market agreement with the new nation.

Given the probability (I'd say the certainty) of Quebec's separation, the rest of Canada - meaning mainly Ontario - must give some serious thought to the immense sums of money - mainly Ontario money - which the authorities at Ottawa have been and still are spooning into Quebec. For example, should Ontario (through Ottawa's spending) finance an "international" airport near Montreal which, when completed, may only turn to be in another country, not serving the Dominion of Canada, but serving only the republic or state of Quebec?

Again, should Ontario tolerate the transfer of its aircraft industry (De Havilland) from Toronto to Montreal, there to bolster up and make work for the troubled Canadair plant? Should Ontario tolerate a situation in which Ottawa gives Quebec huge and wasteful shipyard contracts? The Bonaventure, now scrapped, was supposed to have refitted at a cost of $8 - million, the final bill was more than twice that. Those four destroyers being built in Quebec shipyards were first estimated at $200-million: final cost will be more like $500 million.

These arguments may be applied to welfare spending, student summer grants (Ottawa's giving Quebec 12 times as much as Ontario), "regional tax - grants and all the rest. Are we (meaning the Ottawa authorities) throwing more and more millions (mainly Ontario millions) into Quebec, aren't we - as my mother used to say - throwing good money after bad? Isn't our largesse making it that much easier for Quebec to walk out in three or four years? Should we entertain the thought that as and when Quebec does go, it will pay Ontario back? Ha!

Germany—East and West

Focus on Marriage, Divorce, Working Wives, Alcoholism

German Features

BERLIN. — Every day in communist east Germany 344 couples get married. But at the same time 82 married couples get divorced.

The married-divorce ratio of 4:1 in the German Democratic Republic (GDR) is not far behind the leading divorce nations Russia and the U.S.A.

Russia had 2.3 divorces per 1000 persons in 1968, the U.S.A - 2.16 and East Germany 2.06. By comparison, West Germany had a relative low of 1.18 divorces per 100 population.

In East Germany broken marriages are common in the industrial centers around Potsdam, Frankfurt on the Oder, Halle and Leipzig. East Berlin leads with 3.1 divorces per 1000 inhabitants and only 8.5 marriages per 1000.

For a while communist authorities were lenient toward divorce in a country trying to force the growth of a socialist economy and raise up a new class of ambitious functionaries.

But this is beginning to change. Alarmed by the rising divorce rate, the government has admonished the courts to give new priority to "efforts aimed at preserving marriages".

Especially young couples who married early and then seek a divorce are now subject to long "probation periods" under state supervision before divorce is granted.

In the GDR young people marry on average one year earlier than young couples in west Germany, one reason for the high number of marriage break-ups in east Germany.

Another reason is that most east German women work: 78 per cent of women in the working age group have a job. The result is more professional rivalry between the sexes, and at the same time a greater burden on women at home and on the job.

While women become more independent at work, distribution of duties at home are still unequal. One consequence appears to be a tendency to smaller families.

For the first time in the GDR since 1960 there were more deaths than births, creating a population shortfall of 4,112 persons in 1969.

* * *

FREIBURG. — A west German psychologist has found that married men are most prone to mix drinking and driving.

Dr. Lieselotte Moser of the Freiburg, west Germany, "Society for Research into Causes of Traffic Accidents", says her studies show more than half of alcoholics on the road are married men.

Divorced and single men follow, in that order. Only 2 per cent of all drunk-driving offenders are women, Dr. Moser claims.

The Freiburg researcher also says that alcoholism behind the wheel is rapidly inroads into lower income brackets.

Dr. Moser believes the best way to fight drunk driving is for society to abandon what she says is too much tolerance towards alcohol offenders. The drunk driver, she urges, should be regarded as a "criminal" rather than someone who has simply had "one too many".

* * *

BERLIN. - The percentage of women with jobs in west Germany has increased sharply in the past decade: from 33.4 per cent of those in the working age brackets in 1961 to 25.3 per cent currently.

Economists predict more middle aged and older women will seek occupations in future but this will be offset by younger women who prefer to marry early or avoid factory labor.

As a result the continuing tight labor market in west Germany will be forced to unduly to draw from the vast reserve potential of women to fill out job vacancies.

West Germany now takes a middle position between Sweden (where 37 per cent of working-age women have jobs) and Holland (18.7 per cent).

It is believed one of the reasons for the decline in working women in west Germany is continuation of old German tradition that a woman's place in society is primarily at home - in the kitchen and with the children.

Demonstrators at Parley

Davis in His New Boy Role Has 'Don't Rock Boat' Stance

VICTORIA, B.C. (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis presented a calm, don't-rock-the-boat image on his first day of the federal-provincial constitutional conference, which one critic said befitted his stature as "a new boy."

Mr. Davis, making his first national appearance as the successor to long-time Ontario leader John Robarts, made no new demands in two speeches to his fellow premiers and the federal delegation, headed by Prime Minister Trudeau.

He urged quick action in solving issues currently on the conference agenda and expressed the hope that by this fall Ottawa and the provinces will be able to discuss what he considers the priority item in constitutional reform — redistribution of powers and financial resources.

To help assure success at these talks, Mr. Davis has declared that Ontario places no pre-conditions on the principle of patriating the constitution, the amending formula to bring it under total Canadian control, and "other of the main areas of the agenda before us."

He even told reporters in between sessions that he would not be too vehement in seeking acceptance of Ontario's proposal that there should be provincial, and not solely federal, involvement in initiating amendments to the constitution once it is patriated.

Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, who attended the morning session as an observer, described Mr. Davis' opening statement as "what one would expect from a new boy."

But he said Mr. Davis had failed to show leadership because "he doesn't want to be the bad boy of the conference." •

Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, also attended as an observer, sitting in the legislature gallery with his father, national NDP Leader David Lewis.

Mr. Davis' determination to keep the conference on an even keel was reflected in his refusal to discuss Quebec's contentious position on social policy with reporters.

"I won't comment on what Mr. Bourassa has said as to what may be their position," he said, adding without elaboration: "I think we'll resolve a lot of the constitutional issues here in the next two days."

Mr. Davis' opening speech before television cameras was low-key, an affirmation that Ontario seeks a strong but diversified Canada which recognizes regional disparities.

Diversity was not a liability but a reason to evolve mutual policies to meet the different requirements of Canada's regions.

He expanded on this theme in a policy paper presented to the closed conference when he stressed the need for inter-governmental consultation and co-ordination among all levels of governments.

Quebec Steps Up Its Campaign To Sell Social Policy Stand

VICTORIA (CP) — Quebec is stepping up its campaign at the constitutional conference to sell its position on social policy to Ottawa and the other provinces.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa has invited members of the other delegations at the conference to a briefing on his position before the constitutional discussions resume today.

Monday, the first day of the conference, Mr. Bourassa told reporters Quebec will not formally approve a proposed formula for amending the constitution in Canada unless its position on social policy is accepted.

Mr. Bourassa told reporters Monday night after he returned from a private dinner with the other first ministers at Lt.-Gov. John Nicholson's official residence that the aim of today's briefing is to explain details of Quebec's position.

Mr. Bourassa will be assisted at the briefing by Social Affairs Minister Claude Castonguay, who, as the former chairman of a Quebec royal commission on health and welfare, drew up a plan for an over-all, integrated income security plan for the province.

To empower Quebec to implement the plan eventually, Mr. Bourassa and Mr. Castonguay want a constitutional amendment giving Quebec and the other provinces legislative "jurisdiction" in the field of income security.

This would mean that no federal legislation in that field would be permitted to conflict with, provincial laws, although the federal government would continue to finance and administer programs.

In addition, Quebec wants the transfer of tax revenues from the federal government to the provincial governments to pay for programs which would be taken over under the proposed amendment.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday that, while the federal government accepts the "principles" of Mr. Bourassa's position, it feared that acceptance of the entire Quebec proposal, including revenue transfers, would mean the "erosion" of the federal power to redistribute wealth.

The briefing is the first such event organized by Quebec at constitutional conferences, showing both the importance Mr. Bourassa attaches to the subject and his feeling that he has a well-prepared detailed proposal.

more-rigid procedure restricts Mr. Bourassa's opportunities to explain his position.

Asked Monday night whether he feels Quebec's position will be accepted, Mr. Bourassa said: "We'll see tomorrow."

Parley Faces Crunch

He was alarmed at the "massive" equalization payments which go to the poor provinces and he singled out Quebec. And this was a remark which Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa pointedly said was "inaccurate and unjustified."

While the Quebec premier reiterated that acceptance of the amending formula hinged on jurisdiction changes in social security, Mr. Bennett said he was opposed to "package deals."

Other premiers, including Manitoba's Ed Schreyer, voiced similar opposition.

It was clear that the question of reaching agreement on an amending formula was the feature attraction despite the oft-repeated demands for action in other areas, including the economy, regional disparities, freight rates and off-shore mineral rights.

Even Mr. Trudeau, who has previously emphasized the fact that the formula question is only one of a series of concurrent issues under discussion, devoted a major portion of his opening speech to the subject.

After the opening session, the doors were closed and the political leaders spent the afternoon talking privately about such questions as civil liberties and language rights—and other issues that would go in a redefined constitution—but the so-called "package deal" still dominated corridor gossip and backroom negotiations.

Ontario Premier William Davis remained optimistic after the first day of the three-day session. "I think we will resolve a lot of the constitutional issues here in the next two days."

Smythe Case Before Justices

OTTAWA (CP) — The minister of justice should not have the power to decide how an accused person will be tried for offences against the Income Tax Act, Toronto lawyer J. J. Robinette told the Supreme Court of Canada Monday.

He was appearing in the court for Stafford Smythe, president of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League. Smythe is accused of evading income tax on some $289,000 between 1965 and 1968.

Smythe's lawyers argued that he was being discriminated against by being made liable to heavier penalties because the Crown proceeded against him by way of indictment.

His trial judge agreed. But the decision was reversed by the Ontario Court of Appeal. Smythe then appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The seven high court judges hearing the appeal reserved their decision after hearing Mr. Robinette and Crown lawyer Joseph Sedgwick.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

Guiders of Belleville Division ended the year on a happy note on Thursday evening, June 10 when commissioners, Guiders, Gold Cord and All Round Cord Guides and their mothers met in St. Andrew's hall for a potluck supper followed by an excellent program.

Mrs. T. R. Colden, Division Commissioner was in the chair. Everyone enjoyed a delicious smorgasbord dinner served by Mrs. L. Waters, Mrs. G. Belsey and Mrs. B. Johnson.

Head table guests were introduced and the guests of honor, Gold Cord Guides, Ann Reid, Jean Mainland, Rosemary Flanagan, Sherree Brenan, Jane Britton, Penny Twigg, Heather Elliott, Holly Frazer and Debbie Wilson were called to the front and congratulated on winning this highest award in Guiding. Three All Round Cord Guides were introduced, Mary Pope, Patricia Flanagan and Shirley Buchanan.

Miss Eva Baker, area commissioner was unable to be present but sent greetings. Mrs. R. Mason, district commissioner for Belleville northeast presented four retiring Guiders with small gifts of appreciation.

Presentation of a qualifying badge of camp management, the maple leaf pin to Mrs. D. Kinnear by Mrs. M. Chartrand, preceded a short talk by Mrs. Kirkman on pack holidays for Brownies. Guide camp for Guides and Training camps for leaders. She suggested backyard camping in groups of three to nine girls as a preparation for longer camps farther afield.

Carol Thicke, Company 9 Gold Cord Guide of 1970 gave an excellent and detailed account of "Carousel 70", a camp she attended in Saskatchewan. Briefly Carol visited Regina, Qu'Appelle valley, Moose Jaw, Gull Lake where she visited a chinchilla ranch, a Hutterite colony, local farms and Fort Walsh. She went to Swift Current where the Guides met the Governor - General and to Saskatoon where they turned grain elevators.

At Saskatoon she visited the university, attended a barbecue given by Labatts, a carnival, the Art-Gallery and Museum. At North Battleford the local Rover crew gave a patio party. While camping in a Provincial park the girls found time to fish and ride horseback and at Camp Cy-Ta-Ka-Ye they had the new experience of using Baker tents and charcoal fires for cooking.

Each evening there was folk dancing, nature hikes, swimming and a campfire and the usual last night of pranks. At the end of camp a Weyburn Guide invited Carol to her home where she spent a few days until her family called for her to go on to the coast.

Carol was an excellent representative of Belleville division and the urged other girls to work hard and qualify for similar trips.

Mrs. M. Chartrand, district commissioner Belleville south led a singsong of new and old favorite camp songs which everyone enjoyed.

Mrs. J. E. Kuntze read a humorous poem and, this was followed by northeast district's hilarious skit, Mrs. A. Steenburg Belleville west, prepared a contest, "The Crossword Deputy", a pantomime by Guiders from Belleville north added more fun and laughter.

To complete the program, north district gave each person present two pipe cleaners and asked them to create anything they wished. These props were incorporated into a spontaneous and hilarious progressive story.

Club Activities

WOMEN'S STUDY GUILD

Mrs. H. Seldon entertained over 20 members of the Women's Study Guild at their monthly meeting. The president, Mrs. Buchanan conducted the business meeting. Miss Olive Elson read a letter from their French foster child.

A thought-provoking devotional period based on the basic similarity of all the major religions of the world was conducted by Mrs. Hegewald.

Mrs. Diane Settle chose "Optimism for the Future of the World" as the title for a biography of Buckminster Fuller, the genius behind Geodesic domes used in large constructions today. Born in Milton, Massachusetts, he never graduated from any school of architecture. He was born with abnormally far-sighted vision which meant that until he was four years old he saw things in large patterns with no detail.

After two jobless years in the slums of Chicago he designed a dirigible house light enough to be transported and strong enough to withstand the elements and this was just the beginning of a fantastic career filled with discoveries and inventions.

His Ford rotunda dome in Dearborn, Michigan was a great success. The Marine Corps used a Fuller dome airlifted by helicopter in 1964 and his paperboard dome won the grand prize at Milan at the 10th international design exhibition. He designed domes in Honolulu (the Sailor dome), the US exhibit at the Moscow world fair in 19.9 and the US geodesic dome at Expo 67 in Montreal. An example of a geodesic dome recently built is the one at Ontario Place, Toronto.

His days of hardship were over. Now he can travel to any part of the world to speak about the benefits of creative design.

His book "Operating Manual for Space Ship Earth" is optimistic that man will survive.

After the study period a delicious lunch was provided by Mrs. A. F. Tooth and Mrs. H. Wein.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Pies Baked or Frozen First Equally Good

By MARY MOORE

Some of our freezer owners are the most highly organized and efficient in our audience.

Often I receive questions from them asking if pies should be frozen before or after baking.

In our kitchen in the past two days we have been making apple pies and freezing them both ways. The pie that was baked and frozen and reheated was a little juicier and the apples were tenderer than the pie that was frozen unbaked and then baked straight from the freezer.

The unbaked frozen pie was satisfactory but could not be left in the oven long enough to bake the apples really tender without burning the crust. Remember that we decided it was a satisfactory pie just the same.

TWO FROZEN APPLE PIES

NOTE: Use two 7" foil pie plates for these.

PASTRY:

2¾ cups stirred but not sifted cake and pastry flour
1 cup shortening
2 tbsps. butter
1½ tsps. salt
4 tbsps. cold water

FILLING:

4 2-3 cups (packed) sliced Spy (or other cooking) apples (divided)
2-3 cup sugar (divided)
¼ tsp. nutmeg (divided)

To make Pastry cut shortening and butter into flour and salt until size of peas. Drizzle in water, tossing with fork, until all flour is dampened and can be held together. Divide into four even balls. Roll out two of them and line two 7" foil pie plates. Stir together filling ingredients and turn half into both pastry-lined pie plates.

Roll out top crusts. Gash only one and seal onto No. 1 pie. Brush top with mixture of 2 tsps. each milk and sugar and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 35-38 min. Cool. Freeze wrap, label and freeze. When ready to use take directly from freezer to oven and bake 15 min. at 400 deg. Fahr.

For pie No. 2 do not gash crust or brush on glaze, but seal pastry edges well. Freeze wrap label and freeze. When ready to use, deeply gash frozen crust, glaze as above and without thawing bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 50 min.

NOTE: Because of the long high temperature needed to bake this raw frozen pie it is advisable to protect edges with strip of crimped foil.

MR. AND MRS. RONALD MITCHELL

Mitchell – Green

Bonnie Lynn Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Green of RR 4 Belleville was recently united in marriage to Ronald Manley Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Manley Mitchell of RR 6, Belleville. The ceremony which was held in St. John's Anglican Church was conducted by Rev. F. C. Bell. Mrs. Debbie Horwood at the organ provided music for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an Elizabethan style gown of double nylon organza over taffeta with a high, stand-up collar, natural waistline enhanced by a bow and guipure lace trimming at the neck, sleeves and cuffs. The full flowing veil of nylon illusion net was edged with matching lace and caught up by a wedding ring headband covered with guipure lace Her bouquet consisted of yellow and white daisy 'mums and yellow roses.

The maid of honor Miss Debbie DeRushie wore a gown of pink nylon organza over taffeta styled with a scoop neckline in front and an empire waistline at the back. Swiss lace adorned the sleeves and waistline, and a white picture hat trimmed with satin ribbon completed the costume. She carried a bouquet of pink and white daisy 'mums.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. James Lloyd and Margaret Green, sisters of the bride and Cathy Green, a cousin of the bride. All three were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

James Lloyd attended the bridegroom as best man while the ushers were Milton Bell and Gary Ross, brothers-in-law of the bridegroom and Steven Grills, cousin of the bridegroom.

The reception was held in St. John's Parish hall. The bride's mother wore a mauve crimplene dress and matching lace coat with white accessories and a corsage of mauve tinted 'mums.

The bridegroom's mother was in a pale green dress and lace coat ensemble with a corsage of yellow 'mums.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride left in a pale green crepe dress and coat ensemble and white accessories. A white lace picture hat and a corsage of yellow roses completed the costume.

Upon return the newly married couple will reside in Bellcville.

MR. AND MRS. LARRY WANNAMAKER

Wannamaker – Sears

Catherine Elaine Sears, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Sears of Trenton was recently united in marriage to Larry Alton Wannamaker, son of Mrs. E. Wannamaker and the late R. E. Wannamaker at Holloway Street United Church.

Rev. William Lamb, assisted by Rev. B. Wannamaker, the bridegroom's brother conducted the ceremony. Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Boyne Wannamaker at the organ and Mrs. Bele Wannamaker, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length empire waisted gown with the bodice and long sleeves of French Alencon lace. The wide V neckline dipped to a keyhole in front and was trimmed with satin applique braiding. Two English heather roses accented the waistline. The full A-line skirt of peau-de-soie was highlighted by French satin applique braiding The fingertip veil of silk tulle was held in place by a crescent of tiny forget-me-nots, finished with a blue bow. Her bouquet was a nosegay of red sweetheart roses, baby's breath and stephanotis intermingled with floating white ribbons and red rosebuds.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Linda Clark wore a floor-length gown of yellow chiffon over taffeta featuring a portrait neckline and an empire bodice highlighted with Swiss applique lace. Twin panels of chiffon fell from the fully shirred shoulders. She had a yellow floral headpiece. Dressed identically to the matron of honor was Mrs. Linda Wilson, the bridesmaid. Both had nosegays of yellow and mauve puffed spider mums with trailing mauve and white ribbons.

Angela Sears as flower girl wore a floor-length dress of yellow peau-de-soie with the neckline and empire waist trimmed with daisies. She carried a basket of flowers highlighted by yellow and mauve daisies.

The ring bearer was Kevin Wannamaker

The bridegroom was attended by Bruce Gordon as best man. The ushers were Dale and Brian Wannamaker, nephews of the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the AMDU social centre, CFB, Trenton. The bride's mother was in a powder blue empire waisted ensemble with white accessories. She wore a corsage of pink sweetheart roses enhanced by white satin ribbons.

The bridegroom's mother wore a brown sleeveless crimpknit dress with a matching coat. Her corsage was of white sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride donned a pink dress and coat ensemble with white accessories and a red sweetheart rose corsage. Upon return the couple will live in Oshawa.

Ann Landers

Ann's Advice Berated by Wives

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your advice to Infantryman's wife stank out loud. I refer to the woman whose husband had an eleventh-month affair in Vietnam with an Army nurse.

You told her, "War is hell and a husband doesn't need any more hell when he gets home." You warned her to stop haranguing him or he might start to look for another nurse. If that was my husband he'd be looking for another nurse all right — to bandage his skull. I suggest to God you must be a man. No woman could think like that. — PONCA CITY, OKLAHOMA.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm so mad at you I will never read your column again as long as I live. Your advice to Infantryman's wife was rotten. War is hell all right — not only for the Infantryman, but for his wife. I know because I've been through it. Every time the phone rang or someone knocked on the door I wondered if I was about to get that dreaded news. The hours of loneliness and worry are enough to drive a woman crazy. And then to learn that while you were crying your eyes out the dirty rat was having himself a ball! You call yourself a human relations columnist? You're a bone-wrecker is what you are. — CHARLESTON, W. VA.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: So war is hell is it? As an Air Force wife for over 15 years I can tell you how the female half lives while her men fight the big job.

When the car breaks down, or you need a plumber or some maintenance work done, you get charged double because you're a woman alone. When the kids are sick you walk the floor — or you pile two of them in the car while you take the third one to the hospital because you can't leave them. The most important person in the world suddenly becomes the postman. You live for those letters. And then Ann Landers comes along and tells you to forget it when you learn he has been playing around the whole time. If I lived in Chicago I'd picket your office. — MOBILE, ALABAMA.

DEAR GIRLS: O.K. Don't forget it. Remember it. Talk about it constantly. Yell at him. Keep him up nights telling his he's a lowdown, cheating skunk. Give him the freeze. Punish him good. Make him suffer. After all — you suffered plenty. After a while you'll notice he is no longer defending himself against your tirades. He's become quieter and quieter. And one day he'll be so quiet around your house that you won't be able to stand it. He'll be gone.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter is getting married in the fall. Her fiance has a beautiful voice and she wants him to sing at their wedding. The young man's mother wants him to sing also. My husband and I are not sure this is proper. Please give us your opinion. We will do as you say — FROM BALTIMORE.

DEAR FROM: If the Baltimore Oriole would like to sing at his own wedding I see no reason why he shouldn't. But make sure he selects something appropriate. For example, "What Kind Of Fool Am I" would not be suitable for this occasion.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I ran across some simple wisdom which I hope you will print in your column. The words are by Dr. Heartwell Wilson and I found them inspiring.

"This is the beginning of a new day. God has given me this day to use as I will. I can waste it or use it for some good purpose. But what I do with this day is important because I have exchanged a day of my life for it. When tomorrow comes, today will be gone forever. I hope I will not regret the price I paid for it." — MINNEAPOLIS READER.

* * *

DEAR MPLS: What you describe as "simple wisdom" could serve as a guide for a meaningful life — or it could be a morning prayer. Thank you for sharing.

Parents: Start Communications Early with Family

By DORIS CLARK

Formula for avoiding the generation gap: Tuck your children in bed at night. This is the time when a grateful pause-for a hug and a kiss will open the flood-gates.

When he knows he can count on you to listen, Bobbie will come out with whatever has been troubling him. So will Susan.

My heart bleeds for the youngster who is sent off to bed with a brief admonition to be sure to clean his teeth and turn the light out. The whole performance causes the first crack towards a gap in communicating. If this is done thoroughly (and thoughtlessly) enough, it never does get closed.

* * *

Dear Doris: Some months ago I read your story about visiting a Danish farm. Being in the farming business in Denmark before came to Canada, I came to the conclusion that acres in Denmark must have expanded tremendously since I left. In order to keep 40 cows and all the other stock mentioned in your write-up, it would take about 200 acres.

I worked on a Danish farm from 1912 to 1914, 400 acres and green meadows bordered along by a big creek. We had 250 cows producing 3,000 pounds of milk a day.

Just imagine: Denmark is about the size of Lake Winnipeg, and there are 42 cities of over 10,000 population each, including the capital, of one and a half million. There are 70,000 bicycles in Copenhagen.

As far as Denmark goes, I could mention a whole page of places to see. — Former Danish Farmer, 43 Years In Canada.

Dear Danish Farmer: Is that an offer? How would you like to write again and tell us just what you think visitors from Canada should be sure to see?

I find we were talking about hectares rather than Danish acres. Also, the food for this stock does not come from the land, but from great supplies of left-over mash purchased from breweries. But it was the human stock we enjoyed most — their joy in living, the the graceful helpful hospitality of our hosts.

Many readers wrote in for Farmhouse Holiday folders; and I still have more.

* * *

Dear Doris: I fully agree what Fat and Happy wrote. I read where some doctors are getting a different view of these overweight people.

One doctor suggests that these obese adults for whom dieting has proved fantastically difficult should relax and not worry about their weight. The guilt and self-hatred associated with chronic failure to stay on a diet may be even more psychologically damaging than the overweight is physically damaging.

Another doctor writes he'd sooner see an obese person with a happy and satisfied outlook "die two years earlier" than a person who is dieting continually be miserable, and all the people who live with this person) and "live a couple of years longer". — Am Fat and Happy Too

Dear Fat and Happy: You build up quite a case, don't you if I were inclined to argue. I would suggest that you have gone on the defensive.

I do agree that there are some worry warts who could fret themselves into an early grave because of their failure to remove pounds when they toyed with the idea to the extent of refusing the occasional rich dessert or chocolate milk shake. And there are, indeed, some constitutions in which metabolism makes it tough to get rid of unwanted obesity.

If you simply must be miserable when you diet, this makes everybody unhappy. But I know some pretty triumphant reducers whose loss of overweight, accomplished in later years, has given them good health and better spirits.

* * *

Is it a point of etiquette that is troubling you? Perh aps tell you how it's done in Canada.

POINTS FOR PARENTS

BY MARY BRYSON

If your teen-ager's room is a shambles of clothing strewn everywhere, perhaps it's the storage space that is at fault. For one thing, be sure the closet is easy to get to. Help her organize and rearrange her closet space and find another spot to store her out-of-season garments. Install a rod on the closet door for blouses, a special shelf for purses or shoes. Have a place for everything. Make it as easy to hang things in the closet as it is to drape them on a chair.

RIVER VALLEY WI

Mrs. Glenn Bush was the hostess at the June meeting of the River Valley WI held at the Centre with 19 women in attendance. The group toured Shamrock cheese factory. They were welcomed by Ron Reid and he gave an explanation of the various steps in manufacturing cheese from whole milk. That morning 2,300 pounds of milk had been received and the curd was packed into 10 - pound cheese containers. Mr. Reid gave a very informative talk as the group was shown through the various rooms.

Later, Mrs. George Grills conducted the meeting at the Centre. The treasurer Mrs. J. L. Donohoe gave a report of the catering for a recent wedding. Mrs. Vernon J. Harry told of plans for decorating the interior of the Centre.

A barn sale is to be held on June 28 and a committee was appointed. Plans were made for the individual gifts to the friendship link in England.

Mrs. Roy Tucker outlined current events, the most important being the census.

The Trent Valley area convention will be held at Club Canara on October 21 and 22.

The special FWIO dinner in honor of the 75th anniversary will be held at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto on February 12, 1972.

The PRO Mrs. Percy MacMullen said that this world ploughing match and international exhibition will be held on a farm in October in Somerset, England. It is expected that 22 countries and 70,000 people will attend. ONEW members and their husbands will be entertained by Institute members at Somerset.

For friendship links she also read a letter from the link Institute in Bristol, England. Gloria Harry gathered the pennies for friendship.

Mrs. Roy Tucker and Mrs. Charles Wilson who had attended the recent meeting of the Hastings West District at delegates gave the highlights of the meeting. Mrs. Ross Bush read the list of officers for the district.

Mrs. John Kane conducted a cheese contest. Refreshments for the social hour were provided by Ada Bush, Lois Hoard and Hazel Morgan.

Trudeau May Retreat

VICTORIA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's political record is generally that of a winner.

But retreat is not unknown to him.

He has shown himself willing to cut his losses with a strategic withdrawal.

Now Mr. Trudeau appears to be trying to find an avenue of orderly tactical retreat before Quebec's assault on the federal bastion of jurisdiction over social security.

The issue is confusing, to say the least, because three kinds of jurisdiction seem involved, all at the same time: exclusive, paramount and concurrent.

Premier Robert Bourassa says he will not agree to a formula to amend, and thus patriate, the constitution unless Quebec gets control in the social security field.

Three Gifts

Partial Text of Speech By Trudeau as Parley Opens

VICTORIA (CP) — Partial text of Prime Minister Trudeau's opening remarks Monday at the federal-provincial constitutional conference:

We are here in Victoria not simply to take advantage of the magnificent scenery, generous hospitality or pleasant climate of Canada's Pacific coast, nor only as tribute to the 100th anniversary of the entry into Confederation of British Columbia, happy though we are with each of these.

We are here in this provincial capital as evidence that in Canada our constitutional structure is federal, that in Canada the 10 provinces and their governments are a vitally important and integral part of our political structure.

Our presence here reminds us as well that the work so boldly commenced in the Atlantic city of Charlottetown in 1864 remains as yet unfinished. There could be no finer place to complete a part of that unfinished work than on this island, a continent distant from Prince Edward Island, for that distance vindicates the optimism of the fathers of Confederation and is proof of their dream of a united Canada from sea to sea.

One part of our task today is with us because Canada blazed a trail that many former colonies, now independent countries, have since followed. Canada was the first part of the then British Empire that achieved the status that grew into the complete independence of today.

The other British colonies that much later achieved independence profited by our experience. They were set up in the world complete—and able to manage and to amend their own constitutions.

The fathers of Confederation at Charlottetown and at Quebec were men of courage, imagination and resource. But neither they nor the British legislators of that day could be expected to have foreseen the way in which complete independence would come to Canada more than half a century later.

Because of that they did not include in our constitution a way to amend it in Canada.

And so today, a century later, we still cannot change in Canada the fundamental aspects of our constitution.

Australia can, New Zealand can, India, Nigeria, Jamaica —all these former British colonies, now independent, can amend their own constitutions in entirety, but we cannot.

We Canadians, who led the way, must go to the British Parliament to implement our decision.

It was not, however, just to arrive at an amending procedure that the constitutional discussions of the last three years were undertaken. At the first conference in February, 1968, chaired by my predecessor in office, Mr. Pearson, it was agreed to embark on a comprehensive review of the constitution. Since that conference, fundamental questions have been examined in six sessions of first ministers, many sessions of ministers on special subjects, and some two dozen meeting of officials.

Important measures of agreement have been reached on several aspects of our constitution. Altogether, more work has been carried out and more insight gained into the problems and the complexities of our federalism than in any other period since 1867.

Our session in February 1971 indicated wide agreement with respect to a number of matters of substance in the constitution. There was agreement on what might be a feasible approach to a formula for amending the constitution.

The February conference also discussed social policy and expressed its sympathy with the objective of meeting the problem of poverty effectively having a broad, integrated policy for income-security measures. We agreed to discuss this matter, and its constitutional implications, at our meeting in June.

Since February, we have all been actively involved in expressing the conclusions of that meeting in the form of constitutional texts.

As a result, the drafts before this conference are not the work of any one government but of all governments. They are built upon the foundation of our discussions over the past three years and would not have been possible without the understanding gained by governments as a result of those discussions.

An important issue before this conference is Quebec's proposal that provincial legislatures should have the power to limit the authority of Parliament to make income-security payments, such as old-age pensions and family allowances, within their province.

By the present system of income-security payments, Parliament transfers billions of dollars a year to the old, the poor, the unemployed and families with children, from taxpayers and contributors who have the ability to pay.

This federal redistribution is particularly important to poor people in those parts of Canada where opportunities and incomes are less than average—and that includes seven of our 10 provinces.

If, as the government of Quebec proposes, provincial laws could nullify federal income-security laws in a province, and divert the federal revenue through the provincial treasury to be spent as the provincial government decided, then provincial governments would have a strong inducement to have such laws.

But Parliament in those circumstances would be less likely to impose taxes on Canadians generally to make payments to provincial governments than it would to make payments directly to the needy old people and families with children.

Taxpayers would be less prepared to pay taxes to the federal government for programs controlled by provincial governments other than their own, than to support programs by the federal Parliament which they themselves elect.

Consequently, the constitutional change proposed by Quebec would, over the years, lead to an erosion of federal income-security programs and their replacement by purely provincial plans.

The old and the poor in the wealthier provinces might do as well in such circumstances as if the federal government were making the payments, but in the other provinces, including Quebec, the tax base would not support as good income-security payments as Parliament could provide.

The federal government is not taking a negative attitude with regard to change—either in programs or in constitution. It must, however, consider the factors to which I have referred as we examine the changes that may be desirable in our constitution.

I spoke of the unfinished work of Charlottetown and Quebec: the omission to provide a means of amending our constitution entirely in Canada and of making it totally Canadian.

Efforts to work out an amending procedure of our own began with a federal-provincial conference in 1927—44 years ago. That effort failed.

After nearly half a century of trying and of failing Canada remains unique—the only independent country in the world that cannot amend its own constitution.

I think it is incumbent on us that we do not fail again.

If we do, the country will go on, but it may be long before we find another occasion when we, as first ministers who come after us, can succeed.

The problem is not insoluble —and we are close to solution.

An amending formula, fairly conceived, is not the end to constitutional change or a block on future progress. It is the means to change and the way to ensure that we can progress in the years ahead.

But additionally, it is the means of removing, once and for all, the last remnant of a condition that is not worthy of Canada as a free and independent country.

The Old Jail Had Many Tales to Tell

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

With the official closing last week of the old Hastings County Jail, another chapter in the annals of county law enforcement has been ended.

Ten years ago, with construction of the new county administration building, the old county court room fell into disuse.

And now with a new provincial policy calling for central jails to replace outmoded county lockups, inmates normally in custody at the county jail will serve short-term sentences at the new four-county regional detention centre at Napanee.

The 120-year - old Hastings county jail at Belleville will go under the wrecker's hammer.

In fact, the only visible reminder of long years of county incarceration will be the jail governor's residence which is being spared from demolition and will be renovated for office space for county administration purposes.

The last inmate was taken from the county jail last Wednesday, and Friday the chattels of the old jailhouse — cooking equipment, cots and mattresses, and even leg irons and correctional strap went on the auction block in preparation for demolition of the jail and courthouse building.

The history of the Hastings county jail dates back to the 1820s when residents of the area set up a "hue and cry" to be separated from the then Midland district and have their own, local government.

Prince Edward county had achieved separation from Midland district in 1831 because of the distance from Kingston and the need of a local courthouse and jail.

And Hastings, with a larger population and being an even greater distance from Kingston, felt entitled to the same treatment.

There was even rivalry between Belleville and Trenton for the honor of becoming the new district town but in the end, Belleville won out, as after weighing the rival proposals, the provincial government decided in March, 1837 that a separate Victoria district should be set up with boundaries coinciding with existing Hastings county boundaries and that Belleville would be the seat of government.

This meant construction of a new courthouse and jail and a competition was held to select the best plans.

Work on the new courthouse and jail got under way in 1838 and the building was ready for fall courts the following year.

The courthouse was used until the present county administration building was erected, but the original jail cells in the basement of the court building fell into disuse after replacement by an above-ground adjacent jail structure holding up to 40 prisoners.

When the newer jail addition went into use, the former basement cell block area was retained for storage purposes and as jail kitchen area.

The old basement cell block area became known as "the hole". the name apparently resulting from the fact that the stone masonry cells were completely devoid of daylight and were barred with both iron gates and solid wooden doors.

The old county jail has seen the incarceration of its share of murderers who later met death on the gallows. And also there have been a few escapes over the 14-foot-high jail yard walls.

The story goes that in the early days of the county, a North Hastings man and wife charged with murder were incarcerated for 12 months in adjoining cells in "the hole".

Working in the black dark of the dungeon and using a spoon as a tool, the husband removed a large block of granite separating the two cells.

Jail officials explained that there was only one jail guard at the time and no checks of the cells were made at night.

The man and wife were later hanged back to back in the jail courtyard.

The last hanging at the Hastings jail was in January, 1940 when a county farmer was executed for a double shotgun murder.

Also, the story goes that two Madoc township brothers, some time after the turn of the century, scaled the jail yard walls to gain temporary freedom.

And only a few years ago, two other prisoners escaped from the jailyard by climbing bars on the courthouse windows and then leaping across to the top of the jailyard wall.

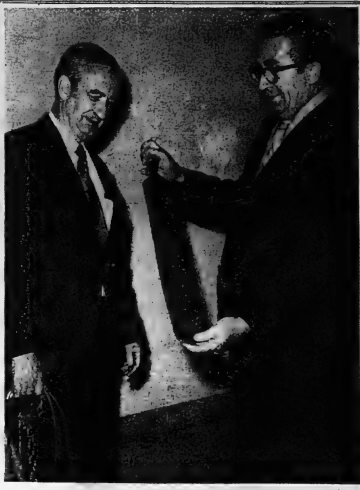
Possibly no one in the city has more vivid memories of earlier days at the county jail than Front Street druggist Cleo Colling.

Cleo's father, Robert Colling, was turnkey at the jail from 1906 until 1933, and he was born in the turnkey residence quarters in the courthouse building. Cleo lived at the jail for 26 years.

As turnkey, Mr. Colling's father received $600 per year — paid quarterly.

"For two weeks after Dad was paid we were the richest family in Belleville," Cleo laughingly recalls.

To provide parking space, part of the old courthouse building and the former Shire Hall on Church Street was demolished following erection 10 years ago of the new county administration building.



And now the remainder of the courthouse, together with the jailhouse and jailyard walls are to go under the wrecker's hammer.

Larger Lots Allowed

TRENTON (Staff) — Council here last night took action to allow Dufferin Developments to revise its subdivision agreement with the town to allow larger building lots in the new 300-home subdivision.

The decision followed receipt of a request from Dufferin, explaining that many potential home owners had asked if they could have building lots in the west end development somewhat larger than those currently available. Most are between 50 and 60 feet in width.

Clerk - comptroller O. W. Larry told council it would be acting within its power to allow larger lots in the subdivision but not smaller ones. He explained that, if council failed to implement a bylaw permitting this, each application for a change in lot size would have to be dealt with by committee of adjustment.

Mayor Duncan McDonald suggested that council study the matter, saying "it is rather vague." However councillor Stan Ketcheson said he did not believe it vague at all.

"You won't go wrong with this," stated councillor Ted Parker, as he called council to approve the necessary legislation to permit larger lots.

Education Board Building Shelved

Construction of an administration building for Hastings county board of education has been deferred indefinitely.

Trustees decided to abandon plans for the building after a delegation met with minister of education Robert Welch and learned that grants for such purposes will not be forthcoming in the immediate future.

But the new minister of education said he was reviewing many policies of his predecessor, now Premier William Davis, and the policy on grants for administration buildings was one.

"I felt he was very sincere," reported board chairman Donald Williams. "He realized we had a good government, but his funds are limited."

The board had decided, when plans for the building were first discussed, not to proceed unless most of the cost could be covered by government grants.

Last night the board took exception to reports that the proposed building was for administrative use only. It would have been an education centre, it was said, with accommodation for the audio-visual centre, psychological services, a library and archives as well as administration offices and a board room.

Heads Trustees

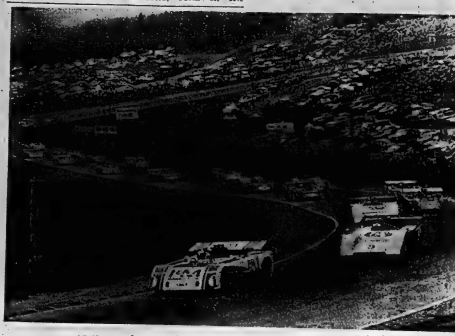
Macdonald Smith, Belleville trustee on the Hastings county board of education, was last week elected president of the Ontario Public School Trustees' Association. The annual meeting of the association took place in Sudbury.

Mr. Smith will hold the position for one year. He is also a director of the Ontario Trustees' Council.



Mr. Smith has been a school trustee for 18 years, serving on the old Belleville Public School Board and the Bay of Quinte District High School Board before formation of the county board. He had also served at the provincial level on committees appointed by the minister of education.

Stewart, followed by Denis Hulme, (5) and Peter Revson, (7), who finished first and second respectively, had to drop out of the race after experiencing transmission problems with his Lola.

St. Kitts' Boss to Sit Out Year

MONTREAL (CP) — Fred Muller, owner and general manager of St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series was suspended one year Monday by the executive of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The suspension of Muller for the 1971-72 season means he will have to arrange for a manager. Joe Krycka, CAHA president, said Muller cannot act in any capacity with the club during his suspension.

The ban on Muller followed his indefinite suspension by the CAHA because of the failure of the St. Catharines team to complete a semi-final Eastern Junior series against Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Junior A Hockey League.

The Black Hawks refused to return to Quebec for the sixth game of the best-of-seven series of their Richardson Cup playoff following a near riot at Quebec City in the fourth game. Quebec led the series 3-2 at the time of the St. Catharines withdrawal.

The Remparts subsequently went on to win the Memorial Cup—the Canadian junior championship—when they defeated Edmonton Oil Kings in two straight games of the best-of-three final.

Coach Rehired

QUEBEC (CP) — Maurice Filion has been rehired for his third season as coach and general manager of the Memorial Cup champion Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Junior A Hockey League. It was announced Monday. Elezar Turcotte, president of the syndicate which owns the junior club, said Fillon had signed a one-year contract.

All-stars Won't Change Sides

TORONTO (CP) — Two players each from the defending champion Peterborough Lakers and Brantford Warriors were named Monday to the 1971 Ontario Lacrosse Association all-star team.

Because the Lakers will be host to the all-stars in a game at Peterborough on June 26, Peterborough goalie Pat Baker and forward John Davis will be on opposite sides of the floor to Brantford centre Gaylord Powless and defenceman Jerry McKenna.

Others named to the first team were defenceman Bruce Wanless of Brampton Excelsiors and forward Chuck Li of Brooklin Redmen.

Second-team members included Brantford's Bob McCready in goal, defencemen Paul Suggett of Brantford and Carm Collins of Peterborough, and Lakers' centre Joe Todd flanked by Brian Keegan of Brampton and Larry Lloyd of Brooklin.

To take up the slack of the missing Peterborough players in the all-star lineup, honorable mentions were given at each position with John Jefferson of Brampton in goal, Ron McNeil of Brantford and Wayne Thompson of Brampton on defence and forwards Bill Coghill of Brantford and Bob Haw of Brampton.

Lakers' Cy Coombes also got an honorable mention on the all-star team but will line up with the champs.

Romania Moves

BUCHAREST (AP) — Romania advanced to the finals in Group B of the Davis Cup tennis zone playoffs after winning one of the remaining two singles Monday for a 4-1 victory over Yugoslavia.

Albatross Unexcitable Champion

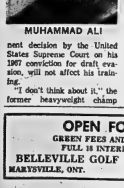
MONTREAL (CP) — Albatross, winner of the first leg of the triple crown in harness racing, is not a very excitable champion.

"He's a quiet horse," groom Joe Wilderman was saying at Blue Bonnets Raceway Monday where the three-year-old pacer is currently stabled awaiting Sunday afternoon's $75,000 Prix d'Eto.



Albatross was undisputed champion of his division as a 2-year-old last year and, barring unforeseen circumstances, appears headed for the 3-year-old crown this season.

Albatross has won six of the seven races he entered this season.

He has also won the first leg of harness racing's triple crown—the $114,000 Messenger Stakes—and is entered in the last two legs, the Cane Futurity and the famed Little Brown Jug.

Ali Not Thinking About Court Case

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Muhammad Ali, who begins preparing today for his heavyweight fight with Jimmy Ellis, says an imminent decision by the United States Supreme Court on his 1967 conviction for draft evasion, will not affect his training.

MUHAMMAD ALI

"I don't think about it," the former heavyweight champ said in an interview Monday. "Whatever happens is the will of the Lord."

He said if the court rules against him, "I go to jail, that's all."

Ali, who plans to train in Chicago, said he wasn't ready yet for his bout with Ellis in Houston's Astrodome, "but I will be July 26."

The supreme court has agreed to rule on a lower-court sentence of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine for draft evasion. It is expected to rule before it adjourns for the summer in two weeks.

Four years ago, June 20, 1967, Ali refused to step forward to join other draftees in entering the army. Since then, Ali has spent "a couple of hundred thousand dollars" on appeals.

He insisted the possibility the court might uphold his conviction has not altered his frame of mind.

"If I was going to jail for stealing or hitting somebody, that would be bad," he said, "but when you're standing up for your beliefs, it's not bad—it is honorable."

Canucks' Finances Fluttering

VANCOUVER (CP) — Minneapolis-based Medicor may be ready to resume its majority ownership of Vancouver's National Hockey League franchise, but Canadian directors of the parent company, Northwest Sports Enterprises Ltd., haven't been notified and there's some question the provincial government will allow it to return.

Published reports Monday said Medicor had received financial backing from a New York bank to match bids on Northwest stock ordered by the British Columbia Securities Commission to be held in escrow.

Monday night, Northwest directors said they had not been notified that Thomas K. Scallen, president of Medicor, was prepared to pay back $3.5 million removed from the company treasury last year.

"We have received no notice of any money being tendered by Medicor," said Coleman E. Hall, one of four Canadian directors who say they won't stand for re-election, "it is up to the B.C. Securities Commission whether they will allow Medicor to regain its majority position in Northwest Sports.

"We never know where Scallen will get the money from. If it came from undesirable sources, the securities commission would not allow him to participate here again."

Northwest Sports stock now is being held in escrow by order of the B.C. superintendent of brokers for the defaulted debt.

The situation became public Friday when the Canadian directors issued a letter to Northwest shareholders saying that Scallen had transferred $3 million from Northwest to a Chicago financier in December and $508,000 to other U.S. accounts last fall, transactions of which they had been unaware and which they would not have approved.

Hall said the Canadian directors have no word as to whether Scallen and Lyman Walters, vice-president of Medicor and of Northwest, will attend a club director's meeting Thursday.

"I hear by the grapevine that unless they have the money they won't be up," said Hall.

However Cy McLean, Frank McMahon and I will be a quorum. We want to have our house in order and we'll be going over all expenses, including aircraft charters."

The fourth Canadian director, Max Bell, is ill.

Hall said the escrow agreement provides for interest to be paid by Medicor at 8% per cent, if it pays the debt directly or by extreatment of its stock. Legal and other expenses also will be charged.

William Winnett, executive vice-president and chief financial officer of Northwest Sports, said: "We had a meeting this morning with the deputy superintendent of brokers, Bob Scott, and the securities investigator Andy Campbell, and they said it would not be necessary to change the locks here."

"We don't have the books back yet, but we will get them back Tuesday. There will be adequate safeguards and the technical problems have been resolved to the satisfaction of the superintendent of brokers."

Meantime, Ben Ginter, who said Friday night he intended to make a bid for the Medicor block of Northwest shares, had not done so Monday but said he was seeking full information on the situation.

Ginter last fall purchased 3,500 units of Northwest securities, comprising 52,500 shares and debentures convertible into another 35,000 shares.

The franchise was acquired by Medicor May 15, 1970.

Last month, Scallen was ordered by William S. Irwin, superintendent of brokers, to place Medicor's holding of 601,000 shares of Northwest Sport and other securities in escrow with Montreal Trust.

Eagles Press Tamper Claim

VANCOUVER (CP) — Commissioner Jake Gaudaur of the Canadian Football League said Monday night he has received a letter from Pete Rozelle his counterpart with the National League, concerning the signing of quarterback Greg Barton by Toronto Argonauts.

Gaudaur said he received the first representation from the NFL on the controversial signing last Friday, then made contact with Rozelle by phone.

"We decided that there wasn't any academic proof that we felt was needed to prove that Toronto tampered with Barton," said Gaudaur.

"Mr. Rozelle says he plans to have further talks with the Philadelphia people."

Barton signed with Toronto after playing out his option last season in the NFL. Originally signed by Detroit, Barton spent last season in the Lions' taxi squad, then was traded to Philadelphia Eagles last January.

He subsequently signed with Toronto May 1, but phoned the Argos March 15 when he was still under contract to the Eagles.

"There's no way you can stop a player from phoning another club," said Gaudaur.

"The only step we (the CFL) can take is to inform the club that it must stop contact with the player until his contract expires. This happened last year when Philadelphia talked to (Sonny) Wade of Montreal. Mr. Rozelle told the Eagles they had to cut off contact with Wade."

He said the NFL "had a lot more to lose than us" if tampering charges were pressed any further.

Gaudaur is in Vancouver for talks with the International Sports Network, an American firm which has sold CFL telecasts in 33 major U.S. markets for the coming season.

Steamboats Could Put Some Variety in Summer Sport Fare

by
Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

Maybe the problem with the Toronto Argonauts is that opposing lifemen haven't been giving Sculler quarterbacks enough "steamboats."

These steamboats are not the variety concocted by Robert Fulton to shuttle cotton bales down the Mississippi, although the Argo line has been known to have holes opened in it which could accomodate the Queen Mary.

No, these are touch football steamboats we're talking about, as in "One steamboat, two steamboats, three steamboats, gotcha!" In the noble and ancient art of touch football, defensive players can't put the finger on the opposing quarterback until his shins, pardon the pun, come in.

Standardizing steamboat regulations was one of the first tasks tackled by the newly-created Canadian Touch Football Association, which wants to put the pastimes on more than a sandlot, pick-up team basis.

Sanctioned by the Canadian Amateur Football Association, the CTFA represents nearly 600 players in organized leagues in Montreal, Toronto and Sarnia. At the recent inaugural meeting in Toronto, the group determined to promote the growth of seven-man touch football across Canada, compile a uniform set of rules, and establish regional and national playoffs.

One of the aims of establishing senior touch football is to provide an outlet for high school and college players who often never toss an organized pass after graduation.

Judging from the interest — (the Don Valley league has 180 players 21 and over on eight teams, many of them commercially sponsored) — there are plenty of former gridders itching to run those old-button-hooks.

Some dangers are playing six-man rules, others seven, some use one-handed touch, others two, but all have regular schedules and playoff brackets. The Don Valley league opens their season in the second week of September, and this year will even be playing some gazebi at night under the lights.

Touch football has its differences of opinion, but usually the honor system works, putting the onus on a ballcarrier to confirm whether or not he has been tagged.

Inquiries from interested individuals may be directed to the Canadian Touch Football Association, care of the Canadian Amateur Football Association, Box 2020, Station D, Ottawa.

Summer steamboats could make participants of a lot of local spectators, and provide an interesting alternative to the seasonal monopoly of diamond sports.

Conn Smythe resigned as chairman of the Hockey Hall of Fame governing committee because of the long-overdue selection to the hall of Harvey "Busher" Jackson. Smythe, famous for once saying "If you can't beat 'em in the alley, you can't beat 'em on the ice", objected to Jackson's less than genteel off-ice behavior, Jackson, who died a few years back, scored 258 NHL goals. Smythe was elected to the Hall of Fame under the "builder" category, which means he only constructed Maple Leaf Gardens while people like Jackson filled it for him . . . . . Bobby Orr, who gets a lot of criticism for defensive failings when people try to pick holes in his perfection, was a plus-124 player last year for Boston Bruins. In other words, Orr was on the ice for 124 more Boston goals than he was for opposition scores. No other hockey player since the invention of life pencil has compiled such an incredible record. Unfortunately for Mr. Orr, they don't print numbers on the Stanley Cup, just names.

Legion Program Gives Tracksters Flying Start

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The Belleville Kinsmen Track Club appears to be getting a flying start for the 1971 season and much of the credit must go to an initial push from the Canadian Legion junior development program.

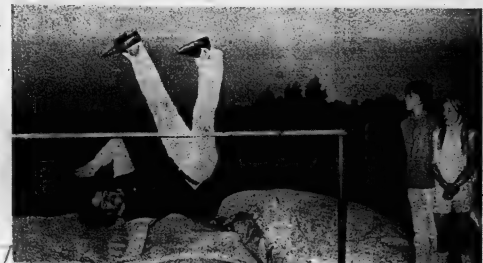
The basic part of the program consists of sending teams of demonstrators to various points in the province to promote track and field among the 10-15 age group.

"Our aim is to help stir up enthusiasm for track and field, although we do demonstrate some of the basics as well", explained team member Geof Ellis. "What we try and do is to establish track clubs in areas that don't have them and aid the clubs in areas that do."

Ellis, along with fellow Queen's University track team members Bruce Kilpatrick, John Ongarsis, Don Price and Doug Faulkner, compose one of three such teams in Ontario.

This particular fivesome will arrange 60 clinics throughout eastern Ontario, while another group covers Toronto with the third team working in the western part of the province.

Already, they have visited Kingston, Napanee, Bancroft and Trenton before their present three - day sojourn in Belleville. During the day they visit public schools in the area, while evenings are spent with the team itself.



A total of 50 youngsters turned out for the first clinic at Quinte Secondary School last night and track club officials are hopeful that an even greater number will be on hand at Moira tonight for the second demonstration.

The Kinsmen team will be coached this summer by Quinte's Larry Mills, assisted by local standouts Jim Sled, Dave Grant and Dave Simonds.

Practices will be split between the Quinte and Moira tracks and the team hopes to have a number of meets arranged through regional coordinator Bob Milne, who heads the Legion program in this area.

Officials of the team were highly pleased with the number of new faces who turned out for Monday's first night of registration. "Out of the 50 kids, I only recognized one or two," observed Mrs. Elsie Jokinen, who has been connected with the Kinsmen Track Club for three years. "I think that a lot of the veterans will turn up at Moira tonight."

The combined demonstration and registration for the Kinsmen Club will begin at 7 p.m.

Happy Landing

Queen's University track team member Ted Faulkner kicks up his heels after demonstrating the proper high jump technique to some youthful Belleville track enthusiasts at Quinte Secondary School Monday night. # Pointers Boosted By Mavety's Bat

Catcher Larry Mavety helped Point Anne catch Quinte Hotel last night as the Cementmen recorded a narrow 3-2 win to move two points ahead of Rollins in the Commercial Softball standings.

The defending league batting champion rapped out three hits for the winners including a single in the bottom of the seventh inning that chased Bruce Stickle home with the winning tally.

Mavety's batting heroics backed the five - hit pitching of Don Holoway as the big righthander sniffed five men and walked only three.

A walk, an error and single by Wayne Woods and Dwight Rathwell helped get the Holeimen off to a 2-0 lead with a 32-64 CASA minor softball win.

Robert Chase fired a one - hitter for Rollins and aided his own cause with two homers and three triples. Derek McDonald was the other key hitter slamming three circuit blasts.

Sonny-Day Just Fine

It was a black Day for Delton Stellick and things weren't exactly Sonny for Unemployment Insurance Commission in the Industrial Softball League last night.

Frank "Junior" Day came up with a one-hit performance as the league leading Union Carbide team hung a 9-0 loss on Delton, while Mead Johnson's Sonny Holoway struck another blow for the pitchers' union by silencing the UIC bats in a 2-0 no-hit victory.

Union Carbide tallied eight times in the first three innings to leave Day's no hit bid the only issue in doubt for the remainder of the contest.

The right-hand hurler, who played for CNR Combines last season, struck out one batter and missed a perfect game by issuing a single walk.

Gary Matier started for the losers, giving way to Bob Casselman in the third inning. Between them they allowed nine hits.

Garnet Bird crashed a home run for Union Carbide, with Bert Anderson picking up a triple and three-RBI's and Day a double for the winners. Holoway had a few more worries as Mead Johnson waited until the fourth inning to score their top runs for the win.

The former Commercial Softball League performer walked five men and struck out 14 during the course of his pitching gem. Pete Hamilton allowed five hits in taking the loss.

Hits were more plentiful in the CNR-Post Office battle as the trainmen banged out 16 safeties en route to a 12-5 victory.

Brian Plumbe went the distance for the winners firing an eight-hitter. He got same amount as losing hurler Dave Feeory.

Neil had a double and triple for AOCO, followed by Vincent with a pair of doubles. Harold Redquest's triple was tops for the Intell.

It Only Takes Two

Dairy Queen put on a two-man show as they edged Y's Mens Club 3-2 in one of the two Belleville Minor Lacrosse preseve matched staged Monday night.

John Nicholson with two goals and Jeff Runcimen with the remaining three took care of all the Dairy Queen scoring. For the Y it was Mike Thompson, Laurie Wilson, George Thompson and Dave McBride.

Randy Hutchinson counted a pair of goals to help pace the Police Association to a 5-2 win over the T-Birds.

Other goalgetters were Robb Ashley, Sarah Bashall and Wally Inwood.

Bobcats Claw Hawks

Kinsmen Bobcats won an inter-family Belleville Minor Softball Association feud as they halted the Kinsmen Hawks 11-8 last night.

Steve McDonald and Robbi Peters each had a homer for the victorious tyke squad, while Danny Rose and Mike McKinney added a triple and double respectively.

A pair of homers by Billy Hull helped A and W Drive In slip past Malcolmn Brothers 28-14.

In the other game played, John Murdzinich fanned ten batters and David Gee powered a home run as Gib Waite Trailer Sales downed Harbor Marine 7-4.

Brake Reline
$24.88
Disc brakes slightly extra. Most cars.

"When we reline your brakes, we do a lot more than reline your brakes!"

"Even if all of the lines replace your worn brake linings, the would be a great bargain. We use only the most quality bonded linings. They're guaranteed for 20,000 miles, assuming the rest of the braking system is in good condition. So you get good value for your money.

"But we go a bit further than that. Because at Riding System specialists, it's our responsibility to make sure that every car that leaves our service center is in safe operating condition.

"We start by 'arcing' your new linings on our precision grinder. This helps to ensure that they will make good contact with the drums for safe braking. We also inspect your brake drums to be sure they are true, to make contact over the full surface of the brake linings.

"Then we inspect your brake shoe return springs. There is one spring on each wheel. If the spring breaks in service, your car will pull to one side when you brake. It's important to know about their condition.

"The next step is to remove your inner and outer front wheel bearings. We clean them carefully, inspect them for wear. And then repack them with a top-quality grease. This could save you money.

"We examine your wheel cylinders and your master cylinder for leaks. If you've got problems, we'll let you know.

"Then we inspect your brake shoe linings. Because wheel bearings can be badly damaged if the original grease has caked and dried.

"We inspect your brake field lines for leaks and weak points. Your lines may look perfectly sound on the outside, but if there is a weak spot, the lines could burst with the surge of fluid in a panic stop.

"The final step is to add Super Hemaloy brake fluid. Then we take your car out on the road to make sure you'll have safe, sure stopping.

"As you can see, $24.88 goes a long way at Firestone. We install top quality linings in all four wheels. We repack and re-pack your front wheel bearings. And we check the total braking system for safe operation. And that's a great deal for your family's protection.

"This offer includes brake linings, brake fluid, grease, and services described in this advertisement. If other parts and services are required, you will be advised before hand at additional costs.

June Bug Bites Giants For 10th Time in Month

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Francisco's beleaguered Giants, still unable to shake the June bugs, lost for the 10th time in 13 games this month, bowing to Philadelphia Phillies 9-4.

Combined with Los Angeles Dodgers' 3-2 victory over New York Mets, it pared the Giants' lead in the National League West to five games.

It stood at 10½ on June 1.

Elsewhere, Houston Astros nipped Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4 Cincinnati Reds whipped st. Louis Cardinals 7-2, Chicago Cubs edged Atlanta Braves 3-2 and San Diego Padres shaded Montreal Expos 2-1.

The day started out badly for the Giants with the announcement that slugging Willie McCovey will have his ailing knees re-examined when the team returns home Thursday and may need an operation.

Then utilityman Frank Johnson was struck in the face by a ball during infield practice and was unconscious for at least 10 minutes. X-rays were negative but Johnson was said to be suffering from "ataxia to the right," which means he veers to the right when he walks.

The Phillies then gave Gaylord Perry a severe case of ataxia to the showers. Willie Montanez started it with a first-inning homer and the Phils scored six more runs in the second, their biggest outburst of the season.

Roger Freed singled in the tie-breaking run, pitcher Rick Wise hammered a three-run homer and Tim McCarver delivered a two-run shot.

The Dodgers used a solo homer by Willie Davis in the first inning and Bobby Valentine's two-run double in the third to beat the Mets and ace Tom Seaver.

It was the Dodgers' fourth consecutive victory and 12th in their last 17 games.

Houston climbed to within eight games of the Giants in the West, and prevented Pittsburgh from increasing its 2½-game bulge over the Mets in the East when Joe Morgan walked with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth inning, forcing in the winning run.

The Pirates had tied the score in the top of the ninth on Dave Cash's two-run single.

Lee May drove in four runs with a two-run homer and double as the Reds stretched St. Louis' losing streak to seven games. Hal McRae also stroked a two-run double for the winners.

Joe Pepitone's three-run homer off Phil Niekro with two out in the eighth inning lifted the Cubs past the Braves. Phil Regan, getting his first start since August 1967, pitched eight innings and picked up the win.

Clarence Gaston doubled home both San Diego runs with two out in the ninth inning to give the Padres their triumph over the Expos.

Taylor Hits Pitching In Strange Surroundings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tony Taylor, who helped Philadelphia Phillies win many games in 11 years with the National League club, now is sewing up victories with his new team, Detroit Tigers.

Taylor, traded last week, made an impressive American League debut Sunday with three hits in a winning effort and Monday night banged two more —including the game-winner— as the Tigers shaded Chicago White Sox 4-3 in 10 innings.

Minnesota Twins turned back Cleveland Indians 3-1, Kansas City Royals cut down New York Yankees 4-1 and Boston Red Sox tripped California Angels 5-4 in 15 innings in the league's other games Monday night. Milwaukee at Baltimore was postponed because of rain.

Taylor, admittedly jolted by the recent trade, is finding a home in Detroit.

"It was a shock being traded after 11 years in Philadelphia," said Taylor, "but I've been happy in the little time I've been here."

Taylor is getting briefed on how to handle certain American League pitchers.

Norm Cash filled Taylor in Monday night on Chicago's Steve Kealey, who happened to be pitching in the 10th.

"He told me what Kealey throws—fast ball and slider," said Taylor, who went up to the plate "just looking for any kind of strike pitch to hit."

He sliced a 1-0 pitch just inside the right field foul line for a dramatic two-out double, chasing home Al Kaline with the winning run.

Jim Perry fired a six-hitter and fanned 11 batters and Tony Oliva ripped a three-run homer in the first inning to pace the Minnesota success.

Streaking Kansas City hit five singles and scored four runs before anyone was out in the sixth and went on to bounce New York for its sixth straight victory and 12th in 13 games.

Paul Schaal and Amos Otis singled before Chuck Harrison's single scored Schaal with the tying run. Lou Piniella beat out a bunt, loading the bases. Otis scored on a wild pitch with Harrison charging to third and Piniella to second. Bob Oliver then produced the final run of the outburst with a single.

The victory left the Royals only 4½ games behind Oakland in the American League West.

Doug Griffin's single in the last of the 15th inning sent home pinch-runner Luis Aparicio with the winning run for Boston.

Bonuses Cost Indians Fine

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn fined Cleveland Indians $5,000 Monday and invalidated "performance bonus understandings" between the American League club and four of its players.

Kuhn said his investigation showed that arrangements called for the Indians to pay varying amounts to first baseman Ken Harrelson, pitcher Sam McDowell, third baseman Graig Nettles and outfielder Vada Pinson, based on "specified levels of performance."

The club was fined "for its part in the arrangements" which, Kuhn said, "violated longstanding prohibitions in major league roles against bonuses for playing, pitching and batting skill."

Kuhn said the players were not fined because he felt that taking away their potential bonuses was enough.

MONTREAL (CP) — Jim Fanning, general manager of Montreal Expos, announced Monday that the National League baseball club will hold 32 tryout camps across Canada and three U.S. states, between June 19 and Aug. 7.

Following is a list of the sites of the camps in Ontario: July 3-Windsor; July 4-London; July 7-Kitchener; July 8-Oakville; July 9-Oshawa; July 10-Toronto; July 12-Kingston; July 13-Ottawa.

KEN HARRELSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Catcher Ray Fosse of Cleveland Indians closed ground on Detroit Tigers' Bill Freehan and write-in votes moved Kansas City Royals' Cookie Rojas up a notch in the second base contest during the second week of American League All-Star balloting, announced Monday by commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Yastrzemski continues to lead all vote-getters with 156,279 of the 275,000 ballots cast. Brooks Robinson is second with 110,286.

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets announced Monday the signing of Larry Berra Jr., son of first base coach Yogi Berra.

The younger Berra was signed as a free agent. He was not selected in last week's draft of free agent prospects.

The Mets had selected and signed Gil Hodges Jr., son of their manager, in that draft.

ON SALE FOR FATHER'S DAY

Our own superb Profile brand short sleeve shirts

Choose from five fresh summer shades in light frosted pastel plains, rich deep pastel plains, Cluster Stripes, or Wide Track Stripes.

$3.59 EACH (REGULAR $6)

3 FOR $9.99

The price: — feature for feature these beauties beat any other $6 shirt we know of. So at our special sale price they represent a terrific chance to fatten Father's wardrobe for summer.

The colours and patterns:—five soft summer shades are available — red, grey, gold, blue and purple. And there are four choices within each shade grouping — a frosted pastel plain, a rich deep plain, Cluster stripes, or Wide Track stripes. That lets you choose the shirts that will coordinate with any suit or sports jacket.

The fabric: — It's a soft textured Chambray weave of 65% polyester and 35% polynostic. In plain language that means super coolness and Permanent Press. And they're Sanforized, of course, so the size you buy, stays the size you buy.

Features: — foremost is the semi-long point collar, which is best for wide ties. There's a chest pocket to put things in, a cuff on the sleeves and colour coordinate buttons.

Ties to match: — we've got 'em to go with each colour shade. Our salesmen will be happy to help you make the right choice.

Sizes: — every colour and pattern is available from 14½ through 17½.

Buy 'em by the boxful: — at $9.99 per box of three you can solve all Father's summer shirt problems in one visit. He'll like the shirts, you'll like the Permanent Press feature. You wash tonight, he wears tomorrow.

Alleged Discrimination by Hospital Boards to Be Probed

TORONTO (CP) — An inquiry into the granting of hospital privileges to doctors in Ontario likely will be announced this week or next, Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence said Monday.

He made the announcement in the Ontario legislature in answer to a question by Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) and assured Mr. Deans a report of the study will be made public.

At present, hospital boards have the final say as to which doctors may practise out of a hospital.

Mr. Lawrence told reporters several doctors have complained boards which refused them privileges were motivated by racial or religious discrimination.

While doctors may appeal to the health minister, the Ontario Health Services Commission, the College of Physicians and Surgeons or the Ontario Medical Association, "the ultimate authority is the board itself," he said.

Boards have been autonomous for hundreds of years, but with state-supported hospital insurance, the public is paying the bills, he added.

Mr. Lawrence said an inquiry might also look at the rules of teaching hospitals and non-teaching hospitals to see whether there should be more teaching hospitals or different categories of hospitals.

In other business:

—Clint Pilley (NDP—Oshawa) said compulsory arbitration legislation dealing with hospital and nursing home workers must undergo a thorough review;

—Morton Shulman (NDP—High Park) said American Airlines Inc., which demands a $400 deposit before issuing credit cards, pays interest on the deposit to United States citizens but not to Canadians;

—Dante DeMonte (L—Dovercourt) said union grievances should be negotiated during the length of an agreement rather than during contract talks;

—Agriculture Minister William Stewart indicated to the legislature that he will press for interprovincial agreement on marketing broiler chickens;

—A company which advertises itself as a "strike security force" is currently under investigation, Labor Minister Gordon Carton said;

—Mr. DeMonte said plant closures should be investigated by Ontario's industrial inquiry commission;

—Mr. Pilley said the provincial government should intervene in labor disputes where it is obvious one of the parties is not bargaining in good faith.

New Act Bars Sale of Control of Periodical Distributors to Foreigners

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has acted with speed to prevent foreigners from gaining control of paperback and periodical distribution in the province.

The Paperback and Periodical Distributors Act, introduced in the legislature Monday, states that companies in this field now are forbidden to sell more than 25 per cent control to non-Canadians.

Arthur Wishart, minister of financial and commercial affairs, said the bill was drafted after the province's royal commission on book publishing reported Thursday that one or more non-Canadian individuals or corporations are trying to gain monopoly control of regional news companies, the main source of supply to retailers.

Commissioners Richard Rohmer, Dalton Camp and Marsh Jeanneret said in their report, dated last Tuesday and released on Monday:

"Specifically, we have evidence that a concerted effort is under way on the part of one or more non-Canadian individuals or corporations engaged in the wholesaling and distribution of periodicals and mass-market paperback books to gain control of the principal distributors or wholesalers of similar merchandise in Ontario and possibly elsewhere in Canada."

The bill, which requires three readings and royal assent before becoming law, would be retroactive to Monday, June 14.

Mr. Wishart said the 19 distributors in business as of Sunday, June 13, will be permitted to continue operating under their present ownership structure, but they may not permit Canadian control to slip below 75 per cent.

Those distributors with an ownership ratio lower than 75 per cent Canadian now will not be allowed to reduce it further.

Outside the legislature, Mr. Wishart refused to identify either the foreign or Canadian companies involved in takeover bids, but said the non-Canadian ones were American.

Commission Chairman Richard Rohmer cited recent purchases by the Pierce News Co. of St. Louis, Mo., to back up the commission contention, and added that U.S. control extends to seven out of 19 Ontario distributors with two or more about to be added.

He said the Pierce News Co. some years ago bought a 50-per-cent interest in Metro Toronto News Co., biggest in the city, and the other 50 per cent is held by the Rottman group of Bridgeport, Conn.

Upper Canada News Ltd., which had served the Peterborough, Oshawa, Picton, Napanee area, last week announced its sale to Metro News of Toronto. Thirty-three employees of Upper Canada News lost their jobs as a result of the sale.

"This one is plenty big enough for us. I'LL be staying at the Royal Lakeside Motel!"

Commons Approves Insurance Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — The House of Commons gave final approval Monday to Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey's plans for unemployment insurance.

Less than a year ago Mr. Mackasey introduced white paper proposals for the most extensive reform of unemployment insurance since its inception in 1941.

Now, barring a last-minute delay in the Senate, the reforms appear likely to start working by July 1, as forecast.

The first to benefit will be those already eligible for insurance. Any who become unemployed after July 1 will be eligible for up to $66 a week rather than the present maximum of $58. After Sept. 1, the maximum will reach $100.

Extended benefits of up to 15 weeks will be available for workers off the job as a result of sickness or pregnancy if they have made insurance contributions for at least 20 weeks. Any who have become unemployed since May 31 and have at least eight weeks work to their credit will also qualify for benefits.

At the same time next year coverage will be extended to an additional 1.2-million workers, including teachers, hospital workers and other employees now excluded because they earn more than $7,800 a year.

Of particular significance, however, is that at the current rate of unemployment, the legislation would require that the federal government more than double its contributions to the unemployment insurance account.

The government now pays $176 million into the fund each year—15 per cent of total contributions—with employers and employees paying the rest in equal shares.

The new legislation would require the government to pick up the cost of insurance benefits for all unemployment above a national rate of four per cent. The government share would drop drastically below that rate, but at the current level of 6.5-per-cent unemployment the cost to the federal treasury would be $369 million.

In the brief final debate on the bill Monday, Mr. Mackasey argued that the revised formula will act as an incentive to government to reduce unemployment.

The comment was made in opposition to a New Democrat motion, later defeated, to refer the bill back to the Commons labor committee for an amendment requiring the government to contribute no matter what the level of unemployment.

Earlier, the NDP had joined with the government and the Social Credit party to defeat a Conservative amendment to increase to 12 weeks from eight the minimum period of work required before a person would be eligible for any benefits.

Budget Likely To Cut Taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — The latest speculation for Friday's federal budget suggests tax cuts and more spending by the government.

That forecast is based on a remark Monday by Finance Minister E. J. Benson to the effect that the government's prime task is to get productive activity rolling again and reduce unemployment—a shift in emphasis from what he has been saying.

Reporters badgered Mr. Benson Monday for comment about the latest increase in the consumer price index—by two-fifths of one per cent in May for an increase of 2.2 per cent since the beginning of the year.

"It doesn't seriously worry me," he replied. And, no, he did not see price inflation as a serious threat to the economy.

Government spokesmen had been saying through this spring that inflation did constitute a serious danger. Therefore, the government would have to be cautious about expanding the economy.

But Mr. Benson said Monday: "The main job now is to continue the expansion of the economy and get the economy moving at a full rate of expansion—near capacity—and of course this will have the effect of cutting down the number of unemployed in the country."

That would imply generating more demand for goods and services to stimulate production and employment. The way to generate more demand is for the government to spend more and to leave more spending money—taking less tax—in the hands of people.

Mr. Benson's emphasis on the need for expansion contrasts with what he was saying just three weeks ago.

Measures taken in the Dec. 3 budget and earlier "will make themselves felt with growing force in the months ahead," he told the Commons May 18.

"It would be the height of folly to leap to the conclusion that the economy . . . requires a major operation on the basis of one month's change," he added then, in reference to an increase in the jobless rate in April.

Two days later, he said the government "will have to change our position" if other signs were to show that the economy was not recovering.

Now he is stressing the need to get the economy going at a full rate of expansion.

That might mean he knows or expects the May jobless figures, due for publication Thursday by Dominion Bureau of Statistics, to confirm the slackness revealed by the April tally. It then showed an increase by 9,000 to 670,000 unemployed.

Among other indicators seen by Mr. Benson in recent days, industrial production declined in April for the second month running, the gross national product was almost stagnant in the first three months of the year, and sales by manufacturers picked up only narrowly in April.

Secret Radar Device Said Revealed to Reds

LEEDS, England (Reuter) — A former RAF sergeant was accused in court here Monday of giving Czechoslovakia details of a secret radar device designed for the military jets which carry Britain's H-bombs.

The accusations were made by Attorney-General Sir Peter Rawlinson on the first day of the trial of Vienna-born Nicholas Prager, who is accused of violating the Official Secrets Act.

Shaw Festival Opens to Skirl of Bagpipes

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont. (CP) — The Shaw Festival officially celebrated its 10th anniversary Monday night to the skirl of bagpipes, the flow of champagne and the general merriment of a capacity first-night audience.

The bagpipes and champagne were a prelude to the main feature of the night, and the main source of merriment—the opening of the season's first production, George Bernard Shaw's The Philanderer.

The festival, only one in the world devoted to presenting the works of the 20th-century Irish playwright, began in this small scenic community 10 miles north of Niagara Falls in 1962 with an eight-performance season of two productions. This year the festival will present a record 98 performances of four major productions, plus a Shaw Seminar and three musical concerts over a record 12-week period.

As local residents gathered on the sidewalks and the grassy median in front of the Court House Theatre, the Welland City Police Band piped in the first nighters, among them Ontario Education Minister Robert Welch and Judy LaMarsh, the former federal cabinet minister who will be a participant in this year's Shaw Seminar debate on women's liberation.

Champagne was the liquor of the night during the single intermission with patrons paying a dollar a glass to partake of the bubbly while they greeted acquaintances, took in the fashion scene or discussed the performances they had just seen.

The play, one of Shaw's earliest and unique in its autobiographical content, seemed to delight most of the audience of close to 600 persons who kept up a steady undercurrent of chuckles and laughter, sprinkled with applause, throughout the entire performance.

The company, led by Paxton Whitehead, the festival's artistic director, and Montreal actress Louise Marleau, responded to the audience's enthusiasm by never letting the pace flag and playing every scene for its full amount of humor.

Tony van Bridge's direction, Maurice Strike's set, Tina Lipp's costumes and Donald Acaster's lighting complemented the acting all the way.

Alhambra Trio Allows One Hit

Ken Revoy, Dale McTaggart and Mark Crawford were grooving for Alhambra 109 tykes last night as the trio of Belleville Minor Baseball pitchers paced their team to a 24-4 win over Hopkins Auto Wreckers.

The threesome found the pitching groove for a one-hitter allowing only a single to Ron Lasby. McTaggart led the hitters with three doubles and two singles, while Crawford had a triple, double and two base knocks.

In another tyke bout, Mulroney's outlasted Deserondo 28-21 getting three singles and a triple from Greg McEachern and a double and two singles from Paul Marineau.

Plane's Concrete tadpoles settled for a 16-7 win over Cablevue as Tony Parks and Brian Crockright combined for a six - hitter. Parks and Haine Waddell had a homer and two singles for the winners, while Doug Austin, Louis Crawford and Dan Coughlan each counted a homer among their two hits.

Brian Masterson and Randy Adams supplied three - hit pitching to pace Thurlow Forter peewees to a 15-3 win over Canadian Legion 99. Masterson had a double and two singles for Fosters, while Bill Whalen collected a double and single for the Legion.

Deserondo refused to make it ladies night for the Trenton Rotary Pioneers girls bantam team rapping out a 35-9 win.

Heffernan had a homer and five singles for Deserondo, while Banks collected three singles for the Pioneers.

In midget action Tyendinaga stopped Trenton 8-2. Badgely paced the winners' attack with a double and single.

In a weekend doubleheader, Kingston bantams stopped Belleville Legion 99 by counts of 6-1 and 10-5. Brian Turner was the top Belleville batsmen with a homer and two singles in one game and a double and single in the second.

Reserve Bid Finally Accepted

The Reserve had to wait a long time for a win, but they managed it in dramatic style when it did come along.

The South Hastings League cellar dwellers, who had won only one game in two years recorded their first victory of the current season by downing Latta 4-2 last night.

The winners trailed 2 1 going into the final inning, despite a fine pitching performance by George Hill, but managed to score three times and then hold Latta for the victory.

Hill fired four - hit ball to gain the decision over Bob Smith, who yielded seven safeties. The winning hurler whiffed nine batters and walked a pair.

Bud O'Connor had a double and single for the Reserve with B. Hill picking up a pair of doubles. McMechan doubled for Latta with singles going to Duane Horton, Scott McLaren and Smith.

A last inning homer by Wayne Sager ruined Ted Abrams' shutout bid. The right-hander allowed only four hits and fanned 17 to get the victory.

Larry Adams had a homer and two singles for Plane's with Bob Luffman picking up three safeties.

Hat Tricks Help Convince Picton

Belleville made Picton's first Quinte Junior Lacrosse League loss a convincing one hanging a 7-2 defeat on the visitors at the Belleville Memorial Arena last night.

Hat - trick performances by Joe Clarke and Danny Payne led the way for the winners with Greg Scarlett picking up the other goal. For Picton it was P. Bond and D. Bond getting the goals.

Clarke, Payne, goalie Paul Muldoon and defenceman Joe Weymark were the standouts for the winners, who drew only six penalties as opposed to 14 for Picton.

In an exhibition juvenile bout preceding the game, Belleville and Campbellford battled to a 3-3 tie.

Gerald Grier counted twice for Belleville with a single going to Robert Cook. For the visitors it was Tom Humphrey, Bob Jacks and Brian Condon looking after the scoring.

Johnson Stuck Up?

ANAHEIM (AP) — California Angels outfielder Alex Johnson was quoted Monday by the team's general manager, Dick Walsh as saying team-mate Chico Ruiz aimed a handgun at him in the clubhouse.

Walsh added that Ruiz called the account "preposterous."

Walsh called a news conference Monday after the San Gabriel Valley Tribune reported the alleged incidents.

Walsh said he spoke with both players before Monday night's game with Boston Red Sox. Both were in uniform for the game, but neither was in the starting lineup.

During the game, Johnson sat on the Angels' bench and Ruiz, a utility infielder, sat in the bullpen.

Johnson, Walsh said, told him that during the middle innings of Sunday's game with Washington, after both he and Ruiz had appeared as pinch-hitters, "Ruiz produced a handgun and aimed it in his direction while both were sitting in front of their respective lockers."

"Johnson said no verbal threat was made," Walsh said. "He also said Ruiz then put the weapon in the back pocket of his uniform and then back in the dugout."

The general manager quoted Ruiz as telling him: "It did not take place. If you think it happened, produce a witness."

View Best From Mountain

Gary Eardley cracked a two - run homer in the sixth inning to help Mountain View edge Foley's 3-2 in their North Shore Softball League bout Monday night.

Eardley, Carm Selman, Fred O'Brien and Eddie Callow had two hits each for the winners. For Foley's it was Bob Smith with three safeties and Fred Vreuavenhil, Ev Doxtator and Pete Boisvert with two each.

In the other battle, Rick Goulah threw a six - hitter as Rossmore downed Belleville 17-7.

Goulah, Brian Reddick and Pete Ladocceur had two hits each for the winners, while Jim Lawlor, Dave Huiser and Lyle Shave replied for Belleville.

Four From One

TORONTO (CP) — Marjan Bradvic scored four goals as Toronto Croatia defeated Serbian White Eagles 7-5 Monday night to move into the second round of cup play in the National Soccer League.

Bradvic's first two goals and singles by Aluka Solak and Julius Erpeleta in one-first, half gave Croatia a 4-0 lead. Dennis Tryovcic added a single to Bradvic's other pair for the final total as White Eagles dropped out of cup play.

The next game in cup play is scheduled for June 21 when Hamilton Croatia visit Toronto Ukraina.

Judges Told to Keep in Pace With Social, Cultural Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — Federally-appointed judges were urged to keep up with the times Monday as MPs gave consideration to increasing judicial salaries.

The Commons later gave second-reading approval to a bill that would give judges named by the federal government pay increases across the board.

Under the legislation, which now goes to committee for detailed study, the salaries of district and county court judges at the lower end of the scale would be increased to $35,000 a year from $19,000. At the other end, the chief justice of Canada would get $47,000 annually, up from $40,000.

Albert Béchard (L—Bonaventure), parliamentary secretary to Justice Minister John Turner, began debate by saying law reform is not the sole preserve of legislators.

The courts, he said, must strive to link the jurisprudence of the past with current and future Canadian cultural norms and social context.

Mr. Bechard warned that if the courts are unable or unwilling to heed the words of "those who would advance our legal traditions . . . then we have only weak arguments to answer those who find themselves in the streets advocating change by violence."

Change was at the very essence of Canada's legal heritage.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) agreed but such change was needed.

There was still an overwhelming bias on the part of judges to consider property more important than people.

There were too many delays in the judicial process—one of the prime reasons for the revolutionary action finally taken by the Front de Libération du Québec, he said. Even a number of its members had been held without trial for a long period.

"I think that probably had political connotations," he said.

Mr. Peters also complained that the proposed salary scale would make judges remote from many contemporary problems.

A judge making $50,000 a year fits in with the business community, the country club style of life and "the phoney society that exists at that level," he said.

The bill would give an extra $3,000 over and above salary to federally-appointed judges. For duties considered outside the normal judicial routine.

It would also create a Canadian judicial council to promote uniform standards in the judiciary and to investigate complaints against judges and make subsequent recommendations to Parliament.

The council would be composed of the chief justices of superior courts across Canada.

The council won general approval from spokesmen for all parties.

Elden Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) said he is wary of a provision that would cut off judges' salaries if fault were found by the council, even before the final assessment had been made by Parliament.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) approved a section of the bill that would allow superior court judges to retire at the age of 70 and serve until 75 as supernumerary judges, to be kept on hand to deal with special cases and to help out when the judicial workload becomes heavy.

He said it would take pressure off the provinces who continually seek federal approval to create additional judges to deal with clogged criminal lists.

The bill would also create 12 more judgeships, bringing the total to 441.

Both Mr. Lambert and John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) commended the government for getting away from appointing judges on a political basis.

Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) said the proposed increases showed the tender concern Parliament had for persons in the higher-income brackets, compared with its minimal concern for poorer people.

Asbestos Workers Reject $7.10 an Hour

TORONTO (CP) — About 750 asbestos workers employed on construction jobs across the province went on strike Monday after rejecting a two-year contract calling for $7.10 an hour.

The workers, members of Local 95 of the International Association of Heat and Frost Insulators and Asbestos Workers, voted 285 to 281 last weekend in favor of a strike.

The workers are employed by more than 40 firms belonging to the Master Insulators of Ontario.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: It all began about six months ago as bursitis in my right shoulder. Now I can't move it at all. The doctor says I have a frozen shoulder.

I guess my trouble was that I put off treatment. All I used for a few months was hot packs and a lot of aspirin to try to control the pain.

Moving the shoulder hurt, so I tried to move it as little as possible. But the less I moved it the more difficult it was to move without pain.

Not until about a month ago after I had been losing sleep night after night and suffering pain all day long, did I go to a doctor. He has given me exercises to try to loosen my shoulder. Also something for the pain. But it's certainly a slow process. Where did I go wrong? — Mrs. J.

* * *

COMMENT: You put your finger on it when you said, "I guess my trouble was that I put off treatment". It's likely that if you had medical advice early, your shoulder joint would not be "frozen" now. It if all right to use home remedies for a week or two in hope that a bursitis condition will clear up. But anything beyond that time is likely to cause undue suffering and complications like a frozen (stiff) shoulder.

In the early stages, the doctor has a choice of remedies: massage, exercises to prevent shoulder stiffness, deep therapy, X-ray treatment, injections of cortisone derivatives like the famed "shots". Whichever he chooses is use, it's important to see him regularly so that he can prevent "frozen joint" due to paincausing immobility.

What now in your case? it's important to continue the exercises, even though they may be painful. In stubborn cases, the joint may require manipulation under anesthesia before it can be made to function normally again.

Your own sad experience with bursitis emphasizes the truth that patients with bursitis should "keep moving" rather than try to lessen pain by splinting the joint and inviting a "freeze". Bursitis treated early and efficiently usually does not produce complications that last for months.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Our 12-year-old daughter is extremely nearsighted. She is self-conscious about her thick lenses. Is there any way to slow nearsightedness by special exercises or special glasses? She has rapidly grown, worse. — Mrs. D.

COMMENT: I doubt that exercises will help. Neither will special glasses "slow it up". I suggest that she go to her eye specialist regularly. He will make the necessary changes in her glasses as she grows. And it's likely he may suggest that she wear contact lenses — which will not only take care of her slight problem, but also eliminate her self-consciousness.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have severe arthritis of the spine. One doctor says "don't drink milk. it's only for babies and worse". Another says "drink as much as you want". It happens I like milk. It also seems to help my leg cramps at night. What would you advise? — Mr. L.

COMMENT: I suggest you have to take one side or the other. I don't believe that milk will worsen arthritis. Therefore, I cast my vote with the doctor who says drink as much milk as you like.

Bursitis Patients Must Keep Moving

Sydney J. Harris Says

GM Device Tests Sobriety

What a depressing testimony to man's immaturity. I am talking about the "Phys-Tester," demonstrated to newsmen in Chicago not long ago by the president of General Motors.

This electronic box, devised to be installed on the dashboards of all GM cars in the passable future, has to be made to deter drunken drivers and other incompetents from starting their cars unless they can remember their private code and perform a "proficiency test" on the instrument.

This drastic measure is being innovated because statistics show that liquor is involved in more than half of all the 55,000 fatal car accidents in the U.S. each year. And no campaign thus far has been successful in persuading people not to take the wheel when under the influence of liquor.

There is absolutely nothing to be said in defence of drunken driving, or even mildly intoxicated driving. A car is a ton-ton weapon even in sober hands; when the reflexes have been slowed and the vision impaired by booze, driving a car is like carrying a loaded rifle down a crowded street.

Every child knows this. But too many adults do not. Too many drive cars — both drunk and sober — precisely as if they were weapons. Every hate, every frustration, every twinge of inferiority or self-pity is projected into other motorists and pedestrians. Sheer aggression has become the rule of the road.

Now we obviously require a piece of electronic machinery to control and restrain us. Nothing else seems to work. Pleas and warnings go unheeded; fines are not a deterrent; and judges are reluctant to impose jail sentences (even when fatalities are incurred) because the Great American Voter looks upon his automobile as an inviolable right to the pursuit of homicide.

Ironically, the same respectable citizens who so stridently demand "tougher penalties" for car-thieves, muggers and other violators of the law, are strangely silent on the subject of "breaking down" on driving offences—even though motorists injure and kill a thousand times more innocent victims than all criminal elements put together.

The new "Phys-Tester" is an ugly symbol of our moral and judicial bankruptcy — and of our social impotency as well. Criminals are not deterred by harsher penalties (that is their way of life), but ordinary citizens are. It is our reluctance to police ourselves that gives criminals the cynical courage to pierce our thin facade of "decency."

Your birthday today: Your social and political talents rise, a bit at a time, and bring you into more local leadership. Consolidate your position and build reserves for a promising future. That's what you do this year has no particular examples or textbooks to follow; you must figure it out from your own native endowment. Today's natives have latent literary skills, can tell or write a good yarn, given reason for doing so.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Do the best you can with today's crosscurrents. Expect no miracles from yourself or anybody else.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Leave emotional bias, personal preferences out when trying to understand what people do and why. If you can ride out the subtle energies of a restless day, turn them into creative channels.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Disagreements, criticisms are not the constructive approach to this exceptional lay. Accept nothing that seems out of line way, simply rise above trifles and petty nuisances.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Most of your friends show glimpses of their grand Position — no two alike. There's little point in trying to get them back to your view of reality at the moment.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Finding work comes before something new and exciting — otherwise you might miss some relevant or background information.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Associates open doors for you cordially. If you see opportunity take it in stride at once. More is ahead if you fail to notice present deals in time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): There is temptation for overexpansion, spreading too thin over too wide a range of activities. Make a list of firm priorities and follow them implicitly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Idealistic contacts include interlopers, people who have unusual personal skills and resources. Seek out all with any history of knowledge expressed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You either revise your thinking and schemes or let people or obstacles force changes later. Think through matters in sequence, one step at a time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Put what you have worked out into use while you project your plans. Seek help for private concerns.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): For a while some areas of your life have slept, unused and fallow. Today you may fill some long empty needs.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Bring loved ones forward with you as subtle recognition comes. Keep up the usual run of amenities in conversation while you attend chores.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the inflamed, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinkage) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is now in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Trenton Citizens Get 'Bitter Pill', 16.9 Mill Boost in Taxes

By KEN SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON (Staff) — The 1971 budget for the Town of Trenton is "a bitter pill to swallow . . . and will create problems for many people," according to Mayor Duncan McDonald.

Released yesterday afternoon, the budget of $3,174,311, — up $422,221 over a year ago — will necessitate an increase of 16.962 mills in the residential rate for public school supporters.

The public residential rate of 131.803 mills is exceeded by the public commercial rate, which came in at 143.998 mills up 17.106 mills.

The tax bite on separate school ratepayers is considerably less severe, with the separate school commercial rate set at 130.265 mills, an increase of 8.356 mills, and the residential rate 124.532 mills, up 8.902 mills.

A homeowner taxed by the public school rate whose dwelling is assessed at $3,000 (about the Trenton average) will pay $51 extra this year, with one paying the separate school rate being charged $37 above 1970.

Education costs are responsible for the big variations in the tax burden this year between supporters of the two systems. In the past, separate school backers have paid at higher rates than public supporters but this changes abruptly in 1971.

Expense to Trenton for participating in the Hastings County Board of Education has climbed this year by $146,578 to $389,194. The town also faces compensating the board for a $54,000 education underlevy from 1969 and a further debt of $10,000.

Taxpayers will pay out $37,000 this year and next to make up for not being charged enough in 1969. The additional $19,000 which must be paid in two installments to the board, one now and one in 1972 — consists of interest payments on an old debt of Trenton School Board assumed by the county board.

All taxpayers share the burden of paying the shot for a 1970 municipal operating deficit of $104,978. In 1970 there had been a $5,670 budgetary surplus.

Not only is the town in the red with the Hastings County Board of Education but also in the operation during 1970

Davis Wants Security Issue Left to Later

VICTORIA (CP) — The "new boy" in the political club which has only 11 members showed Tuesday he can play the constitutional game with the best of them.

Premier William Davis of Ontario played it so well as the meeting of federal and provincial first ministers, that he began pitching an entirely new game designed to put Ottawa on the defensive.

Like all English-language premiers, Mr. Davis is not interested in formal constitutional changes as to how to get more revenue out of Ottawa.

For one thing, he wants to institute a provincial guaranteed annual income system.

Mr. Davis came here determined that modest constitutional changes and a constitution-amending formula, planned since February, should not be mixed up with the larger issue of redistribution of legislative and fiscal powers between Ottawa and the provinces.

Ontario would confine its participation to the former, he said Monday.

The most fundamental issue, he said, is the best and most effective matching of revenues and responsibilities.

A good place to start discussions on this issue, he said, would be the federal-provincial meeting of finance ministers next month to study the economic situation and new federal proposals on reforming the income tax system, to be made public Friday.

On Tuesday, he came back to the same point.

Quebec has some good and proper reasons, he said, to seek more constitutional powers in the social security field.

But this should be left for the next constitutional conference when distribution of powers generally, tax reform and tax sharing should be discussed.

These are all things on which the provinces presumably can agree among themselves. The expression "tax sharing" in this case is a euphemism for how-to - kick - Ottawa - for - more-dough.

'Phasing Out' Will Take Year

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The Canada department of agriculture entomological research institute here is being phased out immediately.

Transfer of all personnel will be complete by September, 1972, and the property, buildings, field station on the 7th concession of Sidney township and some equipment will be turned over to Crown Assets Disposal Corporation for sale.

The news of the closure was released this morning to Institute personnel by Dr. Peter Harris, acting director of the Institute.

About 66 employees will be transferred to other federal government facilities, in Winnipeg, Ottawa, Harrow, Ont. and Saskatoon. The Research Institute has an annual payroll of between $800,000 and $1,000,000.

Decision to close the Belleville laboratory was made by the executives of the Research Branch of the Canada department of agriculture, Dr. Harris said this morning.

The reasons were partly financial and partly because of a new direction in scientific research, he said.

"The department of agriculture is being squeezed, money is short and it would cost a great deal to up-grade the quarantine building here," he said. "It needs to be replaced."

However, the main reason for the closure, Dr. Harris said, was the decision to begin an "integrated control" program on cereal crops in the West, from seed to mill, in an attempt to save money on wheat production. Sixteen Belleville research scientists will be transferred to Winnipeg to work on the wheat project, with the ultimate goal of cutting down on the amount of chemicals now

Court Halts Publication Of Vietnam War Study

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York Times, complying with a court order, halted publication today of material from a secret Pentagon study of the Vietnam war.

But The Times in an editorial assailed U.S. Attorney-General John Mitchell for "an unprecedented example of censorship" after Mitchell and the justice department he heads won a temporary injunction in federal court stopping publication of the Pentagon series after it ran for three days.

The Times said it would "fight what we believe to be an unconstitutional prior restraint imposed by the attorney-general."

Under the court order issued Tuesday by Federal Judge Murray Gurfein, The Times is forbidden to publish any further material from the secret documents detailing U.S. involvement in Vietnam at least until the judge rules on the government's request for a permanent injunction.

Arguments on the government's motion are scheduled for Friday in U.S. district court here.

In Washington, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield promised that the secret Vietnam report will be disclosed publicly through congressional hearings, even if newspaper publication of the document is blocked permanently by the courts.

Mayors Want Welfare With Work Incentives

SASKATOON (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities will be asked to push for incentive-earning programs in provinces which don't have them, Ald. Elizabeth Kiskon of Windsor, Ont., said Tuesday.

"With a good incentive program we feel we could get a lot of people off welfare and back working," she said in an interview at the federation's annual meeting. She was chairman of a group discussing social security.

Most welfare systems deduct from social allowance cheques money earned by recipients, she said. This ruined incentive to work and left people wholly dependent on welfare.

In an incentive program, a person with a part-time job still would receive the usual welfare cheque. The part time work provides incentive to work and could lead to a permanent job, Mrs. Kiskon said.

Provinces such as Ontario and Saskatchewan, which have some type of incentive earning scheme, should be asked to expand them.

They Find How Smoking Kills

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Two biochemists reported they have discovered the specific chemical reaction by which a common cancer-causing agent —one found in cigarette smoke and other vapors—attacks living cells.

They say it is a step toward understanding how cancer begins.

The next step in the three-year-old research "will be an attempt to learn precisely what part of the cell's genetic structure is attacked," said Dr. Melvin Calvin, a 1961 Nobel Prize laureate.

Calvin has been awarded $250,000 by the National Cancer Institute to pursue his experimentation.

Trudeau's Experiment Offers First Fruits

OTTAWA (CP) — The first fruit of the Trudeau government's major experiment in participatory democracy will be harvested Friday in the form of legislation to change the income tax system.

It will be moderately sweet for those on subsistence incomes, somewhat bitter for those in the middle range and probably tastier than first imagined for corporations and capitalists.

Whether the entire experiment will prove as sour as it has seemed during the last 19 months probably will be decided by the taste of future historians.

When the government published the tax white paper Nov. 7, 1969, and invited public discussion of the proposals, the idea was to stimulate a snappy, for-and-against debate.

Only a tiny minority took part. That minority consisted almost entirely of businessmen.

The upshot was virtually no debate.

Against the one-way hostility, Finance Minister E. J. Benson was left by his cabinet colleagues to carry the defence alone against the hostility of the business community.

Friday he presents his budget and his recommendations for the nation's revised taxation structure.

Intelligencer Your Guide To Knowing Belleville

What makes a city tick?

Countless thousands have asked that question over the years and every city, town, village and hamlet has been analyzed and scrutinized by all manner of individuals from casual visitors to case - hardened professional probers.

Some communities come off as cool, others vibrant. Some are cautious, others embrace a full speed ahead, damn the torpedoes' approach. Some can be abrasive and aggressive, others comforting and conservative.

No matter how outsiders may categorize your city, throughout it generally runs a common thread of pride in accomplishment. Not all accomplishment can be measured in the number of miles of paved streets or the number of new industries to locate within your boundaries.

Interwoven in the structure of a community must be a quiet satisfaction with the pace of life, a recognition that the quality of your life is enhanced by the benefits of parks and green spaces, leisure time activities and planned and recognized programs aimed at improving your enjoyment. And helping to support it are those individuals from all walks of life—the storekeepers, the business community, the professionals, the ordinary citizens — whose involvement makes your community tick.

So that is what Belleville is all about.

Get acquainted with it today.

Research Lab Closing

applied to wheat fields to boost the yield.

"There is a threat to the environment from the application of herbicides and insecticides to large acreages of cereal crops," said Dr. Harris.

But from Toronto, Dr. Donald Chant of Pollution Probe, a former research scientist at the Institute here, said he was not impressed by the decision to close the Belleville Laboratory.

"There should be a greater tie-up with the Belleville Institute and other similar facilities, rather than a breaking up of the existing lab and the sending of its components parts across the country."

He suggested that more integrated control work could be done on vegetable and fruit crops than on wheat.

"The Belleville lab was a pioneer in the field of biological control of insect pests, but it hasn't had backing throughout Canada from people in the regional labs who should have been making use of Belleville's discoveries," said Dr. Chant. "The Belleville lab has given us quite a body of knowledge, but it would have been more useful with proper encouragement. But now that opportunity has gone.

Dr. Chant added that he would be surprised if there were quarantine facilities equal to Belleville at any other government institute in Canada.

The Research Institute is believed to have been the first in the world built for study of biological control of insects. It opened here in 1929 and a new building was put up in 1955. In addition to the main building and the quarantine laboratories, the facilities include greenhouse and several auxiliary buildings on the property on the corner of Bleecker Ave. and Dundas St. East, and a 55-acre field station.

Its scientists have established international reputations in ecology, histology and insect nutrition among other things, and at present at least 16 research scientists are working on projects directly involved with environmental control.

Staff consists of 28 research officers, 36 technicians, seven stationary engineers, seven administrative staff three maintenance men, a librarian and 26 students employed for the summer.

In addition to the 16 scientists going to Winnipeg, one will go to Saskatoon and one to Harrow and four, including quarantine personnel to Ottawa.

The quarantine section handles insects imported into Canada for research and for eventual release to control harmful insects by parasitizing them. Special facilities are required to prevent the escape of non-native species.

Technicians will be transferred also, and other personnel will be offered a choice of transfer or other government employment as opportunities arise in other departments.

This morning George Hees, MP for Prince Edward-Hastings, said he was "shocked and distressed" to learn about the plan to phase out the Belleville Institute.

He said he will question the move in Parliament next week.

Dr. Harris and Dr. Chant disclaimed any knowledge of reports that the newly created department of the environment may take over the Belleville facilities.

Dr. Chant said he doubted that the department of the environment would take over the Belleville facilities from Crown Assets because "it has a major investment in Burlington to study water pollution and would be unlikely to put in duplicate facilities on the Bay of Quinte."

Although the government press release said transfers of personnel will begin immediately, Dr. Harris said that most personnel will remain until mid-summer in order to complete their existing projects.

Mayor Russell Scott, in Saskatoon attending the annual meeting of the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities said "this is the first indication that the government is proceeding or phasing out the Entomological Laboratory."

Although Mayor Scott did not identify this agency, he did say "it's odd that they (the federal government) have acquired more property in the area if they did not intend to use the facility.

"I will immediately make representation to the minister of agriculture and the other appropriate Ottawa personnel inquiring as to what their intentions are for the use of this facility," he concluded.

Chairman of the Belleville Industrial Commission, Alderman Gerald Jones said they haven't approached Fred Bemis or myself and there has been no mention of future plans."

Although Industrial Commissioner Fred Bemis was only informed of this move this morning, he said "I've got somebody who could use it (this office space) right now and I need office space."

The Hard Way

Moving is always a problem but when you have to use a crane to get articles through a window it gets a little bothersome. Because of a winding staircase, it was the only alternative for members of the moving party placing a chesterfield in a second storey window of the Belleville armories.

Man Opens Law Office, Is Arrested and Jailed

TRENTON (Staff) — Trenton's newest law practitioner, Bill Ward, was remanded in Provincial Court here yesterday on four charges under section 333, subsection one of the Criminal Code.

The subsection provides a maximum sentence of 10 years on convictions for fraud, misrepresentation, or deceit.

He is scheduled to reappear in court again June 23.

Ward arrived in town this spring and moved into the Gilbert Hotel, opening a law office in the Trenton's prestige office block, Ontario House.

Bail was posted for Ward at $500 but it remains unpaid. He was transferred to the regional jail at Napanee today.

Charges against him concern credentials, whether in fact he is a lawyer.

He has achieved considerable fame in his short residence here, representing Wasil Sider, a leading developer, in his dealings with the Town of Trenton and the Public Utilities Commission.

Additionally, he participated in the Quinte Homebuilders' Association press conference held here in May to present builders' grievances with the new official plan for the town.

Announcements were made in the Trentonian recently of the opening of "Bill Ward, Law Office."

Mr. Ward expended considerable effort educating himself on the mechanics of Trenton municipal government and politics.

With his secretary, he occasionally sat through meetings of town council again to accentuate his awareness of town affairs.

Two Men Killed In Head-on Crash

BATAWA (Staff) — Paul Joseph Whalen, 22, of Batawa and William Allan Reilly, 29, of Frankford died near here last night when the cars they were driving struck head - on on a riverside strip of Highway 33.

The cars came into collision about 6.20 p.m., just south of Batawa with the wreckage tying up traffic for more than an hour. Members of Belleville detachment, Ontario Provincial Police moved in to direct the flow while other members of the force investigated the occurrences.

The body of Mr. Whalen was thrown from his car and recovered during the evening from the Trent River. Reilly was crushed in his vehicle on impact.

Whalen, a Canadian National Railways employee, had been driving a late model Firebird while Reilly, who worked for Bata Shoe, was coming south in an older model Chevrolet.

In collision, the entire front section of the Reilly vehicle was thrust back into the passenger compartment, with the steering column being pushed out to the window on the passenger side.

The engine of the Whalen car was ejected 49 feet through the air, landing in a field to the west of the roadway.

Both cars were totally demolished in the accident that drew a large subdued crowd of spectators to the scene. Belleville detachment OPP are still investigating the incident.

Agreed, Streets in Bad Shape

The city traffic committee is getting complaints regarding the rough condition of Belleville streets and committee members as well as the city engineer are in complete accord.

They agree that wide scale road way improvements are both in order and necessary.

But the big problem is finding the necessary money for reconstruction.

One letter received by the committee was from a resident who complained of the rough condition of Herchimer Ave., Bleecker and West Dundas Streets.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said he couldn't agree more that many city streets were in a rough condition, particularly Bridge Street West and Victoria Ave., both of which should have a higher priority for reconstruction than the streets named in the complaint.

The city engineer disagreed, however, that there were deep holes in the roadways at works crews have been out all spring doing patchwork.

Under the circumstances, he said city streets were pretty well maintained and little further improvement could be expected short of reconstruction.

One problem was that because of air management controls demanding a cleanup in asphalt plant operations, cold patch was still used for road patching.

Many of the asphalt plants were still not in operation because of delay in installing the necessary cleanup equipment.

Mr. Purcell noted that several years ago, following a survey, he had reported to city council that 80 per cent of Bellevile streets were in substandard condition and little reconstruction had been done on residential streets since that time.

At the time of the report, it was estimated that it would take $15 million over a period of 20 years to bring city streets up to standard.

City manager J. R. Reynolds said it would take three mills yearly over other requirements to institute a road reconstruction program and asked whether council would construction program and say have the courage to increase the mill rate by the required amount.

Alderman Paul Russell felt that the criticism of rough streets was a bit unfair due to the difficult winter.

He felt certain that repair crews had been out as soon as possible.

To a question from Alderman Jack Ireland, as to whether increased maintenance funds had been provided in this year's budget, the city engineer replied maintenance costs were up, but due mainly to increased wages.

What was termed a dangerous curve in Victoria Ave. east of Hunswood came in for criticism from another letter writer.

The resident said there were no curve signs, yet on several occasions motorists had left the roadway with their vehicles damaging residential property.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said that on all occasions referred to, the motorist had been breaking the law or exceeding the speed limit.

Trenton Tax Rate Up

of the Community Gardens in the amount of $22,070 largely due to purchase of new compressors.

Trenton was also caught off guard financially by wage increases for civic employees. All except the firemen have received at least 10 per cent pay increases in the last year and the fire-fighters are now taking their case to arbitration.

It seemed that even the weather was against Trenton this year. The cost of snow removal to date in 1971 was $83,417 as compared with a budgeted figure of $52,500 for all of 1970.

Although half the expense is recoverable from the department of highways, this alone represented a one mill increase. To increase taxes here by one mill reaps a revenue for the town of about $20,000.

The cost of burning the town has shot up in the past year. Now the town requires an additional $237,146 above 1970 with the rest of the increase in expenses consumed by education.

"Most of the increases were things over which we had no control," said the mayor.

General operation of the municipal offices will cost $15,535 this year above 1970, largely because of increased wages and fringe benefits.

Again wages are responsible for a boost in operational costs of the police department of $61,100.50. The price tag for the fire department is up $22,945.

Public works expenditures are up $50,974. Trenton's share for social and family services $23,459, and planning, $6,579, because of the demands of the new Quinte Area Planning Board.

The cost of garbage collection and sanitation services will climb by $8,661, although participation in the Albert's Road dump by Quinte Sanitation will be cheaper than operating the Centennial Park landfill.

Mayor McDonald attributed this increase to the necessary expense of cleaning up the Centennial Park site now that it is closed.

The mayor told The Intelligencer: "I work for a living too and I am just as concerned about this budget as anyone else."

He said that council had trimmed expenses as much as possible, although there was still a large tax increase. He said that, by original spending estimates of municipal departments, the budget would have resulted in a 35-mill increase.

One of the problems complicating this year's budget is the fact that there were $78,177 in tax arrears in 1970 and these remain unpaid.

This total represents essentially the taxes of three large industries given tax advantages by the town but stripped of the industrial incentives later by order of the Ontario Municipal Board.

"Action is being taken to recover these taxes at the present time. Their payment will result in a lower tax levy in the future," says Trenton Clerk-comptroller O. W. Lacey.

Top Brass From Mobil Tour Plant

Touring the plant, which is expected to open in six weeks, are left to right, Frank Milne, comptroller and treasurer of Mobil Chemical; Richard Merrill, Ted Nelson, executive vice-president of Mobil Oil and a member of the Board of Directors, Ray Adam, president of Mobil Chemical, David Val Camp, production superintendent of Mobil Plastics Co. of Belleville and Paul LaMarche, vice-president of Mobil Chemical.

Bad Cheques Concern Merchants

"Writing bad cheques is big business and the number of such frauds has increased by 88 percent since last year," said Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, guest speaker at the semi-annual Downtown Businessmen's Association dinner meeting.

"This figure is not a true picture of the problem because bad cheques are sometimes never reported and most of the offences that are reported are prosecuted and retribution is made to the merchant," said the chief.

The problem was discussed at length in an open floor debate with Ronald Keel offering to most widely accepted solution to combating the "paper hangers."

"We might use the chain letter idea to pass information from one merchant to another. When a problem arises, a merchant could phone two or three others and they could each contact two or three others. This way no burden is placed on one person and the information of a fraud or problem customer could be passed quickly." he said.

The chief remarked that "better lines of communication between the merchants will greatly aid the problem."

Identification of a shopper is academic while accepting a cheque, particularly when the shopper is known to you," "however," said the chief, "drivers licences and social insurance numbers should no longer be accepted as the be all and end-all of identification. In fact most times they are no good when it comes to fraudulent persons."

The chief commented "these documents are easily acquired and when in doubt, a phone call to the police department might save a lot of embarrassment."

A small sub-committee was suggested by the chief to form and to attack the problem with the help of the police department if needed.

"These people are the best talkers in the world," said the chief, "and it wouldn't be the first time that one bad cheque was replaced in good faith by another bouncy one to take care of the bill.

"We want to take these people to court, to be judged, and to be given the punishment that is fitting to the offence," said the chief in his final summation of the problem.

Special Constable Named for Tweed

TWEED (Special) — Barry Wallace, 24, has been appointed a special constable for the summer months to aid Chief William Carroll.

Tweed village council made the appointment at its regular meeting Monday night.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace, formerly of Sulphide, the new special constable is well known in the Tweed area. He was formerly employed by Ted Baldrick on his mobile canteen. Mr. Wallace takes up his duties immediately.

City's Growth

Whither Bellefville . . . what of the city's future, its contemporary progress? Today's "Get Acquainted" edition provides answers to such questions. Everywhere there are signs of growth and of the community's increasing stature, as well as its desirability as a place to live.

The recent opening of the new Four Seasons Hotel, providing not only additional tourist accommodation but a communications training complex associated with Bell Telephone, was one major sign of the times in this area. Another will be the opening in August of the big Quinte Mall on North Front Street. These are typical of the new industrial activity the city is experiencing.

But there is much else, as today's edition indicates. Not every prospect pleases or finds favor among citizens. There is concern for example about the proliferation of apartment buildings, to the detriment of traditional dwellings in the neighborhood and those who live there. Progress in other directions is also a mixed blessing. To see the removal of trees along Highway 2 is to sense the kind of dissatisfaction that led to the successful campaign against the Spadina Expressway. But here there is a difference; the widening of this route is long overdue. Indeed, it is a wonder it has not been the scene of more accidents than there have been in times past.

Then again, we do not have the best of community resources in some spheres. For instance the city engineer of the Scottish city of Stirling, Mr. Archie Patterson, expressed surprise the other day at so much in the way of overhead wiring here in Stirling, as in many U.K. cities, the wiring is underground. Mr. Patterson, addressing the Rotary Club, also thought houses here were closer together. So much for Canadian spaciousness!

Sport is well served in the city and round about. Golf has additional facilities since last year and there seem to be more people playing tennis. We even saw a game of cricket in progress on the Albert College grounds one evening recently, and hear there is interest in the game among some of Belleville's new residents from abroad in particular.

And speaking of the influx of people from overseas, Belleville is becoming increasingly cosmopolitan, as the appearance of people from many lands illustrates.

Concern for the environment, and action to protect it, are as paramount here as anywhere else in Canada, as witness another clean-up operation by the Lower Trent conservationists.

These are all signs of Belleville and district awareness and resourcefulness. The future will provide further evidence of this; meanwhile we can take pride in the progress of the moment. The city has made good strides in recent years and this augurs well for the days ahead.

The Silly Season.

Short of banning people wearing nothing at all, managements and school authorities would be better attending to the business in hand. For in reaction to fashion there is inconsistency, not to mention a degree of paranoia.

Consider the radio station in Toronto which in the course of its annual neatness-and-propriety campaign has told female staff members they must not wear hot pants on the job, while one unfortunate girl addicted to ankle-length peasant skirts has been told to get shorter ones.

There was a parallel to this some time ago when a girl was refused her diploma from Nicholls junior high school in Mount Vernon, N.Y. because she was a mid-length dress to graduation; all the other girls were wearing minis.

Between ten and 15 male employees of the radio station, incidentally, were given a holiday after which their hair must neither touch their collars nor fall over their ears.

Well well, it is the times we live in to be sure. A waggish employee is said to have posted a headline on the bulletin board which read: "hair today, gone tomorrow." Some humorless executive, the story goes, ripped the sign down.

It is all rather childish. The hair thing has gone to extraordinary lengths, if we may be permitted a pun. We were looking at a South African magazine the other day and there was a picture of an administrative group before the turn of the century. Practically all of them had beards. It was the same the world over in those days, no matter what the climate. Who can explain the rationale of the beard let alone long hair? Once it was a mark of distinction, now it is a fad mainly of youth, like the university set.

Waste Material, Pollution, and All That

Technology Fights to Preserve the Environment

By Dave Agnew in The Windsor Star

The great interest in the environment more and more has focused attention of using better methods of disposing of waste materials. The indiscriminate use of the land, air and water as a disposal site is frowned on.

More attention then is being given to capturing the wastes before they reach the environment, but this in turn presents a solid waste disposal problem.

For example fly ash was always a waste product from the burning of coal. As electrostatic precipitators were perfected and installed more of the fly ash was captured and prevented from escaping through the stacks to the air and settling out in the environment.

Until technology has perfected a way to use the fly ash, land disposal appears to be the only feasible disposable method to get rid of the waste.

A single coal-fired hydro generating plant in Toronto produces about 400,000 tons of fly ash which is captured by precipitators. It costs about $1 a ton to dispose of the material. The J. Clark Keith generating plant in Windsor was opened about 20 years ago and a dyked area alongside the plant was set aside for disposal.

However the area is now filling up and Ontario had to find an alternative site for about 100,000 cubic yards of the fly ash which will increase the capacity of the plant site for another five years of operation.

The site which was first chosen was in the area bounded by Malden, Matchette, Alberta and Tilcombe Roads. The city objected to the application and Hydro just this week entered into an agreement with Sandwich West Township to use its landfill site for the fly ash.

The city turned down an application to permit Ontario Ontario Hydro to dispose of its waste fly ash, primarily because of the nature of the material.

Harry Brampton, director of parks and recreation, claimed the fly ash was a "sterile" material that would "create an area which will prove to be unattractive for development for any and all future purposes."

Mr. Brampton said the fly ash as a fill material will nullify any future use of the lands for growing purposes since it is considered sterile and will not support plant life.

He also argued that fly ash is not a cohesive material and when dry can be wafted about by the wind.

Mr. Brampton said the proposed sit is "contiguous to Ojibway Park and the adjacent savannah lands which presently encompass 75 acres of rare species of prairie grasses."

Some council members also felt if the approval was given, control would be lost over the use of the land.

A study showed that a portion of the proposed disposal site should be considered as a future link between Ojibway Park and the landfill site, due eventually to be turned into a recreation area.

And Raymond Skelly, director of planning and urban renewal, said most important "if the site is not retained for recreational purposes, a waste disposal operation would be an appropriate use of the land.

Fly ash has proven to be an adequate fill material tii Toronto where Ontario Hydro has developed several sites out of abandoned gravel and quarry pits.

The plan as first outlined by Ontario Hydro was to fill in some low-lying areas in the proposed landfill site, and the area, so that it could be developed into a park area.

The land contains several pools surrounded by such junk as abandoned cars and old appliances, wooden boxes, tree stumps and piles of used timber. The property is low with a sandy soil. Officials agree that the land would be difficult to develop except for possibly homes and that the fly ash would be no worse than the type of soil in the area as a ground base.

They also argue if the city someday plans to purchase a portion of the property to link Ojibway Park to the West End landfill site, then there could be a ready-made park land.

If the land had been used there could have been tight restrictions tied into the certificate of approval as to that it would not open the door for using the entire property as a dump site.

About the only known use for fly ash so far, is it can be applied as an aggregate for some small paving work. It could not support heavy traffic as a paving material but can be used for road shoulders or parking

Other experiments are being carried out to try and find other possible uses for the material but until it can be reclaimed officials feel land disposal is the only suitable method.

Fly ash is a combination of calcium, magnesium, sulphate, sand and carbon and is inert and not dangerous to the environment.

Apartment Development Viewed Critically

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Residents of Belleville are more aware of the increasing erosion of the city by indiscriminate erection of apartment blocks. Some, well sited and pleasingly designed, blend harmoniously with the general aesthetic character of the community, while others detract and destroy much of the charm and delightful mosaic that makes Belleville unique.

Built in areas where there is a demonstrated need, and designed to ensure they blend harmoniously with the established homes, apartments can add much to the immediate area.

Buildings erected simply because a vacant lot exists, often alienate the feelings of occupants of single family dwellings and add little or nothing to the preservation of the character of the street.

We are already reaping the benefit of the indifferent attitude toward planning that existed in the past. Developers were allowed to do more or less as they wanted with the result that parklands and playgrounds within the city are now completely inadequate to meet the needs of a growing population.

If this situation is to be further compounded by the present trend of building apartment blocks on any remaining pieces of ground, or on lots from which houses have been demolished, it would seem time to introduce and enforce stringent regulations whereby the recreational needs of the people are not swamped beneath the avarice and indifference of developers.

The people living in the area should be consulted before permission is granted for the erection of large (or small) apartment blocks.

It seems a shame that the pleasant little park that exists on the West Hill is in danger of disappearing under another mountain of concrete. Are there no other places on the outskirts of the city to build? One thing Canada has, and should use to advantage, is space. Instead it looks as if we are intent on high rise apartment blocks until finally we completely ruin the pleasant atmosphere we are lucky to live in.

The East Hill residents who have applied for an injunction to prevent an apartment block being built on East Bridge Street realize what is happening to our city. I would have liked less emphasis on possible damage to "their better class" residential area. None of us, even those who live in "inferior class" residential areas like the thought of our surroundings being drastically altered by the construction of large apartment blocks that change the whole character of where we live.

Apart from the large apartment blocks, there are the small, and often inconspicuously sited buildings that have been unceremoniously built in odd spots that give barely enough room, and certainly scant consideration to the feelings of the occupants of adjoining homes.

As Belleville expands every consideration must be given to the preservation of those parks and open areas we already have, and provision must be made to ensure that adequate allowance is made for such things when any new development is undertaken.

Alderman Mrs. Robin Jeffrey deserves full credit and support for her fair and outspoken comments in respect to the necessity for easily accessible parks and playgrounds in all areas of our city.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

When are the members of Belleville city council going to listen to what the citizens of Belleville are trying to tell them? Many members of council seem to have a deaf ear, with the exception of Mrs. Robin Jeffrey and Mrs. Jean Smith who have spoken strongly on our behalf.

In recent weeks there have been many petitions presented to council with regard to the indiscriminate building of apartments in the older sections of Belleville. Many of these apartments are put up in such a way that complete neighborhoods are disrupted. Some of the citizens are surrounded by them, thus destroying the environment and value of their homes.

Many are elderly citizens who have worked hard all their lives, paying taxes to the city, and thinking they would have a decent home and environment to live their declining years in peace and comfort.

The developers move into these areas and with a complete disregard for the welfare of the people there, put up apartment buildings on streets that are too narrow, build close to the property line thus having front, side and rear yards that are totally inadequate for the purpose intended.

The people who live in these apartments in many cases have no green areas in which to relax and enjoy the fresh air, smell of flowers and the beauty of trees after working all day in factories and offices.

It seems to be a deliberate policy to take away the green belts and playground areas in the older sections of the city. To put the children on the streets, where they must take their chances with the vehicle traffic and close our citizens into a jungle of concrete and asphalt.

We as citizens have the opportunity to tell our elected representatives that the destroying of our city must stop. Belleville must have a plan for a decent environment in which all people may relax in health and safety.

Our elderly citizens must be given assurance that their homes and neighborhoods will not be destroyed so that some developer can make a few extra dollars at the expense of the people.

Auditor-General's Impact

Granby La Voix de l'Est:

Can we hope that the government will take action at least on the most important remarks of the auditor-general?

That question comes quite naturally, since last year, as surprising as it could be, the parliamentary committee refused only 8 out of 27 recommendations by (Maxwell) Henderson.

And remember that, irritated by Mr. Henderson's attitude, the government was tempted to reduce his powers, by presenting a bill to the Commons. Happily, it didn't execute its threat. . . .

Contrary to what the government's attitude suggests, the inspector certainly hasn't too many powers to carry out the heavy mission assigned to him. Instead, he perhaps hasn't enough.

What About Service?

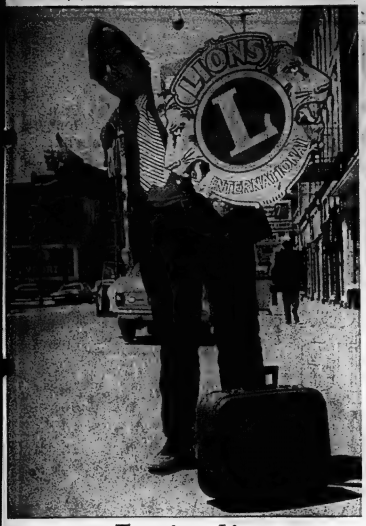
Do We Need 'Aggressive' People in Work Force?

Almonte Gazette



"Help Wanted" columns these days reveal that, even in office work, many employers are looking for someone who is "aggressive." Students seeking summer jobs may be misled by this emphasis on aggression. The world already has more aggression than it needs. What employers usually more service for a change.

Too often in large department stores the clerk is to yourself or are ignored while clerks busily discuss personal affairs. It is rare to find a clerk really interested in giving the customer service. The same attitude prevails in many offices. Few seem willing to serve any more as if "service" and "servile" were synonymous.

Job-seeking students can make up for lack of experience by being very willing to serve and thus make a welcome addition to our work-a-day world. It may be that only menial work is available regardless of qualifications.

Work such as sweeping floors cutting lawns, delivering groceries and hauling out the garbage of some business concern may seem a waste of one's talents. But if one chooses to be swept and garbage needs to be put out and this is part of the job's work.

There is satisfaction in fulfilling a useful service to society and satisfaction those who exploit society aggressively never show. The greatest men in history have been those who were the most humble and willing to serve mankind.

He hopes to reach Nevada within two weeks.

Bayside Ready for '72

The cornerstone of Bayside Secondary School will be laid in an appropriate ceremony sometime in August, Hastings county trustee decided Monday.

They heard a presentation on construction progress from architect Malcolm Bolgon and the president of the construction company now putting up the building, and learned that the school will be ready for students by January, 1972.

Rumors had been circulating that the school would not be ready until at least next June and the board brought the architect in to give a complete account of the present state of construction.

The school is now about 20 per cent along the way to completion, and on the basis of a new construction schedule, said principal Linton Read, "I will have no problem opening the school in January".

The severe winter put construction three to four weeks behind schedule, trustees were told, but time is now being made up.

The shop wing will be ready for installation of equipment by mid - September and the academic wing will be turned over to the board for installation of equipment by the third or fourth week in October. The cafetorium and music room will be ready by the second week in December and the gym and activity areas will be ready a week later.

This ends a lot of speculation, most of it without foundation," commented Ralph Weaver of Trenton.

Board OKs Extended French Classes

Hastings county board of education scored a breakthrough Monday night — for a short interval its deliberations went bilingual.

Board chairman Donald Williams even managed a short speech in French, although it was pounced he had as his speech-writer director of education Eric Runesson.

The occasion was a presentation by two teachers on the French program in county schools. The board decided to provide French in all grades 7 and 8 classes in the county by September 1971. It is now taught for 20 minutes a day in both grades 7 and 8 in only four county schools.

Cost of the program for the remainder of this year is $4,800, the amount necessary to pay for 1½ more French teachers. The cost for a full year would be $12,000.

David Weir, curriculum consultant in oral French with the county board and John Zikopoulos, chairman of the county curriculum committee for languages, brought to the board a report and recommendations on the teaching of oral French in elementary schools.

They recommended that French be gradually phased into all grades from 3 up, starting with a complete program in grades 7 and 8 in all schools.

Next year the board will consider beginning French in grade 3, subject to budget considerations.

Mr. Weir said the board is now starting at the wrong age to teach a second language — the younger the child the more easily he picks up French.

"What a difference there is between the six-year-old's unquestioning acceptance of the second language just as it comes, and the 15-year-old's awkward insistence on turning everything back into English," said the teachers' report.

"The school is really not the place where bilingualism will be achieved, but it is the place to develop the correct attitudes and to begin the foundation for the development of bilingualism if the individual wishes to become bilingual," they said.

Learning French will help students appreciate the difficulties of others learning English as a second language. And in learning another language, the students will begin to realize there are other ways of thinking, viewing, and organizing facts, ideas and feelings. From all this, can grow a true understanding of other races and nations, the report continued.

But some trustees had their doubts.

"How much better am I now for my four years of high school French?" asked Mr. Williams, confessing he had long since forgotten what French he had learned as a teenager.

"If you regret the years you spent on French, I don't blame you, because you learned it at the wrong age, with the wrong exposure," replied Mr. Zikopoulos.

He said a new method of teaching French has been introduced since 1966, based on a hearing and saying technique, and stressing speaking fluency before the written language is introduced.

Milford Walker questioned the value of teaching French, when children would forget it quickly without a chance to apply it.

Mr. Weir said retention of a language depends on many factors and the goal of elementary school French instruction is to develop attitudes rather than a body of knowledge.

"Are we not handicapped in this county because we hope no predominant French element in the population?" asked Macdonald Smith. He added that he could see the wisdom of teaching French in places where students would have a chance to practice their skills on the many French people living in those centres.

"Children have less need to learn French in school in Ottawa than they do here because there they can pick it up on the street," said Mr. Zikopoulos.

Mrs. Jean Hutchison of Trenton suggested that some parents think their children are having enough trouble with English without having to cope with French too. She asked if French should become an optional subject.

Mr. Weir acknowledged that there are some children "who can't seem to cope" with a second language and these pupils can be excluded from the program after consultation with parents, child, principal and teachers.

During the 1971 - 72 school year a committee will review the French teaching and come back with further details on extending the program in future years.

Whistle Blowing To Be Curtailed

Whistle blowing at the Front Street pedestrian crossing would be allowed to continue until the proposed underpass is completed.

Ivan L. Hilborn, CN engineer attending Monday's committee meeting, said there would be no problem doing away with engine whistles at protected crossings.

He said this was permitted under railway operating regulations.

Whistling at protected crossings would not be completely eliminated, however, as engineers would still be permitted to sound engine horns in an emergency and also to communicate with crew members.

Mr. Hilborn explained that the demand for morning deliveries in Toronto was the reason for the large number of overnight freights running between the two cities.

Members of the council traffic committee have decided after all to listen to the complaints of city residents who object to the blowing of train whistles.

And they would be prepared to at least go part way in silencing the whistles which are apparently causing lost sleep by those living near the tracks.

Two weeks ago, the committee voted to take no action to reduce the amount of whistle blowing, noting that only one actual complaint had been received.

But Alderman Jack Ireland again raised the matter at last week's city council meeting, noting that he had been petitioned by a group of residents who asked that something be done.

The matter was referred to the traffic committee and, following discussion yesterday, committee members recommended to council that a by-law be passed eliminating whistle blowing at three gate-protected CN crossings — at Carnahon Road, Moira Street East, and Geddes Streets.

Police Probes Termed Unfair

OTTAWA (CP) — Reformed criminals should not have to risk exposure of their criminal records to obtain a pardon, social workers told the Senate legal affairs committee Tuesday.

The committee is studying the administration of the year-old Criminal Records Act, under which a person convicted of an indictable crime can receive a pardon if he commits no further crime and behaves well for five years after expiry of his sentence.

The act provides that an applicant shall list five persons as references, who may be interviewed by the RCMP.

Phyllis Haslam, executive director of the Elizabeth Fry Society, said the investigations should not be conducted by the police but should be carried out by the parole service or a community service person.

If a person named as reference did not know of the applicant's criminal record, it was important he not learn of it from the interviewer.

A. M. Kirkpatrick of the John Howard Society said the person interviewed could learn of the applicant's record no matter who conducts the investigation.

Mr. Kirkpatrick said interviews should only be used as a last resort and with the consent of the applicant.

Both he and Mrs. Haslam criticized the stipulation that an applicant must have shown "good behavior" since completing his sentence.

It should be sufficient, they said, for him to have stayed out of criminal activity. The good behavior criterion left room for different subjective interpretations.

Mr. Kirkpatrick also said the act does not go far enough in clearing a person's criminal record when a pardon is granted. A person with a pardon should be considered never to have been convicted of a crime.

This, he said, would enable the reformed criminal to state on applications for employment that he has no convictions.

Rev. T. N. Libby, executive director of the St. Leonard's Society, said a policeman is not the best person to assess how well a criminal has reformed and adapted to society.

Police interviews also often created a negative impression. He recommended that interviews, if conducted at all, be handled by parole service officers.

Right to Substitute Drugs Recommended

TORONTO (CP) — A committee report submitted to the provincial government recommends that pharmacists be allowed to substitute lower-priced but equally effective drugs for those prescribed by doctors.

The report, submitted Monday, says the substituted drug should be in no way inferior and that doctors should have the option of not allowing substitutions.

The Parcost index, a 99-page document listing the most commonly prescribed drugs, would serve as the comparison guide for pharmacists making such substitutions.

The provincial government introduced the Parcost—prescriptions at reasonable cost—index last October as a guide for doctors in writing prescriptions. A three-man committee was appointed two months later to investigate the possibility of allowing pharmacists to use the index in making substitutions to save patients money.

The committee—made up of lawyer Julian Porter, physician Dr. Nathan Levine and pharmacist Joseph Spence—held several meetings and studied briefs from professional groups and drug industry representatives before completing its report.

The report says the average price of drugs could be cut by six to eight per cent through use of the Parcost index by pharmacists.

It says that such substitution ultimately might lower the prices of most drugs.

Alderman Denies Interest Conflict

TORONTO (CP) — Ald. Ben Grys, chairman of the city's development commission, was accused Tuesday of a conflict of interest involving major high-rise development in his west-end ward.

At a news conference, Ald. John Sewell called on Ald. Grys to resign his seat on both the city and Metropolitan Toronto councils because he did not disqualify himself from discussion of a plan to build four apartment towers and 30 townhouses.

Ald. Sewell produced documents from the assessment rolls and the registry department that show Gladys Grys, the alderman's wife, sold two properties on the site of the proposed development to the developer this year.

Ald. Grys denied there was any conflict of interest and said he would not resign.

Kingston Convicts Remanded to June 22

KINGSTON (CP) — Thirteen prisoners charged each with two counts of non-capital murder after a riot in April at Kingston penitentiary were remanded to June 22 when they appeared in county court Tuesday.

The four-day rebellion in which 300 prisoners wrecked the main cell block of the prison left two prisoners dead at the hands of fellow prisoners.

Judge P. E. D. Baker refused a request by one of the defendants, Glen Archer Morris, to make a statement before the court.

"In that case I wish to discontinue counsel and not represent myself—do what you wish with me," said Morris.

At that point, Judge Baker ordered court adjourned.

Six prisoners charged with kidnapping in connection with the rebellion were also remanded to June 22. They include one of the 13 charged with murder.

Twelfth Guard Facing Charges

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police here said Tuesday a 12th guard at the penitentiary at Millhaven has been charged with assault causing bodily harm to a prisoner.

William Craig Orser of Kingston will appear in court July 19.

Police said the charge, and 24 other similar charges against prison guards, followed alleged beatings of prisoners who were transferred to Millhaven after the April riot at Kingston penitentiary.

Right to Donate Organs Defined

Bill Makes Transplants Between Living Legal

TORONTO (CP) — Major health legislation which would permit organ transplants between living persons was introduced in the Ontario legislature Tuesday by Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence.

A health department spokesman said there currently is no law governing kidney transplants which are made between living persons. The new bill would make them legal.

The bill, the Human Tissue Gift Act, would also prohibit a relative of a deceased person from countermanding consent given by the deceased for a hospital to use his organs or tissues for transplants.

In introducing the bill for first reading, Mr. Lawrence said it is aimed at updating current provisions and bringing the law into line with recent medical and scientific developments "and the consequent acceleration of public interest in this field."

Another provision permits a hospital administrator to consent to the removal of a deceased person's organs for transplant if the person died in hospital and he is unable to get in touch with relatives who have attained the age of majority or a person lawfully in possession of the body.

Consent may also be given orally after death by the person's spouse, relative or other person in the presence of at least two witnesses.

It may also be given by telegraph, "recorded telephonic or other recorded messages" of the spouse, relative or other person such as a hospital administrator.

The bill provides that the organs or other body parts may be used for medical education or scientific research in addition to therapeutic purposes such as transplants.

Any person over the age of majority, which is 21 in Ontario, may make post-mortem gifts for transplants and other medical uses in writing, or orally, in the presence of at least two witnesses during his last illness.

The bill sets out rigid procedures in determining death if the deceased's organs are to be used for transplants.

Two physicians will be required to determine death, neither of whom may have had any association with the deceased or be a part of any subsequent transplant operation.

Nothing in the regulations would affect a physician in the removal of eyes for cornea transplants.

The bill provides for a $1,000 fine for persons disclosing the identities of donors or recipients in transplant operations, other than the donors or recipients themselves.

The bill would prohibit the sale of body parts other than blood or a blood constituent for therapeutic purposes, medical education or scientific research.

Mr. Lawrence said in an interview that the disclosure of the identities of persons involved in transplant operations has been known to have "psychological effects."

"This could have ga extreme impact on people who are walking around with bits and pieces of you and me in them. There have been several cases of unfortunate embarrassment when the anonymity has not been maintained."

Mr. Lawrence said the legislation was drafted by a committee of doctors and lawyers to provide a balance between "legal rights and medical necessity."

In other legislature business:

—Denis de Monte (L—Toronto Downcourt) said the department of tourism and information should be abolished.

—Rene Brunelle, minister of lands and forests, announced formation of a committee to administer loans to commercial fishermen hit by mercury pollution.

—Arthur Wishart, minister of financial and commercial affairs, said he is looking for a better alternative to the federal Bankruptcy Act for dealing with small debtors.

—Public Works Minister James Auld said the government expects to pay out about $72,000 to cover bad debts incurred by the construction firm that built Ontario Place.

—Mr. Wishart promised to look into the relationship between Arrow Petroleum and four Windsor gasoline stations in the light of reports that the company was attempting to set prices for the stations.

—An amendment to the Securities Act, requiring more complete disclosure of a company's performance, was given second reading.

—Mr. Lawrence introduced amendments to the Nursing Home Act extending licensing provisions for operators.

—Deputy Speaker Allan Reuter and three other members went to the Quebec national assembly in the first of a series of exchange visits with other provinces.

—Revenue Minister Eric Winkler said revenue from provincial sales taxes is running about five per cent ahead of figures for the comparable period of 1970.

Sewage Rules Violated

TORONTO (CP) — Improperly-treated sewage from Hamilton industries has resulted in 28 sewage violation notices being issued, Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr said Tuesday.

He told Reg Gibbons (NDP-Hamilton East) in the Ontario legislature that since the sewage went first to treatment plants he will leave the investigation to local engineers.

The minister said the Ontario Water Resources Commission is investigating whether there was any chance of the sewage reaching Hamilton harbor without treatment.

Alter VD Law

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation aimed at providing greater control of venereal disease was introduced in the Ontario legislature Tuesday by Health Minister A. B. R. Lawrence.

The bill, given first reading, would make it easier for doctors to report cases of venereal disease and would expand the definition of the disease to include two more strains.

Under the provisions of the bill, a doctor may simply report a case to the local medical health officer by telephone instead of submitting a report in writing.

A further provision would allow treatment of persons 16 years of age and over for VD without parental consent.

Self-contained Dwelling Definition to Be Changed

TORONTO (CP) — The labor department will plug a loophole in the Ontario Human Rights Code that led the Supreme Court of Ontario to uphold a Toronto landlord's appeal against a Jamaican who wanted to rent his apartment.

A section of the code forbids a landlord to deny a person occupancy of any "self-contained dwelling unit" on the grounds of race, creed, color, nationality, ancestry or place of origin.

Deputy Minister Tom Eberlee said Tuesday this section will be amended.

The definition "self-contained dwelling unit" is apparently more restrictive than was intended when the legislature unanimously approved the Code in 1962.

A Supreme Court decision Feb. 1 found that an upper-floor apartment which Carl McKay, a black Jamaican, tried to rent, was not a "self-contained dwelling unit." Access to it was through landlord Kenneth Bell's front hallway.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN MILNE

Milne – Montgomery

Mary Ellen Montgomery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Montgomery of RR 1, Carrying Place was recently married to John Bruce Milne, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Milne of Toronto at Albury Church. Rev. Maurice McLeod conducted the double-ring ceremony while Mrs. McLeod provided organ music. The soloist was Mrs. Gordon Fox, a cousin of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of sheer organza with appliqued daisies scattered all over the skirt and bodice. Guipure lace enhanced the neckline, front of the bodice and full bishop sleeves which ended in tight cuffs. A short chapel train flowed from the back of the shoulders. A cluster of Alencon lace daisies, iced pearls and rhinestones held in place the four-tier elbow-length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of bridal pink roses, shasta daisies and baby's breath.

The matron of honour Mrs. Margaret Morse, the bride's sister wore a floor-length gown of blue flowered nylon sheer with an empire waist, high neckline and cape sleeves. She carried a nosegay of shasta daisies, pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

The other attendants were Mrs. Iris Adams, the bridegroom's sister and Miss Judy Pratt, bridesmaids and Miss Carolyn Montgomery, the bride's sister who wore a junior bridesmaid. They were identical costumes to that of the matron of honor. Garlands of shasta daisies adorned the hair of all the bridal attendants.

The best man was Greg Adams, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. The ushers were Brian Montgomery, the bride's brother, Gary Orr and Rob Hibberd. The ring bearer was Frank Dore.

At the reception held in Ameliasburg township hall, guests were greeted by the bride's mother wearing a dress and jacket ensemble of romance pink silk mattelasse with a matching hat and white accessories. A corsage of white gladioli and pink sweetheart roses completed the costume.

Assisting her was the bridegroom's mother in a turquoise blue dress and white silk stole with matching accessories and a corsage of white gladioli and pink sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to the west coast, the bride donned a turquoise and mauve pant suit with a corsage of white sweetheart roses. Upon return the couple will reside in Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert William Tummon are pictured following their recent marriage in Knox Presbyterian Church, Milton, Ontario. The bride is the former Gail Patricia Evans, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Evans of Milton. The bridegroom is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. "Tip" Tummon of Belleville. Rev. John Murray officiated.

Engagement Notice

The engagement is announced of Ruth Marlene Hinchliffe, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Hinchliffe, Belleville and the late Mr. Barton Hinchliffe, to Mr. Barry John Purves, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Purves, Foxboro. The marriage will take place on July 17, 1971, at 4 p.m. in College Hill United Church, Belleville.

Friends Honor Couple on 40th Anniversary

On Saturday evening June 12 to mark the occasion of the 40th anniversary of Rita and Jack Lawrence (June 17) a dinner party was held at the Sun Luck Gardens, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Stirling.

Following the dinner, a surprise party was held at the couple's home, 4 Alexander Street, where a large number of friends had assembled to celebrate the occasion.

The party was arranged by Mrs. W. Moult and Mrs. Stirling and with the assistance by proxy of their daughter and son - in - law Lt-Col. D. M. Gray and Mrs. Gray of Chilliwack, B.C.

This coming Saturday another party has been arranged for Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence when they will be entertained at a dinner party to be given by their son and daughter - in - law Mr. and Mrs. David G. Lawrence.

ELIZABETH ANN KINCAID daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kincaid of Roslin, graduated from Kingston Psychiatric Hospital School of Nursing on Friday, June 11. Miss Kincaid is a graduate of Centreed-Hungerford District High School.

Club Activities

ALBERT COLLEGE GUILD

The members of the Albert College Guild gathered on the lawn of Mrs. L. Sherefelt's home for their annual June picnic. The guests were well looked after by Mrs. Sherefelt and her family.

After being welcomed by the president Mrs. E. Fleming, the members were served a delicious pot luck luncheon by the social committee.

The guests were then invited into the living room. After thanking Mrs. Sherefelt for her hospitality, the president invited Mrs. Sprague who was retiring after being house mother at the girls' residence for several years, to the seat of honor reserved for her. The guests then presented her with a miscellaneous shower.

In further appreciation of her work, the president made a formal presentation of a silver tray on behalf of the Guild. Mrs. Sprague expressed her thanks to the Guild and her pleasure in working with them.

Mr. and Mrs. George Smith

Couple Wed for 60 Years

"Keep still while the other one is spouting," was the comment given as the formula for a happy marriage by Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, Roslin RR 2 as they celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary at the home of their son and daughter - in - law Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Reid.

On June 12, 1911, George Smith, a blacksmith from Halloway married Marie Mathwig, a school teacher from Cass County, North Dakota. The ceremony took place in the Methodist parsonage in Jamestown, North Dakota.

The couple resided there for seven years and following the birth of a daughter Emily, the couple moved to Saskatchewan where their son Orio was born. Six years later they went to California and returned to Hallowy in 1927 where Mr. Smith became the local blacksmith and carriage maker. In 1929 they moved to Belleville where Mr. Smith became a well - known carpenter until his retirement in 1957.

Their daughter Emily is married to a former alderman of Belleville, Bryson C. Reid and a son Orlo Smith resides on Wright Avenue in the city. A grandson is Rev. Dr. Robert O. Reid, and there are also three great grandchildren.

Summing up the 60 years of marriage, Mr. Smith remarked, "It never was a one sided affair. We both had to work at it — and I guess that is the secret. If you are going to be selfish maybe you had better not try it." Mrs. Smith smilingly agreed and said, "They have certainly been a happy 60 years."

Messages from friends and prominent provincial and national figures were received and a host of friends dropped in on Sunday to express best wishes on this happy occasion.

Ann Landers

Father Ignores Child With Slight Deformity

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 34. My husband is 39 years my senior. We have a beautiful home in the suburbs and two lovely children. Unfortunately, our younger child, a boy, was born with a harelip and a double cleft palate. The doctor said it was the most severe case he had seen in his 30 years of practice.

The boy has had two operations and he doesn't look bad at all. One side of his nose is a little pushed in but when he is five years old he will have a third operation. The doctor says he will then be nearly normal in appearance.

I realize it is a blow to a man's ego to have a son with a birth defect, but it's not the boy's fault. It breaks my heart the way he is ignored by his father. I would like to have another baby but my husband says absolutely not. He is afraid it might have another "deformed kid." — as he puts it.

ANN LANDERS

Sometimes I become so depressed over my husband's attitude that I feel like leaving him. Please tell me what to do. — LAST RESORT.

* * *

DEAR L.R.: Your husband is far more defective than the child. He needs counseling — and he needs it at once. Ask your pediatrician to suggest a therapist who is experienced in helping parents of children with congenital defects. Not only is your husband making himself miserable, but he is ruining his marriage and damaging the boy emotionally.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am not 15 yet but I have lived a lot. I have something to say to that selfish 16-year-old girl who didn't want her father to remarry.

My mother and father fought like cats and dogs for as long as I can remember. I cannot recall that they ever had a civilized conversation. It was always yelling and screaming. Four years ago they were divorced. The court awarded me to my father. He wanted me. My mother didn't.

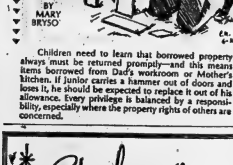
Two years ago my dad married a wonderful woman. It would never have occurred to me to be against the marriage. After all the misery Dad went through with my mother, I was happy to see him enjoy life. Dad's second marriage did a lot for me, too. It made me see that marriage can be a lovely relationship and that a man and wife can be friends.

I hope you print my letter. It might help other teen-agers who don't want a divorced mom or dad to remarry — GREENWICH CONNIE.

* * *

DEAR CONNIE: You have a smart head on those 14-year-old shoulders. Thanks for writing.

* * *



DEAR ANN LANDERS: Ever since I can remember I have been afraid of the dark. I've always had to go to sleep with a light on. Even when I go from one room to another I must first turn on the light in the room I am entering before I turn out the light in the room I am leaving. I know this is childish but I just can't help it.

I was married six months ago. My husband is sick of me clinging to him all night — making him sleep in a room with a light on and all the other babyish things I do. How can I get over these fears? — NO JOKE.

* * *

DEAR N.J.: Fear of the dark which persists through adulthood is a deep-seated ill which requires intensive therapy to overcome. I hope your husband will be patient and that he will be willing to pay for professional help.

In the meantime, buy a dim night light, one that can be plugged into a socket on your side of the bed, near the baseboard, if possible.

Children need to learn that borrowed property always must be returned promptly—and this means items borrowed from Dad's workroom or Mother's kitchen. If junior carries a hammer out of doors and loses it, he should be expected to replace it out of his allowance. Every privilege is balanced by a responsibility, especially where the property rights of others are concerned.

Successful Living

Burmese Centre Welcomes Many Used Cards

BY DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: It has been wonderful receiving parcels from our kind friends all through the past two years. They have come to us from your readers in Ontario, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Scotia — 171 packages in all. Two came without the name of the senders so we could not write to thank them.

Celebrators were made out of those Christmas cards with hard backs and pictures of Santa Claus: imitation paper lanterns out of the inside pages; notebooks from the unused plain inner pages, and picture albums from the flowers, birds and animals we cut out.

Thank you, too, for the other gift parcels. The income derived from what we can sell has been a tremendous help in slows and improving communications between Christian communities in many parts where they are almost entirely cut off from personal contact with their fellow believers.

May we humbly request that another appeal be made for the various types of used greeting cards? — Christian Radio Audio Visual Centre, 82nd Street, Mandalay, Upper Burma

Dear Mr. Lader: I know the readers will help again. It is time to be thinking about a hand across the world and give a lift to your imaginative Christian enterprise. More power to you!

* * *

Dear Doris: My family and I will be going on holidays shortly and will be spending quite some time in the car.

Could you suggest some games we could do while in the car so my father will not be annoyed while driving? I have two brothers 10 and 13 and I am 18. — On Our Way

Dear On Our Way: You can play charades as you go along if you have simple titles and each person working on his own, with the other two to do the guessing. For the drawing puzzle game, each person could be a whole team with the others guessing what is "Party Games and Refreshments" describes these and other games, and lists good party books.

In addition, I am sending a few mimeoed paragraphs entitled For A Long Drive With The Small Fry. More ideas for travel fun.

Between both leaflets are available for 10 cents each and a six-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

* * *

Confidential to Trying to Diet: A very kind reader was concerned about you and has written in with a suggestion she thinks might help you. If you would like to write in again, giving us your proper name and address, I would forward her letter.

We did try to reach Maude H. but unfortunately she has moved and the 5 C's have no new address for her.

* * *

Confidential to On My Best Behavior: For better to ask about what slumps you before you pull a boner. There are certain things which are just taboo when you visit — even in the home of a well-loved relative.

You don't try to reform her, even if she is your sister or daughter. You fit in with her schedule. You bring a gift. You remember your bread-and-butter letter, without fail.

I'm sending you my bit about "On Being a Good Guest" which covers these items and some other "musts" for house guests.

* * *

When writing in, Allow Doris four weeks for private reply, which will be sent if a six-cent - stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

PRINCE EDWARD — BELLEVILLE LADIES' Club

The June meeting of the Prince Edward - Belleville Ladies' Club was held recently at the recreation centre with 36 members and two guests in attendance.

Mrs. F. Henderson opened the meeting and read a "recipe" for happiness. Minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary Mrs. A. Mitchell and approved. The financial statement was given by the treasurer Mrs. L. Fox. The corresponding secretary Mrs. O. While gave her report. Flowers had been sent to Mrs. E. Sager and Mrs. A. Guest.

Mrs. D. Bradshaw thanked the members for the cups and saucers and cards sent for her 50th wedding anniversary.

It was announced that there will be a bus trip to Peterborough on August 11, leaving at 9 o'clock and a "color" trip to the North on September 28.

The group led by Mrs. F. Way and Mrs. C. Cunningham were in charge of the program. Mrs. F. Wray read a poem and Mrs. E. Lloyd gave a reading. Mrs. Way conducted a number contest.

Mrs. Way then introduced Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Swan who told of their trip across the prairies, Lake Louise and Vancouver on the way to Shanghai. They also spoke of their work there. They urged all to be friendly with others who are strangers as the way of Christ is the hope of the world. They also spoke of their 28 years spent in Trinidad teaching agriculture and home economics. They were thanked by Mrs. Way and presented with a gift.

The meeting was concluded after the singing of two songs with Mrs. W. Weese providing piano accompaniment.

Mrs. Way, Mrs. Cunningham and members of their group served lunch which was enjoyed by all.

Green Pea Soup for Non-roughage Diet

By MARY MOORE

The starter for today's effort was a reader who wanted recipes to serve to her husband who is on a non-roughage diet. She specified foods pureed in roughage to puree.

My chief concern with these patients is lack of fresh fruits and vegetables in their diets so I tackled this request with gusto.

Any readers in good health and with idle blenders sitting on their kitchen counters will enjoy this recipe for Blender Green Pea Soup too.

Read through the list of contents of a 4-oz. portion of cooked frozen peas: calories 78; protein 5.1; fat .3; carbohydrate 9.9; calcium 23 m g.; phosphorous 98 mg.; iron 2.2 mg. VITAMINS: E 685 International units; thiamin .31 mg.; riboflavin .18 mg.; niacin 1.9 mg.; ascorbic acid 15 mg.

BLENDER GREEN PEA SOUP — (serves 6)

NOTE: The soup that results from this method is a beautiful shade of jade green.

One 12-oz. pkge. fresh frozen (or equivalent in fresh) green peas
¼ cup boiling water
2 tbsps. chicken bouillon cordial
1 cup hot water
2 tbsps. butter
1 cup milk

Cook the peas in the ¼ cup have boiled 5 or 6 min. — no more. Cool them to room temperature. (I stood my pan in larger one of ice water.) Pour into blender goblet including liquid. (Do not wash saucepan.) Add the chicken bouillon cordial and blend on "high" for 1 min. when all will be reduced to perfectly smooth puree. Add the hot water and blend 30 seconds. Return to saucepan, add butter and milk, heat to just below boiling point and serve. Lovely topped with dollop of whipped unsweetened or dairy sour cream.

The above fills three categories: 1) blender owners; 2) diverticulitis or diverticulosis (non-roughage patients; 3) young children who refuse to eat their green vegetables.

WEDDING

MURRAY — WANNAMAKER

FRANKFORD — Janice Deborah Wannamaker of Frankford wore a peasant-style, full-length, white gown with lace puff sleeves and pink ribbon entwined on the sleeves and on the bodice, for her wedding June 4 in St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling. Rev. Charles Staples officiated when she exchanged vows with John James Murray, RR 1, Stirling.

Appropriate wedding music was played by Mrs. Gail Falkner.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Wannamaker, 6 Queen St., Frankford. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations and—her shoulder-length veil with appliqued daisies was held in place by a mother of pearl tiara.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Murray, RR 1, Stirling.

Miss Janette Hofstra of Trenton was her bridesmaid and she wore a floor-length pink crepe gown with empire waist, puff sleeves and white daisy trim. She carried a bouquet of pink and white mums.

Paul Bailey of Stirling was the best man. Ushers were Blain Wannamaker of Frankford and Douglas Murray of Stirling.

A reception was held in the Dr. McMullen recreation centre, Frankford where the bride's mother received the guests wearing a yellow crimplene ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of white and green carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was dressed in a pale blue crimplene ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of bronze carnations.

For a honeymoon trip to points north the bride wore a mauve pantsuit with white accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Murray will reside at RR 1, Stirling.

DALE LOUISE HINTON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Hinton, 16 Plaza Sq. graduated from Queen's University, Kingston with a bachelor of arts degree in English and psychology at convocation exercises held Saturday May 29. Dale is a graduate of Moira Secondary School. She has accepted a position with Bell Canada in Ottawa.

Marmora Students Prove Their Sewing Skill

Marmora's younger generation are very fashion conscious, judging from the modern looking clothes the girls of Grade 7 and 8 made in their home economics classes and modelled before parents and other students on Thursday afternoon in the school gym.

The fashion show opened with a welcome by principal, Ken Gillies, who stressed that the teachers encourage the students to be original and innovative in their designs. To bear this out, the girls chose their own fabrics and patterns and turned them into smart looking garments.

As Patti Hill and Darlene Johansen took turns commentating, the girls entered the beautifully decorated stage from the wing, walked slowly over the simulated bridge and paused to show off their clothes like professional models.

Many of the girls modelled two outfits they had completed under the direction of Mrs. Morley Chard. Matched sets of skirts and vests, suitable for school, were very popular; hotpants and pantsuits running a close second in choice.

During the year, some of the girls learned to crochet, turning that skill into making attractive ponchos and matching bags. Joyce Reid, Cathy McInroy, Evelyn Kotelski and Karen Davidson were four girls who showed the results of their nimble fingers.

Others taking part in the show included Patsy Vilneff, Brenda Colden, Cathy Vesterfelt, Betty McGregor, Beverly Brooks, Robin Knox, Janice McCormick, Gwen Downer, Laurie Walker, Kim King, Janice Mumby, Valerie Barrons, Ruth Lingerfat, Lisa Maynes, Anita Wisti, Joan Fluke, Roberta Johnson, Cathy Ann Fenton, Beth Wilson, Barbara Califas, Sharon O'Shea, Debbie Bateman, Patsy Neal, Wendy Reasnas, Margaret Brown, Cheryl Smith, Kathy McCoy, Judy Killian and Debbie Fluke.

In conjunction with the fashion show, parents had the opportunity of viewing the work their sons had accomplished in shop classes, with Joe MacCauley as teacher.

The boys had turned out professional looking gun racks, corner brackets, book ends, letter holders, magazine racks, candle holders and wooden dishes of various size and finish, as well as many other items.

Attractive wooden lamp bases were made by Dale Neal, Alan Reid and Robbie McGibbon. Jim Airhart's bird feeder should encourage lots of birds to his back yard.

Some odd looking conversation pieces were made by the students, using pieces of cedar which they burned into various shapes.

The articles were attractively displayed around a large totem pole. Some of the boys were on hand to explain how the items were made.

IODE Supports Monarchy

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The IODE will oppose any suggestion that the monarchy be abolished in Canada, its president said Monday night. She said the Crown poses no threat to Canadian life.

At the opening session of the 71st annual meeting of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, Mrs. George E. Tait of Toronto said the order is committed to a Commonwealth united by the Crown.

Mrs. Tait also said the IODE is deeply concerned about Canadian unity.

"This is no time to revive old frictions, quarrel over regional interests, to wrangle over matters of race and religion. We must recognize that this Canada founded and nurtured by people of a hundred cultures is worth saving from division or outright disintegration."

Mrs. Tait acknowledged the IODE needs to find ways to keep up with the times and attract young members. She said, however, she believes the order is often unfairly treated and many of its activities ignored.

She said the order raises about $35,000 annually for its education fund. It has recently sent $1,000 to the survivors of the St. Jean de Vianney, Que., cave-in disaster and this summer it will sponsor 25 teen-age boys from across Canada on a visit to the Maritimes.

About 300 delegates are representing 23,000 members at the four-day meeting which ends Thursday.

SUMMER IS FUN IF YOU LIVE IN OR VISIT BELLEVILLE

Sports Play Big Part in Belleville Life

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Joe Sports Enthusiast is a pretty average sort of individual with normal likes and dislikes. What separates Joe from many of his neighbors, however, is that when work is finished he doesn't plunk himself down in front of the television and watch the baseball game — he goes out and participates himself.

What sort of facilities are available to Joe during the summer months in the Quinte area? Quite a few, actually.

If Joe's athletic interests lean towards team sports there are a number of outlets available to him.

Softball flourishes in Belleville, with the five-team Commercial Softball League accommodating the cream of the roundball crop, while an 11 strong Industrial loop provides a chance for many more players to see action. In the outlying districts, the North Shore League and Thurlow - Sidney Softball loop are in full swing.

Baseball is the game for many members of the five teams in the South Hastings league and also a Belleville junior entry that competes against teams from all across Eastern Ontario.

For those who prefer even more action, the Bay of Quinte Soccer league is there to supply it. Three Belleville teams, two from Trenton and one each from Batawa, CFB Trenton and Warkworth Institute carry on the European football tradition.

Even basketball comes in for its share of summer action with a six-team recreational league operating last season, and a similar setup in the offing for this year.

If Joe is the type of person who likes to rise and fall on his own merits, then perhaps tennis is the game for him. Organized matches are held regularly for members of the Quinte Tennis and Figure Skating Club, or for those mainly concerned with recreation, there are courts available at Zwick's Island, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and Quinte Secondary School.

Maybe Joe would prefer to get away from it all and spend a quiet few hours on the water. The Bay of Quinte and surrounding waters offer angling opportunities for bass, pickerel, pike, muskellunge and pahfish, while northern fishing for trout is easily within reach for a weekend venture.

Joe can even enjoy the water without ever dangling a line, as a member of the Belleville Yacht Club or the Quinte Power Squadron both of whom cater to their particular sector of the boating set.

Mrs. Sports Enthusiast is not left out of the picture either. Weekly sessions of lawn bowling and bridge are held at the Belleville lawn bowling club adjacent too the Quinte exhibition grounds. She can also try her hand at the weekly ladies golf sessions held at one of the area's seven courses.

Sports for Team Players or Individuals

Improvements to Track Attract Racing Fans

The old carnival barker's cry of "yer pays yer money and you takes yer choice" could readily apply to the more than 1,000 fans who attend the weekly harness racing cards at Belleville's Quinte Exhibition Raceway.

A number of changes have been made at the fairgrounds this year, to accommodate the spectators who each week wager $30,000 or more on their particular favorites.

Because of the repairs effected on the track and betting facilities, the opening of the season was delayed until the first week in June.

The Belleville Agricultural Society assumed control of the Belleville races this year and made the necessary changes after taking over from the defunct Quinte Riding and Driving Club.

The track itself was widened to a distance of 50 feet at all points, and the betting facilities were moved to a recently constructed booth behind the grandstand.

A lounge area has been added underneath the grandstand and closed circuit television outlets are planned.

Each Saturday night card is composed of a total of 10 races which begin weekly at 8:45 p.m.

City Surrounded By Golf Courses

Flagship of the local links is the Bay of Quinte Country Club, located just west of Belleville on Highway 2. The Quinte Club, which celebrates its 50th anniversary this summer, offers 18 championship holes on the sprawling 6,200 yard layout.

CFB Trenton, on the north side of the air base, presents the stiffest test of accuracy of all the area's courses with many of the 18 fairways hemmed in by dense trees and undergrowth waiting to envelope an errant shot.

The newest entry on the golfing scene is the Belleville Golf and Country Club located at Marysville. The short, but well-trapped 18-hole course was planted only last September and while some greens and fairways are not yet in top condition, they are improving rapidly.

Oak Hills Golf Club became the fourth 18-hole layout in the area this year, opening a second nine to the already existing facilities. The hilly links are waiting just west of the village of Stirling to test the mettle of local and visiting golfers.

Another course with its up-and-downs is the Trenton Country and Curling Club layout, where the rolling landscape makes a number of blind approach shots necessary. The nine-hole course, situated right in the town of Trenton, plays to a par 68 off the two sets of tees.

Picton Golf Club also utilizes two sets of tees on a nine-hole layout. The Picton clubhouse and finishing hole occupy the most spectacular setting, on a towering cliff overlooking Lake Ontario.

Barcovan Golf Course, located in Prince Edward County, near the village of Brighton, has something for both the polished golfer and the rank amateur. Those with golfing experience can play the par 36, nine-hole front nine, while even beginners will be able to compete on a nine-hole, par-three layout.

THE NEW SCENE IN RETAILING

Quinte Mall

Artist's Drawing of The New Quinte Mall Which Will Open in August

Construction is progressing on schedule on the seven million dollar shopping complex located at the southwest corner of Highway 401 and North Front Street.

Quinte Mall will be similar to Cambridge Leaseholds' two other Regional Shopping Centres in Burlington and Windsor. The enclosed climate controlled mall will be anchored at either end by a Simpsons Sears full line department store and a Miracle Mart food store. Located along both sides of the mall, which will stretch 475 feet between the two majors, are forty of the finest local and national chain merchants.

Shopping at Quinte Mall will be truly an exciting as well as a pleasant experience. The peaked ceilings will be of white stucco highlighted by oak beams. Shoppers will be able to rest at their leisure on one of the many benches that will be located throughout the mall, or relax at the side of one of the landscaped pool areas at either end of the shopping concourse. And, of course, shoppers will always be within a few minutes walking distance to the store of their choice. Parking will no longer be a problem. Quinte Mall will provide free parking for 1800 cars.

As you can see, Quinte Mall is truly one of the most exciting things to happen to Belleville in many years. It's the NEW SCENE IN SHOPPING — make it your place to shop!

Players' Representative Critical of Kuhn's Bonus Ruling

NEW YORK (CP-AP) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn's ruling invalidating non-contract bonus arrangements by Cleveland Indians with two players was criticized Tuesday by Marvin Miller, executive director of major league baseball's players' association.

Kuhn said Monday investigation showed the American League club had improperly negotiated the bonus arrangements with pitcher Sam McDowell, third baseman Graig Nettles, first baseman Ken Harrelson and outfielder Vada Pinson.

Miller contended the club stone to benefit by the decision rather than be punished.

"He (Kuhn) relieved the Cleveland club of potential obligations totalling more than $50,000 and fined them $5,000. That's 10 cents on the dollar. It's that's his way of doing justice. It's consistent with his role."

Miller was also critical of the Indians for fraudulently inducing players to sign by dangling bonus provisions as bait.

"The bonus arrangements were not revealed, but it was reported that McDowell had signed a contract calling for a basic salary of $72,000, a boost to $80,000 if he won 25 games and a jump to $100,000 if he won 30 games.

Kuhn said that at the end of the season, instead of bonuses, the players would be entitled to receive from the club whatever additional salary, if any, American League president Joe Cronin felt the players' general contribution to the club merited.

Miller questioned the validity of the contracts since they were drawn with the bonus arrangements included.

"The serious question is whether these contracts have any validity now since they were fraudulently induced," Miller said. "I think it's a real question since the decision was to rule out one part of the agreement between the parties and leave another part binding.

"It's obvious that the original salary contracts were not satisfactory and that in order to sign the players the Indians used as bait separate arrangements that induced the players to sign."

Giants Manage A Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The wild, wild West is getting out of hand and San Francisco Giants needed a tough slinger to silence that swaggering bunch from Los Angeles.

Ron Bryant, as tough a slinger as the Giants have right now, pitched the first complete game of the team's June flop, a four-hit 8-0 win over Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday night.

It was only the Giants' fourth victory in June, a month which cost them ground in the National League's West race.Since the first of the month, San Francisco's lead of 10 games was whittled in half to five by high-riding Los Angeles Dodgers.

In other league games, Los Angeles blanked New York Mets 2-0, San Diego Padres topped Montreal Expos 3-1, Chicago Cubs whipped Atlanta Braves 3-1, St. Louis Cardinals trimmed Cincinnati Reds 6-1 and Pittsburgh Pirates beat Houston Astros 3-0.

"When he (Bryant) has the curve ball working he is as good as any pitcher in the league," said San Francisco manager Charlie Fox. "Nobody hits his fast ball."

Bryant was able to get the first batter in every inning except the fourth, when he walked Deron Johnson.

Alan Gallagher ended an 0-for-27 slump with a two-run single to back Bryant's pitching.

Gallagher's single came with the bases loaded during a four-run fourth inning and keyed Philadelphia's starter Barry Lersch.

Al Downing kept Los Angeles rolling with a five-hitter and Manny Wills knocked in the Dodger runs with a two-run single in the fifth inning off New York's Nolan Ryan.

Chisox Glad Horlen Heals Fast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It took Joe Horlen's magical healing powers just 39 days to transport him from the operating table to the pitching mound. Now, after a year-long struggle he has also recovered his winning touch.

Horlen, who made a remarkable comeback a month ago from his second knee operation since last August, hurled Chicago White Sox past Detroit Tigers 6-1 Tuesday night for his first victory since last June 18.

Bill Melton's grand slam homer and solo shots by Mike Hershberger and Rich McKinney provided solid backing for the 33-year-old right hander, who scattered eight hits in going the route.

Elsewhere in the American League, Milwaukee Brewers overhauled Baltimore Orioles 5-5, New York Yankees cooled Kansas City Royals 2-1, Minnesota Twins topped Cleveland Indians 5-3, Oakland Athletics belted Washington Senators 8-2 and California Angels nipped Boston Red Sox 5-4.

GATES BROWN

Horlen, a double-figure winner for seven consecutive seasons, slipped to 5-3 last year and was forced to undergo surgery on Aug. 4 for the repair of torn cartilage in his right knee.

Dr. Gerald Loftus, who operated on Horlen, said he'd probably be through for season. But Horlen returned to action after 34 days, working six times in relief in the final month.

But April 4, when he suffered torn cartilage in his other knee, another operation was performed.

This time, the projected recovery period was six to eight weeks. But Horlen was exercising the damaged leg three hours after the operation—and pitching in relief on May 4, 29 days after surgery.

Melton broke the game open in the sixth with his 10th homer and second grand slam of the year.

Detroit's Gates Brown set an all-time AL record of 77 career pinch hits when he slammed an eighth inning triple.

Milwaukee spotted the Orioles a 4-0 first inning lead, battled back to tie the game in the sixth and then flogged the defending world champs on John Briggs' leadoff homer in the ninth.

The Yankees snapped Kansas City's six-game winning streak on a two-run homer by Bobby Murcer and the five-hit pitching of Steve Kline.

Home runs by Tony Oliva, Rich Reese and pinch-hitter Brant Alyea powered the Twins past Cleveland.

Senators Cut Veterans

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Washington Senators cut veteran infielders Joe Foy and Don Wert Tuesday night and brought up second baseman Lenny Randle and third baseman Dave Nelson from Denver of the American Association.

Manager Ted Williams said Foy and Wert would be sent to Denver if unwanted by other major league clubs.

Foy batted .234 in 41 games with Washington this season; Wert .250 in 20 games.

What A Way To Go!

If you have to lose, there's no better way than Gary Sibley did Tuesday night in one of six minor baseb a l l house league games.

The Golden Mile slugger cracked a grand slam homer and two singles in his team's 23-15 peewee division loss to Deseronto. Teammates Paul Weeks and S l i m o n Bennett each contributed four hits in a losing cause.

In another peewee game, Peter Hall and Robert McBrian combined for a five hitter as CN Yardmen beat Trenton Legionnaires 16-8. McBrian helped himself with a homer and single.

The CN Yardmen mid-gets were not as fortunate as their peewee counterparts dropping an 11-2 verdict to Tyendinaga All - Stars. The winners used three pitchers—Reid, Pepper and Barbershock — while Moore went the route for the Yardmen. Two doubles and a single made Tyendinaga's G. Farrell the game's top batter.

Deseronto bantams won a local rivalry by edging their Reserve! counterparts 10-9. Winning pitchers Heffernan and Kemp accounted 10 singles, while losers Brant and Barnhart were touched for seven extra base safeties.

In a tyke game, Hopkins' Wreckers pulled out a 10-8 decision over Kenney's Hamburgers. Gagne went t h e route for the winners, yielding seven hits, striking out six, and walking six. The losers' Peter Love was the game's best hitter, connecting for a brace of doubles.

Bob's Sports' tadpoles did not have as' good a hit-to-runs ratio as Ellis Printers, but they won 6-2.

Bob's got their six runs on nine hits, including a homer by Dan Haslewood. T h e Printers got their two runs on two hits, one of them Steve Shaupe's homer.

If Looks Could Kill...

Charlie Settled Score All by Himself

Charlie Cox settled the outcome of zone minor lacrosse contest all by himself Tuesday night, scoring the only goal in a 1-0 verdict by Erin Watkins juveniles over Marv's Esso Midgets.

In another - midget game, Belleville Auto Dealers got two goals from John Loder as they downed Sun Luck Gardens 4-2.

Danny Nuttall and Bob Lorimer also scored for the winners, while Brian Hale, Ted Baldwin and Wade Grier shared the Sun Luck scoring.

Gerry Healey was the big gun in novice action, connecting for four goals, but in a losing cause as his Bob's Sport's mates went down to a 6-5 defeat at the hands of the Dairy Queen.

Steven Riddell scored three times for the winners, who also got goals from Joe Belanger, Steve McConkey and Bob Isaac.

Brad Miller scored the other goal for Bob's Sports.

After Scratch Start, Juniors Itching to Win

With the exception of returning pitcher Ted Walte and John Campbell the Ellis Juniors started from scratch for the 1971 Commercial Softball season.

But Tuesday the budding juniors pulled off one of the biggest upsets of the young season by tripping Point Anne downtown 5-3. The loss, combined with an 8-8 win by Rollins Construction over Howard and Robert Printing in the other half of the Alemite twin-bill, left the Builders and Cementmen in a first-place tie.

Walte scattered seven hits to hurl the Juniors to their third win in seven starts, striking out eight, and issuing three walks.

John Campbell's long right-field triple drove John Sutherland home to give the Juniors a 1-0 first-inning lead, but Campbell was cut down at the plate on a fine relay from shortstop Rick Rosebush.

Jim Howard's right-field blast brought home Mike Cook with the tying run in the bottom of the first, but Norwood stumbled between first and second and lost what looked like a sure home run.

A big four-run third-inning in which John Campbell, Brian Gariepy, Walte, and Pete Stallkovich knocked in runs provided the Juniors with all the scoring they needed and knocked out Point Anne starter Jamie Hunter off the slab in favor of Don Holoway.

Holoway blanked the Juniors the rest of the way on three singles, no walks, and eight strikeouts.

Larry Mavety's fifth-inning single knocked in the only other Point Anne run.

WAYNE McCONNELL

Rollins' Construction got three first-inning runs and never looked back as they rode Wayne McConnell's four-hitter to an 8-3 nod over Howard and Robert Printing.

McConnell also got the game's best hit, a two-run sixth-inning homer into the left field trees to round out the scoring.

Rollins' second - baseman Steve Ling collected three safeties off the deliveries of losing pitcher Larry Marshall, who yielded 12 hits in all.

Bill Barberstock's last-inning triple was the losers' only extra-base hit, but McConnell got a pop-up and strikeout to strand Barberstock and preserve his shutout.

Industrial Ball Has Its Upsets

Upsets were the order of the day in Industrial Softball League play Tuesday night.

The Firemen walloped higher - ranked AOCO 18-4 while Brooks Bond edged Morch Marlners 6-5.

Perry Soule struck out eight while scattering ten AOCO hits in the Firemen's slab. Don Putnam and Brian Smith each cracked three - run homers for the winners.

Despite being outhit 14-9, Brooke Bond overcame a 4-1 deficit to hand Morch's their third loss of the season.

Bob Chambers went the route for the winners, striking out three and not issuing a walk. Larry Bilham's two singles and triple paced the winners at the plate. His last-inning triple drove in the winning run.

Will Bolpit took the loss, despite tossing an eight-hitter, striking out seven, and hitting four singles in his own support.

No Place Like Home

Cosy Grill used the home run to good advantage in their 9-3 Ladies' Softball League win over Team A Tuesday.

The winners backed up Sandra Claus' nine - hit, ten-strikeout pitching with circuit clouts from Verna Hill, P. Robson, and a pair of homers by Sharon Francis.

Losing pitcher Susanne Morton gave up 12 hits, and hit a single and triple in her own support.

Midas Bats Noisy

Midas Muffler had the noisiest bats in four high-scoring minor softball peewee games Tuesday night.

Tim Moon's homer, pair of doubles, and single paced the Midas team to a 22-4 laid-aside over William Belch and Son.

Western Tire's Robert Chase and Tom Sharland combined to pitch an 18-strikeout three - hit, 20-2 win over ANAF Vets. Chase, Derek MacDonald and Rob Richardson homered for the winners. Two of the losers' three hits were home runs by Perry Cornell and Peter Pertschi.

SACO squirts weren't out of their league as they whipped Woodland Cleaners' peewees 14-5. Daryll Colman hit four singles and John Henry three for the winners.

Ellis Printers outlasted Conley's Grocery 17-16, getting a home run and two singles from Bill Forbes. The losers got five hits each from Wayne Eros and Ron Doornbos.

Single Room Only

Letts trimmed the Reserve 7-1 in South Hastings Baseball action Tuesday, but nobody on either team was particularly dangerous with the bat.

All ten of the game's hits—six of them by the winners—were singles, and Latta's Danion Richardson was the only player to hit safely twice.

Meanwhile Harold Pascoe's six - hitter and P. Enright's three singles helped Read double the score on Cannifton 6-3.

Cannifton starter Larry Lewis was tagged for all the Read runs on eight hits, before getting relief help from Garney Adams and Bernie Coughlin. Adams and Lewis stroked home runs in a losing cause.

Track Off-limits to Club

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Mr. Justice H. L. Houlden barred the Peterborough Driving Club Tuesday from using Morrow Park for harness racing.

When the Peterborough Agricultural Society learned last April the driving club was building a racing plant at nearby Fraserville, it asked the Ontario Supreme Court for a decision to stop the club from using the park.

However, the club obtained interim injunctions on three occasions to permit it to use Morrow Park for racing. The last card was held Saturday.

Elwood McDonald, club treasurer, said Tuesday: "We're not about to give up our rights of the past 18 years and just hand them over."

McDonald said the club will hurry the completion of the $80,000 Fraserville track, which was scheduled to open in 1972.

"We hope to have it ready in eight weeks," McDonald said.

The Fraserville track is 10 miles south of Peterborough.

Exercise His Bag

LONDON (AP) — A veteran American golfer has completed a scanvenger hunt for old iron club heads in Scotland and now proposes to popularize the sport in the United States by taking it back a half century.

"Golf is played for exercise, enjoyment and health," said Frank Strafaci, 55-year-old golf executive in Miami, Fla., and former public links champion.

Therefore he says, the 14-club bag and electric carts should disappear."

He intends to promote a nine-club outfit in a special light bag anyone can carry.

"Chick Evans won the U.S. Open with only nine clubs," said the little sketcher who still comes over here every year for the British amateur championship.

Strafaci has acquired a motley collection of clubheads from the marvelous times of Vardon, Braid and Taylor in St. Andrews, Carnoustie, Muirfield and other points as models for his project.

"I intend to take the clubheads with the best loft, width and length and recommend that the golfer use them like the oldtimers did. You can take any one of these and by sawing your hands a bit down the shaft, reduce the distance. In fact, you have the range of two clubs."

Caddies being unavailable most places, the golfer who could afford it fell on the electric cart as a boon but Strafaci says it destroyed the purpose of the game, exercise.

Self-help Pays

The AVCO Finance girls' senior football entry lent themselves a hand with a 19-6 win over Doug's Food Service Tuesday.

In Junior division games, Quinte Food Market dumped Tots 'n' Teens 23-12, Turcotte Heating shellacked Red Barn 38-8, Clayton's TV whipped Dairy Queen 17-7, and the CN Yardmen's Benefit girls helped themselves to a 32-14 win over Lucas Spur.

CFL Cuts Strings

TORONTO (CP) — An agreement which gives amateur football a no-strings grant of $50,000 and complete autonomy for the first time has been reached between the Canadian Football League and the Canadian Amateur Football Association.

The CFL grant, to be made in 1972, is to support "the development of minor football in Canada."

MONTREAL (CP) — Four new names have been added to the Canadian Football League all-star team which will meet the Grey Cup champion Montreal Alouettes at the Autodrome June 29.

Named to the squad were guard Ellison Kelly and centre Ron Caphan, both of Toronto Argonauts, and lineman Ken Frith and halfback Ted Dunbar, of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Palmer's Time Running Out

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — A wry, rueful smile stretched across the famous, putty face, and Arnold Palmer admitted:

"Time is running out."

Palmer, 41 but still one of the chief contenders in the 71st U.S. Open golf championship, took a long look at himself and the game he has helped popularize before teeing off in a practice round Tuesday.

"My long-range goal is the same now as it was in 1960 (when he won the Open and the Masters). It's the same as Jack Nicklaus': Win all four major championships in a single year.

"I think it can be done, and I think I can do it."

He paused, then smiled again.

"But each year that goes by it becomes more and more unlikely.

"I have a lot more, a lot different interests now than I did in 1960. Then I just wanted to play the best golf in the world. I was only 30 years old.

"I still love the game, love to play it, I can't think of anything I'd rather do. But as you grow older, you develop different, varied interests. You have to, or you're going to be in big trouble."

"Right now, I just want to keep on playing. I want to keep on winning tournaments and, if possible, winning major championships."

He hasn't won a major championship—the United States and British Opens, the Masters and PGA—since the 1964 Masters.

But, off his performance this season, he ranks behind Nicklaus as one of the prime candidates for this year's U.S. Open title.

Palmer, the game's all-time leading money winner and the most popular player the game has ever known, is enjoying his best season in three years.

He has won twice and has more than $100,000 in winnings, fourth on the list, this season.

Kern Paces Qualifiers

TORONTO (CP) — Touring pro Ben Kern and three assistant pros shared the lead after the first day of qualifying play for the Ontario open golf tournament that starts Thursday.

Kern, a Toronto native who plays out of his brother's club at London, Ont., and assistants Ken Venning of Brampton, Bob Young of Toronto and Mike Fraser of Burlington, carded 71s Tuesday, pacing a field of 226 pros and amateurs.

The remainder of the record 304 players seeking 57 places in the 54-hole championship teed off today at Weston golf club. Today's field of 78 amateurs with handicaps of three and four will try to shoot 76 in an effort to join the starting field.

Fifty-six players carded 76 or better Tuesday. Tied at 72 were Al Johnston of Montreal and West Palm Beach" Fla., Russ Fischer of Club de Golf Mexico in Mexico City, Rudy Horvath of Toronto, 1969 Ontario junior champion Kelly Roberts of Oakville and Jeff Forsythe of Towanda.

In at 73 was Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver who finished second Sunday in a Kemper satellite tournament in South Carolina. Also at 73 were John Jacobs of La Costa, Calif., Dave Oakley of Falls Church, Va., Greg Pidlaski of Stoufville, Ont., Brian White of Toronto and Don Farley of Woodbridge, Ont.

Jurors and Accused Party in Old Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Clinking glasses, comic repartee, political discussion—it was a party almost like any other on a hotel terrace in Old Montreal's Place Jacques Cartier.

Except the participants Tuesday at the Hotel Iroquois were prominent Quebec political activists and seven of 13 jurors who had just acquitted one of the celebrants.

After a six-week trial and more than three days of deliberation in the austere seclusion of the courthouse and hotels, the jurors had cleared Jacques Larue-Langlois, former CBC radio producer, of seditious conspiracy charges. Co-accused Charles Gagnon, a former university lecturer, was also acquitted Tuesday of charges of conspiracy between January, 1969, and November, 1970, to overthrow the Quebec government by force.

Gagnon had to stay behind bars to await a court hearing on his application for bail—granted later Tuesday—while awaiting trial on another charge.

But Larue-Langlois, previously free on bail and awaiting trial on another charge, his lawyers Bernard Margler and Robert Lemieux, and labor leader Michel Chartrand quickly left the imposing, grey courthouse on Notre Dame Street.

Accompanying them were four of the jurors who had been noisily applauded by the courtroom audience when they delivered their verdict.

A little later, three more jurors arrived one by one and were cheered by the celebrants and a gathering crowd.

Stanfield Sniffs Loser's Locker Room Odor About Government

OTTAWA (CP) — The odor of decay is apparent in the Trudeau government, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Tuesday.

"It's a loser's locker room smell of fatigue and of collapse."

He told a fund-raising dinner that the public has grown increasingly disenchanted with the government and Liberal cabinet ministers themselves have begun to realize the futility of their government's policies.

"When you start losing your old guard as well as your Right Guard, you're really in trouble."

Mr. Stanfield criticized the government for what he called arrogance in trying to limit the authority of the auditor-general to criticize government expenditures.

"We were determined to stop this government in its tracks in its continuing efforts to weaken Parliament and stifle criticism. And we succeeded."

Mr. Stanfield repeated previous calls for tax reductions to "get the Canadian economy moving again at something close to its real potential."

"And if the government fails to do these things, I am no longer asking, I am demanding that Edgar Benson be relieved of his responsibility as minister of finance.

"He will have shown that he has nothing to offer to the people of this country except misery and stagnation."

A text of the speech was released before delivery.

Red Cross No Protection

TORONTO (CP) — What causes a man to put a large, red cross on the top of his house?

In Frank Tucker's case it was a desperate bid to keep student pilots from flying planes over his house near the Buttonville airport, north of Toronto.

As many as 100 planes an hour pass over the house and "the law of averages says we're going to get one through the roof."

He put up the red cross in the hope the pilots would keep clear.

"It was just a nice way to convey to them our plight," he said, "we got no relief."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

For many years I have been saying that the No Visitors sign on a patient's hospital door receives much less respect than it deserves. In many instances several of my seriously ill patients have had setbacks simply because friends and family barged into a room where visitors were forbidden.

I recall one businessman whose bed was besieged by a half-dozen loud-talking, smoking visitors on the second day of his coronary attack. He almost died. I think you will be interested in the following letter, written by a registered nurse.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Can someone please tell me why a hospital looks to so many people like a reception hall? I have nursed for several years. It will never cease to amaze me why, as soon as someone becomes seriously ill or has major surgery, everyone they know feels they have to see the patient "right now".

A No Visitors sign seems to mean "everyone except me". Why this game goes on to prove to the nurse that they can sneak in remains a mystery to me. It certainly won't affect the nurse's health, but certainly can harm the patient.

We had a doctor as a patient recently, who was quite ill. He had to go home early to get rest because everyone on the staff stopped by each day.

Relatives, friends and acquaintances of the sick patient gather round the bed and yak, yak, yak. For the patient's sake, why don't they put off seeing him until he is convalescing and is bored during recuperation?

I'm sure their intentions are good, but why don't people respect the No Visitors sign?, — A Disgusted RN

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Will you please help us? My son has what his doctor calls a pilonidal cyst. This little pocket at the base of his spine appeared about nine years ago when he was in Alaska. It drains and flops and drains again.

The doctor keeps putting him off, saying that when the time comes he will arrange for an operation. But he has not done it. It makes my son very nervous. What shall we do? — Mrs. W.

COMMENT: Ask for a consultation with a surgeon. My guess — and only a guess — is that he will say it's time to operate. Healing usually takes quite a few weeks, but operation is the only cure usually prescribed.

• • •

For Mrs. T.: An IUD is the abbreviation for an intrauterine device inserted by a gynecologist for contraceptive purposes. Many women prefer the pill or other preventive measures. Nevertheless, an IUD is quite dependable in a high percentage of cases.

In some women, it may cause irritation and bleeding. Whether or not it is the method of choice, should be left to the physician and patient concerned. What works for one doesn't for another.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: While playing baseball my son was bumped into by another boy, causing him to get a bruise on his thigh. A lump developed. The doctor calls it a hematoma, and says it will be absorbed in time without any special treatment. I trust my doctor, but does his advice make sense? — Mrs. Z.

COMMENT: Not being there I can't say it is a hematoma; however, it's a likely diagnosis. As for treatment, I agree with your doctor; it's usually nature's job to dissolve the lump. (If large and very painful, sometimes the collection of blood is aspirated with a needle to disinflate its size.)

THE PICK OF Punch

New School For Retarded

The trainable retarded in the Belleville area will get a new school to replace their present building on John St.

Earlier plans of the Hastings county board of education were to renovate Avondale school to provide increased accompodation for the retarded.

However, the department of education agreed to pay grants on a new school. Avondale school will be put to another, as yet undecided, use. The board has yet to determine the site of the new school for the retarded.

Trustees were told at the regular board meeting Monday that the new school will be built to accommodate 96 pupils by 1974. It is expected it will not be ready for occupancy until at least September, 1973.

Actinolite Public School will be in use for trainable retarded children by this September. Last night the board considered new names for the school, presented by the advisory committee on schools for the retarded.

The committee suggested either Pine Crest School or Bridgewater School. Bridgewater being the original name of Actinolite. However, it decided to wait until the next board meeting, in two weeks, before changing the name of the school.

Public Servants Favor Strike Action

OTTAWA (CP) — Union groups representing almost 40,000 federal public servants have voted to keep open the option of strike action in seeking pay bargaining, instead of opting for binding arbitration as in past negotiations.

Results of a poll conducted by the Public Service Alliance, the main union of federal employees, shows that a majority of voters in seven out of 10 categories of operational workers preferred strike action.

The seven groups include general laborers and tradesmen, unskilled workers, employees in federal hospital services and prisons, federal firemen and ship crews, covering 37,803 employees in all.

Lighthouse keepers, railway mail clerks and some employees in printing operations—82 public servants in all—voted against use of strikes.

Heath's Yachting Attacked

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Edward Heath has been hit with a charge that he spends too little time at 10 Downing St. and too much at Berth No. 10 at the Port Hamble Marina on the Hampshire coast where he keeps his sailing yacht.

Three opposition Labor MPs signed a motion in the Commons Tuesday criticizing the prime minister for sailing instead of working.

They chose to attack Heath because he didn't attend the Trooping of the Color, the traditional ceremony by which the Queen celebrates her official birthday. Heath, with royal permission, was sailing in a race off the Isle of Wight.

The 55-year-old bachelor is a dedicated yachtsman.

But the romantic aura of an ocean-going yachtsman has begun to boomerang on Heath. The Sun, a London tabloid, began this week by heading Page 1: "Come Ashore, Skipper. It's Later Than You Think."

Said the Sun story: "As his beautiful yacht pulls away from the shore and the economy of the United Kingdom sinks slowly in the West, Skipper Ted can still find time to sit bronzed and beaming at the helm."

Last year with Morning Cloud I he went to Australia to win the Sydney-to-Hobart Race. The other day he captured the 200-mile Solent Bay Race, scudding home ahead of the field in his new supercruiser, Morning Cloud II.

Heath entered sail racing five years ago.

Currently the prime minister is fighting for a place on the three-craft British team which will compete against foreign entries for the Admiral's Cup, Britain's top yachting competition. After a first, second and fourth in the first three trials he's standing first. Experts at the Royal Yacht Squadron in Cowes figure he's a cinch.

The trouble is he will need about 36 days off from politics —counting time for trials and the cup races—to win a place. "Like everyone else I'm entitled to a holiday," said Heath.

Development Next Step

Parks Acquisitions Move Belleville Into Modern Age

With a total of approximately 300 acres in use or planned for development, the city of Belleville is fast catching up on its parks requirements.

"We were considerably below the average but are now catching up fast," according to parks superintendent Lloyd Syer. "But we still have a little way to go."

During the past few years, under Alderman Paul Russell as parks board chairman the city has embarked on a concerted drive for additional park land and greenbelt area.

The most recent acquisition, ultimately to add to the city's greenbelt area, has been the purchase of approximately 76 acres on the west side of the Moira River running south from Highway 401.

Eventually it is hoped the west side greenbelt area can be extended all the way north from College Street to the four-lane highway.

Purchase of the properties is being carried out through the Moira River Conservation Authority with the Ontario government contributing 75 per cent in grant money.

This year, development of the west side greenbelt area is expected to be limited to a general cleanup and tree-cutting program, utilizing funds made available through the provincial government's municipal incentive works program.

A second big parks development project being commenced this year is the 46-acre East Zwick's Island area, which eventually will see the former sanitary land fill garbage disposal area transformed into a park showpiece.

This project will be carried out over a period of at least four to five years.

The East Zwick's area will complement the present Zwick's Island Park, which was developed as a centennial year project with the aid of funds made available by the two senior governments — with a one-third total share paid by the city.

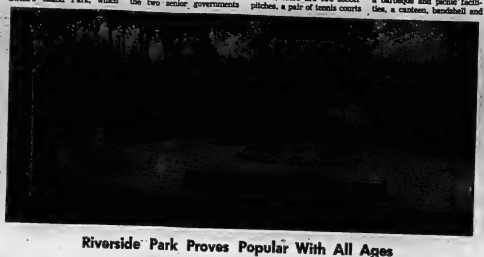
Here, there are two soccer pitches, a pair of tennis courts which will be illuminated this year to allow for night play; a barbeque and picnic facilities, a canteen, bandshell and wading pool and play area for the kiddies.

Another park project to see initial development this year is the 50-acre Centennial Secondary School park site in the Harder Drive - Palmer Road area of west Belleville. The new Dick Ellis Rink forms part of the planned over-all recreational complex.

Also in the Parks Board development plans is the Bayshore drive area east from the sewage plant to the city limits.

Grading will be carried out here this year for about 1,200 feet east of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board cheese storage plant.

Also, the Ontario Water Resources Commission, the parks board and harbor commission will co-operate in cleanup development of a park area west of the sewage plant.



Included in the 300 acres of park property are the existing park areas such as the Belleville Fair Grounds; the city's ever - popular Victoria Park on the Quinte waterfront; the recently developed 5-acre Fry Park on the east side of the Moira River on the Canniffon Road.

Other smaller parks owned by the city include the Corby rose park, Panter's park opposite the International Hardware Company lock factory, Hillcrest Park and the Haig Road Park and Stanley Park in the east end of the city.

And despite inroads made by the new Dundas Street bridge, a vestige of old Fireman's Park at the lower end of Front Street will still remain.

The stone log cabin honoring the United Empire Loyalists as the first permanent settlers of the Quinte region will remain at its present location.

The monument will be cleaned up with park benches added to add to the general park setting.

Riverside Park Proves Popular With All Ages

Spirit of Co-operation Jumps Flying Club Membership to 300

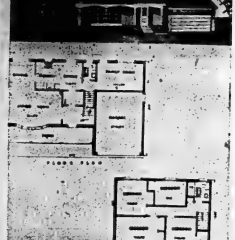
"The Belleville Flying Club is a non - profit club," says club member Shirley Woodcox, "offering the finest equipment and facilities with five government certified flying instructors." The club's low rates are attributed to maintenance and check rides that are done by volunteer club members.

A licensed pilot can rent a Cessna 172 or Cherokee 140 for $11 per hour, everything furnished and fully insured. The club rents only to licensed pilots, who are carefully screened.

In 1960 — Jim Marker purchased 30 acres east of the city to house his Piper PA-12 Super Cruiser and today the club has eight power aircraft and two gliders. From eight original members the club has grown to over 300. Members have been attracted from as far away as Montreal, North Bay, Windsor and Niagara Falls. The annual membership fee is a modest $10 and the non-profit club is run on the honor system.

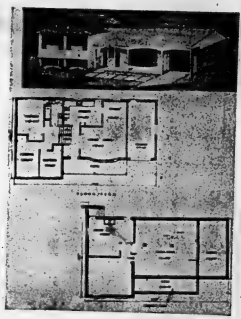
The club offers a glider flight training course, $375 for students with no previous training (approximately 60 flights) and $190 for licensed power pilots (approximately 27 flights).

A Cessna 172 is used to tow the glider to an approximate altitude of 2,000 feet using a 200-foot tow rope. From this point the glider can gain or lose altitude, or maintain zero sink depending upon the updraft. The club's altitude record for gliders is 7,200 feet, with a record flight time of 4 hours and 12 minutes, both attained by Ed Page of Belleville. With respect to distance, the club's new Blanik L-13 glider has glided a distance of nine miles east of the club's airport and returned without incident. Gliding is considered an astronauts major recreation.



The Belleville Airport, a customs port of entry, located three miles east of the city, is a licensed, 3,400 feet by 200 feet turf and gravel field. It operates on a radio unicom frequency 122.8 MHZ and the runway lights can be turned on automatically at night by broadcasting on this frequency. The lights will remain on for six minutes and then go off, but can be activated again by another broadcast.

The Doctor J. N. Hartt Award for 1970 was awarded to Flying Instructor Ron Mason for his contribution in aviation to advance any or all of the activities of the Club. It is the highest award presented to a member of the Belleville Club.



The George Hees award, presented to the most outstanding glider pilot of the preceding year was presented to Francis Lenk, son of Doctor and Mrs. (C. R. Lenk of Belleville. The Doctor Evans Trophy, presented to the Private Pilot Graduate with the highest average on his or her flight test and written exam was awarded to John McDowell of Belleville.

The club was pleased to present wings to 12 glider pilots, 33 Power Pilots, four commercial pilots and one glider instructor rating. This past year was the largest graduating class in the history of the club.

STEVENSON FORD'S 7th ANNIVERSARY...

STEVENSON FORD continues to grow regardless of economic trends. Stevenson Ford believe, and are proving, that there is a lot of business available. People are, however, more selective in their purchases, and the after sale service is of much greater importance with the drastically reduced term of warranty. We believe our reputation in the Quinte area is the main reason we have steadily grown to a record number of 29 employees.

The 29 people shown on this page are by no means the size of our organization. Each person who buys a car from Stevenson Ford actually becomes a member of our ever growing family.

We are proud of our record of business standards, and are pledged to continue in the same honest fashion that has given us 7 successful years in Belleville. Another factor for success has been our product. It is second to none. Another very important item is, We, and THE FORD MOTOR COMPANY are both concerned about your satisfaction. When you do have a problem, we listen better, and do everything possible to correct it. Because of this we have built up a tremendous clientel of repeat customers. We are also continually attaining new, and highly valued customers from within our city, as well as from far afield. Most of these people tell us they have come to us because of word of mouth advertising. This is why we say that each of our customers actually is a member of our organization. For this we say a "BIG THANK YOU."

For the best product, the best deals, and the best service, see one of these friendly folk at STEVENSON FORD SALES LTD.

Eight Ontario Plants Plan Layoffs or Closing Before August

TORONTO (CP) — Of 20 companies which have informed the Ontario government since Jan. 1 they plan either to lay off more than 50 workers each or to shut down plants, eight plan action between now and August.

Figures released to the legislature Tuesday by Labor Minister Gordon Carton show at least 445 employees will be dismissed permanently this summer and at least 745 will be out of work for 13 weeks or more.

The eight planning layoffs this summer are:

American Motors Co., Brampton, a subsidiary of American Motors, Detroit, plans to lay off 90 workers Aug. 2 as it closes down an engine assembly plant.

Frontenac Floor and Wall Tile Co. of Kingston, a West German subsidiary with 100 workers, gave notice April 30 that it will shut down June 30.

Depend of Canada Ltd., Kingston, an American subsidiary, advised the department in January that it will lay off 170 workers June 21 because of a slack economy and competition from imported textiles.

Wolfrost of Canada, a U.S. subsidiary plant in Woodstock plans to shut down June 30.

Universal of Kitchener gave notice May 14 that it will lay off 132 workers between July 9 and Aug. 6.

I. T. E. Circuit Breaker Canada Ltd. of Weston, Ont., another American subsidiary, it is moving a section to Drummondville, Que..

Another American subsidiary, Smith-Corona, gave notice May 3 it would lay off 94 workers July 30

Canadian Westinghouse Ltd., Brantford, told the government it would lay off 300 workers June 30.

Even Liberals Complain About 'Weird' Youth Spending Program

OTTAWA (CP) — State Secretary Gerard Pelletier was in Victoria Tuesday for the constitutional conference. But his name and the $24.7 million opportunities-for-youth program kept popping up just the same in the Commons.

Conservative House Leader Gerald W. Baldwin started the Commons day by trying to move a motion ordering the minister to be in his seat today when the Conservatives will be accusing him of mismanagement of the summer youth program.

He was refused the necessary unanimous consent to put the motion.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, talking part in the main debate based on a Social Credit motion criticizing the government for "having neglected to institute the just society."

He moved a motion ordering the city as promised," charged that political patronage is rampant in the youth program.

Liberal Keith Penner (Thunder Bay) joined the chorus when he complained about "some weird and wonderful spending program" inaugurated by the government.

"A communique from the secretary of state's office informs me that under the opportunities-for-youth program $1,220 will be given to a project called Spaghetti Banquet—$1,220 to assist the production of an animated film, a light-hearted three-minute look at spaghetti."

Another $23,500 project was to change "demystify the dance," noted Mr. Penner.

The Social Credit motion said the government should have increased the basic income tax exemption, done away with the 11-per-cent tax on building materials and instituted a guaranteed income for all Canadians.

Under House rules, there was no formal vote on the motion.

Mr. Caouette pigeonholed to name names to back up his charges of political patronage within the youth program during the budget debate next week.

Revenue Minister Herb Gray said that with the budget speech due Friday, it was difficult for cabinet ministers to answer arguments dealing with fiscal policies.

The tradition of secrecy surrounding a budget forced ministers "to refrain from saying anything that might be taken as a derogation of this principle of confidentiality."

Conservative finance critic Marcel Lambert (Edmonton West) said the just society promised by the Liberals in the 1968 general election meant different things to everyone so it was an impossible promise to keep.

He also wondered how the Social Credit program of guaranteed incomes and retirement at 60 years of age would be financed.

That led Mr. Caouette to say by love and compassion is not Mr. Lambert "was the biggest worthy of the name."

Conservative MP Lincoln Alexander (Hamilton West) noodle ever to sit on the treasury benches." It was little wonder veterans affairs minister didn't understand the Social Credit financial policy.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) said not only the just society was a distant ideal. The speech from the throne opening the present session of Parliament also had said "a society which is not inspired the work week. In that way, more Canadians would have jobs.

"I am afraid that is what we have under the present government, a society which is not inspired by love and compassion.

Today's society was run by technocrats unconcerned with the sufferings endured by a great many Canadians, said Mr.

Adrien Lambert (SC—Bellechasse) called for a reduction in

School Books Biased

TORONTO (CP) — Descriptions of "savage" Indians, "primitive" Negroes and "infidel" Moslems in many Ontario school books are teaching children prejudice against minority groups, a report from a provincial institute said Tuesday.

"We have no wish to deny that in the past Indians were, on occasion, 'fierce warriors who took scalps,'" says the report by two researchers with the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education. ...

"But the texts seldom note that on occasion Christians also took scalps."

The report, entitled Teaching Prejudice, was prepared by Garnet McDiarmid, 47, and David Pratt, 31, after a study of 123 textbooks authorized for use in the province's schools.

The report says the textbooks are biased and perpetuate stereotypes of Indians and Africans as being half-naked, uneducated and inferior humans.

The report also found biased treatment of major issues in history. In 19 high school textbooks for history and world politics courses, the researchers found inadequate treatment of the Nazi persecution of Jews and other minorities during the Second World War. They said:

"Eight textbooks did not mention the topic at all; nine were judged poor and two were fair ... in their presentation of one of the most atrocious chapters in the whole history of mankind."

The report urges immediate steps to correct the prejudiced view that Ontario school children have of many racial groups and issues.

Books that contribute to the miseducation of children should be revised by the publishers, the report says. Until that can be done, teachers should be supplied with lists of errors and omissions.

J. K. Crossley, superintendent of curriculum for the department, said new books coming out since the study began in 1968 contain far fewer questionable references. Many publishers now are submitting manuscripts to ethnic groups before seeking department approval.

Mr. Crossley said there is no question of banning the text books criticized in the study, particularly in view of the current problems facing the Canadian publishing industry.

W. D. McCuaig, a history specialist with the department, said even mathematics and science books have been combed for evidence of bias.

The study was initiated by the Ontario Human Rights Commission more than three years ago after complaints of bias in textbooks.

Tweed

TWEED — The annual meeting of the Addington District Women's Institute was held recently in Cayne, Ontario. The roll call was answered by 44 members at the morning session and 49 members for the afternoon.

Reports of standing committees were given, and the election of officers for the 1971-72 year were appointed. The election was conducted by Mrs. Milligan, Board Director to the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, and Mrs. John MacLean of Seafarth, was the guest speaker, as well as present was Miss Jacqueline Graham, Home Economist for Lennox and Addington.

The recent draw held by the Land O'Lakes Firefighters was won by Camille Cote, of Northbrook.

The Land O'Lakes Fire fighters bid on a 1955 FWD fire truck at Foymount Air Base through Crown Assets Corporation, but lost out to the village of Havelock.

Belleville's Location at Ontario's Hub Makes It A Logical Convention Centre

Belleville, located in the heart of some of the best vacation land in Ontario with all its facilities and access to both Toronto and Montreal, could be a prime location for agencies and organizations to hold their conventions.

The city council some time ago approached the Chamber of Commerce and asked them to research the idea of promoting Belleville for this purpose.

"It was given some thought but no great progress was made," said J. C. Houston, manager of the chamber.

Now under the direction of George Van de Water, the convention bureau is starting to get on its feet and show results.

Before you can sell a city, you must first know its capabilities and what it has to offer. Thorough surveys had to be made to determine how many people could be housed, fed, and entertained in the city.

"So this was the first chore which faced the committee, made up of members of the chamber," said Mr. Houston.

A convention can be one of the best things that can happen to a town. It brings great revenue for the merchants and hotel keepers alike, and puts the city on the map and in mind, as a good place to come back and visit.

"Realizing this fact, we were surprised to find that little interest was paid to the questionaires circulated throughout the hotels to make the initial survey," said Mr. Houston.

One hotel in the area had to be given three separate forms before they decided it would be a good idea to fill one out and return it.

Because of the work done by the bureau, one large convention has already been booked for next year which will bring approximately 500 delegates and wives into the city.

The AHEPA, a Greek brotherhood organization, newly formed in Belleville, has decided Belleville will be the site of their next convention.

Alex Manjuris, member of the AHEPA, had approached the chamber and asked for information that he could use in an attempt to sell Belleville at the annual convention held this year in Ottawa.

"At the time all we had were a few pamphlets which we were gathering to place in a folder as our major advertising agent," said Mr. Houston.

Although the brochure was not complete, Mr. Manjuris carried his little parcel of colored papers to the convention and the Belleville Convention Bureau had its first taste of success.

To date, the bureau has been staffed with the members of the chamber and funding for the project has been a joint affair between the Chamber of Commerce and city hall.

"This isn't fair to anyone," said the chamber manager.

If the profits of the convention are to be spread throughout the entire economic community, then the cost of promoting the convention should be shouldered by the benefitting parties.

"At this time the bureau is not that affluent in successes that this policy should be enforced and, if further monies are needed for the program, I will be the first to approach the council," said Mr. Houston.

Over a one-year period, 6,000 delegates passed through the machinery of their convention bureau. This figure brought a revenue to the city of $440,000. This represents an increase of 30 per cent in the convention business brought into the city from the past year.

"After seeing what could be done with an efficient bureau, we decided that a list should be drawn up outlining the possibilities for conventions.

"After the list had grown to 900 names, we began mailing letters to each of the organizations asking for replies on the prospects of holding their next, or future conventions in the city.

"Out of our efforts we received 35 letters of agencies seriously considering Belleville as the site of their earliest, unbooked convention," said Mr. Houston.

Numerous groups are simply too large for a city the size of Belleville. From these candidates the bureau received correspondence saying that smaller sub-conventions are held throughout the year and Belleville could possibly be the site of such a gathering.

"For the year of 1972, spide from AHEPA convention there are five other great possibilities. To these groups, we will be sending a brochure, similar to the brochure used by Mr. Manjuris, displaying what Belleville has to offer," said Mr. Houston.

Five similar prospects are slated for the years of 73, three conventions for '74, one for '75 and at least five for years after '75.

"It sounds like we are planning a long way in advance but this is the way conventions work," said Mr. Houston. Besides five years in advance.

"We have laid the groundwork for Belleville to become

Most agencies book their a convention city," said Mr. Houston. "Once the business starts coming in, then the word will spread and conventions will become almost commonplace in the city. Tourism will be promoted and trade will increase.

"Once on our feet, we will approach the city council for funding to further the groundwork and create a full-time staff. Budgeting sooner or later will have to become a joint affair with contributions coming from all benefiting areas," added Mr. Houston.

Tweed

Mr. Arthur Webster, of Marlbank, attended convocation at York University where his grandson, Rose, was in the graduating class.

So far this month, the Tweed weather station has reported rainfall to date of 30 inches. The average rainfall for the entire month of June is three inches. Temperatures have ranged from 80 degrees on June 4, to a low of 33 degrees on the night of June 1, when both Cloyne and Denbigh received frost, with the temperatures below the 32 mark. During the entire month of May, there was 1.44 inches of rain, compared to an average of 2.61 for the month. As a result, the fire hazard is high, making conditions serious. There have been 30 fires involving 70 acres so far in the Tweed forest district, this is from April 1.

Heath Won't Alter Course

LONDON (CP) — Edward Heath, Britain's seafaring prime minister, is sailing with an unchanged course in this last week of a worrying first year in office.

Conservative Heath, who upset the governing Labor party June 18, 1970, has plunged into rough seas. But he refuses to shift direction according to the winds of politics in line with his campaign declaration that the Tory program is meant to take hold during the life of a full Parliament.

Some observers are predicting that, if Conservative electoral support keeps fading away as its current rate, he could find himself back at the polls earlier than this.

At the moment the Tories are running far behind Harold Wilson's Labor party in popular favor. They lost a Common seat recently to Labor, reducing their majority to 38, and look a bear beating in bell-wether local elections around the country.

A major reason for the end of honeymoon is that the government has failed to halt what it called in pre-election days "roaring inflation," which has in fact stepped up its pace.

Another is that there is a wide split in the country—and among the Tories themselves—over Heath's determination to carry Britain into the European Common Market. Polls indicate that 60 per cent of the public is against entry.

Then the union vote has been alienated sharply by at least two things:

1. Legislation to overhaul Britain's industrial relations law which would involve putting curbs on wildcat strikes and making unions subject to stiff fines for certain breaches. The powerful Trades Union Congress is implacably opposed to it and has advised members to take steps to make it unworkable.

2. A determination to hold down large-scale wage increases, which the government regards as the root of the inflation that has sent consumer prices up nine per cent in the first year—compared with six per cent in the year before it took office.

To make this stick, the government has gone through two strikes with its own electricity and postal workers and has been putting heat on the nationalized industries to hold the line.

The government also has lost goodwill among some groups by such policies as reinstituting limited sales of arms to apartheid South Africa—banned by its Labor predecessor—and bringing in immigration legislation which some feel is weighted against colored Commonwealth residents.

Meanwhile, unemployment has been rising as the government waits for "reflationary" tax easements in its budget of last spring to encourage industrial expansion. So far they have not done this.

To cap it all, Rolls-Royce, a trademark of British industrial perfection, went staggering into insolvency and caused the government to sidetrack its avowed policy of no help to "lame ducks" to bail it out.

But when another of these recurrent crises developed this week the government refused to hand over money to maintain the solvency of Upper Clyde Shipbuilders, the country's biggest shipyard group. Instead, it was to help in reorganizin.

MRS. P. PELLETIER, 20 Frederick Street, Trenton, COMES MAXI DISCOUNTING AT LOBLAWS AND SHE COMES OUT AHEAD.

Says Mrs. Pelletier, who shops for a family of six, "I find I save about $10 every two weeks with these MAXI DISCOUNT prices . . . I get savings on canned goods now because they went way down in price and I'm saving a bit on the meat too I think. Of course, meat is one of the main reasons I come to Loblaws—it's always very good—I've never had one complaint to offer about Loblaws meat—and the prices are reasonable as well". Asked about the MAXI DISCOUNT buys she finds in other sections of the store, Mrs. Pelletier says, "I find I can buy all the brands I like at good prices—and the produce here is always very fresh. Of course, I find shopping at Loblaws now before they had MAXI DISCOUNT prices—and I still like it—the only difference is the prices are much better now".

Industrial Commission Has Been Active Since Last Century

Exemption from taxation; free sites, with water frontage, and special inducements offered to manufacturers; best market in Central Ontario; new Bay of Quinte bridge and Murray canal now open; rail connection east, west and north; terminus of Midland railway; near rich mineral deposits; finest residential advantages; delightful summer resorts in vicinity; new hotels in course of erection; direct water communication with Montreal, Toronto, Rochester and Oswego. Correspondence invited. Address WM. N. PONTON, Chairman, Industrial Committee, Belleville.

• • •

From an ad in June of 1891, advantages offered for industry desiring to locate in the bay city were many and varied. These ads were distributed throughout Ontario and Quebec and some parts of the United States.

The present city administration offers no such inducements to industry, according to Industrial Commissioner Fred Bemis. Many municipalities have tendered special tax-free years following location, special hydro rates and other inducements, but some towns have been severely chastised for this and the practice has in some cases, fallen into disuse.

One definite advantage other than the obvious rail, highway and water courses, is special land plots.

At present, the city offers special industrial park land at a rate between $2,500 and $4,200, with local improvement charges extra. —

Mr. Bemis says "only necessary land is sold and land purchases are being watched carefully by the commission to ensure land holdings are not amassed by any single company." In the past at least one company came under city guns for purchase of more land than required plus lack of development.

At these prices, a buy-back clause is included in present contracts demanding specific industrial work within a five year limit, at which time the city would have an option to buy back the property at the original purchase price.

"This is an important factor," said Mr. Bemis, "it eliminates the land speculator."

In November of 1970, 53 acres were purchased and at present, 45 acres are under option. In the northwest and northeast industrial park areas, close to 250 acres are or will be available under the municipal purchase plan . . . one definite advantage to new industry.

Power lines, sewers, and water facilities are within close proximity, according to the industrial commissioner, purchase of land in these special areas is the only type of inducement offered.

At present, there are six firms interested in locating in Belleville with a possibility of 3,000 future jobs . . . but these cases might very well be the case of counting chickens before the hatching . . . they have shown more than a preliminary interest but nothing conclusive has been established.

In fact, almost until the sod is turned, development is a mixture of hard work and wishful thinking.

"We have stayed within the scope of business we could readily handle," such as ones that are anti-pollution (for the most part), ones that can make use of the present population without too much draw on outside employees, ones that can make use of present services and raw materials, said Mr. Bemis.

"We are primarily interested in light to medium manufacturing concerns such as related carpet industries, assembly operations, clothing people . . .

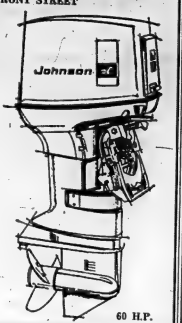
"As our demand increases, we'll be having to purchase more land, but we have sufficient at this time and for several years to come," he added.

Active files have been kept up to date for industrial prospects to examine in strict confidence. "People do trust the commission to act for the community."

Details on companies presently in Belleville are kept on file so that related and unrelated firms can decide whether any offer advantages or competition.

Contacts with the provincial and federal governments are important especially the trade, development and technology branches. Senior and major bank officials, real estate, industrial and development offices, municipal officials and local business . . . as "these are valuable contacts in trying to develop the area."

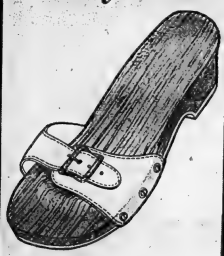
explained Belleville's Industrial Commissioner of one year.



"We offer specific services for our growth and we help answer specific questions that may not be known by members of the commission."

In April, the Industrial Commission co-sponsored a manufacturers trade exchange with active files on industry throughout the province brought to the Sun Valley Motor Inn. There, local industrialists joined Lloyd S. Breen of the Department of Trade and Development, industrial development branch, and the Industrial Commissioner, to discuss world and province-wide innovations.

Conventions, seminars and courses form part of the life of members of the Belleville Industrial Commission as they arm themselves with the ammunition required to bring in prospective manufacturers and business concerns.



In the near - future, Mr. Bemis, an American himself, hopes to re-establish contacts with U.S. holdings.

"We held - off before because of public feeling but dollars are dollars," he commented.

Cut-rate Papers Filing Blocked

TORONTO (CP) — A former legal secretary says lawyers who fear she is cutting into their business have taken steps to stop her from filing divorce papers for clients.

Maureen Wagener and a partner, Sekna Paan, run a public service to handle all preparatory work for clients seeking divorce without a lawyer.

Mrs. Wagener says lawyers are responsible for enforcement of a Supreme Court rule that bars her from filing divorce documents.

"I'm not blaming the whole profession, but there are some lawyers who feel we are cutting into their business, and have taken steps to try to stop us.

"If lawyers didn't charge such outrageous fees for divorce work there wouldn't be any need for the work we're doing. An uncontested divorce isn't worth $700."

Mrs. Wagener and her partner, who is employed in a Toronto office as a legal secretary, charge $100 for their service.

The Ontario justice department has directed all Supreme Court and county court registrars in the province to enforce a rule that says in part that all court business must be transacted by the party concerned, the solicitor or his agent or a clerk in the law office.

Gordon Beddis, Supreme Court registrar, says Mrs. Wagener and her partner "don't come within any of those categories."

He said the rule is an old one. "What we have been asked to do is enforce it."

There may be some question, he said, "whether the type of service offered constitutes a real service to the client?"

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 16, 1971

SUMMER IS FUN IF YOU LIVE IN OR VISIT BELLEVILLE

Harbor Is A Get-Acquainted Must for Visitor or Resident

One of Belleville's greatest glories is its southern boundary — the shoreline of the Bay of Quinte.

The city boasts two sheltered harbors and several parks along the bayshore, with more to come in the future.

Water sports are of prime importance in city and few centres in Ontario offer the opportunities that exist here for boating, swimming, water skiing, cruising, and in winter, for skating and snowmobiling.

For boating enthusiasts on Lake Ontario, Belleville is a favorite harbor, for it boasts good docking facilities, a hospitable yacht club, a marine yard where boats are both made and repaired and a ship's chandler and sailmaker, all within a stone's throw of one another along the water front.

Bay of Quinte Yacht Club is the centre of sailing activity on the bay in summer. It operates a full program of keelboat course races and two longer events — one around Prince Edward county of about 24 hours duration and another from Belleville to Picton.

The harbor commission operates docking facilities on Victoria Park where the yacht club is situated and visitors facilities are available.

BQYC, one of the oldest yacht clubs on Lake Ontario, remain open in the winter for a wide variety of social activities.

Across the harbor is Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Quinte, a thriving organization for teenaged boys. They are taught nautical skills, including sailing, in the Corps dingy fleet.

To the west of the harbor is another sheltered cove, where C. and C. Yachts operate a shipyard. More than 150 fiberglass, 21 foot, Corvette class, sloops have been turned out there, and the company is now moving into larger sailboats, including one designed especially for ocean racing.

Belleville Marine Yard at the same location is equipped to do all types of boat repairs and maintenance. It provides haul-out facilities.

To under-the marine service complete, Charles Keeble has a sail loft on an adjacent site. He also runs a completely stocked marine supply store.

Power Squadron events are regularly scheduled in the summer months and hydroplane competitions are held on the bay off Belleville each year.

The city maintains two parks with beaches and small boat launching facilities. One is located at South George St. the other on Zwick's Island.

The Bay of Quinte offers pleasant cruising waters, but it is also the jumping off point for longer voyages.

To the west, through the Murray Canal, lies Lake Ontario. The Trent Waterway runs from Trenton northwest to Georgian Bay. To the south lies Lake Ontario and east is the St. Lawrence River and Thousand Islands.

Water skiing and SCUBA diving are other water sports available on the bay. The wrecks of several sunken vessels from the 1800s are being explored by divers.

In the winter, the people of Belleville walk on their water. The frozen surface of the harbor is cleared by the city public works department, lights are strung and the area becomes an outdoor skating rink. Snowmobilers use bay in winter, getting on the ice from several city-approved locations in the public parks.

Nearby Lakes Offer Relaxation and Recreation

Summer Youth Theatre Has Challenging Concept

The last three weeks of August will see a veritable festival of children's theatre in Belleville. The parks in the city will be the setting for the outdoor presentations. But for those food parents (and others) whose desire to see their offspring's theatrical talents in play is counterbalanced by a slight aversion to flies and bugs, the young actors will perform at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

These plays will be the culmination of a two-months project — a full-time summer youth program called Cotharus for 25 dedicated theatre fans between the ages of 16 and 25. Under the direction of Lawrence Kwashen, artistic director of the Belleville theatre Guild, they will make an intensive study of set design and construction, lighting, producing, directing and the methods of instructing younger people in theatre. At least, that's how they will pass their mornings, and in the afternoons, they will pass on the knowledge they have acquired for children below 16. Evenings will be spent conducting the rehearsals of the plays. The fruits of their labor will hopefully blossom into polished performances by these under 16-year-olds.

Theatre-oriented young people of 16 to 25 who are residents of Belleville are invited to apply for this co-operative summer youth theatre project. Applications are currently being received at the recreation centre and at the Pinnacle Playhouse between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. After June 18, which is the last date for filling applications, Lawrence Kwashen will be conducting auditions, and selecting 25 of the most promising youngsters.

While experience in itself is not a criterion, preference will be given to those with stage set designing, directing, lighting designing or some other aspect of theatre. Obviously, applicants must have more than a passing interest in theatre. They must be available roughly between 10 a.m. and 11 p.m. each day and pay a minimum fee. Twenty of the young people selected will be capable of instructing children below 16 and the other five will have some knowledge of the technical side of theatre.

And what can they expect in return for all this interest and enthusiasm? An opportunity to receive instruction from an experienced director, to learn the values of co-operative creative work, to work with members of their peer group and to pass on their knowledge and experience to younger people. And, presumably a great deal of fun and enjoyment too.

Set up through the assistance of recreation arms committee of the city of Belleville and the youth and recreation branch of the department of education, the program is in keeping with the current accent on youth theatre in Canada. Similar projects are under way at the National Arts Centre Theatre, Ottawa and the Montreal International Theatre.

The committee felt that these young people would not only get an opportunity to develop their talent, but the program would minimize their chances of hitting the road and idling away the whole of summer for want of any creative and challenging goal. Many parents of children under 16, often at their wits end in summer, trying to provide some constructive activity for the kids will welcome the idea too.

About 120 children are expected to take part every day of the project which would result in four plays to tour the parks of Belleville and three plays at the Playhouse.

Any youngster below 16 who is interested in theatre is invited to participate in this program. The project would involve the participation, either directly or indirectly of a large section of the public. Lawrence Kwashen and his group of 25, a large number of youngsters under 16 and all the people who would turn up to see the plays.

Victorian Mansion New Home of Belleville's Museum

Belleville will be gaining a major tourist attraction in mid-September with the opening of Hastings County's new museum on Bridge Street East.

Housed now in the former registry office at 249 Church Street, the museum is advertised as one of Ontario's finest small museums but with the opening of the new premises, it will have the potential for becoming one of the province's best large historical collections.

Glanmore at 257 Bridge East, was built in 1883 by ancestors of Mrs. Philippa Faulkner with whom the City of Belleville and Hastings county came to a purchase agreement for the property earlier this year.

The building itself is recognized as a handsome testament to the high period of Victoriana and has been declared a landmark of "national historic interest" by the federal government.

Moving to the museum will be the Coulders Collection of antiques, willed to the city more than 10 years ago; the Paul Lamp collection and numerous pieces of pioneer Canadiana.

Decision to acquire the sprawling East Hill mansion was prompted by a widespread desire to at last give the Coulderv Collection a fitting home.

As part of the Coulderv bequest, the City of Belleville had been left a substantial sum of money to finance purchase of a building to house the accompanying antiques.

The $78,000 in Coulderv money became the key to the purchase and restoration of Glanmore, to which the historic Sites Branch of the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development added a further $85,000.

Purchased for $45,000, the elegant old home is now undergoing a restoration treatment that will consume all the remaining money.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey, the Historical Society president, expressed satisfaction with the Glanmore purchase, saying "We have at last fulfilled the terms of the will — the reason the money was given to the city in the first place."

The exterior of the residence is now being restored to its original state — as it was during the 1880s.

New stairs leading to he various entrances have been built in accordance with the specifications of the building's architect.

To the right of the front doors, a modern window added in the last few years has been ripped out and replaced by a reproduction of the original casements.

Rotting cornices under the eves have been removed and new ones have been put in their place — exact replicas of the originals.

Wrought iron work circling the top of the roof has all been taken down, scraped of rust, painted and is being readied for being put up again.

Even panes of glass in the front doors are being replaced by finely etched sheets of glass as originally used.

A back wall of the structure is being rebuilt to eliminate a sinking problem that has already caused a long fissure in the brickwork.

Also in the $15,000 cost of renovating the exterior is the paint job and again careful attention is being given to original specifications.

And on the inside, the place is fast returning to its original form.

A room to the right of the main entrance which had been turned into a modern kitchen is now being restored to its original function as a reception room.

The kitchens will be moved to the basement where they were located in the first place.

And Glanmore will be serving food and beverages — on special occasions anyway.

"It will be the logical place for the city and county to entertain," says Mrs. Jeffrey.

She anticipates a large-scale garden party at Glanmore for the official opening and Hon. Jean Chretien, Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development is expected to be in attendance.

"The building will be a great factor in education in our schools," the alderman contends.

There is very little chance for people to see anything like this elsewhere . . . I do not think anyone can walk through that front door without feeling he is in the Victorian Age."

The upper floor will house a lecture room for school tours and meeting rooms in which the Quinte Arts Council and several clubs have already shown interest.

A side entrance will lead directly to a "Pioneer Room" for the society's Canadiana collection and a basement entrance will open into a display hall of old farm implements. But the most impressive entrance will be right through the front doors into the Victorian Age.

Tweed Area News

The Cloyne Women's Missionary Society held their meeting for this month at the home of Mrs. Bill Brownley.

Earlier this month (June) a meeting was held in the Denbigh Hall to try and get a doctor for Denbigh and the surrounding area.

Mr. Michael Masion, of Ardoch, is a patient in the Kingston Hotel Dieu Hospital. He is 82 years of age.

Mrs. William C. Hermer, of Ardoch, is a patient in the Brockville Hospital.

Leo Raymo, of Cloyne, took a 15-pound northern pike from Skootamatta Lake, recently, and his son, Rickie lost one equally large. Both fish took a minnow.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Teupah of Marlbank, attended the convocation at Queen's University, Kingston, where Mr. Tony Hunt graduated with his bachelor of arts degree.

POLLUTION STEM

LONDON (CP) — The Thames is one of the cleanest city rivers in the world, says a report by the Greater London Council. The report praised the Port of London Authority's major improvements in sewage treatment works. "This impressive story," the report stated, "has been shown by analysis and by the growing number of fish returning to the river."

June Is Rose Month

By Lenny Williamson
Staff Reporter

Belleville promises its citizens a rose garden the last week of every June, with the largest rose festival between Toronto and Montreal.

It's one of the few places where you can buy a dozen roses — prize-winning ones — for less than a dollar at the festival auction that ends the two-day event.

This year the Belleville Horticultural Society's rose festival and African violet show will be held at Centennial Secondary School June 26 and 27.

Again this year it will attract 500 or more contestants and bus loads of flower lovers from outside the city. The African violet show, run in conjunction with the rose festival, is larger than similar events held in Toronto.

Nor are roses and African violets the only flowers entered for competition. Other June-blooming flowers have classes of their own.

Anyone can enter the open division of the rose festival. Horticultural Society members can exhibit in both the open division and the inter-society division.

There is something for everybody at the rose show, including the casual shopper who wants to pick up a souvenir of the occasion.

Twenty - six displays, demonstrations and commercial exhibits will be set up this year, where visitors can learn flower arranging, buy plants and rose bushes and all varieties of flower hobbyists' accessories.

This year the Rose Queen competition will be revived, with the lucky winner in line for a prize of $500. The runners-up, who become princesses, will win $200 and $100.

The rose queen will be chosen at 2:30 June 26 and the trophies for the best roses and other flowers will be awarded about 8 p.m. the same day.

North Shopping Mall Nears Completion

With construction of the new facility right on schedule, a brand new shopping experience will beckon Belleville area shoppers some time late in August.

It is the new multi-million-dollar Quinte Mall at the intersection of North Front Street and Highway 401, scheduled to open its doors on or August 18.

Main anchor store for the 36 store plaza will be Simpsons-Sears, whose department stores are known across the Dominion for the wide range of goods offered customers. The firm's present downtown store will be closed.

In preparation for the August 18 opening date, Simpson's-Sears is already hiring staff for the many store positions. Simpson's alone will hire approximately 200 people, including 60 in full-time jobs.

The other anchor store in the enclosed mall will be Steinbergs, widely known throughout Ontario and Quebec for the Miracle Mart food stores.

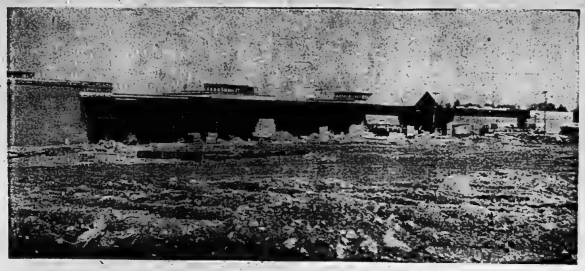
Canada Manpower officials at Belleville said it was expected that Steinbergs would hire upwards of 100 full- and part-time employees.

Total employment at the Quinte Mall, when all stores are rented is expected to be between 500 and 600. All but two of the 36 stores are already rented.

The mall will offer parking for more than 1,400 cars with the enclosed shopping area to feature two movie picture theatres. Total floor area of the plaza is 266,000 square feet.

Construction of the plaza complex is now well advanced with Simpsons already beginning to move into warehouse sections of their new store.

Also part of the over-all plaza complex is the new Shell gas bar and car wash at the corner of North Front Street and Bell Blvd., which is already open for business.



But the North Belleville Quinte Mall is not the only new shopping plaza planned for the Quinte area.

Last fall, Zellers announced that they would build a new store at the corner of Highway 2 and Wallbridge-Loyalist Road.

The proposed Sidney township plaza, featuring Zellers as the anchor store is an enclosed mall facility, will have a widely known still unnamed supermart chain as the grocery outlet, and 20 ancillary stores.

The plaza will cover about 125,000 feet of floor space and will employ up to 225 people. There will be 13 acres of parking.

Jack Diamond of Whalen Real Estate, who handled the property sale, said the principals hoped to commence construction of the new mall some time in July.

Late August Is Target Date for Opening

THE UNHOLY LAND by A. C. Forrest.

In the middle East, life involves degredation and violent death on a daily basis. Conditions there are inhuman and the atmosphere is potentially explosive. Dr. Forrest is editor of the United Church Observer and has made on - the - spot observations of the conditions - economic, political and human - among the Palestinian Arabs in the middle East. He has wide experience of the Holy Land and the Middle East in general and describes the many refugee camps he visited.

THE WONDER OF WORDS by Richard Church.

The Wonder of Words is a gentle loving exploration of the power, the craft and mystery of words, illustrated by episodes from his long life and by delightful quotations from other writers. The author believes that the use of words as an art is an act of worship, a gesture of love, an assertion of faith and hope, against the soulless encroachments of politics and science. How sad for us that this is largely a lost cause.

RENDEZVOUS IN CYPRUS by Barbara Troy.

Barbara Troy visited Cyprus in 1967 and arrived at the time of the tragedy of Ayios Theodoros and Kophinou and stayed until the autumn of 1968. She rented a small villa and then lived in a fisherman's hut meeting a wide variety of people. She gives a vivid picture of Cyprus, the archaeological treasurers, the churches, monasteries and castles with some account of their history.

KAMLOOPS by Steve. Raymond.

The Kamloops trout is a breed apart - a type of rainbow trout that grows to such size, and is noted for speed, strength and violence, that many expert anglers who have fished for salmon, steelhead and Kamloops trout, give the latter an edge for sheer fighting ability. There is a great deal of valuable information in this book for any angler.

THE BLIND HORN'S HATE by Richard Hough.

The southernmost area of South America, from the tip of Cape Horn to the northern shore of the Magellan Strait, is one of the least known, the most hostile and yet most beautiful areas in the world. Richard Hough's book is a tale of the worst journeys in the world, ending up so often in death and frustration - but sometimes in triumph. The men who triumphed, in their tiny cockle-shells, were our ancestors, and no trip to the moon could have been more daring than what those pioneers achieved.

WE BAND OF BROTHERS: A MEMOIR OF ROBERT KENNEDY by Edwin Guthman.

We Band of Brothers is a revealing, personal narrative of the maturing of an exceptional man. The thought of what Robert Kennedy might have become, what he might have done, - makes his loss seem greater with each day that passes.

Hotels Aplenty In City

Belleville is well provided with hotels and motels.

It boasts seven motels and four hotels, including the newest addition to accommodation for the traveler — the Four Seasons Hotel overlooking the Bay of Quinte.

Altogether there are about 530 hotel and motel units available in the city and its immediate outskirts.

Rates range from $3.50 for a single at a downtown hotel to $17 at the new Four Seasons.

Three motels have swimming pools and several offer convention rooms. In addition Club Canara and the new Legion Hall have accommodation for conventions, and dining halls.

Seven of the hotels and motels have licensed lounges or dining rooms.

Types of accommodation range from old, established downtown hotels close to shopping and the commercial district to modern motels.

At the north end of the city, the Sun Valley Motor Inn and Tops Motor Hotel have a total of 158 rooms and banquet and meeting rooms. With the recent opening of the Four Seasons Hotel on the bayshore, 85 more units were added to the city's hotel accommodation. It also offers a variety of facilities for meetings and conventions.

Rose Queen Hopefuls Lining Up

Quinte district girls are taking a keen interest in the Rose Queen contest to be held in conjunction with this year's Rose Festival '71 being held at Centennial Secondary School June 26 and 27.

Alderman Enos David, chairman of the contest committee, reported today that already six entries have been received. Closing date for entries is Saturday June 19.

Applicants don't need fancy formal attire with short casual wear being acceptable dress for the contest. The age limit for applicants is 16 to 20 years. Application forms are available from the principals' offices at high schools or at Barrak's Stationery, 215 Front Street, Belleville.

Brooke Bond Foods Ltd. of Belleville is sponsoring this year's Rose Queen contest and offers $800 in cash prizes to be shared by the top three winners.

Five hundred dollars will go to the Rose Queen with $200 to the first runner-up and $100 to the second runner-up.

In addition, there will be dinner dates for the three winners and their escorts at the Four Seasons Hotel, along with gifts of jewelry from Avon Jewelry and photographs by Riley.

All the Rose Queen contestants will receive gifts.

Rose Queen contest finals will be held June 26 at 2:45 p.m. immediately after opening ceremonies for the rose festival.

Entries for the rose show will be received from Friday evening, June 25 and from 8 to 10 Saturday morning.

Belleville Horticultural Society rose festival chairman A. K. Gardiner expects this year's show to be bigger and better than ever with a record number of entries.

Rink Ready

With construction delays caused by an abnormally hard winter, the city didn't get possession of the new west Belleville Dick Ellis Rink by the expected February date.

But the difficulties of the past winter are water under the bridge and now everything is "go" at the new West Hill recreation emporium.

The first scheduled event for the new rink — a junior lacrosse game — was held last week, and recreation director Lorne Williams doesn't visualize any difficulty in arranging a full year-round program for the new facility.

Roller skating will be offered regularly throughout the summer at the new rink on Harder Drive, then with the arrival of the fall ice season, the sound of skates and the rattle of hockey sticks and pucks will be everyday music — seven days a week.

Mr. Williams says Loyalist College will use the Dick Ellis Rink for their home games, while 40 hours of minor hockey per week are scheduled.

"With the coming of the ice season, the rink will be in use from 9 until 11 daily, seven days a week," assured Mr. Williams.

At the time of writing, 90 per cent of next season's ice time at both the new Dick Ellis Rink and the downtown Memorial Arena, had been committed.

Schools are also expected to make good use of the ice facility, it was stated.

Although the general construction contract has ended, all details of the rink finishing had not been completed at the time of the first scheduled event. Still to be done was interior painting of the rink boards, doors and other woodwork.

Outside, landscaping and the pouring of concrete walks was still to be done. Painting, landscaping and walk installation will cost an estimated $18,000.

The site of the new rink, which so far has cost $365,000, was a co-operative effort on the part of the city parks board and the Hastings County Board of Education.

The Harder Drive site is part of a large recreation complex at the Centennial Secondary School which will see development within the next few ears. Carr - Brant Construction was the builder of the new facility.

Built to accommodate active recreation rather than spectator sports, the structure has a rink - side seating capacity for only about 200 people along east side bleachers.

However, the ice surface is the regulation 85 by 200 feet — 10 feet longer than at the Memorial Arena.

Overall exterior size of the rink is 109 by 236 with a mezzanine floor at the south measuring 25 by 80 feet.

The glass - enclosed mezzanine overlooking the ice surface, will be heated while there are also "people" heaters over the rink bleacher area.

Beneath the mezzanine floor is the entrance lobby, dressing rooms, showers and the main service area. The refrigeration unit is housed in a small addition at the north end of the rink.

Official opening ceremonies are planned later for the new rink, named after a former city alderman and local sports benefactor.

The city recreation committee did the actual planning for the new rink but the initial idea for the facility was the brainchild of the Quinte Action Centre Committee, which two years ago set out to raise funs toward a second badly needed rink.

Our June Discount Spectacular Continues All This Week

Signals Soon to Be Automated

Traffic bottlenecks caused by the ever increasing number of cars are a modern day headache for most municipalities.

And with rush hour congestion at a half dozen different locations, the city of Belleville is no exception.

But improvements are on the way and with completion of the new Dundas roadway reconstruction and the installation of a sophisticated signal light control system for the downtown area, city officials feel that at least half the battle will be won.

That half the battle is relief of the city's east-west traffic congestion problem.

The other half is provision of new arterial routes leading north out of the city's core.

The new traffic signal light control system set up at the city police station will automatically synchronize light cycles at intersections throughout the downtown area.

This control is accomplished through the use of programmed circuits which change light cycles to meet the different traffic conditions at peak periods.

But unless north-and-southbound traffic can move readily in and out of the city's core, a big part of the over-all traffic problem will remain.

In an effort to come up with the correct answer to the problem, city council some months ago retained the engineering firm of Totten, Simms and Rubicki Associates as consultants to do a north-south arterial route study.

Their report, expected some time about the end of June, could recommend another bridge (or bridges) across the Moira at the end of Pinnacle or Church Street and a possible grade separation on Cannifton Road to end the present long delays caused by the level crossing.

That something has to be done — and soon — to relieve the north-south traffic problem is well recognized by city fathers and the city traffic committee.

Frequently they hear complaints of long traffic tie-ups on both North Front Street and Cannifton Road.

During rush hour periods, traffic on Cannifton Road sometimes backs up almost to the downtown area, while southbound traffic on North Front at times backs up from the downtown area to College Street.

And the opening of the new Quinte Mall in north Belleville, scheduled for mid-August is expected to further complicate an already acute problem.

In the meantime the city is going ahead with North Front Street widening to provide turn lanes into the new plaza and at Bell Blvd.

Paving is under way on the West Dundas Street reconstruction project, while widening of East Dundas Street to for lanes in the hospital area is also scheduled.

Also planned for the future is widening of Dundas Street between the new Moira River bridge and also West Dundas Street from the Bay Bridge Road - CPR overpass to the city limits.

When these projects are completed, the Highway 2 route will be a four-lane artery across the south end of the city.

Another project scheduled for a construction start this year is the first stage of the proposed Sidney Street bridge over the CNR double tracks.

The new Monotrol traffic light control system at the city police station is connected by telephone wires with all traffic light installations in the downtown core of the city.

Initially it will control lights at 16 intersections but the control system has sufficient capacity to tie in any number of traffic light installations in all parts of the city.

City's Schools Open To All

Schools are for people, and schools are where it's at today in Hastings county, thanks to the open door policy of the board of education.

A wide variety of social, recreational and cultural activities take place in the schools after regular hours. Between Sept. 1, 1970 and April 30 the schools were open 5,587 hours for community use.

To promote increased use of the school by the community, the provincial government gave the county a grant to pay for an experimental program for one year in a community school project. A coordinator, David Smith, was hired by the school board to operate the program.

"This is a service available to the community," Mr. Smith says, to make different groups aware of each other. Nothing happens in a community unless people do it themselves. The program is not limited to school-oriented activities."

School - oriented activities are available, however, with a thriving night school program offering academic subjects and leisure time training at minimal fees, in two city secondary schools all winter.

With Mr. Smith acting as liaison officer for the board with the city recreation department, hobby, skill and sports activities are scheduled in most schools.

There are square dancing clubs and children's ballet lessons held at the schools through co-operation with other groups such as the recreation department and the Quinte Arts Council.

Two auditoriums, at Centennial Secondary School and Belleville Collegiate Institute are in constant use for stage performances.

An active community school program is in operation at Queen Victoria School for the entire neighborhood and others who want to join in. Its activities were determined by a survey of community wishes. A second survey is now under way in the Queen Alexandra School neighborhood, to determine whether or not the people there want and need a similar program.

At Queen Victoria, after-four sports for the 8-to-13-year-old group were available this year. In the evenings, the 13-to-15-year-old boys and girls have their own sports program with floor hockey, table tennis and basketball.

For adult men and women in the evening there was a physical fitness and exercise program. Classes in arts and crafts, upholstery and weaving were also conducted at the schools.

As the desire develops, the community school program will be extended to other school neighborhoods throughout the city.

WARM RECEPTION

LONDON (CP) — Nebil Bobsall and his girl-friend Brenda Garrett, who always ate French fried potatoes after they made love, argued when Brenda found out that her lover had been unfaithful. So the next time she made French fried potatoes she poured the scalding fat over Bobsall's naked body, a court heard. Brenda was conditionally discharged for causing bodily harm.

Future Development of Area Is in Hands of Planning Board

Located partly in Hastings County and partly in Northumberland County, the Quinte Planning Area, which came into existence March 18 after more than two years in the offing, comes under the joint administration of 23 representatives of nine municipalities.

These two counties form part of the economic Lake Ontario Region as set down by the Ontario Department of Economics and Development.

Major urban centres within this area are Belleville, Peterborough, Trenton, Cobourg, Port Hope and Bowmanville.

As the administrative nerve centre of Hastings County, Belleville serves as a crossroads and hub for development in the Quinte area. One of the largest boards, the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, in existence since 1947 when amalgamated into the new Quinte Area Planning Board, will provide staff and experience invaluable to the new organization.

Situated at the mouth of the Moira River on the Bay of Quinte, Belleville stands at the junction of Highways 2, 14 and 34 with 401 skirting the perimeter of the city. Twelve miles to the west, the town of Trenton lies at the mouth of the Trent River, linked to Highways 2, 33 and 401.

Both municipalities are served by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

Representatives on the board are: Belleville—Dr. J. R. Scott and Aldermen J. A. Ireland, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, Arthur Keegan, E. Arnold Orr and Paul D. Russell; Trenton — Councillors George Greer, Paul Tripp and Dr. W. R. Patrick; Brighton — Reeve Norman Roberts and E. Chatten; Frankford — Reeve W. F. Rose and Councilor L. Reid; Stirling — Reeve Robert Anderson and councillor Donald Rodgers; Brighton Township—Reeve R. Chatten and Councillor E. A. Mound; Murray Township — Reeve H. Lafferty and councillor W. R. Kilb; Sidney Township — Councillor Reg McCarthy and (city) member Horace W. Knight; and Thurlow Township Reeve Horace Casey and Deputy Reeve Borden Forsythe.

These elected and civic representatives on the new planning board will be given the monumental task of controlling the planning future of this area which contains 75,000 residents.

At present the board meets monthly in the offices of their designated municipality . . . Sidney Township. Plans are presently under way to obtain a permanent office facility and staff to proceed with an official plan which the Philips Planning and Engineering firm predicts could be tabled within the next 3½ years.

"We've got a big job ahead of us here and all municipalities will have to work together," chairman Jack Bush said in his inaugural address.

"There will be very little, if any, growth done outside of the controlled urban centres and, although we need controlled areas . . . it is the prerogative of the board to lay down some growth patterns. This is easy to do on paper but very hard to implement."

Mr. Bush predicted little growth patterns for the rural boundaries of the planning area because of the problems of urban sprawl across the province in recent years.

To curtail this sprawling development, urban development will be restricted to areas in proximity to the cities and towns. This concept, drawn up by the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, has not yet been adopted and the city's planning staff predicts it will be some time before adoption is possible because of the restricting boundaries of the plan.

"We're not discriminating: we're not trying to put anyone out of business, it's simply a matter of planning for the future," Mr. Bush stated.

"The main ambitions of any planning area and board is to make an official plan for its total area. This will be like putting the pieces of a jigsaw puzzle together because each municipality has some aspects of planning and official plans."

Although the largest planning staff presently serves with the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board, has not yet been adopted and the city's planning staff predicts it will be some time before adoption is possible because of the restricting boundaries of the plan.

These planning people have consulted with engineering consultants over the past few years and their advice is proving invaluable to the new board.

Although none has been selected as yet, a permanent staff is anticipated for the near future, and the planning board will select most of its employees from present staff. The Philips Planning and Engineering Ltd. of Burlington, who tabled a report at the June meeting, recommended that staff include, a director (professional planner), two or three professional planners, one or two planning technicians, a draftaman, a planning administrator who will also act as secretary-treasurer, a secretary and one or two stenographers or clerk-typists.

The planning board recommended that initial staff be selected to work closely with the consulting firm in the first stages of organization and preparation of the official plan.

Concerts Brighten Summer Sundays

Belleville has revived the Sunday concert-in-the-park as an added assembly during four summer months.

From June through September, live music can be heard every Sunday afternoon at the band shell on Zwick's Island.

The performances are co-sponsored by the Intelligencer and the Music Performance Trust Funds, a public service organization created and financed by the recording industries under agreement with the American Federation of Musicians.

This is the fourth year that the summer series of free concerts has been presented at Zwick's Island. The programs are designed to offer something for all musical tastes, employing local musicians and groups.

The Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra will present a performance: rock groups, dance bands, western performers are all included.

The concerts are part of the North - America - wide efforts of the Music Performance Trust Funds to create and develop public interest and appreciation of music through attendance at live performances. Its funds are derived by periodic payments by the recording industries, based on a formula related to their sales. The fund made $5.004 available to Belleville this year. The money pays all performers taking part in performances, whether they are union members or not, at current union scales in force locally.
